HUNT MISSING BANK CHIEF

WHEAT PIT PUTS QUIZ ON SOVIET DEALS UP TO U. S.

Board of Trade Calls on Hyde for Facts.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

The Chicago Board of Trade yesterday expressed its willingness to cooperate fully with the secretary of agriculture in fighting any evil or demoralizing influence being exerted on the wheat market by the gold of soviet Russia.

In a telegram sent by President John A. Bunnell of the Board of Trade to Secretary Hyde, who on Friday said investigation had shown that the Russians' official trading corporation was a heavy short seller of wheat in Chicago, a request for facts was made. Action by the business conduct committee of the Board of Trade was promised by implication when these facts are received.

Bunnell Asks for Facts.

The message from Mr. Bunnell to Secretary Hyde said:

"Replying to your telegram sent to us. We will appreciate receiving the facts upon which telegram was based and suggest they be laid before our business conduct committee immediately. Suggest you take up with the secretary of state rights of soviet Russia to transact business in the United States through its corporate agents.

"It should be remembered that the Chicago Board of Trade is recognized world market and hedges protecting grain in all positions over the world are customarily placed here."

Secretary Hyde Replies.

Secretary Hyde replied to Mr. Bunnell during the afternoon as follows:

"I am glad to afford your business conduct committee full facts. However, every bushel of short sales by soviet government was sold by your members from whom no doubt you can get information.

"These transactions by the Russian government are not based upon even remote possibility of delivery upon your market or in the United States and have the effect of manipulating the price downward against every farmer who has sold his wheat since the short sales were executed. A new question of broad policy lies before your board to consider, and it is thus primarily a question for the Chicago Board of Trade to consider its position as providing a free market for the American farmer and the consumers of the world.

Cites Law Regarding Prices.

"The law provides the Board of Trade shall make such regulations as 'provide for the prevention of manipulation of prices.' I should be glad to hear your answer in respect to these transactions."

Commenting on Mr. Bunnell's suggestion that the secretary of state be asked to define soviet trading rights generally, Secretary Hyde said the state department had no power to regulate and that the whole matter was up to the conscience of the trader and the rules of the exchange.

It is understood that President Hoover was in conference with Secretary Hyde before the secretary's message was sent. Washington dispatches added, however, that Mr. Hoover will not interfere in what he considers a departmental matter.

In Washington, also, Representative Hamilton Fish [Rep., N. Y.] announced that the house committee on communist propaganda, of which he is chairman, will hold hearings on the matter in New York on Sept. 27 and in Chicago on Sept. 29. He promised to subpœna American [illegible] and Russian clients impartially.

Further Action Up to Hyde.

Neither Mr. Bunnell nor Fred H. Clutton, secretary of the board, would amplify their first telegram in any way. The next move was thereby placed in the hands of Secretary Hyde, who declared he knew soviet selling had contributed to the fall in price of December wheat. The Chicago board says it has no information outside the [illegible].

The feeling in grain circles is that the selling of futures by a subsidiary of the soviet government presents a problem that reaches beyond the mere marketing of grain and involves international questions that can be settled only by concerted action of various government departments.

World Traders Accuse Russia.

Traders in nearly all the principal grain markets of the world seem to believe that the Russians are attempting to demoralize grain prices. A Liverpool house cabled yesterday that the market was "very depressed" there and added: "Offerings of Canadian and [illegible] wheat are large at lower prices. We are near parity with Australian wheat. Likely to react when [illegible] demoralising."

[illegible] in the trade is that the All

CARDINALS SPLIT 2 GAMES; GAIN AS CUBS, ROBINS LOSE

St. Louis Cardinals increased their National league lead to three games yesterday by dividing with the Phillies while the Cubs were losing to Boston, 3 to 2, and the Robins were being defeated by the Pirates, 6 to 2. The Cardinals won the first game from the Phils, 9 to 3, and lost the second, 4 to 3.

SEIZE 200 ARMY OFFICERS IN PLOT ON BULGAR RULE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Sept. 20.—What heretofore has been considered as an ordinary espionage affair seems to have blossomed into an army plot against the Bulgarian government. Arrests of army officers have taken a sudden jump and is said to have reached a total of 200.

The list of the arrested includes three generals. Three of the arrested officers have already committed suicide. The affair is arousing intense excitement in Bulgaria. Officers in uniform are being insulted on Sofia streets.

Several railway and customs officials as well as several police officials were seized today. A strict censorship has been clamped on news from Bulgaria since Sept. 16.

WHISKERS, ALAS, AREN'T IN STYLE AT BRIDEWELL

It was a tough break for George Danovich, 50 years old, when Judge Max Luster in the Grand Crossing court fined him $200 for disorderly conduct yesterday.

"But my whiskers—my hair," protested Danovich, pointing to a luxurious hirsute adornment. "They will shave them off at the Bridewell. Please don't send me there, judge—my whiskers, my hair."

Judge Luster surveyed Danovich and told him he should have tried to join the House of David. Danovich had tried, he said, but his application was useless. He couldn't play baseball. Judge Luster was not impressed, however, and ordered Danovich to the Bridewell for a trimming.

Miss Betty Poor and Miss Eleanor Wheeler, well known members of the Lake Forest younger social set, were injured when they were thrown from their mounts in a feature race at the tenth annual meet of the Onwentsia Hunt club in Lake Forest yesterday afternoon. After pitching their riders to the ground, the horses galloped wildly through the crowd of hundreds of spectators, and scattered them in confusion.

At almost the same hour another society equestrienne, Mrs. Theresa Gross Thomas of 317 Chestnut court, Winnetka, was thrown from her horse at the Indian Hill Riding club, just west of Wilmette. She was dangerously injured.

Taken to Hospital.

Both Miss Poor and Miss Wheeler were taken to the Alice Home hospital in Lake Forest. Miss Poor was injured about the head and back. According to Dr. Theodore S. Proxmire, she suffered muscle sprains and head contusions. Her condition, he said, was not dangerous.

Miss Wheeler's injuries were slight, and she went home without receiving medical treatment at the hospital. She is 18 years old, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Wheeler, 1291 North Elm Tree road, Lake Forest. Miss Poor, also 18, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Poor of North Telegraph road, Lake Forest.

Both girls were fighting for second place in the race, close behind Miss Irene Mitchell, the eventual winner, when Miss Wheeler's horse, "Flit," owned by Benjamin L. Behr, became unmanageable. In front were hundreds of men and women, part of the 5,000 persons who crowded the riding grounds. The crowd, Miss Wheeler explained later, confused both riders and horses.

Girl Riders Are Thrown.

With the home stretch in front but partly concealed by the throngs on the field, Miss Wheeler made a last desperate effort to forge ahead. "Flit," however, swerved and headed for a barrier. At the barrier the horse suddenly reared, and Miss Wheeler was thrown. In the rear came Miss Poor's horse, "Sun Tourist," owned by John E. Hughes. "Sun Tourist" shied, reared and crashed into the fence, throwing Miss Poor heavily to the ground. She was stunned.

Riderless, both horses galloped madly toward the stable, breaking through the crowds. Among the spectators were Mr. and Mrs. Poor. They were among the first to reach the scene of the mishap, and accompanied their daughter to the hospital.

The prize for which Miss Poor and Miss Wheeler raced was the Helen Niblack trophy, given in honor of the wife of Austin H. Niblack. It was presented to the winner of the annual race open to amateur women riders under 20 years of age. Miss Wheeler won the trophy in 1928 and 1929.

Falls While on Fox Hunt.

Mrs. Thomas fell while she was riding in a fox hunt with a party of friends. She is considered an expert horsewoman, and members of her party were unable to account for the fall. Mrs. Thomas was taken to the Evanston hospital. According to Dr. Paul Greeley, she suffered a possible fracture of the skull, possible internal injuries, and fracture of the right arm. She is the divorced wife of Benjamin Thomas, prominent in Cincinnati society, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Gross of Evanston. Mrs. Gross is reported to be gravely ill, and was not notified of the accident.

WOMEN WILL TALK, CANNOT STOP THEM, IOWA JUDGE OPINES

Bedford, Ia., Sept. 20.—(AP)—District Judge A. R. Maxwell knows the impossible when he sees it.

It is impossible, he said in ruling on a slander case today, to keep women from talking.

Mrs. Minnie Oxford, wife of the new market marshal, sought an injunction restraining Belle Morgan and Julia Brown from "speaking to or talking about her and from following her around."

Judge Maxwell declined to grant the injunction, claiming there was no showing of malice.

"It is impossible," he said, "to stop a group of women from talking, because it is their nature. An injunction granted in this case would clutter the court with similar suits. Women must talk, and they must have something to talk about."

THRONGS WATCH BATTLE AGAINST STOCKYARDS FIRE

A spectacular fire that raged for more than two hours last night on the northern edge of the Union stock yards swept half a square mile of feeding pens with a loss estimated at $35,000. The smoke rose in a heavy column and was seen several miles away on the north and south sides.

Only the prompt work of more than fifty pieces of fire fighting apparatus, summoned by 5-11 and special duty alarms, prevented the flames from spreading to packing plants.

The fire was first discovered in a hay barn. It rapidly spread over an area between Halsted street and Racine avenue near the Chicago Junction railway tracks at 40th street.

Scores of extra policemen were sent to the scene to control thousands of spectators. At the height of the fire a power line was burned out, plunging a section of the south side in darkness.

The live stock pens are emptied on Saturday afternoon and only 15 hogs were destroyed.

GROVES, INDIANA OFFICIAL, GONE; FEAR FOUL PLAY

His Bank Is Closed by Directors.

Hazel K. Groves, treasurer of Lake county, Ind., and president of an East Chicago bank, has been missing for two days, his bank has been closed for an examination and authorities throughout the central states last night were engaged in a search for the wealthy Republican leader.

Associates of Mr. Groves expressed the opinion that his affairs were in good condition and were unable to ascribe any reason for his disappearance unless he had been forcibly detained or possibly slain. He was known frequently to have carried large sums of money and a theory of foul play was uppermost in the minds of the friends and officials prosecuting the search.

Bank Closed by Directors.

Mr. Groves' bank, the American State Bank of East Chicago, was closed by voluntary action of its directors yesterday morning as a result of Mr. Groves' failure to attend a directors' meeting on Friday morning and his continued absence. John Meyers, state bank examiner, was summoned, and he assumed charge pending an audit.

Joseph Dunsing, cashier and chief executive officer of the bank, said the directors decided to close the bank mainly to forestall a run anticipated after the president's disappearance became known. He said he felt confident that the bank's condition was satisfactory unless Mr. Groves had taken a considerable portion of its cash with him. He added that he believed the president had not done that.

The bank was capitalized at $50,000. Its most recent statement showed deposits of $662,000 and total assets of more than $800,000. Mr. Groves organized the bank in 1917 and held a controlling interest.

Last Seen Friday Morning.

Mr. Groves left his home at 4724 Northcote avenue, East Chicago, shortly after 9 o'clock Friday morning in his expensive automobile. He was seen a few minutes later by Attorney Joseph Meade, an acquaintance, who reported that Mr. Groves had appeared dejected. The president was expected at the bank for a directors' meeting at 10 o'clock that morning, but did not arrive, and he has not been seen nor heard from since.

Alarmed by his absence, his family and friends notified Sheriff Joseph Kyle of Lake county late Friday night and Sheriff Kyle immediately sent a description of the banker and his automobile to all principal cities of the middle west and called on the state highway police to patrol the highways. Mr. Groves' car bore the Indiana license number 674, and every garage in Lake county was searched for a trace of the automobile.

Discounts Suicide Theory.

A theory of suicide was discounted by Sheriff Kyle. He indicated that if Mr. Groves had killed himself, his automobile would have been found. Furthermore, no motive for a suicide was advanced. Mr. Groves' family said he had been in his usual disposition and was in good health. He was not known to have had any business or financial reverses.

Daniel Kreitzman, chief deputy treasurer, said Mr. Groves' affairs as county treasurer were in satisfactory condition and he expressed the belief that Mr. Groves would return, although he too was unable to account for his continued absence.

Millionaire Is Arrested as a Tree Top Flyer

Charged with flying his airplane at a low altitude dangerous to the safety of residents of Lake Forest, Ralph N. Isham, millionaire aviation enthusiast, was arrested last evening by Chief of Police Lester Tiffany on a warrant sworn out by Evans Spaulding, 123 Onwentsia road, Lake Forest.

"I'll prosecute this case to the end," asserted Mr. Spaulding last night after he was informed of Isham's arrest. "This business of flying just above the tree tops is dangerous."

Isham, who lives at 70 East Cedar street, Chicago, is listed in the city directory as a capitalist. When he was served with the warrant by Chief Tiffany he smiled, and pleaded not to be taken to court immediately.

Trial Set for Wednesday.

He desired to fly his plane to the Pal-Waukee airport, and then keep a dinner engagement, he said. His request was granted. Later it was agreed by telephone arrangement that he would appear before Justice of the Peace Samuel J. Sorenson at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

The warrant on which Mr. Isham was arrested merely named "John Doe" as the offender, and contained the following phraseology:

"The pilot did fly his plane at a lower altitude than is considered safe for the protection of lives at Lake Forest, at an altitude of not more than twenty-five feet."

Plaintiff Plays Sleuth.

Mr. Spaulding was unable to obtain the number of the plane until yesterday when he saw it resting unoccupied in a farm field a quarter of a mile south of the Onwentsia Country club. The landing had been accomplished safely despite a barbed wire fence which stretched less than ten feet from the tip of one wing. Mr. Spaulding jotted down the plane's number, NC 542 E, and several other identifying marks, and included them in his warrant.

He then handed the paper to Chief Tiffany. The chief, with two men, hurried to the impromptu landing field to await the return of the pilot. After a short stay, Chief Tiffany departed, leaving the two policemen in charge of the plane. It was the first time in the history of the north shore that, as Chief Tiffany remarked, a "plane was under arrest."

The Warrant Is Served.

Chief Tiffany returned later in time to meet Mr. Isham as he returned to his plane. The warrant was served. On Mr. Isham's promise to appear in Justice Sorenson's court, he was permitted to fly his plane away.

According to the police, residents of Lake Forest have complained against low flying of airplanes. Not one, but many planes, it is said, soar slightly higher than the tree tops. One of the planes is equipped with a siren, adding to the general discomfiture. According to Mr. Spaulding, he and his family have been in constant fear of a crash.

Farm Episode Recalled.

Unofficial records show that in 1926 Mr. Isham made a forced landing in an oat field just west of Libertyville. The field was freshly plowed and planted, and the farmer, irate over the unexpected intrusion, refused to permit the young millionaire to remove his plane until the new oats ripened.

To hop off, the farmer point out, would only damage more acreage. The farmer won, the story goes, and Mr. Isham eventually received his plane, and a bill for damages.

U. S. Girl, Wed to Indian Maharanee, Expects Child

ST. GERMAN-EN-LAYE, France, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Another child is expected by Maharanee Sharmishthabai, formerly Nancy Miller of Seattle, Wash., and her Indian husband, the former maharajah of Indore. Their handsome Château d'Hennemont, where James II., deposed English king, died in exile, is being prepared for the ceremonies which precede and attend birth.

REVEAL BARKER FATTENING ON THREE UNIONS

Coal Hikers Pay Him Well, Checks Show.

George [Red] Barker, ex-convict and racketeer labor union agent, extracted money at the rate of several thousand dollars each month from the Yardmen's and Coal Hikers' union, a subsidiary of the Coal Teamsters' union, according to canceled checks discovered yesterday by State's Attorney Swanson. The prosecutor made his discovery when he ordered the safe of the union broken open after he had negotiated in vain with union officials to open it voluntarily.

Assistant State's Attorneys Charles J. Mueller and Charles Lounsbury, who have been placed in direct charge of the racketeer investigation as ordered by Chief Justice John P. McGoorty of the Criminal court in a special charge to the grand jury, said that if the financial revelations made in the last two days continue they expect to be ready for grand jury action against the labor racketeers within the next week.

Barker Acts as Union Head.

Barker, who with William J. [Three Fingered Jack] White, another ex-convict, rules the coal hikers' union, apparently accounts for his expenditures under the designation "expenses."

The first batch of checks taken from the coal hikers' union safe show that Barker acts as president of the union and signs the checks, according to the prosecutors. Those found made out to cash and signed by Barker for August, are as follows:

Aug. 2, $541; Aug. 9, $286; Aug. 16, $644; Aug. 19, $100; Aug. 22, $385; Aug. 28, $300, and Aug. 29, $362. The total of $2,618 is unaccounted for through these cash checks except that some of them show an indorsement by "D. F. Cain."

The balance sheet shows that the union had $1,311.25 left in the treasury on Aug. 30.

Can't Find Where Money Went.

The prosecutors said the ledger book failed to show at first glance where Barker spent the money he took out of the union treasury, which is filled by the men who receive approximately $5.50 a day by wheeling coal from the street into basement bins. The ledger book just shows entry after entry of $500 and $600 for "expenses," the investigators said.

"We are curious to know what the designation, 'expenses,' includes," Prosecutors Mueller and Lounsbury said. Barker certainly had a lucrative racket when you figure that he was connected with at least three unions having to do with the delivery of coal.

"It was discovered on Friday that he took some $600 a month out of the regular teamsters' union treasury for salary and another $200 a month for maintenance of his expensive automobile, which the teamsters paid for. In addition to that, we find him as one of the leading officials of the Coal Peddlers' union.

Barker's Income Put at $25,000.

"We have not as yet been able to figure out the books of the peddlers' union. It seems a certainty, however, as far as we have gone, that out of the three unions Barker makes better than $25,000 a year, besides having an expensive automobile and all his attorney fees paid for him."

Not only does Barker take money in huge sums from the hikers' union by the check system, but he is preparing himself, it was disclosed, for a merry Christmas at the expense of the men who wheel in the coal for a living. The safe disclosed a Christmas saving fund book on the Mid-City bank in the name of George Barker.

The records show that Barker takes $20 each week out of the treasury for his Christmas present from the "boys." The book was paid up to Sept. 13 and shows that $360 already had been deposited in Barker's Christmas fund.

Union Pays Attorney Fees.

The hikers' books show that this union was also compelled to bear part of the payment of attorney fees to keep Barker and White out of the clutches of the law. The union was charged up with $500 attorneys' fees for "Smith & Smith and Everett Jennings" for the months of January and February. This was about the time that Barker and White were arrested in the guntoting cases, which are still pending.

The coal teamsters' main union, it was discovered Friday, paid $5,000 for the defense of Barker in his trial for the murder of a garage attendant two years ago. This sum also went to Attorneys W. W. and Milton Smith, the records revealed.

"That was only the last payment of the fee," said Attorney Smith yester-

Fall House Cleaning Time Suggests New Furniture

Many otherwise heroic husbands these days are timidly telephoning their spouses about important evening conferences, dinners with the boss or similar mythical engagements. Fall house cleaning time is here!

As they go through their homes, thrifty housewives are deciding that it is just the right time to pension off veteran articles of furniture for long and faithful service and replace them with the beautiful pieces now displayed by Chicago stores.

New rugs and carpets—new dishes—new draperies—new kitchen equipment—new occasional pieces—these are some of the ways in which homes are being brightened and made more comfortable.

There is unusual satisfaction to be gained from the installation of a new suite or even a single piece of up-to-date furniture and now is a good time to buy.

Chicago Tribune

day when he appeared at the Criminal court building and was the subject of jests by his associates. "Maybe that is all the teamsters paid, but it wasn't all the fee."

The prosecutors have not delved into the records of the Hikers union far enough yet to determine how much money White takes out for his services. They think it possible that Barker takes all the money out in his own name and splits with his ex-convict associate.

Barker, White, Bernard O'Donnell of the Commission Wagon Drivers' union, and several other hoodlums are credited with control of some 33 unions, which have been seized from the legitimate officers by intimidation and use of the revolver.

Lieut. William V. Blaul and a squad of his detectives broke open the Hikers' union safe with crow bars after John Sheridan, leading figure in the teamsters' unions, had failed to appear to open it. Assistant State's Attorneys Homer Dodge, Edward Dufficy, and Donald Thompson immediately started to work to sort and separate the papers and prepare them for grand jury presentation.

Obtain Dues Through Employers.

Prosecutor Dodge, who made an investigation months ago of charges of collusion between the teamsters and the coal dealers' association, said that Barker and White do not depend on the workingmen to pay their dues. He said that the concern for which any particular hiker or yardman is employed is made to deduct a designated percentage from the employé's pay, said to be 50 cents on every $5.50 earned, and send it direct to the union.

Sergt. Michael Ahern of the state's attorney's staff yesterday found the headquarters of the Newspaper Wagon Drivers' union at 180 West Washington street. The subpœna duces tecum issued by Judge McGoorty earlier in the week was used to seize the records of this union.

The headquarters could not be found at the time of the subpœna was issued. Sergt. Ahern seized a safe and several file cases of records.

To Study Solberg's Records.

It was announced that as soon as the assistant prosecutors finish the task of sorting over the seized papers they will then start to work on the several file cases of reports in the possession of Assistant State's Attorney Marshall Solberg.

Solberg was put into the prosecutor's office as a $12,000 a year racket investigator at the request of the Association of Commerce, and has thousands of reports on which no record of court action has been announced. The new group of prosecutors hope that his files may at least contain clews to follow up in the present inquiry.

DIES AFTER RAIL ACCIDENT.

Halvar Bentsen, 33 years old, of 4924 Eddy street, who was found unconscious on the platform of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad at Crawford and Fullerton avenues yesterday afternoon, died at the Keystone hospital without regaining consciousness. Cragin police are investigating.

18 INDIANAPOLIS POLICE INDICTED ON DRY CHARGES

2 Sergeants Included U. S. Jury's List.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Eighteen Indianapolis policemen were indicted this afternoon for conspiring to violate the prohibition law by providing protection to booze runners.

Twelve of the policemen, including two sergeants, have been arrested. Several other persons also were arrested on prohibition charges. The arrests followed a report of the United States grand jury here today, which named 175 persons for various offenses. Arrest of other Indianapolis policemen is expected.

Noel Stark, brother of Judson F. Stark, Marion county prosecutor, was among those arrested.

All of the men arrested were suspended immediately. They were taken before United States Commissioner John W. Kern, and the bond of each was fixed at $3,500.

The arrests were a sensation, when they were made at police headquarters, there having been no intimation that alleged vice conditions in Indianapolis were being investigated. This is the first attack on police conditions under the régime of Reginald Sullivan, who has been mayor of Indianapolis since Jan. 1.

Follows Confab with League.

Sullivan is the first Democrat to be duly elected mayor of Indianapolis since 1916. His father was mayor twice in the nineties. Sullivan succeeded L. Ert Slack, Democrat, who was named mayor by the city council after John Duvall, klan supported Republican, was indicted and resigned as mayor under fire.

Increased activity on the part of the police department with reference to liquor, vice and gambling law violations was indicated earlier Saturday as a result of a conference of city executives and officials of the Indiana Anti-Saloon league.

Conditions generally throughout the city were discussed and police received considerable information of alleged law violations, the county prosecutor announced tonight he has been investigating complaints of laxity on the part of some members of the police department in enforcing the liquor, vice and gambling laws. The information by the prosecutor's investigators will be presented to the county grand jury at an early date.

According to the mayor, a spirit of coöperation between city authorities and the officials of the Anti-Saloon league prevailed at this conference. He said at the time he took office he had written to the league officials suggesting that such conferences be held to discuss prohibition enforcement.

India Arrests Woman Chief of Bombay 'War Council'

BOMBAY, India, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Mrs. Rama Raikamdar, who a fortnight ago succeeded Mrs. Hansa Mehta as president of the Bombay chapter of the All-India National Congress War council, was arrested here today.

HONEST JOHN TELLS THE TRUTH TOO TRUTHFULLY

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 20.—(AP)—The truth—even if it hurts—is John Marshall's rule, and he embellishes it with little sidelights so you'll know just how it was.

Marshall, no address, appeared before Judge H. H. Sawyer today.

"Yes, your honor, I was drunk and it was a pippin," he admitted. "I don't believe in holding up your hand just to feel the wind blow. When I hold up my hand and swear, I tell the truth, and when I say I was drunk, I mean I was drunk, but if you'll give me a chance to leave town, I'll be outside the city limits in seven minutes."

"Ten dollars or three days," replied the judge.

"Well, I guess I can do that. I just got out of jail yesterday."

ELIMINATE TWO LINGLE SUSPECTS IN WEEK'S PROBE

Witnesses Clear Geisking and Fawcett.

Developments in the investigation of the murder of Alfred Lingle in the last week included the capture of two men who seemed to be among the likeliest suspects sought for the crime.

Both men were eliminated from the list of those under suspicion as having fired the shot which killed Lingle. Witnesses to the murder were taken to view the two suspects, who declared the prisoners not to be the man they had seen commit the crime.

The men captured, both of whom have records as gangsters and outlaws, are Ted Geisking, who has led a wild, criminal life as a member of a notorious band of Indiana gangsters, and James Fawcett, alias Forsythe, a Chicago hoodlum and labor racketeer.

Officials Get Information.

In each case, information with a semblance of reliability, seemingly indicating that the suspects had a part in the Lingle murder, was received by the officials in charge of the investigation, who are Charles F. Rathbun, member of the law firm retained by THE TRIBUNE and a special assistant state's attorney; James E. McShane, special assistant state's attorney, and Pat Roche, chief investigator for State's Attorney Swanson.

Geisking had been the object of seven weeks' intensive search. Mr. Roche sent investigators, led by George Williams, into Indiana, and for weeks they mingled with the Hoosier underworld.

$55,725 IN REWARDS.

Rewards totaling $55,725 are offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Alfred Lingle. Of the $25,000 reward offered by The Tribune, $10,000 will be paid to any person who will give confidential information identifying the slayer of Lingle. All information should be sent to the headquarters established by State's Attorney Swanson in room 503 Temple building, 77 West Washington street. Telephone State 3729.

A week ago today, acting upon word from the Chicago investigators, the authorities at London, Ky., seized a gang of hijackers who turned out to be members of the Joe Traum gang, of which Geisking was one of the principal foragers. Geisking was not among them, but those who were caught were given prison sentences. About the same time Geisking was taken for vagrancy under the name of Harris.

With the publication of details of this capture, along with the story of the search for Geisking, Chief of Detectives M. Rey Yarberry of Louisville, Ky., noticed a resemblance between pictures of Geisking and a prisoner who had been seized for vagrancy and who had given the name of Emerald Harris of Chicago.

Says Geisking Is Not Killer.

Investigator Roche and Prosecutor Rathbun set out immediately for Louisville, taking witnesses to look at the prisoners. The witnesses declared Geisking was not the Lingle slayer, but sufficient other crimes were fastened on the prisoner by the Indiana authorities to cause his removal to that state, where he now faces a long prison sentence.

On Friday, after returning to Chicago, Rathbun and Roche raided a suburban home at Glenwood, Ill., which was found to be the hangout of the Traum gang, and records and letters seized in this raid are now under investigation.

Warrants for 26 Gangsters.

The capture of Fawcett, effected by Investigator Roche, was the culmination of a search for him which began within 24 hours after the killing of Lingle on June 9. When at last he was in custody and witnesses were called to look at him they failed to identify him as the assassin.

State's Attorney Swanson's general assault upon gangland, in which Rathbun, McShane, and Roche have played a leading part, continued during the week with the issuance of warrants for the 26 "public enemies" named by the Chicago crime commission on charges of vagrancy. Danny Stanton, one of the "public enemies," was arrested and indicted for carrying concealed weapons.

Matt Foley, who as assistant circulation manager of the Chicago Herald and Examiner perpetrated a lottery swindle in which several thousand ticket were purchasers were victimized, is still a fugitive from justice.

The killing of Julius Rosenheim paid informant of the Chicago Daily News, likewise came no nearer to a solution. Although Leland H. Reese, gangland reporter for the Daily News, stated in a signed article in his newspaper that he had received information from a reliable source that Rosenheim was killed by the Capone gang to intimidate the editors of the Daily News, Reese has given no information as to the nature of this evidence, nor as to his other connections with Rosenheim, to the authorities.

A MODERN SANITARY CREAMERY
National Tea Co. Modern Butter Print Machines

GALLOPING DAIRIES
were once the vogue

Back and forth they ran, jogging the awkward goatskin bags from side to side. Gradually tiny particles of butter fat rose to the top of the milk in the skins and formed the gelatinous compound we know as butter.

Thus in ancient days butter was made and used in Southern Europe and Asia. Great herds of sheep and goats, fattened on mountain grass, produced the thick tart milk which was poured into goatskin bags, then slung over the backs of horses, whose jogging made butter. The raw butter fat thus obtained served as a panacea for many ills. Wounds and bruises were dressed with it; lamps were fueled with it; and last of all it found use as food.

Descendants of these ancients throughout Europe by a stage of gradual evolution through hand churning became famous for fine butter especially the Danes and Northern European people.

Modern American dairies and creameries with scientific research and experiment brought us the modern creamery. Butter has since become one of the staples of modern dietetics—a nourishing, healthful tissue-builder. Its scientifically accurate and sanitary production is a far cry from the galloping dairies of centuries past.

NATIONAL TEA CO. FAMOUS FOR BUTTER
National Tea Co. has long been famous for its high-grade creamery butter. This enviable reputation has been gained by our food experts searching the middle west's dairy lands for the finest butter obtainable, for which a premium is paid over the market price to assure our customers a highest grade butter. NEW CHARGES FILED AGAINST BISHOP CANNON

Accusations Are Made by Four Ministers.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 20.—(AP)—A new complaint against Bishop James Cannon Jr., bearing the signatures of four Methodist ministers and calling for another investigation into the activities of the church official, has been forwarded to Bishop William N. Ainsworth of Birmingham, Ala., chairman of the college of Methodist bishops.

Announcement of the new charges was made today by the Rev. Costen J. Harrell, D. D., pastor of a Richmond Methodist church, who declined to reveal the nature of the complaint.

In announcing the complaint Dr. Harrell issued the following statement: "On yesterday a complaint against Bishop James Cannon Jr. was mailed to Bishop William N. Ainsworth, chairman of the college of bishops, Methodist Episcopal Church, South, asking him to call a committee to investigate Bishop Cannon's case. This complaint was signed by four ministers of the church, Dr. Forrest J. Prettyman of Baltimore, Dr. Costen J. Harrell, and Dr. J. T. Marsten of Richmond, and Dr. I. P. Martin of Abingdon, Va."

Last Charges Dropped.

The complaint announced today would bring Cannon a second time before an investigation committee. The first investigation concerning alleged bucketshop transactions was dropped by the Methodist conference at Dallas last May when Bishop Cannon appeared before a general session of the delegates and expressed himself as being contrite.

Under rules of the Methodist church the filing of a complaint makes it mandatory for the bishop with whom the complaint is filed to call an investigation committee. Twelve members comprise an investigation committee. If in the judgment of the committee the evidence warrants such action, the accused official is suspended and the case referred to the general conference.

Since the general conference at Dallas the so-called Goldhurst letters, said to have been written by Bishop Cannon to H. Goldhurst of Kable & Co., have been revealed. Kable & Co. was the concern Cannon was alleged to have dealt with. It was indicated from these letters that this company did not transact business like the ordinary brokerage houses and that Bishop Cannon was familiar with this matter.

Letters Go in Record.

The letters, said to have been written in several instances upon stationery of the Anti-Saloon league of Virginia, were spread upon the pages of the Congressional Record of July 3, 1930. The Congressional Record quotes a long hand letter to Goldhurst, dated April 11, 1929, as follows:

"I can get some additional advances when my friend is satisfied that sales are made, as I agreed, but he cannot understand failure to send regular statement of sales as is done by other houses. Send at once to Richmond report of all sales.

"Sincerely yours,
"JAMES CANNON JR.

"P. S.—Tell Al's friends not to count their chickens before they are hatched."

Declines to Name Charges.

New York, Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Dispatches from Baltimore tonight said that Dr. Forest J. Prettyman, an elder of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, had confirmed the report he had joined with other elders in new charges against Bishop James Cannon Jr.

Dr. Prettyman declined to say what the charges were. There had been reports that they involved "immorality." When pressed on this point he said:

"In the language of the church 'immorality' is a very broad term. It might involve almost any irregularities of conduct, irregularities which in the general sense might not be considered 'immoral.' In the language of the church telling a falsehood would be considered an immoral action.'"

Dr. Prettyman said any discussion of the charges would have to wait a report of the board of twelve bishops which Bishop William N. Ainsworth of Birmingham, Ala., must appoint to investigate.

Bishop Married in London.

Dr. Cannon and his bride, the former Mrs. Helen McCallum, are on a tour in South America. Mrs. McCallum served as secretary to Bishop Cannon before their marriage. She aided him in his studies on a trip to the Holy Land. They were married in London on July 20. The bishop gave his age as 65 and Mrs. McCallum gave hers as 45.

FAILS TO APPROVE OF BIRTH CONTROL VIEWS, SO QUITS AS RECTOR

Seattle, Wash., Sep. 20.—[Special.]—The Rev. John A. Staunton resigned today as rector of St. Michaels Episcopal mission. He left tonight for South Bend, Ind., where he said, he would become a member of the faculty of Notre Dame university.

Dr. Staunton said in his letter of resignation that one reason for his action was "the favor with which part of the congregation view birth control."

In conversations recently Mr. Staunton has expressed disapproval of the pronouncement on birth control adopted by the Lambeth conference, the world gathering of Episcopal leaders. He told his friends the church policy seemed a compromise

The resignation ended a stormy career of the Rev. Mr. Staunton which covered a period of 21 years as missionary in the Philippines and which led to serious clashes with the church authorities. At one time the bishop went into the wilds to meet the missionary and remonstrate with him.

Mr. Staunton did not announce his plans in regard to future church affiliation of faith.

Bishop S. Arthur Huston declined to make any extended statement but expressed high regard personally for Mr. Staunton. He said it was a matter of principle with the departing clergyman. Other Episcopal ministers praised Mr. Staunton for his works and for his support of his principles as he sees them.

CHICAGO TO TURN BACK CLOCK NEXT SUNDAY MORNING

Chicago clocks will turn backward in their flight at 2 a. m. next Sunday, when daylight saving time officially comes to an end.

The return to standard time will be observed throughout the country where advanced time is used. Virtually all of the communities in the metropolitan area adopt daylight saving time along with Chicago, and, with Chicago, will resume standard time next Sunday. Daylight time went into effect the last Sunday in April, giving millions of city workers an extra hour of sunlight for play and recreation.

LUNG MACHINE WINNING FIGHT AGAINST DEATH

Physicians at St. Luke's hospital, where Miss Frances McGann's life is being sustained by a Drinker respirator, last night reported additional improvement in her condition. She is gaining strength and yesterday was "able to move about slightly." For periods of from three to five minutes she can now breathe without the apparatus.

It was also reported yesterday that she was able to take solid food to vary the liquid diet she has been receiving. Dr. John Tabill, neurologist, is in charge of the case.

Miss McGann, a 23 year old student nurse from Altoona, Ill., was placed in the respirator a week ago, after infantile paralysis had attacked her lungs.

Dr. Philip Drinker of Harvard developed the apparatus, which was given to the hospital last July by the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, the presentation speech being made by Samuel Insull Jr., vice chairman of the company.

50,000 YEAR OLD DRAWINGS BARE STONE AGE ORGIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 20.—A discovery which may revolutionize the existing concepts of the origins of human society, but which also reveals how far rooted in the past are certain human traits, was presented yesterday at the French Academy of Inscriptions in the form of reproductions of 50,000 year old drawings found scratched in the rock in the famous Three Brothers cavern in the Pyrenees near the border of the tiny republic of Andover. They were found by the Abbé Breuil and can only be reached by crawling on hands and knees through a 1,000 foot shaft.

The drawings represent prehistoric orgies not unlike those of modern times. The three central figures are a reindeer with human features, a primitive wood nymph, half woman and half buffalo, and a weird male devil or sorcerer.

SALESMAN FALLS TO DEATH FROM LOOP BUILDING

Rupert J. Beindorff, 8113 Jeffery avenue, formerly a salesman for the Lee Tire and Rubber company, 3942 Federal street, leaped or fell to his death yesterday afternoon from the fire escape on the thirteenth floor of the Engineering building, 205 West Wacker drive. Initials in his clothing and an opened letter in his pocket led to the identification.

His wife, Lucille, told police that Beindorff had been dismissed from the sales staff of the rubber company Sept. 1 after being employed for nine years. He left home yesterday morning to seek work. She said she had noticed no despondency in his manner, although he was worried over unemployment. The couple have two children.

No witnesses to the actual leap could be found. The body fell to the alley in the rear of the building, narrowly missing R. Duffy, 826 Keystone avenue, who was passing in Wells street. An inquest will be held tomorrow morning.

ALCOCK SHIFTS CAPT. RUSSELL TO BURNSIDE

A general order issued last night by Acting Police Commissioner Alcock transfers Capt. Joseph M. Johnson of the Burnside station to the first deputy's office, and assigns Capt. William F Russell, Alcock's predecessor, as commander at Burnside.

Capt. Russell previously had been at the Deering station. Lieut. Patrick H. Bonner was made an acting captain to succeed him there.

HOW NEW YORK TURNED TO RAIL ELECTRIFICATION

Public Clamor for Action Spurs Carriers.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

New York, Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Away back in 1882 THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE published Clarence Dresser's famous interview with William H. Vanderbilt, president of the New York Central railroad, touching on the public demands voiced in Chicago for better railway service.

"The public be damned!" Mr. Vanderbilt had ejaculated to THE TRIBUNE reporter.

In that deathless exclamation Mr. Vanderbilt won the immortality posterity accords to the author of an unforgettable utterance. In four words Mr. Vanderbilt had not only illuminated his own attitude in a particular matter, but had epitomized that in general of the great captains of industry in the era of their major conquests. When the curtain rises on the next scene scarcely twenty years later Mr. Vanderbilt has gone to his reward, the public is voicing its demands in more impressive terms and is being softly answered by another Vanderbilt—William K., son of William H. If he shares his father's attitude toward the public he is at pains to conceal the fact. There has been that much progress in less than two decades.

Public Demands Voiced.

It was the New York public this time whose demands for better railway service were resounding in the board room of the New York Central, where William K. Vanderbilt, J. P. Morgan the elder, and Senator Chauncey Depew were guiding the destiny of a great property in what they dimly perceived to be a new era—one in which the public was resolved not to be damned but to be pleased, as William G. McAdoo phrased it when in broaching his Hudson tunnel project he sought to capitalize William H. Vanderbilt's blazing indiscretion.

New York City in those late 90's had reached the stage of development upon which Chicago has but recently entered. It had become the workshop of hundreds of thousands of suburbanites. A tide of humanity flowed upon the island of Manhattan in the morning, choking train and ferry channels, and ebbed with another rush at night. The age of the commuter had dawned.

An ever increasing horde of people from Connecticut and New York communities within a radius of 50 miles poured into the metropolis in the trains of the New York Central and of the New York, New Haven and Hartford, which came in on the New York Central tracks.

Smoke Engulfs District.

The New York Central tracks stretched down the middle of Manhattan island to the heart of the city. They had been there since the days when people liked to build brownstone houses where they could sit on the front stoop of an evening and watch the trains go past. Now the brownstone houses had given way to tall buildings that were walling in the Vanderbilt road's right of way. It began to look like a gulch in inferno. From it ascended at all hours clouds of smoke, steam, and cinders from the locomotives puffing about on the network of tracks. Whistles shrieked, bells clanged, the old-fashioned couplings banged and ever and anon passenger trains roared by. Particularly of an evening, with the locomotive headlights glaring here and there and the flames in opened fireboxes reddening the sky, it did look like inferno to the pedestrians crossing the gulch by the wooden foot bridges that linked the streets cut through by the tracks

People living nearby were complaining that there was no sleeping for the noise and no keeping the houses clean, for the smoke and cinders. The commuters were complaining of conditions in the two mile tunnel down Park avenue between 56th and 96th streets through which the New York Central and the New Haven trains took them to and from work. In the rush hours, with trains running a few minutes apart, the tunnel was filled with smoke, and steam, and cinders. The rule was that every passenger should slam his window tight shut when the train entered the tunnel, but if a passenger forgot or the window failed to budge a carful of commuters would emerge half suffocated and looking like coal miners.

Commuters Lodge Complaints.

Commuters complained to the police, to the mayor, to the governor. They wrote letters to the newspapers, to the New York Central board room, in which Vanderbilt and Morgan and Depew were sitting with slightly puzzled expressions on distinguished countenances.

The city health department got busy testing the air in the tunnel. It could not find any fit to breathe. It forbade the use of soft coal, but had difficulty enforcing the edict. The railroad officials thought there was no practical remedy short of taking the roof off the tunnel.

A few of the bolder spirits among the commuters wanted to know why the use of steam as motive power in the tunnel should not be prohibited. In 1895 the Baltimore and Ohio had electrified the operation of its trains through the two mile tunnel between its two stations in Baltimore. It had done so to remedy the very evil complained of in connection with the Park avenue tunnel in New York. Moreover, the New Haven road that same year had completed the first steam railway electrification in America on its Nantasket Beach line.

Answered in Different Tone.

Why shouldn't the New York Central do what other roads were doing in the interest of improved service? The question, more and more insistently put by its patrons, penetrated the railroad's board room. It was answered by William K. in 1901 in a tone far different from that of William H. in 1882, although no difference was to be noted in the immediate result. He said that the New York Central was devoting much time and money to the effort to remedy conditions in the Park avenue tunnel, public convenience and comfort being the first consideration of the corporation at all times. He said that for two years the railroad's engineers had been studying the possibility of electric operation of passenger trains, at least suburban trains moving in and out of the Manhattan terminal. They were not ready to pronounce it feasible, the problem in New York being so tremendously more complicated than that in Baltimore that no comparison was possible. If the engineers could find a way to abolish steam operation in the Park avenue tunnel the railroad, said Mr. Vanderbilt, would lose no time in effecting the change.

17 Killed in Wreck.

Then Providence suddenly intervened on the side of the commuters with what proved to be decisive results. On the morning of Jan. 8, 1902, two trains collided in the Park avenue tunnel, killing 17 persons and injuring scores of others. A New Haven accommodation train, crowded with Connecticut commuters, had been stopped in the tunnel by construction work. The tunnel was filled with smoke and steam from the locomotives and with fog which filtered through the openings in the roof. Signals were set in the rear of the New Haven train to warn other trains behind. A White Plains express on the New York Central tore into the tunnel, rushed past the signals and crashed into the rear car of the New Haven train. One of the passengers killed was the daughter of the secretary to the New York Central's president.

The engineer of the New York Central train said that on account of the smoke and fog in the tunnel he did not see any signals. His fireman testified that he saw the signals and yelled to the engineer, who, it appeared, did not hear the warning.

The New York public was greatly wrought up over the accident, which the newspapers called the greatest disaster in the history of the city. There were investigations by the authorities, which established that the accident was due not so much to the smoke filled condition of the subway as to the incompetence of the New York Central engineer. This detail, however, was lost upon the public at large. The whole flood of public remonstrance against the continued use of steam motive power in the tunnel welled up again and overflowed. New York and its environs echoed with indignant demands that the New York Central be compelled to electrify its terminal and obviate thereby the danger of a repetition of the Park avenue catastrophe.

These demands were answered by the railroad with the explanation that electrification—at least, partial electrification—of the passenger terminal already had been decided upon. The tunnel accident had had nothing to do with the decision, according to the account emanating from the New York Central's board room. The engineers had finally worked out a feasible plan of electrification and William E. Vanderbilt had approved the plan two days before the accident occurred.

Plan Suburban Electrification.

The plan provided for the electrification of suburban trains, but not of through trains, the engineers contending that it was going to be necessary to bring the suburban and through trains into the terminal on different levels and that it would be feasible to electrify the suburban level only.

The railroad officers were extremely reticent about the details of their plans, however, and gave no assurance as to when they intend to begin the transformation of motive power or as to when the public might reasonably expect the consummation of the reform. In after years facts came to light indicating that this official reticence at the time was due in part at least, to the desire to conceal the magnitude of the company's plans for extension of the terminal.

The directors foresaw that it would be necessary not only to electrify but to expand the whole terminals eventually and for some time they had been quietly acquiring the property adjoining their terminal and yards in the Park avenue district. If the magnitude of their plans had become known the price of this property would have gone sky high.

Petition Legislature.

The reticence of the directors, however, reacted unfavorably on the commuters, who were vociferously demanding some tangible evidence that the dirt was going to fly on this project in the near future. Being unable to get satisfactory assurances from the Vanderbilts they began forming commuters' associations in the suburbs and petitioning the legislature to force the railroad to electrify. Thereupon the scene shifts to Albany, with results that will be described in succeeding articles.

In the meantime, the state railroad commission reported the results of its investigation of the tunnel disaster, in connection with which it severely denounced the New York Central management. The commission pronounced the engineer of the New York Central train inexperienced and held the company "grossly negligent of its obligations to the public in putting an engineer of such limited experience and unascertained capacity in charge of a passenger train for operation through this tunnel in what are called the 'rush hours.'"

Railway Held Negligent.

The commission further found that the New York Central "has been negligent, derelict, and unprogressive in failing to take measures to increase its terminal facilities at the Grand Central station and yard by such dimensions as would reasonably keep pace with the yearly increasing traffic necessities of the lines entering this station."

Electrification, the commission declared, was the solution of the problem of train operation through the tunnel, asserting that the company likewise had come to that conclusion before the accident but had neglected on one pretext or other to take any steps toward the change.

"Now, however," said the commission, "partly owing to its awakened sense of its own business necessities and partly to the recent rapid advances in electrical engineering, the company has been forced into bringing forward a plan for improvements," including electrification of suburban train operation.

A second article continuing the annals of New York's railway electrification will be printed tomorrow.

British Railway Electrifies 800 Mile System at Cost of $62,750,000; Best in World

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 20.—While Chicago wages its fight against the noise and smoke of steam driven suburban trains, London, even in a period of acute economic depression, is enjoying the fruits of a post war electrification scheme said to have no equal anywhere.

It comprises the suburban services of the Southern Railway, which now has more than 800 miles of electrified track. The conversion from steam to electric power has cost $62,750,000, and another $20,000,000 is to be added within the next year to extend the service as far south as Brighton and Worthing, on the channel coast.

Busiest Line in Country.

This improvement will complete Britain's first electric main line and will combine under uniform equipment and rolling stock the busiest railroad system in the country. The line to Brighton is 51 miles long, and the extension westward along the coast is 11 miles long.

The British railroads, known as among the best in the world, are never slow to improve their service and the Southern now claims the fastest, and the biggest electric system in the world.

All of the improvements installed by the Southern have been approved and effected within the last seven years. Innumerable difficulties were overcome, and when finally adopted by the directors years ago, the plan carried with it the necessity for scrapping old electric equipment already in service worth $6,250,000. Consolidation with the old South Western company in 1921 brought into the Southern several short lines already electrified.

Old Stock Is Junked.

But the rolling stock was antiquated, and trolleys were used wherever the South Western junked its coal burners for electricity.

Directors of the Southern decided, in the name of economy and standardization, to wipe it all out and make a fresh start. The entire electric equipment was condemned, and orders were placed for new. Modern third rail power transmission was adopted, and a new type of car, up to date in every detail, was chosen.

Another expenditure which reached a high figure was the purchase of insulated tools for railroad gangs.

Actual work started on a big scale about five years ago, and most of the Southern's electric lines have been completed and placed in operation within the last three or four years. An approximation of electrification costs places the figure at about $50,000 per mile. The remainder of the Southern's expenses went for rolling stock and other equipment.

Altogether the new improvements cover London fanwise to the south from six principal terminals within the city. Victoria, Waterloo, Charing Cross, Cannon street, Holborn viaduct, and London bridge are the London stations for trains running through the biggest suburban population in Great Britain.

The daily passenger population of these stations is computed by railroad officials as follows: Victoria, 96,500; Waterloo, 121,000; Charing Cross, 59,000; Cannon street, 57,000; Holborn, 44,000; London bridge, 135,000.

Find Improvements Pay.

The Southern has found that the thorough job of electrification paid. All equipment is standard and can be used from one end of the company's lines to the other. Trains are run more economically, officials of the road declare, and at greatly increased speed and efficiency.

Careful tabulation of the result shows that the Southern's tracks are now worth nearly twice their value under steam operation. Figures place the pre-electrification train miles per annum at 4,400,000. Electricity has brought the yearly train mileage to 7,800,000, due to quicker acceleration and stopping.

Divorce Decree Held Up, Actress' Wedding Delayed

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—A technicality which prevented securing her final decree from Billy Sunday, today, prevented the marriage of Mae Sanders Sunday, movie actress, to Wallace Davis, Los Angeles attorney. The wedding was called off after thirty film celebrities, including Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon, were invited as wedding attendants and guests.

LYLE RELEASES LABOR PICKETS ON LOW BONDS

Municipal Judge John H. Lyle late yesterday reduced the bonds and effected the release of two strike pickets, held on charges of conspiracy to murder, after Edward Nockels, secretary and treasurer of the Chicago federation of labor, made an appeal to the judge in their behalf.

The defendants are Philip Weiss, 33 years old, 4209 Flournoy street, and L. E. Strauss, 45 years old, 1019 North Campbell avenue. They are accused of threatening two women employés of the W. H. Weiss ladies' garment concern, at 237 South Market street, where a strike is in progress, with death unless they quit their jobs.

Judge Lyle appeared at the detective bureau with Nockels and after cutting the bonds in half permitted Nockels to sign for them without a property schedule. Weiss' bond originally was set at $25,000 and Strauss' at $20,000. They are to appear before Judge Lyle tomorrow for hearings on the charges.

Arrest 18 in Theft of Jewels from Papal Palace

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Sept. 20.—The Italian and Vatican police today arrested 18 persons believed to be implicated in a daring theft committed in the papal palace of Saint John Lateran in the salon where the famous treaty of conciliation was signed two years ago by Premier Mussolini and Cardinal Gasperri. Antique mosaics and precious stones of inestimable value have disappeared. The thieves entered by climbing a lightning rod.

STORE COLLECTOR IS ROBBED.

Note what Pencil Big Business Firms Choose . . .
it's the Autopoint

AUTOPOINTS, more than any other pencil, are purchased by big business for use as "remembeance" advertising.

Why not select your pencil as carefully as the big firms do? Why not follow their findings? Your dollar is just as important as theirs—make it buy just as much.

Autopoint is the best balanced, the lightest, the most attractive pencil made. It cannot jam because there is nothing to jam. It has only one moving part. You won't find in any pencil, at any price, more lasting satisfaction than an Autopoint will give you.

Autopoint barrels are of Bakelite. This onyx-like material is beautiful, light in weight. It does not tarnish or "perspire." Drop an Autopoint—it won't break.

Examine Autopoints at your stationer's. He has a wide range of styles and models in color combinations to suit your fancy. Prices range from 50c to $4. If you have any trouble finding Autopoints, write us. We'll see that you get an opportunity to look them over.

2 WEDDINGS AND DEBUT HEADLINE SOCIETY EVENTS

The Misses Stewart and MacLeish Brides.

Two weddings in Winnetka and a debut reception at the Exmoor Country club were crowded into the society calendar yesterday afternoon.

The marriage of Miss Ellen Stuart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Stuart of Hubbard Woods, to George A. Poole Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Poole of 936 Lake Shore drive, was solemnized at 4 p. m. at the Winnetka Congregational church. Clusters of yellow and white chrysanthemums decorated both the church and the Stuart residence, where a reception was held after the ceremony.

Wears White Chiffon Velvet.

The bride wore a gown of ivory white chiffon velvet with a fitted basque and pleated peplum and an ivory tulle veil with an inserted panel of lace falling from a cap of heirloom lace. She carried gardenias and lillies of the valley. The matron and maid of honor, Mrs. Barrett Scudder (Joan Stuart), and Miss Lesta Morse of Montclair, N. J., and the bridesmaids, Mrs. Louis C. Sudler, Miss Emily Otis, Miss Betty Poole, and Miss Louise Lackner, were gowned in chartreuse satin and carried bouquets of white roses.

The masculine contingent in the wedding party included George A. Poole, who was his son's best man, and a group of ushers composed of John Howland of Baltimore, Owen Osborne Freeman of Philadelphia, Samuel L. Gurn Jr. of Greenwood, Miss., Carl Denkman of Rock Island, Ill., Raymond Ellis and John Stuart Jr.

Jean MacLeish Is Bride.

Miss Jean MacLeish, whose marriage to John Dern, son of Gov. and Mrs. George H. Dern of Utah, took place at 5 p. m. at the Winnetka Christ church, wore for the ceremony a white satin gown fashioned on long, slim lines and an Italian lace veil.

Her maid of honor, Miss Elizabeth Knode, wore a jade green silk net frock and a vivid green velvet hat with an ostrich feather drooping at the side. The matron of honor, Mrs. Harry Baxter, wore a darker shade of green. The bridesmaids, Miss Barbara King, Miss Louise Badgerow, Miss Dorothy Newell of Boston, Mrs. Joseph Purcell Jr., Miss Jean Stevens and Miss Betty Warren, wore pale green net gowns and matching hats. All of the attendants carried muffs of white gardenias.

Brother Is Best Man.

William Dern was best man for his brother and the ushers were Norman MacLeigh, John M. Trainer Jr., M. Ogden West, James F. Oates Jr., Conrad Ruckelshaus of Indianapolis, Cecil Crouse of New York, George Appel of Philadelphia, Howard J. Long Jr. and Orus J. Matthews of Philadelphia. A reception followed the ceremony at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce MacLeish, in Hubbard Woods.

Miss Mary H. MacCaughey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew B. MacCaughey, made her formal bow to society at a reception and tea at Exmoor from 4 until 7 o'clock. The debutante wore a frock of peachstone crêpe and Alencon lace. Her mother wore a king's blue lace gown, and her grandmother, Mrs. Frank J. Tuttle, who assisted in the receiving line, wore beige lace.

HINDENBURG HOST TO 900 CHILDREN FROM RHINELAND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 20.—Home again after his strenuous week of following the military maneuvers, "Papa" Hindenburg, as his soldiers affectionately call the German president, spent a happy afternoon in his garden surrounded by 900 children from the Rhineland.

They cheered him, sang for him, and showered him with childish gifts, and gave him dolls for his grandchildren. They were not awed by the occasion and chatted merrily with the chief of the state.

"Always remain good Germans."

The children, from the formerly occupied areas of the Rhineland, are spending a six weeks' holiday.

FRED L. MANDEL, STATE STREET MERCHANT, DIES

Passes Away in Paris at Age of 60; Ill for Year.

Frederick Leon Mandel, chairman of the board of directors and treasurer of Mandel Brothers, State street department store, died suddenly yesterday at the Hotel Plaza Athena in Paris. He was 60 years old. The cable dispatches were meager, but friends here were inclined to attribute the merchant's death to heart disease. They said he had been in ill health for about a year.

Mr. Mandel went to Paris in the late spring believing that a change might benefit him. For a time he seemed better, it was said, but his ailment increased. Last week his two sons, Leon Mandel II, manager of Mandel Brothers, and Frederick L. Jr., with the former's wife, hurried to New York and embarked for France on the Europa. They will reach Paris today.

Funeral Plans Incomplete.

Funeral arrangements had not progressed far last night but it was considered probable that Mr. Mandel's body would be brought to Chicago for burial. One of his last official acts before leaving this country was to cut the cake at the celebration last March marking the 75th anniversary of the Mandel store.

Mr. Mandel was born in Chicago on March 27, 1870. He was educated in public and private schools and later studied in France and Germany.

In 1888, at the age of 18, he entered the Mandel Brothers' organization, serving in minor and major capacities in the various departments. Upon the reorganization of the company in 1898, he became its secretary-treasurer and a director. Subsequently he was elected chairman of the board.

Son of Store's Founder.

He was the eldest son of Leon Mandel, pioneer Chicago merchant, who was one of the original founders of the concern in 1855 and was later active in the civic and philanthropic life of the city.

Mr. Mandel is survived by his mother, Mrs. Isabelle Mandel; his widow, Mrs. Blanche Rosenbaum Mandel, who is in Paris; his two sons, four sisters, Mrs. Ida M. Mandelbaum, Mrs. Jesse L. Strauss, Mrs. Louise Wineman, and Miss Florence Mandel; and one brother, Robert Mandel, vice president of the store organization.

He was a member of the Standard club and the Lake Shore Country club.

Hundreds See Slaying, but Murderer Escapes

New York, Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Several hundred theatergoers saw Pasquale Saratino, 21 years old, shot to death in a passageway in the B. M. T. subway station tonight by an unknown assailant who opened fire on him from behind. A score of men sought to capture the slayer, but after a chase through the labyrinthic corridors of the station he ran into Fourth avenue through the Fifteenth street exit and escaped.

FEAR OF INSANITY REVEALED CAUSE OF GIRL'S SUICIDE

It was fear of insanity that caused Miss Marie Dunker, a Norwegian governess, to take her life by slashing her wrists on Friday in her room at the La Salle hotel, the inquest revealed yesterday.

A note written by Miss Dunker to Gustav Holm, 920 Wilson avenue, a mechanical engineer, was read to the coroner's jury. It said:

"This is in order to avoid any misunderstandng. The real reason for my doing this is I have begun to notice some very bad symptoms. There is insanity in my family. I prefer to die before the sickness breaks out in full fire."

John Ashenhurst of Lake Zurich, vice president of the C. C. Drake company, testified that Miss Dunker was the daughter of a professor in Norway and that she had worked in France as a governess for a leading family. She was later employed by the Ashenhursts, returning to this country with them.

34 JOIN LIST OF MILLION OR MORE POLICY HOLDERS

New York, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Despite the financial fever of 1930, the list of persons in the United States insured for a million dollars or more has increased by 34 this year, the Spectator, insurance organ, announces. The number of American high policyholders now totals 357.

Pierre du Pont, explosives manufacturer, holds the most life insurance—seven million dollars' worth.

Mrs. Henry E. Yeiser of Cincinnati, daughter of the late Julius Fleischmann, millionaire yeast manufacturer, leads the feminine million dollar list of nine with insurance of $3,250,000.

Percy A. Rockefeller of New York is insured for $3,000,000. Marshall Field III. of Chicago is insured for $4,000,000, and his lately divorced wife, Mrs. Evelyn Marshall Field, holds policies for $2,500,000.

Among the highly insured are Jesse Lasky and Adolph Zukor, $5,000,000 each; John Barrymore, $2,000,000, and Douglas Fairbanks, Mary Pickford, Al Jolson, Will Rogers, Constance Talmadge, and Norma Talmadge at $1,000,000 each.

Drought Left Its Mark on Babies, Too, Doctors Find

Hutchinson, Kas., Sept. 20.—(AP)—Physicians judging the better babies contest of the Kansas state fair said the summer drought left its mark on babies to a greater extent than it did on the crops. Undernourishment was found more common than usual, which the physicians attributed to the prolonged dry weather and the heat.

Why A&P prices for good food are low

A & P has millions of customers all over the country, and more customers are coming to A & P stores every day because they find there the good food they want at prices they know to be as low as is possible to a going business.

There is no secret about this. Like everyone else in business, A & P buys goods to sell them at a profit. A & P's unusual success is due to two facts:

(1) A & P buys the best wherever the best can be bought at greatest advantage to A & P customers; (2) A & P sells the best for only a little more than the best costs—plus selling expense. It can do both these things because so many people buy in its stores.

These people know that A & P passes on to them all the saving when prices fall at the sources of supply, retaining, under all conditions, no more than its regular profit—2½ cents in the dollar.

G. O. P. CARAVAN STARTS TOUR OF STATE TOMORROW

Nine Candidates Now on Ballot for Senator.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Headed by Ruth Hanna McCormick, nominee for U. S. senator, the Republican state candidates open their speaking campaign tomorrow downstate. Every county outside Cook is to be covered before the concentration upon the Chicago region in the final three weeks. The candidates and other speakers have been divided into teams, and the itinerary calls for seven meetings a day during the downstate drive.

The candidates, besides Mrs. McCormick, who will appear on the platform are: Richard Yates and Frank L. Smith, nominees for congressmen at large; Francis G. Blair, candidate for reëlection as superintendent of public instruction; Clarence F. Buck, nominee for state treasurer.

In the battery of orators also are Senator Otis F. Glenn and Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom. As the tour progresses it will be joined by local congressional, district and county candidates.

Nine Senatorial Candidates.

Expiration of the time for withdrawals yesterday showed that in addition to Mrs. McCormick, Republican, and James Hamilton Lewis, Democrat, the two candidates nominated in the Republican and Democratic primaries, there are seven candidates for United States senator by petition—the election law of Illinois requiring only 3,000 signatures on a petition for this office.

The seven, with the party designations shown on their petitions and in the order in which they filed, are the following:

Ernest Stout, Chicago; American National party.

George Koop, Chicago; Socialist party.

James J. McGrath, Chicago; Liberal party.

Lottie Holman O'Neill, Downers Grove; independent.

C. Emmett Smith, Chicago; anti-league court and anti-foreign entanglements.

Louis Warner, Chenoa; peace and prosperity.

Freeman Thompson, Springfield; Communist party.

There were comparatively few candidacies by petition filed for other offices this year and none of them was considered of material political significance.

Four years ago, in the senatorship battle between Frank L. Smith and the late George E. Brennan, there were twelve candidates all told, as against nine this time. Hugh S. Magill, the leading independent, polled 156,245 votes out of 1,797,000 cast on senator.

Lewis Continues Campaign.

James Hamilton Lewis, who opened his platform activities downstate two weeks ago, will continue this week.

The itinerary of the Republican candidates this week and the program of speakers is as follows:

MONDAY, 2:30 p. m., Mattoon, Mrs. McCormick, Mr. Carlstrom; Tuscola, Mr. Smith, Mr. Blair; Shelbyville, Mr. Yates, Mr. Buck. 3:30, Charleston, Mrs. McCormick, Mr. Carlstrom. 7:30 p. m., Paris, Mrs. McCormick, Mr. Smith; Toledo, Yates and Blair; Marshall, Carlstrom and Buck.

TUESDAY, 2:30 p. m., Robinson, Mrs. McCormick, Mr. Blair; Newton, Smith and Buck. 1 p. m., Louisville, Carlstrom, Smith and Yates. 7:30 p. m., Lawrenceville, Mrs. McCormick; Olney, Carlstrom and Yates; Albion, Smith, Buck and Blair.

WEDNESDAY, 2:30 p. m., Mount Carmel, Mrs. McCormick and Senator Glenn; Fairfield, Carlstrom, Smith and Blair; McLeansboro, Yates and Buck. 7:30 p. m., Carmi, Mrs. McCormick; Shawneetown, Glenn and Buck; Eldorado, Carlstrom and Blair; Harrisburg, Yates and Smith.

THURSDAY, 2:30 p. m., Vienna, Mrs. McCormick, Mr. Blair; Elizabethtown, Glenn and Buck; Mound City, Smith and Yates; Mounds, Carlstrom. 7:30 p. m., Metropolis, Mrs. McCormick; Golconda, Glenn, Blair and Buck; Cairo, Carlstrom, Yates and Smith.

FRIDAY, 2:30 p. m., Marion, Mrs. McCormick, Mr. Carlstrom; Johnson City, Smith and Blair; Anna, Glenn, Yates and Buck. 3 p. m., Herrin, Mrs. McCormick, Mr. Carlstrom. 7 p. m., West Frankfort, Mrs. McCormick, Mr. Carlstrom, Mr. Blair; Murphysboro, Glenn and Buck; Zeigler, Yates and Smith.

SATURDAY, 2:30 p. m., DuQuoin, Mrs. McCormick; Mount Vernon, Glenn and Buck; Chester, Carlstrom and Blair; Waterloo, Yates and Smith. 7:30 p. m., Belleville, Mrs. McCormick and Senator Glenn; Nashville, Carlstrom, Smith, Blair and Buck.

The Democratic Schedule.

Mr. Lewis and the Democrats open their week's tour tomorrow night with a meeting at Ottawa. The schedule for the rest of the week embraces the following:

TUESDAY—Leave Ottawa 9:30 a. m., Lostant, Wenona, Streator, Dwight, Reddick, Union Hill, Kankakee [8 p. m. meeting].

WEDNESDAY—Chebanse, Clifton, Ashkum, Danforth, Gilman, Onarga, Buckley, Loda, Paxton, Ludlow, Rantoul, Urbana, Champaign.

THURSDAY—Savoy, Pesotum, Tuscola, Arcola, Humboldt, Doran, Mattoon, Charleston, Neoga, Sigel, Effingham [8 p. m. meeting].

FRIDAY—Altamont, St. Elmo, Brownstown, Vandalia, Hagerstown, Mulberry Grove, Greenville, Stubblefield, Pocahontas, Highland, St. Jacob, Troy, Collinsville, East St. Louis [Tri Cities 8 p. m. meeting probably at Granite City].

Detailed campaign plans of Mrs. O'Neill, independent dry candidate, have not as yet been announced.

The following statement was received last night from G. Gale Gilbert Jr., of the law firm of Levinson, Becker, Glenn, and Schwartz:

Over the long distance telephone from his summer home at Kennebunk, Me., Salmon O. Levinson today issued a statement to the following effect:

"My attention has been called today to an article that I am to act as campaign manager for Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill. Any such statement is in error and was made without my consent or authorization. I do not even know Mrs. O'Neill and do not know what she stands for. I shall not act as her campaign manager or am I otherwise interested in behalf of her candidacy."

DEAD FOR WEEK, HIS WIFE THINKS HE'S IN TRANCE

LONDON, Sept. 20.—(AP)—The London Daily News says that Dr. William Teasdale Wilson, 79, sat dead in his home at New Milton, near Lymington, for a week while his wife left him undisturbed, believing he was in a spiritualistic trance.

Dr. Wilson, who spent much of his life in America, was an enthusiastic spiritualist, and according to friends he was apt to go into trances and remain in that condition for a long time.

"He had developed spiritualism to a very high plane," a friend said. "He had passed beyond the puny spirits with whom English spiritualists say they get in touch, and he claimed to make contact with the more refined and loftier spirits."

Mexican Methodist Church Elects Bishop Raised in U.S.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 20.—(AP)—The Rev. John Nicanor Pascoe, native of Santelmo, Mexico, was elected bishop and titular head of the Mexican church on the 18th ballot at the first general conference of the Mexican Methodist church last night. Mr. Pascoe is 43 years old, was educated at Vanderbilt university. He married Eliza Strozzi of Nashville, Tenn.

DOUBT VALIDITY OF PROPOSAL FOR TAX AMENDMENT

Attorneys Tell Flaws in Submission.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Inquiry at Springfield yesterday disclosed such serious legal flaws in the preliminaries to the referendum on the proposed amendment to the revenue article of the state constitution that lawyers said that even if it receives more than the vote required for it on Nov. 4 the courts will hold that it has not been legally adopted.

That was the position taken by Attorney Colin C. H. Fyffe, constitutional expert, who in a speech at Downers Grove on Friday night attacked the "public address" sent to all registered voters in election commission cities supposedly in conformity with chapter 7½ of the revised statutes, the chapter which prescribes the exact method by which proposed amendments must be submitted to the people for adoption.

Flaw Pointed Out.

Attorney Fyffe and others said that the procedure followed in this case ignored the basic requirements of this chapter, one of the first being a mandate that the legislature as a whole shall prepare the "public address" to the voters explaining to them what the amendment is.

Springfield correspondents, who on Friday reported they were unable to find any record of the report of the committee which was said to have prepared the public statement this year, continued their search yesterday and were told that there was such a report in existence although it bore only the signature of Senator Richard J. Barr, chairman of a committee or commission consisting of five senators, five representatives, and five members appointed by Gov. Emmerson, and the signature of De Witt Billman as secretary of that body.

What the Law Provides.

Section 2 of chapter 7½ of the statutes requires more than committee action in this matter. In part it reads:

"The general assembly in submitting an amendment to the constitution to the electors shall prepare a brief explanation of said amendment . . . the said explanation . . . shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state with said proposed amendment . . . at least three months before the next election of members of the general assembly . . . The secretary of state shall publish such amendment . . . in every county of this state in which a newspaper is published . . . The secretary of state shall also cause . . . the explanation of same . . . to be published in pamphlet form."

The same section requires that a copy of this pamphlet be mailed to every registered elector at least forty days before the election at which the proposed amendment is submitted. The time limit has expired for this year.

In the past when similar amendments were proposed the requirements of this act have been followed closely. In 1926, for example, both houses of the general assembly approved the "public address" and when it was published in pamphlet form it carried the words "done by the general assembly" and it was subscribed to by the presiding officers and secretaries of the two chambers.

This year the amendment proposal was adopted by the assembly in special session which adjourned with no further action except the creation of the commission of fifteen members. No action by the general assembly as a whole as required by chapter 7½ was sought.

PERUVIANS BEGIN SECRET TRIAL OF LEGUIA FOR GRAFT

LIMA, Peru, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Dr. Augusto B. Leguia, president of Peru until overthrown by the revolution led by Lieut. Col. Luis M. Sanchez Cerro, today was formally charged with the misuse of government funds while he held the highest executive office.

Señor Leguia heard the charges in his cell in prison. The accusations were read to him by Justice Felipe Imeres of the National Sanctions court.

The former president was then permitted to make a deposition. Newspapermen were kept away from the cell at the time and the deposition was not made public.

450 AMERICANS REPORTED HELD CAPTIVE BY REDS

Refused Visas to Leave Russian Factory.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Sept. 20.—A story to the effect that 450 Americans, including 10 women and children, are held in captivity in the Stalingrad tractor plant of the Tractorstroye by the soviet government has been brought out by Herbert Lewis, a young electrician, native of Detroit, who has been expelled from Russia. The Americans, he says, are all skilled mechanics and engineers from Detroit. After being laid off because of curtailed production in the automobile industry at Detroit, these people were offered jobs by an employment agency located in Detroit by the Amtorg. So they got to Russia.

They are threatened, Lewis says, by a number of diseases, including typhoid, typhus, dysentery, and scurvy. They are, he says, anxious to leave Russia before winter but their petitions for visas to leave have been refused by the authorities, their communications with the outside world are strictly censored and there is not $100 in American currency in the entire colony.

Two Die of Typhoid.

Lewis reports that two of the Americans have died from typhoid and many others are seriously ill. The only medicine provided by the soviet government, he says, is castor oil. Many of the colonists are suffering from dysentery, believed to have originated from the water supply, which is pumped from the Volga river without purification. The soviet authorities refused them a permit to import food from America.

The contracts which the Americans signed agreed to furnish food and living accommodations similar to those they had in Detroit, and also specified that one-third of their wages would be paid in Russia at the rate of two roubles for the dollar, and that the remaining two-thirds would be deposited in the bank accounts of these men in Detroit by Tractorstroye. A number of the Americans have learned these checks were not deposited, Lewis says, and the attempts of others to discover if Tractorstroye was keeping its agreement were fruitless because of the censorship of their mail and telegrams.

Expelled for Ten Years.

Lewis, following a nine day trial, which was held nights by the Tractorstroye Workers' club, was sentenced to exile from Russia for 10 years for striking a Jamaican Negro, Robert Robertson, who took exception to Mr. Lewis' protest against the Negro being quartered in his room.

The American colony, Lewis says, protested against his arrest and detention for a month in the crowded Stalingrad jail, and also against statements made at his trial, which, he says, were turned into an anti-American demonstration by the soviets.

The American colony prepared a statement denying a number of charges the communists made at the trial, including an allegation that 1,500 Negroes were lynched last year in America and that the Negroes are an enslaved class upon whom much of the success of a future revolution in America depended.

No Sympathy for Reds.

According to Lewis, not a single American at the colony had Red inclinations or signed contracts because of sympathy with the soviet government, but were attracted by the prospect of salaries ranging from $300 to $500 monthly. Everybody signing these contracts, he says, was warned by the United States district attorney at Detroit that he could not be protected by the United States government if he went to Russia, because America has no relations with the soviets.

Tractorstroye, Lewis says, employs 8,000 Russians, who are guarded by 300 soldiers. The plant is capable of turning out 3,000 to 4,000 tractors a year under efficient management. Today, he says, the factory is producing five machines daily, and these are breaking down under trials. Although the factory is supposed to be working three shifts, he says, none of the shifts works more than three hours a day.

Five colonies of more than 3,000 Americans similar to those at the Tractorstroye plant are living in Russia at present. Because of their dissatisfaction and demands that they be permitted to return home, the soviet government is reported to have ordered the Amtorg to cease employing Americans.

Ammel Again Postpones Transatlantic Flight

Residents Complain of Des Plaines River Stench

RIVER'S ODORS MAR BEAUTIES ON THE DES PLAINES

Suburbanites Complain of Pollution.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Once upon a time the Des Plaines river was called Riviere Divine by French missionary explorers who traversed its clear waters in canoes. That was before the arrival of civilization and sewer pollution.

Yesterday, visitors were seen trying to admire the scenic beauty of the stream that plies in and out of a score of western suburban towns interspersed with forest preserves where the city's millions play during summer. The foul odors arising from the river at this season, and accentuated this year by the drought, was nearly unbearable for strangers, but permanent residents have long since become reconciled to making annual complaints to the sanitary district.

Complains of River Odor.

"I can't remember its being so bad last year," complained Mrs. Gus Swanson, 8227 Lawe street, River Forest. "The odor is terrible this year, especially when the wind is in the right direction. The sanitary district has promised to remedy it but hasn't done much."

Another housewife, living in a farm across the river on the edge of Maywood, said "the odor came in so strong a couple of nights this week we could hardly sleep, but we get pretty used to it each summer."

Horace F. Ramey, assistant sanitary engineer for the sanitary district, admitted that Des Plaines river inhabitants are complaining about the odor caused by emptying sewers into the stream.

"The situation has been worse this year because this has been the driest summer in twenty-five years," he explained. "We are six inches short on rain. There is little river flow. As soon as we get good rains the condition will improve.

"We have taken care of that territory south of North avenue to Riverside, including the suburbs of River Forest, Maywood and Forest Park, already. The pollution in those towns is from the towns north of North avenue."

Proposes Remedies for River.

Dr. Spencer S. Fuller, Riverside, president of the Des Plaines Valley Mosquito Abatement league, who is interested in the eradication of the sewer odor, proposed several remedies for the situation.

"Building an intercepting sewer from Des Plaines to North avenue would greatly relieve the condition," said Dr. Fuller. "As it is, several of the river sewers are stopped up all the time. After constructing the Des Plaines intercepting sewer, we should get the villages to build separate sewage systems for both storm and sewage. Then eventually we should get more water in the river. That could be done by pumping water from the lake near Waukegan."

The Des Plaines river has been a source of contention among various groups for years. Some of these controversies have been carried to the courts.

HEARS EVANSTON PLEAS BACKING SUNDAY MOVIES

More evidence intended to support the claims that Evanston should be permitted to have Sunday movies was presented yesterday before Master in Chancery George E. Gorman, assigned by Judge David Brothers to hear testimony in the case. The Evanston city council has refused to lift the ban on Sunday movies, though the voters approved such an action.

The first witness heard was Manager W. L. McGoodman of the Evanston Community Golf course, who said golf was played on the links on Sundays. He told how the course is so laid out that 11 of its holes are in Evanston while the remaining seven are in Wilmette. Evanston receives eleven-eighteenths of the yearly net income, which last year amounted to $9,900, Mr. Goodman said. At least as much will be turned over this year, he predicted.

Ald. Jens of the 5th ward, the next witness, testified that miniature golf is a sport open to all in Evanston on Sundays. Master Gorman denied motions of the city authorities to strike out all opposition testimony and set the next hearing for Tuesday afternoon. If any testimony is offered by the city it will be put in at that time.

CHANCELLOR OF GERMANY SCOFFS AT REVOLT RUMOR

Says Peace Is Guaranteed by Sense of People.

[Copyright: 1930: By the United Press.]

BERLIN, Sept. 20.—An assurance of tranquillity in Germany and an expression of confidence that the nation would recover from its difficulties were given today by Chancellor Heinrich Bruening in his first formal pronounce since the recent elections, in which the communists and Fascists made important gains.

Dr. Bruening deprecated rumors abroad about an imminent coup d'etat in Germany, and declared the German people's sober judgment is the best guarantee for the nation's recovery. "Local disturbances," he added, "have occasionally occurred in former years. The power of the police forces in the various German states is fully adequate to stifle such disturbances in embryo."

"No Immediate Danger."

"I feel sure you will inform your readers that no immediate danger of a putsch—even in any local districts—has shown its face in Germany.

"The Germans throughout history have been an industrious people and Germany has pushed itself forward in the most troublous times by its own power and by its own estimates of what was possible.

"This common sense of the German people is its guarantee for the rapid fulfillment of our task of reorganization with which the German government has been intrusted."

Report Fascist "Plot."

BERLIN, Sept. 20.—(AP)—The intention of the 107 fascist members of the new reichstag to use their salaries from the republic for propaganda to destroy the republic was reported today after a fascist meeting behind closed doors. The deputies, it was said, would be expected to pay most of their salaries into the party chest.

Paul Goebbels, reichstag leader and right hand man of Adolf Hitler, said the fascists would proceed lawfully and "only pass through open doors" unless the doors were kept closed too long, in which case they would smash them in.

"I have been told the Jews think the only means to get rid of us is to pick off our leaders one by one," he added. "If a single leader thus falls, we shall answer with a pogrom."

New Chief of Reichswehr.

President von Hindenburg today appointed Gen. Curt von Hammerstein-Equord chief of the reichswehr or German home guard. He succeeds Wilhelm Heye. The appointment is effective Nov. 30. Heye resigned because, at the age of 61, he felt the duties of the post too arduous and that a younger and more energetic man should head the nation's defensive forces.

Gen. von Hammerstein-Equord is a man concerning whom opinions differ greatly. On one hand his intimacy with Wilhelm Groener, defense minister, is taken as guaranteeing his dependability from the viewpoint of republicanism and international conciliation. It is further pointed out that his father-in-law, Gen. Walter von Luettwitz, on the eve of the Kapp rebellion in 1921, had von Hammerstein-Equord arrested as a staunch Republican.

His enemies, however, accused Gen. von Hammerstein-Equord of flirting with a Russo-German military alliance. This charge arose after he published an article defending the action of the defense ministry in sending military observers to Russia. The general explained that Germany was barred from witnessing maneuvers in other European countries, hence Russia, with its doors open to Germany, was worth studying.

MRS. GROSS LOSES ROUND IN HER MARITAL BATTLE

Mrs. Virginia Harrison Gross yesterday lost another point in her legal battle against her former husband, Capt. Christian Gross, secretary of the American legation at Berne, Switzerland. Superior Judge Gentzel denied her motion to set aside a clause in the divorce decree recently won by her husband which held that a separation agreement created in 1928 was invalid.

At the same time Attorney Robert E. Cantwell Jr., representing Gross, filed a petition in the federal court for an injunction to restrain Mrs. Gross from collecting $250,000 from an $830,000 trust fund created under the separation agreement.

Capt. Gross won a divorce here Aug. 7 on ground of desertion. He was given the custody of their two children and also granted a temporary injunction restraining a New York bank from paying the $250,000 to Mrs. Gross, the daughter of Francis Burton Harrison, former governor of the Philippines. Subsequently a New York court granted Mrs. Gross an injunction to restrain Gross from prosecuting the injunction he obtained here.

Gen. Summerall Will Be Luncheon Guest Tomorrow

Gen. C. P. Summerall, retiring chief of staff of the United States army, will be the guest at a luncheon to be given at noon tomorrow at the World's Fair headquarters by Brig. Gen. Abel Davis, member of the exposition executive committee. Gen. Summerall is making a farewell tour of the army posts.

LEAGUE REFUSES TO PLEDGE LOANS AS PEACE BRIBES

British Fear Disarmament Parley Will Lapse.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Sept. 20.—While the close of the league of nations' second week brought fresh pleas for world disarmament, Lord Robert Cecil of Great Britain, discussing a resolution offered today by Persia, expressed the belief that a full dress conference on the reduction of armaments was problematical in 1931, even after the preparatory commission, which is to meet on Nov. 3, has completed its labors.

This pessimistic opinion was heard when the Teheran government asked for an agreement providing financial help to wage war against an aggressor regardless of whether or not the league members finally agree to disarm. Several nations refused to pledge loans for fighting purposes unless disarmament becomes effective. Mr. Long, the Norwegian delegate, summed up the matter by saying:

"Is it necessary to give a bounty to induce countries to ratify the disarmament proposals?"

The British fear that the outcome of the disarmament conference will produce a convention so honeycombed with reservations, conditions, interpretations, and stipulations that the result will be worthless.

Rumania had revived the question of security earlier in the day with a plea for an international loan in case of war.

The committee on social questions took up questions of demography in relation to women in large centers of population, and a frank discussion of the problems faced was heard from Swedish, German, and Lithuanian delegates. All were women.

Two Americans were added today to the secretariat of the league. Mitchell B. Carroll, formerly of the department of commerce, was appointed director in the problem of double taxation, and Dr. Benjamin Gerig of Boston, was appointed to the information section.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

J. M. Clewis, commander of Thirty-third division post, objects to the phrase "misfit unit" as applied to the 132d infantry in the report of the resignation of Gen. Abel Davis. It was used in a technical and not an odious sense.

POLES COMMEND CHICAGO AS THEY END CONVENTION

Chicago was lauded as a wonderful city and a splendidly equipped place for holding conventions by delegates to the Polish Union of the United States of America, who yesterday closed their 17th annual meeting here.

Resolutions adopted declared "for such changes and amendments in the immigration laws as will put an end to autocratic and oppressive regulations now in effect, which often bring about suffering and inhuman treatment of good and desirable people and a wrong conception of what our American government stands for and what the people of America really want."

Officers elected were: Emil Malinowski of Wilkesbarre, Pa., president for the third time; Andrew J. Gall of Chicago, grand censor; Victor Wiluss of Jersey City and Miss Regina A. Crajewski of Chicago, vice censors; the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Jacob Pacholski of Winona, Minn., honorary chaplain, and the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Stanislas Spotanski of Dickson City, Pa., general chaplain. Benedict Knapczyk and Mrs. Josephine Bialas of Chicago were chosen vice presidents for Illinois.

Ford to Give Germany a Manufacturing Plant

STUTTGART, Germany, Sept. 20.—(AP)—The Stuttgart-Neues-Tablatt said today that Henry Ford, in visiting the Cannstadt plant, which is allied with the German dye trust, told his hosts that he intended shortly to produce all Ford Motor parts used in Germany in this country. At present Ford cars are only assembled here.

ITALY PLANS NEW CODE OF MORALS TO DEFEND RACE

Parliament Expected to Approve Bill.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Sept. 20.—Alcoholics, bigamists, adulterers, flirts, seducers, and those guilty of moral lawlessness or infected with social diseases will be rigorously dealt with in Italy under provisions of a new penal code, which has been elaborated on by Fascist jurists during the last three or four years, and which will be among the bills to be considerated at the fall opening session of the Italian parliament.

The new code, which surveys the whole field of public morality with Catonian severity, is based on radically different theories from the old code. Its inspiring principle is the defense of the race and the family, rather than preserving public order in enforcing stricter morality.

Adultery and Bigamy.

Sexual immorality will be considered a crime against the race and will be severely punished. Special attention will be given to bigamy and adultery. Conviction of bigamy, in the future, will not be solely conditional on the establishing of the validity of a previous marriage contract. This is with the idea of not making the suppression of this irregularity dependent entirely on the wishes of the parties concerned.

At the same time it will not be necessary in order to prove adultery to establish "flagrante delicto." Photographs and certain publications are considered offenses against family morality under the code.

Furthermore persons afflicted with a social disease, or tuberculosis, who know they are afflicted, and who, nevertheless propagate their diseases, are to be severely punished.

Drunkenness No Excuse.

Under the old code drunkenness was considered an attenuating circumstance to crimes and misdemeanors. Under the new code the penalty will be heavier for crimes committed when drunk.

Philandering and seduction are to be dealt with harshly. The new code preserves the old legislation, which makes kissing in public an offense against public dignity and any policeman who sees it can immediately inflict a fine.

The new code is therefore designed to reinforce the Fascists' national conception of the state and race, which makes the two identical and it follows, therefore, that legislation must defend the race. According to this same conception, the family and not the individual is the basic unit of society and therefore these offenses are punished not because they disturb public order, but because they disintegrate the family.

The new code will probably be approved and go into effect early this winter. It also renews the death penalty, which had previously been abolished in Italy.

Killed Accidentally

HELEN SORDIL.

An "unloaded rifle," owned by her brother, and held in the hands of a prospective boy purchaser, caused the death last night of Helen Sordil, 17 years old, 5120 South Justine street. She was shot below the heart when the weapon, supposedly unloaded, was accidently discharged.

Helen was setting the dinner table when her brother Walter, 19 years old, returned home accompanied by Frank Janacek, 18 years old, 3206 South Avers avenue. Janacek was planning to purchase the rifle and had accepted Sordil's invitation to examine it first. As Sordid handed him the rifle, a .22 calibre gun, Janacek inquired if it was loaded. Sordil replied that it was not.

Janacek raised the rifle to his shoulder, aimed blindly, and fired just as Helen crossed the kitchen door. The bullet felled her. Horror stricken the boys summoned police. Helen was taken to the German Deaconess hospital, but was dead before arrival.

Governor Offers Reward to Keep Rum from Pupils

Austin, Tex., Sept. 20.—(AP)—A reward of $100 for evidence leading to the conviction of any bootlegger selling liquor to high school or college students in Texas will be offered by Gov. Dan Moody, he announced today. The governor also said he would give $50 to state prosecuting officers obtaining convictions on evidence presented them of student liquor traffic.

LABOR URGES "YELLOW DOG" CONTRACTS END

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 20.—[U. P.]—Passage of a resolution denouncing the so-called "yellow dog" contract and recommendation of a law to make it illegal featured the closing session of the annual convention of the Illinois State Federation of Labor here today.

The contract, as explained by speakers, is one in which the worker signs an agreement not to join a trade union, and the purpose of the legislation asked is to "uphold the right of workers to become and remain members of trade unions."

Agitation looking toward reducing work day hours was adopted by the convention yesterday.

Other resolutions adopted by the convention recommended an old age pension act, an eight hour minimum work day for women, and better working conditions and a forty-four hour week for postal workers.

Next year's convention will be held in Galesburg, the dates to be set by the executive board later.

MRS. McCORMICK HEADS 3 PAPERS IN ROCKFORD, ILL.

Rockford, Ill., Sept. 20.—(AP)—Merger of this city's three newspapers under the ownership of the Rockford Consolidated Newspapers, Inc., with Ruth Hanna McCormick as president, was announced today.

Involved in the Consolidation are the Register-Gazette, the Morning Star, and the Daily Republic. Beginning Monday, Sept. 29. The Register-Republic will be published in the afternoon and the Star in the morning and on Sundays.

Previous to the consolidation, Mrs. McCormick owned the Daily Republic and Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling the Register-Gazette and Morning Star. Sterling is vice president and a director of the new organization. He will retire from active editorial labors.

Other officers of the new concern are Roscoe S. Chapman, Edward B. Burling, and T. Barney Thompson, vice presidents; Russell Chapman, secretary; Clarence Avildsen, treasurer.

Mrs. McCormick also heads the board of directors. Elliott S. Bartlett will be general manager.

STORM LASHING BRITAIN CAUSES HAVOC TO SHIPS

Rescue Many from Sea; S O S Calls Pour In.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 20.—The gale which has been sweeping the channel for 24 hours, throwing travel by both air and water into grave danger, continued to lash Britain tonight inland as well as along the sea coast.

The coast was dotted with boats in distress during the day. The channel tonight was impassable to excursion craft, and the regular passenger services from Dover to Calais and other channel ports were carried on with greatest difficulty.

Many Radio Calls for Aid.

The coast guards have been on duty night and day and are continuing at their posts tonight as the radio and flares continue to bring in calls for help from coastal shipping. Several liners were reported unable to enter the Needles and berth at Southampton.

The storm throughout the southern part of the British isles was accompanied by winds of more than 50 miles an hour, and the few flyers attempting the hazardous channel crossing report a velocity higher than 80 miles an hour at elevations of 2,000 feet.

The drenching rains which accompanied the storm in southern England did great damage to roads and communications. Rains also did much damage in Wales and Ireland.

Heavy Financial Loss.

The damage has not been computed, but the loss of vessels and property damage in England will reach tens of thousands of dollars. The storm will abate soon, but a second depression will renew the turbulent weather according to forecasts.

The Channel islands are marooned by the storm and all mail and passenger services have been suspended. Many ships reported they were in distress off the coast of Brittany.

Some of the crew of the British freighter Umberleigh, which went on the rocks broadside, were taken off in lifeboats. The captain and his wife remained aboard and were saved by a breeches buoy from the shore.

The French schooner Madeleine Tristan, in distress off Portland Bill, was reached by coast guard crews and all aboard were saved by the same means. Two men were saved off the French ketch Leone on the sands off Weymouth.

Report Four Lost in Storm.

TILBURY, England, Sept. 21.—[Sunday.]—[U. P.]—It was reported here today that Capt. Lammers, skipper of the Dutch motorboat Foxhill, his wife, their 2 year old child and a sailor were drowned when the gale capsized their boat in the Thames estuary.

Italy Controls Albanian Army as King Lies Ill

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Austria, Sept. 20.—Messages arriving here confirm reports that the condition of King Zog of Albania is serious. Political conditions in Albania are reported to be grave. Italy is said to have the Albanian army and the bureaucracy completely in her power.

BANKER MISSING

HAZEL K. GROVES.

BANKER, OFFICIAL OF LAKE COUNTY, INDIANA, MISSING

Fear for H. K. Groves; Bank Closed.

for the state board of accounts, which supervises public offices, was in Lake county on other business and said he would not start an audit of the county treasurer's office unless further developments should warrant it.

Leader in G. O. P. Politics.

Mr. Groves was completing his second term as county treasurer. His present term will expire on Dec. 31. He supported the candidacy of his chief deputy, Mr. Kreitzman, to succeed him as the Republican nominee and Mr. Kreitzman was nominated.

Mr. Groves' record as county treasurer has been considered very good. He has been one of the principal figures in Lake county Republican politics for many years and was regarded as wealthy. Aside from his banking and business interests, the office of county treasurer pays about $100,000 a year in salary and fees and he was completing his eighth year in office.

Mr. Groves' son, John, 21 years old, who has planned to enter the University of Michigan law school this fall, said the family was mystified by his father's disappearance. He felt that only foul play could have caused his father's continued absence.

New Postage Stamps Will Honor Memory of Pulaski

Casimir Pulaski, the Polish general who fought under Washington during the war of the revolution, will be honored by the issuance of postage stamps to commemorate the 150th anniversary of his death, according to a letter received yesterday by Collector of Customs Czarnecki. The stamp, which will be issued some time this year, will be the result of a plea for official recognition of Pulaski's service to this country.

WHEAT PIT ASKS HYDE FOR FACTS ON RUSSIAN PLOT

Inquiry Up to Secretary, Board Officials Say.

Russian Textile syndicate crashed into the trading about a month ago and now has a paper profit of 4 to 5 cents a bushel on its operations. Possibly a million dollars would have been used to finance the transaction.

Russian Motives Discussed.

The motives of the Russian government in making a drive for poor wheat prices, assuming that the secretary of agriculture is right about it, have been a matter of speculation for a long time. Although Broomhall has estimated that Russia has forty-eight million bushels of wheat available for export this year, it is certain that none of it can be sent into the United States with a 42 cent tariff to overcome.

First among the explanations, traders say, is the rather obscure one that Russia wants to beat down the world price now so that country's peasants will let go their grain at a low price, enabling the soviet rulers to make a profit on it later. Second stands the belief that the low price campaign is a part of communist propaganda to foster discontent among the farmers of Canada and the United States.

Effect of Drive Estimated.

Doubts are expressed that the operations in the Chicago market have been sufficient to drive prices down to a large extent. The alleged Russian short interest is only about 4 per cent of the total. Soviet sales would be much more important, it is said in the European markets where the grain can be delivered, with the influence of the world markets reacting here in the normal course of events.

Evdence of the alleged soviet trading would logically come from the office of the grain futures administration, which is under the secretary of agriculture. This office is empowered to call on brokers for records of any dealings it wishes to investigate and has an established rule that all operations either long or short of a half million bushels of grain shall be reported.

Await Answer from Hyde.

The Board of Trade also has power to call on its members for reports on any transactions, but this power is seldom invoked and there is apparently no intention to do this now.

"Our business conduct committee has broad powers," said one member of the Board of Trade. "However, the government can not place on it responsibility for setting prices or manipulating them. The market is open to the world and there is always a large foreign interest hedging its grain here. Either it is legal for soviet Russia to do business in this country or it isn't. The government ought to settle that, not the Board of Trade."

The Russian government, unrecognized by the United States, has as its representative here the Amtorg Trading corporation, with headquarters in New York. Peter A. Bogdanov, chairman of the corporation, yesterday denied that Amtorg had any connection with the All Russian Textile syndicate and added he knew nothing of wheat futures trading by his government.

Causes Flurry in Prices.

Secretary Hyde's first telegram had a sharp effect in the early wheat trading. Some who were short ran to cover immediately and their purchases resulted in an advance of more than 2½ points. Later there was a sag in sympathy with Winnipeg and the close was near the Friday level.

Many traders both here and in Winnipeg treated the Russian threat lightly. A telegram from Winnipeg said that some of the traders had come to work wearing red neckties, in the hope they would get some selling orders or even buying orders.

George S. Milnor, general manager of the Grain Stabilization corporation, backed by the federal farm board, announced a readiness to coöperate in the investigation of the communist propaganda and actions, but pointed out that it was primarily a matter for the secretary of agriculture and the Board of Trade to handle.

RUSSIAN DENIES CHARGE

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 20.—[Special.]—"O, that was just the usual hedging operations," said E. Y. Belitzky this afternoon in explaining why the soviet government had sold at least 5,000,000 bushels of wheat short in the Chicago grain market. Mr. Belitzky is vice president and treasurer of the All-Russia Textile syndicate.

"Some people are too quick to accuse the Russians of being enemies of the American grain growers because of the sale of a negligible quantity of wheat," he said. "Our syndicate, it must be remembered, has purchased more than $250,000,000 worth of cotton in the country in the last several years."

Denying that the transactions were intended to depress the market, Mr. Belitzky offered to "open the books of our syndicate to any governmental inquiry into the situation." He said he did not know whether the soviets were selling wheat through any other agency here.

"Could Not Affect Price Trend."

"The All-Russian Textile syndicate," said Mr. Belitzky, "is an independent organization and not a subsidiary of the Amtorg Trading corporation, as reported in the press.

"Recently the syndicate received orders from its clients in the soviet union to sell a relatively small quantity of wheat in the Chicago market. These sales were intended as usual hedging operations. It is evident that the sale of a small quantity of wheat by the textile syndicate through the Chicago Board of Trade could not appreciably affect the trend of prices, in view of the fact that the turnover on the Chicago Board of Trade is from 50 to 60 million bushels a day.

"I must emphatically state that the transactions mentioned were of a purely business nature and were not intended as manipulation for the purpose stated in the press."

Arraign Captive Tomorrow on Charge of Job Racket

Charges of operating a confidence game will be heard in the Felony court tomorrow against George A. Smith, 5355 Windsor avenue, who is alleged to have obtained $100 from each of fourteen men to whom he promised work in his "lamp shade factory." Smith, according to police, had no such business. He was arrested on complaint of Albert Cosenga, 1513 South 53d court, Cicero, who said he gave him $100. Thirteen other men from whom Smith was said to have job fees were found.

FAIL TO RELEASE TWO CAPTIVES IN VAGRANCY DRIVE

Attempts to release Izzy Alderman and Joseph Condi, first of Chicago's hoodlums to be jailed on vagrancy warrants, failed yesterday morning. Meanwhile, police continued their fruitless search for the 25 "public enemies" for whom Judge John H. Lyle issued vagrancy warrants last Tuesday.

Attorneys W. W. Smith and Ben Feldman offered to deposit $20,000 in cash as surety for Alderman and Condi. The two were held on $20,000 bonds each by Judge Lyle and several real estate bonds offered were rejected. Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller also refused to accept the cash, insisting that the full $40,000 be supplied.

Joe Fiore, 25 years old, and Philip Lassow, 28 years old, both known to the police, were arrested yesterday and charged with vagrancy. They will be arraigned tomorrow before Judge Lyle.

RUPTURE

Don't submit to avoidable operations or the use of antiquated trusses, as they are set where the lump is and not where the opening is. The opening is seldom larger than a dime no matter the size of the rupture, and all cases can be retained with the end of a lead pencil. "The Spermatic Shield-Complex in combination with the Retainer-[illegible] (Patent No. 747247, No. 1287700 and other patents pending)—a scientific achievement in a highly specialized art. TURNS SET ON OR OFF
TURN TO ADJUST VOLUME
MOVE IN OR OUT FOR LOCAL OR DISTANCE
TUNES IN STATIONS

Your Radio is old-fashioned without this 4-IN-ONE DIAL

The Brunswick's amazing Uni-Selector takes the place of 4 controls on ordinary sets!

Think of it—a radio with a single dial! With one magic sweep Brunswick has obliterated the confusing series of knobs that clutter the cabinets of other sets, and substituted the sensational new UNI-SELECTOR.

You'll be proud as Punch of this new device, which no owner of any other set can boast—proud of the immensely improved appearance, vain of its magic ease of operation.

To turn the set on—to tune in stations—to adjust volume higher or lower—to set for local or distant stations—or to turn the set off—just turn the Uni-Selector.

Seven separate functions—everything essential to the operation of the set—concentrated in one control!

Radio comes of age in Brunswick's 1931 models.

The Uni-Selector is just one of many revolutionary refinements—including the All-Armored Chassis, Rigid Tuning Scale, and Tone Control—which protect the new Brunswick from the "growing pains" that made former radio styles so fleeting.

Here at last is a mature, complete, finished instrument, prepared in advance for future changes in radio design. It is the one set you can buy today with confidence that years from now it will still be "the best that money can buy"—in tone, in power, in selectivity, in convenience.

"Sample" it before another day goes by!

INTER-AMERICAN RELATIONS.

Recognition has been given the new governments in Argentina, Peru, and Bolivia, and is justified, it would seem, both in principle and policy. It is not in keeping with the rule set up by treaty among the isthmian republics that no government established by military revolution or coup d'état may be recognized until validated at a free election. But though under the Wilson-Bryan régime there was a disposition to follow such a rule, it has fortunately not been adopted. It would be foolish for us thus to tie our hands. There have been many instances in which force was essential to escape from intolerable evils when a revolt or a military coup d'état was the only means of overthrowing an oppressor and a resort to an election futile. The proper course for our state department is to see at all times that its information is as good as possible and to act in each case according to the circumstances of the case, with primary consideration of our own interest.

Experiments in moral influence to which Wilson and Bryan were predisposed are seldom profitable to either party to the experiment, but it would be even more foolish to lay down fixed general rules for application to conditions of great variety. Wilson himself found he had to compromise or jettison plausible and high minded formulas when confronted by conditions which made their application impracticable if not intolerable. Our relations with other nations must be directed by actual conditions and not by idealistic generalities which ignore or override them. Certainly we seek to encourage, if we can, those elements in the political and social life of our fellow republics of the west which seem to us to offer the best prospect of stability and progress. But our influence is certain to create more mischief than benefit if it is directed by generalizations, however high minded, which are not to be realized in the circumstances actually existing.

In the case of the Argentine coup d'état, although a duly elected administration has been expelled by military force, this extraconstitutional procedure seems to have had an overwhelming support in public opinion, and the government thus constituted and thus supported is clearly able to fulfill its international responsibilities. We were free, therefore, from the viewpoint of sound policy, to consult our own interest, which seems clearly to recommend prompt recognition of a régime which promises to restore the friendly and mutually profitable relations which endured so many years between the United States and Argentina, and which ought to be restored.

And without hypocrisy we may assert that this is not a mere consideration of dollars and cents. The American republic was itself young when Argentina cast off the bonds of Spanish colonial domination, and the American people sincerely rejoiced in that event. They warmed to its heroism and were determined to do what they could to defend its new won liberties. When its statesmen turned to American precedents for guidance in building a free government and a new nation it welcomed the effort as an augury of enduring friendship and the coming of a new ally in the establishment of a western civilization inspired by the ideals of freedom and democratic progress. This was the attitude of the North American republic in the policy of its government and in the sincere sentiment of its people, and we had believed it to be reciprocated. Therefore it has been painful and disappointing in later years to find Argentine statesmanship and diplomacy distrustful and hypercritical of the United States, and Argentine opinion apparently ready to give ready credence to any interpretation of American policy which implied hypocrisy and the will to dominate. We knew that this change was encouraged, if not indeed initiated, by foreign agencies, but it has seemed to us incompatible with our opinion of Argentine intelligence that it should be so easily and uncritically accepted. It has had no support whatever in the actions of our government nor in the attitude of the people of the United States toward Argentina. The theory that the Monroe Doctrine was a hypocritical cloak for a policy of domination is a fraud which ought to have gained less credence in Argentina than anywhere else in the western world. Yet it has flourished there, although its perpetuation would in the long run be more hurtful to Argentina than to the United States.

We may hope, therefore, that a change is at hand, that unfounded suspicions and the misunderstandings they create will be discarded by Argentine intelligence and that the former relations of friendship and mutual respect, which were based on mutual interests and similar political ideals, will be firmly reëstablished. This will be realized, we are confident, if in both countries there is less emphasis upon the differences of our cultural and social heritage and more recognition of those common characteristics, ideals, and modes of life and thought which are shared by all intelligent people in our new world of the western continent. In the larger view we are all making a new life, a new civilization profoundly different from that of Europe, though colored in various ways by its diverse culture. There is coming to be such a thing as an American, as for centuries there has been and is a European. The citizen of the republics of the north, with his heritage of north European character and experience, is besides and above that an American, a man of the western, the new, world. The citizen of Argentina, or Brazil, or Chile, Peru, Bolivia, and the other Ibero-American nations, with his heritage of Mediterranean culture, is besides and above that an American, a man of the western, the new, world. This is a tremendous fact which all of us ought to realize and cultivate, for the new world is not the old world, and we who are developing it should work in intelligent coöperation at the task. It is our contribution to civilization and to the progress and enlarging happiness of mankind.

LEISURE AND MACHINES.

If a slave base made Athenian culture and "democracy" possible, only a machine base in the western world can serve the same function. Iron hands will take the place of flesh and blood and power machines on farms and in the home and factory will work where laborers and servants were. Things instead of people may then fill our lives, as Truslow Adams says, but machines are better than a servile class, and when we learn to master them and use them wholly for a human end, as once the slaves were used, America's great experiment in living will at least be partly solved. Though our lives today may be subject to a mechanocracy, it is not impossible to subordinate machines once more to wholly human values.

Slavery gave leisure and free time to the ruling citizens of Athens, and the glory of the small Hellenic town rose largely from the fact that Athenians could do intelligently what they pleased. They were relieved from pressures of labor and commercialism, and they learned to use their time creatively. And machines, so far as they can give leisure to the American people as a whole, will have much the same social value. They emancipate the slave. They create a leisure and a freedom from long hours of labor on which a high grade people may establish human values and a worthwhile life.

Machines have emancipated slaves, but in some ways they are also capable of producing new ones. If the power and freedom that machines can give are not diffused generously among all who work with them, the machines of modern life can well become a tyrant and a curse. They may break down life and civilization. They may become not a base for culture but a destroyer of all values. To diffuse the power and leisure of a machine age, and to create an intelligent use of them by education, is the first problem of American democracy. Much has been done, as our high standard of living testifies. But much is left to do.

By 1950, say the statisticians, Chicago may expect to have in use 641,809 automobiles. And the increase in machines of one kind or another will be in greater ratio no doubt than the increase in our population. Per capita, machinery and power increases. The fact gives rise to a severe problem. Can society digest machinery, as it were, and create therefrom a finer kind of living?

With the increase of machinery may well come a corresponding limitation in our population. Already many facts point this way, and the future no doubt will bear it out more strongly. Men will be more precious as they become relatively fewer. And machinery, because more common, will be used, it may be hoped, more and more for human ends.

California and Florida, two residential states, have grown most of all America, according to the census, and the great cities or "conurbations" where machinery is concentrated have drawn to themselves the most power and population. America may there create a new kind of living and a rich culture new to the world. It may create them: The test will be America's ability to diffuse the power and wealth and leisure flowing from machines among all of her people.

PARLOR CAR, SLEEPER, DINER, AND CLUB CAR.

[Detroit News.]

For the benefit of the many who may not have traveled on the railroads in France in time of war, it might be well to explain an object, just arrived from France, which is now on show at an ex-service men's reunion in New York and will shortly be added to the permanent collection of a museum there.

The object is a box car, known familiarly as "40 hommes, 8 chevaux," in reference to a sign on its side giving its capacity of men and horses. For the American warrior en route in 1918 it constituted a Pullman parlor car, sleeper, diner, and club car. It was simply constructed and probably first designed just after the discovery of wheels and before the invention of springs. It was coupled to others, in strings of 30 to 100, by an arrangement of eyes and pins with considerable slack. This slack theoretically was taken up by bumpers at either end of the car and cushioned with springs which were inoperative by virtue of rust. It had four walls and a ceiling, and a floor usually so chopped up by the shoes of horses that it was necessary to lay a blanket before dice could properly be thrown. In the case of the British forces the game was the one known as "Crown and Anchor."

The car was ventilated copiously with sundry cracks and by a door on either side, through which cans of corned beef were thrown to native applicants along the right of way as the train passed languidly through the Norman countryside. In some cases it was fitted with a sort of after deck for the benefit of brakemen, but more frequently occupied by gentlemen absent from their armies without leave. When it left the track, as it sometimes did under the pressure of war activity, it had this unique virtue, that its passengers could always descend and lift it back. It moved commonly at a slow canter, so that passengers cramped by long confinement in it could drop off and run beside it for a mile or two to loosen their limbs. All in all, it was one of the greatest horrors of the conflict in France, and one, for some reason, too lightly dwelt upon in the otherwise realistic new literature of the war.

AMERICAN HEROES

GEORGE ROGERS CLARK

A Brief Review of His Contribution to Our Country.

(The articles of which the following is the eighteenth are intended as five minute sketches of early Americans of particular achievement and distinction, each flashed briefly against the background of the times and conditions in which the subject made his contribution to the nation. Their names may be well or may be little known now to the generation which has inherited the benefits of wise, laborious, and, in many instances, heroic work.)

(Picture in Rotogravure Section.)

THE war of the revolution as fought west of the Alleghenies was a conflict of subsidized Indians against settlers in a rich wilderness. The wilderness gave Michigan, Wisconsin, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, and Tennessee to the new republic. Kentucky was Virginia extended under its charter. Tennessee was North Carolina, but the territory north of the Ohio was the Canadian province of Quebec thrown west of the English colonies by the act of parliament of 1774. The early preoccupation of the eastern revolutionists was to take the St. Lawrence strip of Canada to the north, where settlement always would be restricted and development retarded and limited by nature. These efforts were of great cost and complete failure. Quebec west of the Alleghenies and north of the Ohio was the absolute necessity of the country, but the federated states made no effort to take it. Virginia did it alone.

The Ohio Indians were the most dangerous native enemies the white advance encountered. They obstructed settlement for forty years when America was a pushful nation, they destroyed two armies, one under Gen. Harmar and one under Gen. St. Clair, and they were not broken until Commodore Perry won the battle of Lake Erie. Their greatest captain was their last, Tecumseh. They learned to respect two American fighters, Mad Anthony Wayne after the revolution, George Rogers Clark during it. These two soldiers, by virtue of their courage and intelligence, had the Indian sign on them. Clark won the northwest territory and held it. The holding was the hard part of it. The capture was a dashing adventure of hardship which has always seemed unendurable and of difficulties which have always seemed impenetrable and insurmountable, but the men were keyed to it and equal to it.

The holding of the territory thus won was another matter. Prolonged hardship unfolded the weaknesses of flesh and spirit. Morale disappeared in self-concern. The qualities of the captain were tested by the dissensions in his support.

[George Rogers Clark—Nov. 19, 1752-Feb. 13, 1818—was one in a family of six sons and four daughters, neighbors of Thomas Jefferson at Monticello. Jonathan and George Rogers Clark became generals, three other sons were officers in the revolution, and the youngest, William, was Capt. Clark of the Lewis and Clark expedition to the Pacific. Few families have contributed more to the expansion of the country.]

George Rogers Clark had studied surveying and before coming of age had gone into the western country. The leader it would later require was familiar with it when the need came. In the conflict between empire and independence in the east it became essential for Great Britain to hold the west, that part of Quebec which reached down to the Ohio.

The British post for keeping southern Quebec was Detroit. The difficulties were in the excessive cost of supplies, chiefly in transport from the St. Lawrence seaports, and in the excessive demand for them. The Indians looked to Detroit for military and domestic stores, arms, powder, flints, blankets, clothes, kettles, and ornaments. As allies they were worthless unless furnished with what they needed and demanded.

In Indiana and Illinois were the French settlements, at Vincennes on the Wabash, and at Cahokia and Kaskaskia in the Mississippi valley, Kaskaskia being the southernmost. Cahokia was just below St. Louis, then Spanish and garrisoned. Clark had a soldier's mind. He knew that the defense of Kentucky was north of the Ohio. It required first the taking of the French towns, then under the British flag, and Fort Sackville at Vincennes, where there was later a British garrison, and then the taking of the supply depot at Detroit. There was the heart of the danger.

Clark was never able to carry out his plans for the complete expulsion of the enemy and it was his great disappointment, but his popular fame rests on his successful dash at the French towns and the capture of Capt. Hamilton and the force at Fort Sackville. The fame is not too much for the achievement.

Kentucky was bloody from Indian attacks when Clark started for Williamsburg, Oct. 1, 1777, to propose the reduction of the northwest territory to Gov. Patrick Henry. Henry authorized it and Clark raised a small force, assembling at Pittsburgh and dropping down the Ohio on flat boats to Corn island, above the falls of the Ohio [Louisville]. For a month he disciplined them. June 24, 1778, the little force of some 170 men in buckskin shot the falls in an eclipse of the sun. They landed on the Illinois side near the abandoned French post of Fort Massac and marched 120 miles to surprise and take the French towns on the Mississippi side. They were peaceable villages and submitted at first in common prudence to Clark's force, but soon in affection to his tact and kindness. Clark never lost this French loyalty to himself. Vincennes submitted to a messenger, but was retaken by Hamilton from Detroit.

In the Mississippi valley there was a constant Indian menace, but Clark proved his ascendancy over the Indian character. He knew when to threaten, when to conciliate, when to fight, and when to punish. No Indian force even under British command ever willingly met him in the subsequent fighting of the war, and at one time his personal reputation alone defeated the most extensive British campaign for recovery. The Indians would not attack where he was and dissipated the expeditions in futile raids.

The necessity of taking Vincennes from Hamilton led to the celebrated march across Illinois, starting Feb. 7 with 70 Americans and 60 French in thawing and freezing winter weather through swamps and swollen rivers. All the men had when Hamilton saw them from his fort was dry powder and good courage. He surrendered to deceptive numbers and unbelievable hardihood.

Clark was never able to equip a force against Detroit, although encouraged by Washington. His best opportunity was wrecked by the invasion of Virginia by Arnold. Kentucky as well as the country north of the Ohio suffered severely in consequence, but nevertheless Clark was the soul of the defense. It was something of a miracle that the defense could be maintained. The Kentucky counties failed to supply men and misdirected them when they were raised. There was no money or credit. Patriots were impoverished by the obligations they assumed, Americans and French alike—such men as Oliver Pollock and Francis Vigo. Clark lost his land on a bond for supplies. State jealousies of Virginia expansion interfered. Rascally land companies of distinguished sponsorship attempted frauds and created disorder. Clark was defamed as a sot and left in destitution, but the northwest territory was held for the nation.

In his twilight an infected foot required an amputation. His anesthetic for two hours was a drum and fife corps marching around his house. Incidentally he was an authoritative ornithologist recognized by Audubon. Virginia finally voted the one legged hero a sword. When it had been presented he is said to have retorted:

"Young man, when Virginia needed a sword I found her one. Now I need bread."

In the Clark lot in Cave Hill cemetery of Louisville Jonathan Clark has a monument. George Rogers Clark has only a tablet. He has been in danger of oblivion.

How to Keep Well By Dr W.A. Evans

BAD NEIGHBORS AND DISEASE.

ONE reason for the continued prevalence of easily preventable contagious diseases is the unwillingness of people to be good neighbors and good citizens.

One year ago the United States public health service decided to try to establish a morbidity registration area. At the end of one year of investigation they are in doubt as to the feasibility of the plan. The proposed morbidity registration area was to be one in which the reporting of contagion came up to certain standards. Any state, or perhaps any city, in which the reporting was up to standard was to be recognized as in the morbidity registration area and entitled to all the honors and advantages thereof. To get the thing under trial they picked out six forms of contagion—diphtheria, infantile paralysis, smallpox, scarlet fever, typhoid fever, and tuberculosis. If three-quarters of the cases of these diseases were reported that fact entitled the state to entry in the registration area.

To put the trial in operation a health department was to apply for registration, whereupon a house to house canvass would be made, taking the census of all cases of contagion that had occurred within one year, and the facts discovered were checked against health department records. A few other details of the standards need not be mentioned here.

In the year of trial one state, with about seven million people, headed by an excellent health department, reported that 64.6 per cent of its diphtheria was reported; and for the other five diseases the percentages were as follows: Infantile paralysis, 30 per cent; scarlet fever, 62.1 per cent; smallpox, 62.6 per cent; typhoid fever, 61.5 per cent; tuberculosis, 52 per cent.

Can we wonder that infantile paralysis is so difficult to control since more than two-thirds of the families fail to report the disease and thereby endanger the children of their unsuspecting neighbors and friends? Is it not to be expected that the expense of smallpox is high since the health departments learn of less than two-thirds of the cases and this covered up third are free to spread the disease? Nearly 40 per cent of those who have typhoid fever are not watched to prevent them from infecting milk and water supplies.

WILL DO NO HARM.

G. H. writes: Is it harmful to wipe the teeth once a week with peroxide to take off the stains, besides the daily brushing? Will this hurt the enamel and cause it to crack?

REPLY.

No.

HOW MUCH DO YOU SMOKE?

M. E. M. writes: What is the cause of very sore spots and an inflamed condition on the tongue? There is sore throat and heartburn.

REPLY.

Do you smoke to excess? If not, investigate the possibility of pellagra and pernicious anemia.

EGGS AND YOUNG BABIES.

W. E. J. writes:

1. Do soft boiled eggs cause diarrhea in a baby nine months old?
2. Is it good for a baby of this age to eat eggs at all?

REPLY.

1. Eggs disagree with a certain proportion of babies.
2. Not if they disagree.

EVENTUAL CURE LIKELY.

M. L. R. writes: I am a woman 29 years of age and am a victim of "jake" paralysis. I used Jamaica ginger for medicine. My feet burn and pain something terrible. My back seems to be weak. Can I expect a cure?

REPLY.

"Jake" paralysis is a form of neuritis. Eventual cure can be expected. There will be exceptions, but cure should be the rule.

NEW LETTER BOX.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—[Friend of the People.]—I wonder why there is no letter box in our neighborhood. We have to go blocks to get to one. Several have commented upon it. It seems that Jackson and Honore streets would be the proper place for one. L. M.

I am pleased to inform you that upon investigation this intersection has been found to be a suitable location for a letter box and measures have accordingly been taken to have the box installed there within the next few days. ARTHUR C. LUEDER, Postmaster.

TO TRACE BOND.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Bought a first mortgage gold bond on deferred payment plan which is not paid up. Mortgage expires next year. Last August went to cash coupon and found the bank through which I purchased the bond was closed and that receivers had been appointed. 1. Am I going to lose, inasmuch as I am not a depositor nor shareholder of the bank? 2. Where shall I begin my investigation? F. B.

1. If you hold the mortgage or if a mortgage standing in your name is traceable among the bank's assets, then you would be protected in full if the security back of the mortgage is adequate. If all that you have is the agreement of the presumably insolvent institution to secure a mortgage for you, then your claim to damages for breach of such agreement would be like the claims of other creditors and you would have to take the same dividend as other creditors.

2. Your first inquiry should be at the office of the receiver.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 21, 1914.

LONDON.—The fullest story yet received of the destruction of the cathedral of Notre Dame at Reims was sent by Ward Price, correspondent of the Daily Mail. He says: "The fire started between 4 and 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon. All day long shells had been crashing into the town. A German battery on the hills of Nogent l'Abbesse made the cathedral a mark. Shell after shell smashed into the old masonry and avalanche after avalanche of stone work that had survived the storms of centuries thundered down into the deserted streets. A scaffolding on the east end caught fire, and soon the roof, nave, and transepts were a roaring mass of flames."

BERLIN.—An official statement says: "Reims was in the battle line of the French and the Germans were obliged to bombard it. We regret the necessity, but the fire of the French came from that direction. Orders have been issued to save the cathedral."

ON THE BATTLE FRONT, via Paris.—The seventh day of the battle of the Aisne has ended with the allies and the Germans entrenched in practically the same positions they have occupied for the last two days. Artillery duels such as have never been seen before are being waged with the hope of compelling the evacuation of the strongly held positions. The trenches north of Soissons were taken by the Germans, but rewon in a hard counter-attack. The allies have made progress on the western slopes of the Argonne, where the crown prince's army is opposed to them, while the Germans have retired beyond the frontier in Lorraine.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 21, 1900.

LONDON.—The Standard prints a story guaranteed as being authentic by its Moscow correspondent, describing the frightful atrocities practiced by the Russians on the Chinese at Blagovesschensk. It says: "There were resident at that town 5,000 Chinese, including women and children, and when the recent trouble began the Russians, first in isolated cases then in larger bodies, sought out the Chinese under pretense of seeing that they had no arms. In the course of such pretended searches many Chinese were put to death. Then the authorities notified all Chinese residents to repair to police stations. They were led in batches of a few hundred at a time to the Amur river, a mile wide, and ordered to cross to the Chinese side. No boats were provided and there was no bridge. Men, women and children were flung alive into the stream, or at the least show of resistance were stabbed and shot and their bodies thrown after the living victims. Not one of the 5,000 escaped alive. The massacre was undoubtedly under direct order of the authorities."

CHICAGO.—William W. Kennedy, chief of police of Chicago during the great fire and a pioneer resident of the city, was found dead in his room at McEwen's hotel, 91 West Madison street, where he had lived for 18 years. Heart disease caused death. He was appointed chief by Mayor Mason and served until soon after the election of Joseph Medill as mayor.

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 21, 1865.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Gen. Howard, superintendent of the Freedmen's bureau, left on an inspection tour of freedmen's affairs in Virginia. He will be gone about ten days. Senator Yates of Illinois left for his home in that state.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Gen. Gideon J. Pillow of Tennessee is here seeking a pardon for which he filed application several weeks ago. It is said that the ex-rebel Vice President Stephens, now confined in Fort Warren, is soon to be released and will return to Georgia to coöperate with ex-Gov. Brown and others in the reconstruction of that state.

NEW YORK.—A delegation of sixteen, comprising a portion of the aldermen and other city officials of Chicago, reached this city. They will remain here until the first of next week, after which they will go to Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore, and Pittsburgh, arriving home in about a fortnight.

PAN-AMERICAN UNDERSTANDING.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—It was with great pleasure I read your editorial comments on the remarks of Señor Davila, the Chilean ambassador, in regards to the culture of the United States. My esteemed colleague gave voice to the sentiments of every thinker in Ibero-America and expressed the earnest desire of every South American interested in the development of his country.

The main reason, to my way of thinking, for the lack of a better understanding between all the three Americas is the lack of communication. Faster steamship schedules have to a great extent helped to overcome this; airplane mail service now in development is expediting communication. More tourists from the United States to Ibero-America will bring the personal contact needed to bring about a perfect understanding.

I wish at this time to call your attention to the fact that in the changes of administration taking place in South America no change in government is advocated. No foreign property is destroyed or captured, no foreign lives lost, nor is invested foreign capital threatened in any way.

DR. JORGE M. CHAVARRI,
Consul of Peru.

SPOILED BALLOTS.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—May we broadcast through your columns the advice to voters not to make any marks on their ballots but an "X" where the cross belongs? I have worked for ten years at the same polling place and every election throw out from six to ten ballots with the word "yes" or "no" on the propositions. Why vote at all if not correctly? The more decidedly they are opposed to [or in favor of] the bonds, etc., the larger the word "yes" or "no" is written and underscored. Won't the men who are the heads of their households please tell their women folks to make no mark on their ballots but an "X," thereby saving their vote. Some of our women voters might instruct their husbands also, as it is not always the women who spoil their ballots.

BERTHA JACKSON.

AN OLD BIRD IS AN OLD BIRD.

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 11.—It is a woman's business to primp and a man's business to pay for the primping. When the man has done the paying for the woman's primping there is no money or energy left for his own. I agree with Mrs. W. that sex rejuvenation is the bunk. So is face lifting. An old bird, male or female, is an old bird. Oiling its feathers makes it ridiculous. Men have a greater sense of the ridiculous than women. And besides, throwing the chest forward, standing when women enter [and why stand before our equals?], reading good books, dieting, and wearing good clothes are no alternatives for sex rejuvenation.

POLITICAL ANALYSIS.

Hollywood, Ill., Sept. 12.—It's chuckling some how the old army games in politics, especially Republican politics, thrive and produce, year after year. James Hamilton Lewis, practical, experienced and able campaigner, has indicated he has the right slant on the McCormick-O'Neil setup. Candidate McCormick finds herself confronted by the three horned dilemma of Lewis popularity, increasing dissatisfaction with national administration ineffectiveness, and steadily growing wet sentiment. So she and her astute campaign advisers trot out old reliable army game number three, the mock fight. How many times that old dodge has been put over successfully! Its triple purpose this time, of course, is to draw attention away from Jim Ham, from national administration ineffectiveness, which is bound to hurt the Republican candidate, and, best of all, to permit Candidate McCormick to assume the position of one much abused, to create sympathy, to allow her to slide slickly and smoothly over to the popular modification side under a barrage of buncombe. In line with the rules of the hoary old game, I look to see Candidate O'Neill ease gently out just before the voting takes place, leaving the field and the limelight to Candidate McCormick. But it does not fool me. I am going to vote for Jim Ham because I really know where he stands on the real issues: Unemployment and farm relief.

HISSING THE PRESIDENT.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—America is, we believe, the only nation on the face of the earth where the person holding the highest office in the nation can be with impunity shown disrespect. At one of our south side movie houses our President was hissed. Can the management be held responsible, or must it be allowed to go on, to the disgrace of our nation?

Only very ignorant persons would be guilty of such actions, and as we have a law that holds parents guilty when children are not sent to school, it is only consistent to have grown-ups taught or punished for ignorance.

SATURDAY NIGHT IN SWEDEN.

Evanston, Ill., Sept. 7.—I see that John Steele, your London correspondent, has gone the way of all wets and declared that there is no drunkenness in Sweden. I have some annual police reports from Sweden showing that there is a rate of convictions for drunkenness in Sweden three times as high as the rate per hundred thousand for [illegible] arrests in our wettest city of New York. One fourth of the Swedish drunks who go to jail are youth. Saturday nights in the wet districts of Sweden are a sodden orgy of drunkenness.

Gentlemen:

We are glad to report entire satisfaction with the General Electric Refrigerators installed in our buildings. No client of ours has ever been called upon to pay a service charge.

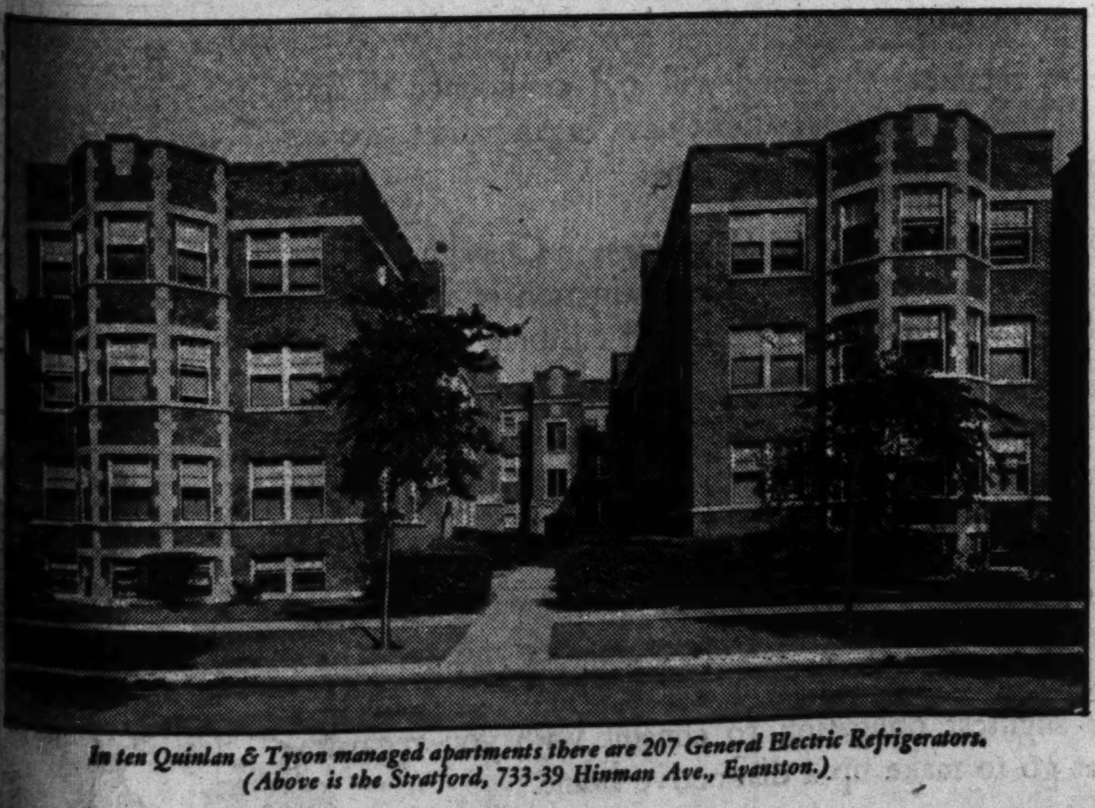
The success of our business depends upon quicker renting of apartments — and keeping them fully rented.

Experience with General Electric Refrigerators has proven their value in greater rentability of apartments, as well as in lowest operating cost and entire freedom from any expense in maintenance.

Very truly yours,
QUINLAN AND TYSON, INC.
By: Clyde D Foster
Vice President

Every one of the 36 apartments of Washington Manor, 909-19 Washington St., Evanston, is equipped with an individual General Electric Refrigerator.

The Avon, 725-31 Hinman Ave., Evanston, is equipped with 30 General Electric Refrigerators—one in each apartment.



In ten Quinlan & Tyson managed apartments there are 207 General Electric Refrigerators. (Above is the Stratford, 733-39 Hinman Ave., Evanston.)

QUINLAN & TYSON, like many other users, have learned the many outstanding advantages of General Electric Refrigerators. Experience has shown them that General Electric Refrigerators give unequaled tenant satisfaction and actually make it easier to rent apartments.

For these same reasons thousands of other apartment operators and owners have installed General Electric Refrigerators.

And because of the very reasons that have made them the first choice for the finest, deluxe apartment hotels, the General Electric Refrigerator has particularly proven itself the wise choice for apartments renting for as low as $40 a month . . . for here maintenance cost has an even closer bearing on profits.

Moreover, experience has demonstrated to them time and time again that the presence of a General Electric Refrigerator in the kitchen helps to rent apartments fast.

Only the General Electric Refrigerator has the Monitor Top. In it all moving parts are protected from air, dirt and moisture with steel walls hermetically sealed This is your unfailing assurance of dependable, efficient, economical operation throughout the years.

General Electric Refrigerators are sold on the most conveniently spaced payments. Come in and see them. There is a General Electric Refrigerator Display Room near you. Come in TOMORROW.

Burley & Company

ESTABLISHED 1838

We cordially invite you to attend the Formal Opening and Fashion Show of our nine retail stores offering a new standard of value
and a new and distinguished service in complete furnishings for the home

—with a distinguished reputation born of a century's service in Chicago, enter the field of retail furniture with a group of nine stores—strategically located to cover all shopping districts, superbly equipped to offer a new and distinctive service in complete furnishings for the home—and a dominant merchandising program based on sound, substantial and wholly new standards of furniture value.

Many retail stores, in their zeal for huge volume, have overlooked a tremendous opportunity for service. They substitute the question "How much can we get for this item?" instead of the vitally important query, "How much value can we give in this item?" Vitally important, we repeat, because only by cultivating and deserving the confidence of their customers can any business hope to grow and prosper.

For 92 years, Burley & Company have had the unique privilege of retaining the good-will and confidence of four generations of customers by our exacting standards of quality and value. Through our tremendous new organization, we are able to offer this same valuable service to every person who wishes to make a purchase for his home.

Our aim is not to achieve the largest number of stores, nor the greatest volume of business in Chicago. Rather, our goal is the complete confidence of the public in our advertising and in our merchandise, the distinction of having our recommendations as to quality, style and value, tested and accepted implicitly by thousands of satisfied customers.

Our shop at 212 North Michigan Avenue heads the Burley & Company organization as our only downtown store. Three additional floors of fine furniture, greatly augmented departments of china, crystal, pewter, silver and gifts, and one of the choicest stocks of Oriental and domestic rugs in the city make this store an ideal place to shop for a single piece of furniture, or for a complete ensemble for your home.

All of the new Burley & Company stores have been remodeled and completely restocked with merchandise conforming to rigidly established standards of style and quality. Complete departments of table appointments and gifts have been installed, featuring one of the largest and most important collections of open-stock patterns in the country. A comprehensive Interior Decorating Service is available at all times without the slightest obligation, to consult with you regarding room arrangements, color schemes, and the hundred important details that go to make up a distinctive home.

You are cordially invited to visit our new stores, to inspect our merchandise, to draw upon our great fund of resources for ideas in arranging your home, and to become a Burley & Company customer.

A new standard of value

Our Merchandise Policy—is based on three fundamentals—STYLE, QUALITY AND VALUE. In present-day selling, quality and style have been juggled to such an extent that price, not value, threatens to become the dominating factor in a majority of sales. We will not tolerate cheaply constructed, cheaply styled furniture simply because it is a bargain. No merchandise, no matter how moderate its cost, has a place on our floors unless it is correctly designed, and is the best possible quality available at the price.

We believe that home furnishings from nationally advertised lines, designed and styled by artists, fashioned by skilled craftsmen, and backed by the manufacturer's guarantee of quality, represent advantages to our customers consistent with Burley's own reputation for distinguished merchandise.

With the co-operation of manufacturers of outstanding national reputation, we are establishing new standards of value in every type of furniture and home appointments. Our stocks of nationally advertised merchandise are selected from such leaders as:

SIMMONS COMPANY • BERKEY & GAY • ROBERT W. IRWIN CO. • KROEHLER • PULLMAN COUCH CO.
LUCE FURNITURE CO. • IMPERIAL FURNITURE CO. • CENTURY FURNITURE CO. •
ALEXANDER SMITH CO. • BIGELOW-SANFORD • KARAGHEUSIAN, INC. • MAJESTIC RADIO • STORKLINE
HOOSIER KITCHEN CABINETS • CREST LAMPS • THE FURNITURE SHOPS, GRAND RAPIDS
ENGLANDER • FOSTORIA GLASS • MINTON, SPODE COPELAND AND ROYAL CAULDON CHINA

In addition to standard lines, new patterns, designed and made up to our especial order by these manufacturers and obtainable only at Burley & Company stores, offer authentic style and quality at prices possible only because of our tremendous purchasing power and extensive contacts.

Every item advertised by Burley & Company is backed by our absolute guarantee of quality, style and satisfaction. We cannot honestly offer $200 worth of value for $50. But we can and do offer the most value for $50 that it is possible for you to obtain!

Our Credit Policy. We offer for your convenience an extremely liberal credit policy which makes it possible for you to purchase and enjoy furniture of permanent character and value while paying for it out of your regular income.

Buying good furniture, like investing in good bonds, will bring you satisfactory dividends long after the original transaction has been completed.

Many prospective buyers, with an appreciation and desire for furniture of the better type, have forced themselves to be content with purchases of inferior quality and style because of lack of ready capital. By making it possible for our customers to buy merchandise which they prefer, and which will give them infinite service, and permanent pleasure and satisfaction, we are forging a link of friendship that will be of mutual benefit for years to come.

Whether you wish to purchase a single item, or complete furnishings for your home, your account will be accepted with equal appreciation and consideration.

HOW ANDREE AND HIS MEN DIED IS STILL A MYSTERY

Believe Storm or Tainted Food Killed Them.

BY ODD ARNESEN.

[Norwegian authority on arctic exploration and arctic life, written especially for the Associated Press.]

[Copyright, 1930, and all rights reserved by the Associated Press.]

OSLO, Norway, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Salomon August Andree's diary stops on Oct. 2, when the ice broke under his floating camp and the little party of balloon explorers, who vanished 33 years ago, had to get ashore on White island.

From now on it must be mostly guess work to reconstruct the story of how the expedition's members met their fate.

After Oct. 17 Nils Strindberg was unable to write down anything more, and the question arises of what caused their deaths. It seems to be certain that Strindberg died first and was buried by Andree; possibly by Knut Frankel also.

Andree Last to Die.

Of these two, Andree seems to have lived the longer, but what happened after the 17th? We do not yet know, and we can only conjecture whether they could have been alive long after that date.

When the explorers dragged themselves ashore on White island from the icy seas, they were already worn out and sick. The diary mentions sore feet and frequent attacks of diarrhoea.

They tried to build a shelter from driftwood and to cover it by fabric taken from their balloon and carried with them on their march. When their camp was found this summer by Dr. Gunnar Horn's expedition, it was clearly seen that the explorers had been too exhausted to get the hut and the camp in order.

Found Everything Scattered.

Had they still had any strength left they surely would have brought their instruments, diaries, and log book under cover, and would have assembled around them all their equipment as they prepared to spend the winter.

Instead, everything was scattered about as in a camp at the moment of breakup.

A sudden catastrophe must have caught them—possibly a severe snowstorm. Cold weather had set in and despair must have seized them.

The suggestion that the party was poisoned by carbon monoxide gas from their stove while in the hut does not seem acceptable. The disorderly condition of the camp indicated they never even lived in the hut.

Suspect Ptomaine Poisoning.

It is more probable that the party got ptomaine poisoning from canned food, for at that time canned food for such expeditions was not of such high quality as it is nowadays.

If the notes written down by any one of the party are not found to state definitely what circumstances existed as they neared the end it must be admitted that the Andree mystery is not solved in full.

It remains to be determined under exactly what conditions they died and how long they had lived on White island.

"SCHOOLBOYS," 16 TO 84, WILL VISIT HOOVER

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—(AP)—A sheaf of letters written by pupils ranging in age from 16 to 84, of the moonlight schools of Hamilton county, Tennessee, will be presented President Hoover Monday by the pupils themselves.

The delegation of 100 mountaineers, many of whom never have ridden on a train before, will arrive in the capital tomorrow morning and spend the day sightseeing.

Monday morning the men and women will carefully pen their letters to the President.

They will write:

"Dear Mr. President: I go to school in Hamilton county, Tennessee. I want to learn more that I may be a better citizen." Prizes will be awarded for the best letters.

The pupils making the trip made the best grades out of a class of 600. Citizens of Chattanooga are paying the expenses of their trip to Washington.

MEASURE HEAT RAY OF STAR OF 13TH MAGNITUDE

Feat Accomplished with Tiny Instrument.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—(AP)—Measurement of the heat from an unnamed star 631 times fainter than the faintest star visible to the unaided eye was announced tonight by the Carnegie institution.

The tiny heat ray, one of unnumbered thousands whose existence has been suspected but not hitherto so definitely established, was caught by an instrument weighing one-thousandth as much as a drop of water, named a thermocouple.

Star Is in the 13th Magnitude.

The unnamed star is of thirteenth magnitude. The temperature of its ray is described in the announcement only indirectly by a comparison, which states:

"This exploit becomes even more impressive when it is realized that a star of the sixth magnitude, that is, one which can barely be seen with the unaided eye, radiates upon the whole United States no more heat than the sun radiates upon one square yard of surface. Yet, in the case of such a star, the thermocouple will show that the increase in heat on account of it is one-half of one-millionth of a degree Fahrenheit and that the electric current generated thereby is about one twenty billionth of an ampere.

Thermocouple Is Sensitive.

This value becomes intelligible in consideration of the fact that the light in an ordinary incandescent house light is produced by a current of from one-fourth to one ampere.

"The extreme sensitiveness of the thermocouple is again illustrated in the case of stars as they rise above the horizon. The higher they ascend the brighter they appear because the higher they rise the less of earth's atmosphere their rays are obliged to penetrate and consequently the less their rays are absorbed.

"The sensitivity of the thermocouple is so great that with bright stars near the horizon the change in brightness which takes place in one minute of time can be detected."

Hottest Stars 800 Degrees.

"The thermocouple is mainly two hairlike wires welded together at their ends, one of bismuth and the other of bismuth and tin. This union of unlike elements changes almost infinitesimal amounts of heat into electrical current, which can be measured. An eye piece permits of focusing the thermocouple so that only the rays of the star to be measured fall on the wires. This instrument was perfected by Dr. Edison, Pettit and Dr. Seth B. Nicholson of the staff of Mount Wilson observatory of Carnegie institution.

With it the surface temperature of the hottest stars is found to be 41,000 degrees Fahrenheit and 2,800 for the coolest. The hottest stars are blue and the coolest red. Among the planets, Mercury's temperature is found to be 800 degrees, that of the cloud tops hiding the face of Venus, 9 below zero, Mars much like the earth's and Jupiter's face 216 degrees below zero.

BUILDING OPERATIONS SHOW GAIN IN ILLINOIS DESPITE DEPRESSION

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Illinois and the other four states in the east north central group—Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana and Ohio—forged ahead in building operations during August despite a general decline in other parts of the country, as shown by a building permit summary made public today by the department of labor.

The summary comprised a symposium of permit reports made from 291 comparable cities located in all parts of the country. The comparative figures indicated strongly that Illinois and its neighboring states are climbing out of the business depression and have "turned corner" so far as building activities are concerned.

The total value of buildings for which permits were issued in the 291 cities declined from $138,843,922 in July to $113,536,235 in August, a decrease of 17 per cent. At the same time, the value of building for which permits were issued in the east north central group cities mounted from $23,169,230 in July to $24,365,967 in August, an increase of 5 per cent.

The greatest gain in the east north central states was in residential buildings, the value of which increased from $7,436,887 in July to $8,727,988 in August. This increase more than offset a slight decline of from $15,732,943 to $15,637,979 in the value of new nonresidential buildings.

Among the projected new structural going to swell the building figures for Illinois during August were new factories to cost more than $2,000,000 and three public school buildings to cost $1,450,000.

VETERANS' PEACE MEDAL AWARDED TO CHICAGO U.

Work in Political Science Wins Recognition.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—The University of Chicago was one of three American institutions which today received peace medals from the veterans of allied armies, in session here at the annual congress of Fidac, the interallied veterans' association.

Other institutions receiving awards, which were based principally upon the number and extollence of their courses in political science having bearing on international relations, were Columbia university and the University of California. Princeton and Georgetown universities received honorable mention.

Prof. Dodd Receives Medal.

Prof. William E. Dodd, chairman of Chicago's department of history, received the medal for his university, while Dr. Noel T. Dowling represented Columbia and Dr. Julius Klein, California. The medals were presented by Lieut. Col. Fred W. Abbot, president of Fidac.

The presentation was made in front of a phalanx of allied flags and in the presence of the delegates to the Fidac congress from ten countries.

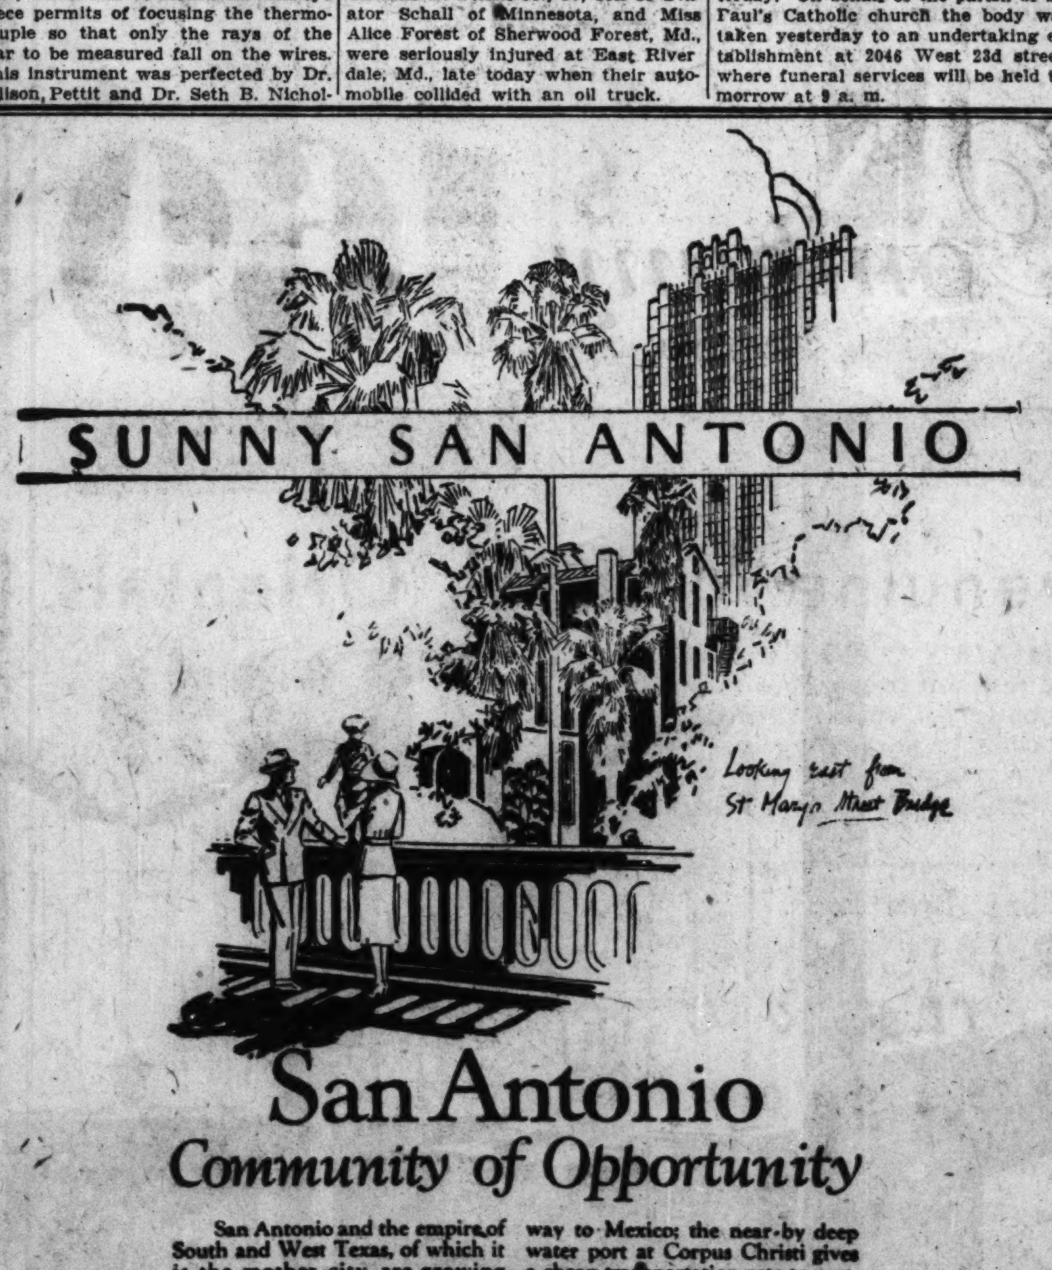
One Hundred Colleges Competed.

In awarding the medals, Lieut. Col. Abbot expressed the world war veterans' appreciation of the accomplishments of the universities in promoting international good will and understanding among their students. Each of the university representatives responded briefly in accepting the medals.

More than 100 colleges and universities were nominated for the awards and all were invited to submit reports to a jury headed by Dr. Stephen P. Duggan, director of the Institute of International Education of New York. The medal award, conducted for the first time this year, will be made annually by Fidac at future congresses.

Recluse Friend of Dogs Is Befriended in Death

Carl Kunze, 70 year old scholar, who was found dead on Wednesday in a building at 1225 Jackson boulevard, his body guarded by twenty dogs he had befriended, will not be buried in potter's field. Kunze will be given a funeral and burial will be in St. Joseph's cemetery, it was learned yesterday. On behalf of the parish of St. Paul's Catholic church the body was taken yesterday to an undertaking establishment at 2046 West 23d street, where funeral services will be held tomorrow at 9 a. m.



SUNNY SAN ANTONIO
Looking east from St Marys Street Bridge

San Antonio
Community of Opportunity

San Antonio and the empire of South and West Texas, of which it is the mother city, are growing rapidly and vigorously. So rich is this territory in natural resources and so alive with opportunities of every description that it is attracting a steady flow of men and money from other parts of the country.

Within the past two years San Antonio has become the new oil and gas center of the Southwest. A vast agricultural section, which includes the Rio Grande Valley and the Winter Garden District, with their valuable citrus fruit and winter vegetable crops, contributes to the city's prosperity. America's heaviest production of wool and mohair is in this trade area. The South and West Texas market, which can best be served from San Antonio, is larger than half a dozen eastern states.

San Antonio has long been recognized as the natural trade gateway to Mexico; the near-by deep water port at Corpus Christi gives a cheap transportation rate to eastern seaboard and foreign points; five trunk line railroads link this city to the nation at large. Raw materials are at hand; the supply of pure artesian water is abundant; dependable labor is plentiful; electric power and natural gas are turning machinery.

These are among the factors that are drawing progressive people here in constantly increasing numbers. San Antonio means Opportunity to men and women who are seeking a better place in which to live and prosper.

Come see for yourself. While investigating, you'll have a memorable vacation—for every day is a new adventure in historic San Antonio, with its balmy climate, its many parks and playgrounds, its social attractions and its open-handed hospitality.

MOSCOW PROTESTS TO FRANCE AGAINST WHITE RUSSIAN RITES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 20.—The nervousness which the bolsheviks feel over the activities of White Russians was strikingly illustrated today when the Russian ambassador, Dovgalevsky, formally protested to the French foreign office against a recent pilgrimage of homage of which a party of cossacks paid to the tomb of the Unknown Soldier. The cossacks wore parade uniforms and bore tattered flags which had fluttered in many a wild charge.

The soviet embassy charges that the cossacks used the ceremony as a pretext for staging an anti-bolshevik demonstration.

Many thousand officers and men of Gens. A. I. Denikine and Baron Peter Wrangel's former White armies are refugees in Paris. They have preserved a military organization and dream one day of renewing their fight against the Reds.

YOUNG WAR LORD INVADES CHINA AS 'PEACE MAKER'

40,000 Manchurians on Drive to Peiping.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Troops of youthful Chang Hsueh-Liang, the Manchurian dictator, poured southward today toward Tientsin and Peiping in a drive expected to end civil warfare between northern alliance rebels and China's nationalist government.

Chang's motives were obscure, reasons assigned ranged from disinterested purpose to bring peace to wartorn China, to desire to carve a new territory for himself extending from his rich realm of Manchuria south to the Yellow river.

Simultaneously came Nationalist claims of sweeping victories in Honan province that thrust the insurgents northward toward Shansi.

See End of Civil War.

The sudden but not unexpected decision of Chang to take a hand in the turmoil has cast upon China's apparently endless struggles for stable government, prosperity and peace, a strong external influence, which observers believe capable of bringing forth striking results, if not termination of war within a comparatively short time.

It is generally believed his first demand, as his troops move southward, will be a peace conference attended by President Chiang Kai-shek of the Nationalist government, Generals Feng Yu-hsiang and Yen Hsi-shan, northern coalition leaders, and possibly some of the lesser militarists.

Regardless of his motives, the immediate result is expected to be stoppage of domestic fighting.

Troops Pour Into China.

The real positions of the belligerent northern war lords and the Nationalist government as to Chang's intervention are uncertain. For political reasons both sides profess to welcome it. Neither group wishes to admit the Manchurian acted without its approval.

Regardless of Chang's motives, Manchurian forces tonight were reported pouring within the great wall. Forty thousand soldiers were said to have crossed the Lwan river on the railroad skirting the Gulf of Chihli and leading to Tientsin and Peiping.

Meanwhile hostilities along the Yellow river between northern rebels and Nationalist armies ceased, except in western Honan province. Between Kaifeng and Honanfu, said nationalist reports, President Chiang Kai-Shek personally was leading his troops against Gen. Feng Yu-Hsiang, with capture of those cities and Chengchow imminent. The northerners were reported retreating northwestward toward the mountains of Shansi province.

LINA BASQUETTE.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Lina Basquette, dancer and motion picture actress, is in Chicago and is seeing about having a novel published. Arriving at the Dearborn street station yesterday on the Santa Fé "Chief," on her way to New York, where she will seek the custody of her 3 year old daughter, Lina Basquette Warner, Miss Basquette told reporters that her novel was on the presses here in Chicago.

Miss Basquette recently has been divorced by her second husband, Peverell Marley, motion picture cameraman, after she had attempted suicide. She said yesterday that the suicide attempt was prompted by despondency over the fact she did not have the custody of her daughter.

When her first husband, Sam Warner, died, his brother, Harry M. Warner, took Lina, and Miss Basquette, she said, had difficulty in getting her back. She hopes to take Lina back to California with her from New York. Her novel is based on Hollywood life.

PUPILS GETTING POLITICS LESSON; TO VOTE FRIDAY

Cook county school children will go to the polls Friday to elect officers in the Achievement club. Every pupil in the fifth grade and above will vote in the 175 district schools.

Spirited campaigns are being carried on by the pupils with all the enthusiasm of a presidential campaign. The officers to be elected are president, vice president, secretary and treasurer. Following the election committees are to be appointed and the club's program for the year will be organized.

"Each pupil is receiving a practical lesson in politics," County Superintendent of Schools E. J. Tobin said. "Each school is a working republic. Children learn how to govern themselves."

CHICAGO USERS PRAISE CALENDAR OF 13 MONTHS

Adopted by Mail Order House and Tea Co.

Rearrange the customary, lopsided 12 months of the Gregorian calendar into 13 equal periods, and the man in the street may groan resentfully at the outrage, at least temporarily. Two concerns in the Chicago area which have adopted the plan within the confines of their own organizations, however, are emphatic in their defense of the new system.

Experience, in one instance dating back ten years, has proved to the two companies the majority of the advantages claimed for the 13 month calendar by its proponents, they say. Both were emphatic, when questioned yesterday, in pronouncing approval of the innovation.

Use Two Calendars.

At the office of R. E. Wood, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., considerable enthusiasm was expressed for the revised calendar that has been in use in that concern for some time. The only confusion resulting from the change after the employés became accustomed to it, an official stated, has been caused by the necessary use of both the new and the old calendar, the new being used for transactions and records within the concern, and the Gregorian for all contacts with the rest of the business world.

Instead of months, the Sears-Roebuck calendar is arranged in 13 "periods" of four weeks each, beginning with the first business day of the year, on Jan. 2 for 1930, and ending on Dec. 31. Since Jan. 2 this year fell on Thursday, the Sears-Roebuck week always begins on that day and ends on Wednesday, bringing Sunday as the middle day of each seven.

The company's 40,000 employés are paid on the basis of this plan, whose purpose has been described by Mr. Wood as to "make more definite and accurate comparisons than it is possible to make operating on the 12 month calendar." Merchandising and advertising campaigns are also based on the 13 period calendar.

Plan in Use Ten Years.

R. E. Nagler, assistant treasurer of the Jewel Tea company, at Barrington, acquiesces in the sentiments expressed by the head of Sears-Roebuck. Moreover, he adds, the tea company's affairs have been carried on under the 13 period plan for the last ten years.

"We have," he declares, "saved an enormous amount of time and feel that the plan has worked satisfactorily. Briefly, we have derived the following advantages from the 13 period calendar.

"Flexibility of accounting; months or periods of equal number of days for comparative purposes; lack of exceptions in comparative reports; uniform pay roll simplifies closing out periods; psychological effect on employés, inducing them to clean up work by the end of the week; closing periods always end at the end of the week; fixed number of days in each month relieves us of the responsibility of thinking about the length of various months when considering financial reports, or doing any accounting planning.

"We know that when we compare one period with another any variation in reports is due to internal management rather than differences in the number of days.

"Our business is entirely retail, and all our forms and reports are based on this 13 period calendar. Those items which are paid monthly or annually, such as rents, taxes, insurance, etc., are charged to expense on the basis of one-thirteenth of the annual charge. About every five or six years we have 53 weeks in our year instead of 52.

"We feel that the one disadvantage experienced in connection with the plan is the fact that we have to consider a second 12 month calendar at some time. With the universal adoption of the 13 month calendar this objection would of course be eliminated."

FOUND GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER.

4 A. M. HOT DOG BUYER TURNS OUT TO BE A BANDIT

At 4 o'clock yesterday morning Mrs. Emma Laurrel, 35 years old, proprietress of the Pink Puppy, a barbecue stand at Cedar lake in Lake county, was roused by vigorous knocking at the door of her home, which adjoins the stand. The knocker was a stranger who demanded a hot dog.

As she rubbed her sleepy eyes preparatory to satisfying his appetite, the stranger drew a gun and ordered her into a closet. He turned the key, warned her to make no outcry under threat of death, and looted a cash register of $101.

Mrs. Laurrel remained in the closet fearing to call for help, as she did not hear the bandit leave. At 7:30 she cried out and her daughter, Quanita, 14 years old, whose slumbers were not disturbed during the robbery, freed her mother. The stranger had left the home neglecting to slam the door behind him.

CHILDREN SHOULD BE HEARD AS WELL AS SEEN

KIMBALL revises an old slogan

A child practicing exercises at the piano expresses more than the idea of the ultimate mastery of the keyboard . . . more than the eventual interpretation of a page of written notes in pleasing melodies. Fundamentally, the child at the piano symbolizes the first genuine cultural development.

STUDEBAKER
Dictator Eight
at a still lower price

ALL the world knows that Free Wheeling with positive gear control costs less to operate . . . but who ever dreamed Free Wheeling would cost less to buy?

Manufactured under exclusive Studebaker patents, and hitherto obtainable only in The President and The Commander, Free Wheeling, with positive gear control, is now offered in a new Dictator Eight at a new low price. Today this new Dictator stands without a competitor for value among Eights and without a superior for economy among Sixes!

The saving in gasoline and oil alone is from 12% to 20%! Engine and chassis strain is reduced and tire life lengthened. With Free Wheeling, every fifth mile is a credit memo . . . your engine delivers five miles and bills you for four . . . 10,000 miles of travel with only 8,000 miles of engine work . . . less work for the motor and less work for you!

Footwork and clutchwork are practically halved by Free Wheeling . . . you shift back and forth between high and second at 40-50 miles an hour without touching the clutch . . . and all the time the braking power of your engine is instantaneously available when wanted.

Public Safety Officials throughout the country have endorsed Free Wheeling with positive gear control as a definite contribution to safety.

Free Wheeling is a money-saver on the road! And it costs less in this handsome new Dictator Eight than its predecessor cost without it! Drive this new Free Wheeling Dictator Eight now and sense the thrill of the first Eight at its price to cash in on momentum!

HOOVER TO BACK POSTAGE BOOST TO SLASH TAXES

Increase of Half a Cent Is Advocated.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Legislation to wipe out $50,000,000 or more of the postal deficit is one of the methods to be used by the administration to make possible continuation of the reduced income tax rates of the present year. President Hoover in his annual message to congress in December is prepared to support Postmaster General Walter F. Brown's recommendation for an increase in the postage rate on first class mail from 2 to 2½ cents per ounce.

The postal deficit is amounting to $85,000,000 or more annually as computed by the postoffice department. Treasury records show that the actual amount charged up to the postal deficit for the fiscal year 1930 was $91,714,450, while in the fiscal year 1929 it was $94,699,744.

It is estimated that the cost of various free services which are handled by the postoffice department without compensation under policies laid down by congress amounts to as much as $35,000,000. Postmaster General Brown does not think this amount should be absorbed from postal receipts and therefore he plans only to propose a rate increase sufficient to take care of the remaining $50,000,000 or more of the postal deficit.

Revenue Cut 160 Millions.

The elimination of as much as $50,000,000 of the postal deficit will be a substantial help toward making possible a continuation of the present reduced rates which were estimated originally to reduce revenues by approximately 160 millions a year.

"The problem of the true postal deficit is becoming a very serious one," said Postmaster General Brown. "The general revenue of the government during the current year will probably be insufficient to provide for all of the appropriations which congress has made. It would seem that the general revenue fund which is made up principally from customs and internal revenue receipts, including income taxes, should be used for activities directly related to the general welfare, such as the support of the government, the army and navy, the construction of public buildings, public roads, development of rivers and harbors, promotion of commerce, relief of veterans and other similar activities rather than in paying a part of the postage bill of commercial enterprises and private citizens."

Wants Postage to Pay It.

"If the people who use the mails do not pay the necessary cost of that service the deficit obviously must be made up from the general fund and to the extent that the postal deficit is charged against the general revenue fund that fund will be reduced and the various other governmental activities directly connected with the general welfare must be curtailed."

Postmaster General Brown believes that it would be unwise to increase postal rates except on first class mail.

"In considering this question it must be remembered that the postoffice department with respect to all of its services except the carrying of sealed letter mail has the keenest competition," said Mr. Brown. "The railroads, express companies, trucking companies, steamships and other common carriers compete with it in the carrying of magazines, circulars, printed advertising matter and merchandise of every kind. The banks, express companies and telephone companies compete with the department in the transportation and transfer of funds. The savings banks of course compete with the department in postal savings activities."

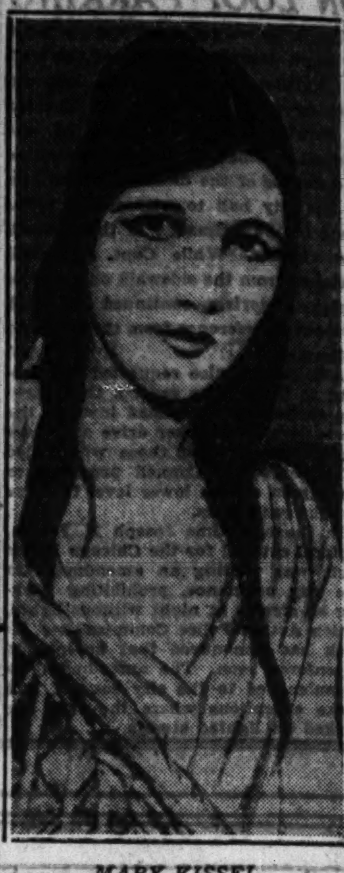
RIFT IS DENIED



MARY KISSEL.

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 20.—[Special.] Explaining that he left his youthful five month bride, Mary Kissel, New York actress, to remain with friends at the sea shore because he "did not like the sound of the waves and for no other reason," Eugene Walter, veteran playwright, today insisted the couple had not separated.

Walter and Miss Kissel were married secretly in Mexicali, Mexico, last April 26 by Judge Miguel Vallalba, the marriage following by one month and one day Walter's divorce from the actress, Charlotte Walker. Walters' final decree under California law was not entered at the time of the wedding to Miss Kissel, and attorneys here today said they did not know how technically binding the Mexican alliance would be regarded under American law.

Mary Kissel played the Madonna in "Artists and Models" and attempted suicide in New York four years ago. According to reports here, she explained her deed at that time because of despondency when Walter did not "aid me".

Tilson Renominated for 12th Time in Connecticut

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 20.—(AP)—Congressman John Q. Tilson, veteran Republican floor leader of the house, today was renominated for the twelfth time by the Third congressional district convention here. He served in the house as a congressman at large from 1909 to 1913, and from 1915 to the present time has represented the Third district.

WATER IN RUM DOES NO HARM, COURT DECIDES

$100,000 Sibley Whisky Returned to Owners.

About $100,000 worth of Sibley warehouse whisky, which the prohibition bureau wished destroyed because it was allegedly diluted with water, is perfectly potable liquor and will be returned to its owners, Presiding Judge Alschuler of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals decided yesterday.

Therefore, 482 barrels and 1,955 cases of assorted heavy intoxicants are once more the property of a group of whisky brokers and private individuals who may dispense them, under government regulations, to hospitals, drug stores, and those agencies qualified to handle liquor.

"Gigantic Steal" Rumored.

The Sibley warehouse has been involved in several prohibition troubles. In 1928 government whisky gaugers discovered what they thought was a gigantic steal and varied rumors were afloat that hoodlums and gangsters had rifled the cream of the warehouse's contents under the very noses of former Prohibition Administrator Yellowley's men. On July 4, 1929, it was stated that 50,000 gallons of booze stored there had been tampered with.

Assistant United States Attorney Walter Wiles moved immediately to libel the affected liquor with the avowed purpose of destroying it as unfit. At this the owners roared their dismay, claimed they were not responsible for the dilution, and a group of them retained Attorney Benjamin P. Epstein to protest.

Last June, Judge Alschuler heard the reports of government and private chemists, who testified to the actual contents of the barrels and bottles involved.

No Access to Owner.

In part, Judge Alschuler's opinion denying the libel reads: "The owners had no access to the property, and whatever substitution occurred must have been in spite of whatever care and vigilance was exercised by the government officers in charge."

In another paragraph the jurist said: "Under the evidence here the substitution, if any there was, occurred in practically all the instances years before the government made the analyses. It would be anomalous indeed if, while the packages were in the custody of the government, portions of the contents may be stolen and other liquor substituted therefor, and all without the slightest coöperation or fault of the owners, and the government then have forfeiture of the entire contents."

The court held that the whisky was potable because it had been in charred kegs and barrels for a sufficient time to mellow the added ingredients into the same smooth texture possessed by the original contents.

KILLING OF DRY AGENT AROUSES BUREAU CHIEF

Woodcock to Call for Punishment.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—[U.P.]—Increased killing of prohibition agents by gangsters confronted federal prohibition authorities tonight as the latest menace in their enforcement activities.

Prohibition Director Amos W. W. Woodcock, stirred by the killing of an agent in a raid on an Elizabeth, N. J., brewery last night, announced a twofold policy to obtain speedy justice for the killings and to win greater public respect for the law. He said more agents are being killed than ever before.

"First, we can enforce the law sanely and honestly and thus win greater respect for it," he said. "Second, we can ask state authorities to vigorously prosecute the criminals responsible."

Wets Say—"I Told You So."

Opponents of the Jones "five and ten" law saw in Woodcock's concern over increased killings of federal agents vindication of their assertions that the drastic penalties would make hi-jackers and liquor runners desperate. It was argued violators caught red handed would shoot to kill rather than risk ten years in a penitentiary and that the law would reap a harvest of death.

Hunt Three Gunmen.

New York, Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Three gunmen from New York, Philadelphia and Camden, N. J., were sought by federal, state and municipal authorities today for the murder of a federal prohibition agent during a raid on the Rising Sun brewery in Elizabeth, N. J., yesterday.

BOY, 15, WHO KILLED FAMILY SERVANT GIRL, IS GIVEN LIFE TERM

Morristown, N. J., Sept. 20.—(AP)—Harry Woolsey, 15 year old slayer of a domestic servant in his parents' household, was sentenced today to a life term in state prison.

The boy was indicted for the murder on July 13 of Anna Miller of Scranton, Pa., his companion on a walking trip over Green Pond mountain. He did not plead to the indictment today, his counsel pointing out the boy was said by four alienists to be suffering from dementia praecox.

He will be taken to prison Monday, but indications were he would be sent to a hospital for the insane.

Foot Troubles Cause Bad Health

They affect the body in many different ways. The feet swell, burn, ache, sharp pains under heels, ball of foot becomes sore and feels as if you are walking on marbles; corns, callouses, ingrown nails and bunions; excessive perspiration with offensive odor, overdeveloped ankles and legs, varicose veins; legs cramp, knees stiffen; pains in hips, small of back, shoulders and neck, poor circulation, with a weak and nervous feeling.

Most people think they have rheumatism, neuritis, arthritis, or kidney trouble when their troubles are all caused from their feet.

Do not be discouraged. Regardless of what your condition may be or what you have tried, or whom you have consulted, Dr. Pinkston guarantees to relieve all foot troubles and cure nine-tenths of them regardless of the nature or condition of the ailment.

SUBWAY START URGED TO AID CITY'S JOBLESS

Work Now Also Will Save Money, Experts Show.

Ald. Joseph B. McDonough [13th], chairman of the city council local transportation committee, said yesterday that his belief that the subway should be started at once has been verified during the week through consultations with architects and engineers. The point in beginning immediately, Ald. McDonough said, is to take advantage of low construction costs and to relieve the unemployment situation.

"The consensus of these architects and engineers," said Ald. McDonough, "is that they would advise construction now due to the lower cost. This comparison is made with the peak in prices which most of the experts consulted agree was reached from three to six years ago.

Chance to Aid Jobless.

"The experts agree in most cases that the cost of construction is all the way from 10 to 25 per cent lower than the peak, and, if work is started at once there will be a tremendous saving for the city. Perhaps of more importance at this time is the prospect of relieving the unemployment situation.

"My aim will be to prod our engineers and lawyers until they have whipped things into shape so that their plans and specifications can be passed upon by the board of local improvements. I have been assured that the preliminary plans will be in readiness early next week, so that they can be presented to the board, which has promised speedy action. With the subway started and with from 10,000 to 20,000 men at work on it, money will start to circulate and business will improve."

More Replies Received.

Additional replies to the questionnaire sent out by Ald. McDonough to determine the present construction situation were received yesterday from Harry Daisey, architect; Childs & Smith, architects, and the Westcott Engineering company. All three advised starting subway construction now.

Two said that it would tend to revive a general building boom, while the third answered, "I doubt it." Two said they expected an increase soon in general building and a consequent increase in cost of construction. The third reply predicted a decrease in general building costs for a number of years.

Maj. R. F. Kelker Jr. yesterday was preparing a report on progress in subway planning which Ald. McDonough will give to the council tomorrow. Plans for the first section of the subway also are expected to be turned over to President Faherty of the board of local improvements tomorrow.

A compromise agreement between the department of public works and the board of local improvements over the construction of the north viaduct approach to the proposed new State street bridge was reached in a conference between officials of the two departments and representatives of the Chicago and North Western railroad.

Under the agreement Faherty will proceed with the condemnation of land needed for the bridge approach and then will turn it over to the department of public works. The bond issue asked by Commissioner of Public Works Wolfe for the bridge and viaduct will be reduced from $4,900,000 to $3,600,000 by this plan.

PRESIDENT RESTING IN MOUNTAIN CAMP; SPEECHES DUE SOON

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—(AP)—A quiet family reunion and rest from the irksome task of preparing the four speeches he will deliver next month, today beckoned President Hoover to his mountain lodge in Virginia. He went.

For the first time since early summer the entire presidential family was to be together, and for the second time in succession Mr. Hoover departed from his usual custom of taking a group of guests to the lodge. Hugh Gibson, the American ambassador to Belgium, was the only guest.

Herbert Hoover Jr., under treatment there for an intestinal disorder, which has forced him to take a leave of absence from his business, was joined yesterday by Mrs. Hoover and Allan, the other son. The latter is to leave Sunday night to resume his studies at the Harvard school of business administration, where he is beginning his final year.

Before leaving for the camp Mr. Hoover spent a busy morning working on his forthcoming addresses, which have occupied much of his time for the last several weeks. The speech he is to make before the American Bankers' association at Cleveland, Oct. 2, was said to be nearly complete.

3D GENERATION BABY IS BORN AT HULL HOUSE

Residents of Hull house today will celebrate the birth of the famous settlement house's first third generation baby.

The baby, Janith Britton, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Howe Britton, and the granddaughter of Dr. James A. and Mrs. Gertrude Howe Britton.

Dr. Britton and Gertrude Howe met and married at Hull house 26 years ago, and have lived there ever since. Their son, James Howe Britton was born there, one of the first second generation Hull house babies. He and his wife, the former Mary Jane Benson of Grayslake, have, like his parents, lived at Hull house. Their child is the first who can trace two generations of descent from Hull house residents.

MAKE PAROLE BOARD A COURT, PLEA OF BRUCE

Educator Tells His Views on Criminal Reform.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

How to get the skill of the doctor, the scientist, as well as the lawyer, into the administration of criminal justice, in prevention, detection, and punishment of crime, is a question that is being investigated and considered from many angles.

Judge Andrew A. Bruce of Northwestern university law school, former justice of the Supreme court of North Dakota and president of the American Institute of Criminal Law and Criminology, discussed this subject yesterday. He has a plan which he thinks would put Illinois well to the front in at least one sector of the long battle line against crime.

Urges Parole Board Reform.

"The key to the general situation in Illinois is the parole board," he said. "This should be dignified, taken out of the political field and made a constantly working arm of justice just as the courts are.

"The membership should be nine, with appointments expiring at different times so that no governor could disrupt the board. It should include a lawyer, a physician, a psychiatrist, a sociologist, an educator, a representative employer, and a representative of labor. They should be well paid and function with the power of a court.

"The regular courts should be asked only to determine whether or not the accused committed the crime. No question of insanity should be allowed to intervene here, for it is absurd to ask a jury to pass on a question on which doctors disagree, and all know the blank wall to which expert testimony leads us.

"Let Board Set Sentence."

"After the conviction is obtained the question of the sentence should be left to the parole board. It would be advisory only to the court, but would become practically binding.

"In consideration of the sentence the board should call science, sociology, medicine, as well as the police, to its aid.

"The punishment should be based on the individual case, the best method by which the individual can be punished, reformed and turned back to society with the minimum chance that he will repeat his crime.

"There is no doubt a good deal in the theory that many men commit crimes because they cannot help it. We should take care of these in a scientific manner. There are all grades of insanity—from jealousy, a fit of passion, to the violent psychosis. We have got to face the facts in Illinois soon and handle these cases separately. The black hole at Chester, where the criminal insane are confined, is a disgrace to the state.

For Prison Reconstruction.

"A determined effort should be made to reconstruct our prisons and reformatory, both in their physical plant and in administration, so that the necessary training, education and recreation be provided to prepare prisoners for a return to society.

"This is not sentimentalism. It is the fact that under the present system a large percentage are paroled within a few years. How they are to be returned, is the practical question.

"We have the indeterminate sentence, which is later determined by the parole board, which can take into consideration the reports of the doctors. The earlier we can evolve such a system, the earlier we can protect society and in the main do justice to the individual.

"The modern theory of reformation, the tendency to repudiate the idea of vengeance in the criminal law, is paving the way for many things. We started in Illinois with the Old Testament. Today we are in the New Testament. Somehow, we have dignified the individual. We have been taught that the individual is a human soul and that there ought to be an opportunity for repentance. You can't put back the waves of time. The purpose of the new idea of criminal law is to prevent the convicted man from doing further unsocial acts.

"The question comes up often in Illinois as to whether insanity should be considered at all in criminal cases. If it should be considered there is no question but that a jury of doctors is better than a common jury, and that their determination should be final in the matter, in the same way as is done in court martials. At times, we may have to punish the insane as well as the sane, on the theory that a child who has once burned his fingers will avoid the fire in the future. Individualizing in a large measure the treatment of the criminal is the key to it all.

Asks Scientific Methods.

"In detection of crime we should use all the available resources of science. We have a laboratory for criminal studies in connection with Northwestern university. We would be willing to coöperate with the other universities in order to put these resources on an official basis, and make them part of the police procedure."

ORDERS POLICE TO ENFORCE BAN ON LOOP PARKING

Traffic police yesterday were ordered by Capt. Joseph O'Connell of the traffic division to enforce the loop no parking ordinance after Ald. Thomas J. Bowler [41st], chairman of the council traffic regulation committee and author of the measure, called him to the city hall to witness the violations of the ordinance in the immediate vicinity. While Capt. O'Connell watched from the sidewalk on La Salle street motorists continued to park without interference from the mounted policemen.

Ald. Bowler also requested the captain to investigate reports that parking racketeers again had invaded the lower level of Wacker drive and were puncturing tires of those who failed to tip. Capt. O'Connell promised to place men on the lower level to drive out the racketeers.

In the meantime Joseph H. Braun, general counsel for the Chicago Motor club, was writing an amendment to the city ordinance, prohibiting parking on streets at night without lights, which Acting Police Commissioner Alcock has announced that he intends to enforce soon. The amendment, to be submitted to the city council, will make exceptions where the cars are parked on lighted streets.

It's cheaper to buy CHICAGO FAUCETS

When you buy faucets don't be fooled by a "bargain" price. What you have to worry about is—how long will they last—what will they cost for repairs and maintenance for the next 5 years?

The old story that faucets "wear out" is not true of Chicago Faucets. They CAN'T wear out for the simple reason that there is no wear on the body. The "works" or unit is removable—lifts out—the seat and washer are both renewable. To change either takes a few minutes at a cost of only a few cents. Keeping Chicago Faucets as good as new for all time is as easy and as inexpensive as changing a light bulb.

That's why it's cheaper to buy Chicago Faucets.

Let us send you information on modern, beautiful faucets for your kitchen sink, lavatory or bathtub. We have many new models that brighten up old fixtures. Among them is Add-a-Shower which, inexpensively and without remodeling, can be attached to your old bathtub and give you all the advantages of the most up-to-date combination shower and tub.

If you are building or remodeling—consult your Architect—ask your Plumber. If you want the name of a plumber who can give you reliable sales and service—call, write or phone Belmont 0301.

THE MAKERS OF THE WORLD'S HIGHEST QUALITY RADIO...ANNOUNCE THE NEW

70 series ZENITH

It's easy to sense the superiority of a ZENITH

When Zenith presents a new series of radio receivers, even the industry itself is expectant of new performance standards. For, in the language of Zenith, the term "new" has signalized major radio advancements for more than fifteen successive years.

The new 70 series Zenith receivers fitly reflect the highest point of perfection ever attained in the manufacture of radio receiving instruments. They bring to the radio listener not only new perfections of tone quality...which even excel Zenith's past mastery of faithful reproduction...but also new privileges to use volume and to attain distance. They reveal new simplicities and conveniences of operation that still further establish Zenith as the one and only genuine automatic radio...placing old-fashioned hand-dialing still deeper in the discard. You now can press the button and get your station from any point in the house as easily, as surely as tuning at the set itself...for Zenith has perfected remote automatic control.

And, in addition to the mechanical excellence of these new Zeniths you will find an outer beauty that dismisses all former conceptions of radio cabinetry. Here is real furniture...authentic period furniture...the kind that "belongs" in the well appointed home. And Zenith-built, of course, to assure its enduring quality.

One fleeting glance, one casual inspection of these new Zenith receivers...and you will say to yourself, "it's easy to sense the superiority of a Zenith." But listen, examine, and compare carefully, slowly. The more exacting your comparison, the more certain will be your choice of a Zenith.

MODEL 73—Semi-highboy of authentic Tudor design, built of selected Walnut, Birch and Italian Olive Burl. All features of new 70-line Zenith screen-grid chassis, including genuine Automatic Tuning. 9 tubes, with rectification. $263 less tubes.

BRADFORD, UNDER U. S. INDICTMENT, FREED ON BOND

Report 20 Others Accused of Dope Plot.

Ralph Bradford, Gary politician and real estate operator, who is charged with conspiracy against both the narcotic and prohibition laws in indictments returned by a federal grand jury at South Bend, was at liberty yesterday on $25,000 bond pending an arraignment before Judge Thomas W. Slick in United States District court at Hammond next month.

The $25,000 bond was the same on which Bradford had obtained his freedom two weeks ago when he was first arrested on federal warrants charging violation of the narcotic laws after a registered mail package from New Orleans containing morphine had been delivered at his offices in Gary. The bondsmen were James J. Haines, an associate in Bradford's real estate business, and William A. Moore, East Chicago; Evan A. Harms, Gary; Christ Pachis, Gary, and Harry H. Kassens, East Chicago.

Indictment of 20 Reported.

Henry Le Boeuf and Steven Pappas, indicted with Bradford, were released on $10,000 bonds. It was reported that the federal grand jury had returned secret indictments against about 20 other persons for the alleged operation of a narcotic ring. The grand jury has been holding secret sessions, newspaper men having been barred from the same floor in the building where the grand jury sits.

Oliver M. Loomis, United States attorney for the northern Indiana district, has been personally conducting the grand jury investigation. A recess was taken on Friday until Monday afternoon. It is understood that Mr. Loomis is to leave for Washington the latter part of this week for a conference with other officials of the department of justice, but whether this meeting will concern the present inquiry could not be learned.

Bradford Blames Politics.

Bradford, former Ku Klux Klan leader and active in politics in Lake county for many years, contended that political enemies had conspired to cause his arrest and indictment. He managed the successful campaign last year of R. O. Johnson, who was reëlected mayor of Gary after having been convicted and imprisoned for a conspiracy against the dry laws during his previous term as mayor. The mayor's son, Roswell Johnson, is a member of the law firm of Moore, Long, Chudom & Johnson, which is counsel for Bradford.

MICHIGAN DEMOCRATS URGE NATIONAL POLL ON PROHIBITION LAW

St. Joseph, Mich., Sept. 20.—(AP)—A nationwide referendum on the 18th amendment was recommended by Michigan's Democratic party called in convention to nominate candidates for minor state offices. The platform recommended that the referendum "on repeal of the 18th amendment" be conducted "in a separate election dealing with that question at once."

The platform criticized the Hoover farm marketing act as a "political subterfuge" and condemned the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill as "an unconscionable crime against the American people in favor of special interests."

Support "with all the force of the state government" for the St. Lawrence waterways project, coöperation in unemployment relief and the working out of an old age pension plan also were pledged in the platform.

The plank on the prohibition question was brief. It read:

"The Democratic party in Michigan recommends as a direction to congress and the states a nationwide referendum on repeal on the 18th amendment in a separate election dealing with that question alone."

Concerning unemployment the platform pledged the party "if given control of the legislative and executive branches of the government to coöperate with municipal and county governments in an immediate plan to relieve the present unemployment situation."

LA VERNE NORRIS RESIGNS POST AS U. S. PROSECUTOR

Assistant United States Attorney Laverne Norris resigned his government appointed yesterday to enter the private practice of law. "Mr. Norris' record is unique," said District Attorney George Q. Johnson, who expressed regret over the resignation. "Perhaps his most remarkable achievement was in collecting old claims for the government. Last year he prosecuted prohibition injunction cases and successfully handled more than 500 of them."

Mr. Norris will have offices in the First National Bank building.

SALESMAN HELD AS ATTACKER OF HOUSEWIVES

Accused by Two Women in West Suburbs.

Edgar C. Swift, 30 years old, an insurance agent, was held by the police yesterday as the man who has been gaining admittance to a number of homes in Maywood, Melrose Park, La Grange, Bellwood, and other suburban towns, and attempting to assault women.

Swift used the name of J. C. Bradley in working in the suburbs. He was arrested when Mrs. Blanche Bergen, 801 South 14th avenue, Maywood, called for police when he attempted to enter her home for the second time. She signed a warrant against Swift, charging that he attacked her on Sept. 4.

Accused by Bellwood Girl.

A second complaint was made by Miss Elsie Peterson, 19 years old, of Bellwood, who declared Swift had repeatedly annoyed her on the street and attempted to persuade her to ride in his automobile.

Police representatives from a number of suburban towns viewed Swift in the Bellwood station to ascertain if he were the man described as one who had annoyed numerous housewives. The prisoner was also taken to the showup at the detective bureau in Chicago.

Swift said he left McKeesport, Pa., seven years ago and has worked as an insurance agent for four companies since then, selling penny-a-day accident policies. According to Police Chief Henry Eggebrecht of Bellwood, Swift admitted attacking many women. He was said to be wanted in Bloomington, Ill., for wife desertion and theft of an automobile.

Hold 3 in Woman's Murder.

Three suspects in the murder of Mrs. Mary Jakubiak, 44 years old, 3643 Newcastle avenue, whose throat was slashed in a prairie near Dunning last Wednesday, were held yesterday. Mrs. Jakubiak, the mother of four children, had been raped, physicians declared.

The men seized were Richard Reith, 31 years old, 6712 Grace street; Peter Kawalski, 3832 North Neva avenue, in whose possession the police found a knife with a six inch blade, and an unidentified Negro who was said to have recently escaped from the Dunning State hospital. Reith and Kawalski were pointed out by witnesses as men who had repeatedly forced attentions upon women in the vicinity.

ASKS $5,119,608 MORE FUNDS FOR STREET BUREAU

Wolfe Sets Needs for '31 at $12,549,568.

The bureau of streets in the department of public works yesterday held the record among city departments for the largest increase in appropriations requested for 1931 as compared with the 1930 appropriations. Commissioner of Public Works Wolfe placed the bureau's needs for next year at $12,549,568, an increase of 69 per cent over the $7,429,960 allotted to the bureau by the city council for 1930.

In asking for an increase of $5,119,608 for the street bureau, Commissioner Wolfe pointed out that the bureau's appropriation has been reduced recently at the rate of a million dollars a year. He said that the larger amount is necessary if the bureau is to handle garbage adequately and keep the streets and alleys clean.

Lists Needs of Bureau.

His outline for the use of the additional money follows:

Street cleaning labor	$1,339,500
Hire of teams and trucks	1,049,000
Dumping garbage	1,250,000
Incinerator construction	500,000
Construction of city garages	250,000
Snow removal	320,000
Purchase of sweepers and tractors	90,000
Purchase of tires	40,000

Six other bureaus under Commissioner Wolfe also asked for increased appropriations. The bureau of rivers and harbors asked for $1,579,940 as compared with its appropriation of $1,172,360 for 1930.

Others Ask Increases.

Two other large city departments also submitted estimates on appropriations before noon yesterday, the deadline set by City Controler Schmidt. These were the health department and the board of local improvements.

Health Commissioner Kegel's request for $3,133,722 for next year, as compared with his 1930 appropriation of $2,459,242, represents an increase of 27 per cent. Included in his figures was an item of $127,320 for auto hire and passenger transportation and another of $96,280 for printing bulletins, circulars, and an annual report.

Dr. Kegel also asked the council to employ two publicity agents for him, listing them as director of publicity and education and as health education assistant, at salaries, respectively, of $5,000 and $4,200 a year. Three other publicity agents now employed by the department were not listed under titles by which they could be identified. A new $5,000 automobile for the commissioner, whose present car is three years old, was another item.

An estimate of $7,665,681, of which $6,129,681 is for the payment of public benefits for 1930 and 1931, was sent in by Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements. His appropriation for 1930 was $2,143,478, of which only $969,995 was for public benefit.

RE-ELECT CITY WORKERS' PRESIDENT.

John P. Dillon, assistant superintendent of track elevation, was reëlected trustee of the Municipal Employés' Annuity and Benevolent association yesterday. The term to which he was reëlected is for three years.

CRUISER MAY BE NEXT FLAGSHIP OF OUR FLEET

Economy Eliminating the Battleships.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—White House pressure for navy economy is expected to result in a decision by the navy department to decommission at once all three of the battleships slated for scrapping under the London treaty. These vessels are the Utah, Florida, and Wyoming.

If it is decided to eliminate these three ships it is possible the Arkansas, the only 12 inch gun vessel left with the fleet, will be fitted for a training ship and a 10,000 ton light cruiser utilized as a flagship for the United States fleet. Naval officers consider the Arkansas of little fighting value because of its small guns and consequent limited offensive power.

The three battleships ended their naval careers today and within a few days will be tied up at Philadelphia and Norfolk. If scrapped, about $100,000 would be realized from each vessel. Maintenance costs on these three vessels during the 1929 fiscal year was in excess of $5,000,000.

Some Destroyers May Go.

Consideration is being given to decommissioning some of the 100 destroyers now operating with the fleet. Some of the S type submarines probably will be placed in storage. Indications are strong that a further reduction of personnel aboard commissioned warships will be effected. A year ago Admiral Charles F. Hughes, retired chief of naval operations, informed the house naval subcommittee of the appropriation committee that the efficiency of the fleet was hampered by short handed crews.

Criticism of White House retrenchment plans which it is said have now progressed to a point where 100 millions will be cut off expenditures during the current fiscal year is voiced by the Army and Navy Journal.

President Is Criticised.

"Speaking of preparedness," says this publication, "we are informed that pressure is being applied to withhold expenditures for the army and the navy and marine corps which were specifically authorized and appropriated by congress. The administration does not want a deficit at the end of the present fiscal year. Moreover, it plans to keep the reduced income tax in effect.

"These are laudable aims, but we hold that when congress makes an appropriation it is the duty of the President and his subordinates to employ it for the purpose specified. Under the constitution the executive must enforce the laws, and failure to spend when congress has directed seems to us to be as objectionable as failure to enforce any other law.

"We are given to understand, moreover, that there has been a sharp cut in the estimates for 1932, and of course the cut has been made most heavily into the needs of national defense. We can see a real political issue developing from such a policy in the next presidential campaign.

"If Mr. Hoover is wise he will so act as to avoid the criticism which will certainly follow a curtailment of the activities and operations of the army and navy and marine corps."

Disgusted Bandits Toss $75 Back to Victims

Disgusted with their loot, $75, which they described as "chicken feed," two well dressed bandits tossed the money back to their victims yesterday afternoon. The money was taken from three men and two women employés in the offices of the J. T. Hennigan Brokerage company, room 1230, Bankers building, 105 West Adams street. After searching the employés the thieves searched the office vault but found nothing. As they left they tossed the $75 on a table, declaring they were not after "chicken feed."

Ignore "pink tooth brush" and you risk the loss of good teeth!

IT'S no joke, at any age, to find a trace of "pink" upon your tooth brush. For it means that your gums are soft... "touchy"... inclined to bleed... and that unless you get after the trouble promptly, you may run the risk of losing the whitest and, outwardly, the soundest teeth!

Tender foods, hurried eating and too little chewing are the principal causes of weak, tender gums. A slight bleeding warns you that the more serious infections—gingivitis, Vincent's disease, even pyorrhea—may be on the way.

So protect your gums, with Ipana and massage, when and while you clean your teeth. That's the modern way to oral health!

Strengthen your gums with Ipana and massage

Massage your gums, with Ipana, each time you brush your teeth. Thousands of dentists recommend this healthy habit. They know the good it does. For Ipana contains ziratol, a hemostatic and antiseptic used by the foremost specialists to treat and prevent gum disorders.

So keep your gums sound and firm with Ipana and massage. Put the fresh, clean blood to work. Send it coursing through the tiny cells. Tone and strengthen the walls of the gums. They will soon be hard and healthy.

You'll like Ipana, you'll like its taste. And you'll be amazed to see how clean and white it keeps your teeth—how strong and firm it keeps your gums.

Start tonight with Ipana. Go to your druggist and get a full-size tube today. It's the best dentifrice that money can buy, and that kind of a dentifrice, like that kind of a dentist, is never a luxury.

A Book of Facts!

THIS BOOK will cost you nothing—but it may save you much in health, money, time and success. It will tell you why it is estimated that three out of every five men and women over forty years of age, as well as large numbers of younger persons, are afflicted with rectal disorders. It will explain the dangers of permitting these troubles to go on, resulting in a more serious condition year after year, and why eventually some become incurable.

If you are troubled with headaches, constipation, nervousness, faulty nutrition, etc., it is not improbable that a rectal or colonic disorder is responsible. These symptoms are Nature's warnings that something more serious needs attention. Do not allow this condition to continue.

The sooner treatment is begun the easier it is to bring about permanent relief. Send for this book today. You will be under no obligation to us whatever.

The
TREATMENT
RECTAL
and COLONIC
Disorders
a Strictly Ethical Institution

Every person who has these Treacherous Afflictions should read this book carefully!

IF YOU are one of the hundreds of thousands of men and women who are suffering from hemorrhoids (piles) or other rectal trouble, follow the suggestion contained in this advertisement and send the coupon below for a free copy of the McCleary book today.

This book was written especially for you—and for every sufferer of rectal diseases in any form. It has shown thousands the way to restored health—it may do even more for you. It will tell you in detail of treatment that has proved successful in more than twenty thousand cases.

With it you will receive our reference list which will give you the names and addresses of men and women who endorse it. Many tell you of their personal experience before and after receiving the McCleary treatment. These men and women are from all parts of the United States, Canada and many foreign countries. They are business men, farmers, railroad officials and employes, merchants, manufacturers, ministers, teachers and members of their families—they represent every vocation and station in life and come from every section of the country.

Over 20,000 Patients
from every State Canada and many Foreign Countries

The figures on the map above indicate the number of patients from various states and Canada. Among them are probably some of your own friends or acquaintances. Our reference list, together with the Free Book fully describing various rectal diseases and the mild McCleary treatment, will be sent promptly, without obligation—postpaid, in plain wrapper—to anyone returning the coupon below.

This book tells, in a graphic way, of the successful work that has been carried on for over 30 years by the McCleary Clinic. The founders of this institution were pioneers in the non-surgical treatment of hemorrhoids.

Why Let These Afflictions Rob You of Health, Time and Money?

The annual loss of money alone, resulting from the loss of time and personal efficiency caused directly or indirectly by hemorrhoids (piles), runs into millions of dollars, and untold thousands continue to suffer, not knowing how easily they may be restored to health and strength. That is only one reason why the facts in this book will interest you. It describes symptoms and conditions that you may recognize as your own, even though you never suspected that rectal trouble was the real cause of your ill health.

It will explain to you in detail how your case can be corrected by this mild successful treatment.

For complete information let us send you this free book and reference list. We will consider it a favor to carefully answer any question you may ask us in regard to your specific case.

Use the coupon, a post card or personal letter.

UNITS OF BRITISH EMPIRE DEMAND RIGHT TO SECEDE

Imperial Parley to Solve Political Questions.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 20.—With the announcement of the names of the delegates to the imperial conference, which will begin its meetings on Sept. 30, and which is expected to last a month, all arrangements for this meeting of the units of the British empire are now complete. The conference will be opened by King George. He will welcome the representatives of his various dominions. In addition a big program of entertainment and amusement has been mapped out for the delegates.

While economic questions will occupy most of the time of the conference, the political side of the conference will be the most important of any meeting which this body has ever held. The whole question of the essential independence of the dominions must be finally thrashed out.

Africa Wants Right to Secede.

South Africa has given notice that she will insist on discussion of the right of a dominion to secede from the empire. This is now implicit in dominion status, but South Africa wants an explicit declaration. This does not mean that she has the slightest intention of seceding if the right is granted, but she regards it as a symbol of national sovereignty.

Ireland was expected to join in the demand and may still do it. The Irish however, are fairly well satisfied with their present position and are reported to be more interested in a formula which has been devised by the colonial office declaring the terms on which new dominions might join the empire. This is known as the "accession" declaration, and the dominion office lawyers argue that permission for accession carries with it the right to secession. This may be found to satisfy the South Africans, who, while they are determined to get what they want, are rather vague about legal forms.

What Ireland Wants.

What Ireland will insist on is abolition of the right of dominion citizens to appeal to the privy council against the decisions of their own Supreme court. The difficulty about this is that it is a remnant of the constitutional right of any subject to appeal to the "king in council," and is regarded by lawyers as a safeguard against tyranny.

A suggested compromise is that the right be restricted, in case of appeals by citizens of the dominions against their own courts, to such as are allowed to appeal by the fiat of the attorney general of their own dominions.

Another political question to be raised by South Africa involves the status of dominion diplomats—at present they rank lower than British ambassadors. South Africa thinks that should not be so, but she does not offer any concrete solution of the problem as to how ministers, as dominion diplomats are now, can rank with ambassadors.

South Africa also will demand representation at the India conference on the ground that she has a large Indian population. This is not likely to be granted.

She has also made a claim, which amounts almost to an African Monroe Doctrine, that no territorial changes shall be made on the South African continent without her consent. Based on this claim, she is demanding a voice in the settlement of the future control of the former German East African territory.

NATIONAL METAL EXHIBIT TO OPEN HERE TOMORROW

The 12th annual national metal exposition will open tomorrow at the Stevens hotel. The exposition will be a combined convention and show, lasting through Friday, with 240 booths displaying tools and products of all branches of the metal industry. All displays will be open to the public.

In the convention proper engineers of the Society for Steel Treatment will read papers describing the advances made in metal treatment and use during the last year. Fifteen thousand out of town members have already registered and 50,000 engineers and members from Chicago have signified their intention of participating.

NEMOURS, ALGERIA.

Miss Stuhlfeier writes:

"The letter was written by Henriette Ardeuin, who is a correspondent that I received through my French class.

"Miss Ardeuin goes to school in Algiers, but spends her vacation in Nemours, a little village situated on the seashore. She writes that each day she goes in swimming with much pleasure, because the weather is usually very fine. The streets are narrow and inconvenient, and there are many Arabian people in these streets.

"In the picture she inclosed it is interesting to see that some of the people are dressed as we dress in the United States and that others are wearing white robes."

MALBRAN NAMED ARGENTINE ENVOY TO WASHINGTON

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 20.—The Argentine provisional government's first diplomatic appointment is the filling of the vacancy in the Washington embassy by the reappointment of Dr. Don Manuel E. Malbran, former ambassador to Washington, who was discharged from the diplomatic service when he resigned and returned to Buenos Aires as a protest against former President Yrigoyen's discourtesy toward President Hoover at the time of his South American tour. The appointment is considered evidence of the new government's desire to maintain cordial relations with the United States.

When President Hoover was planning his South American tour all the republics he expected to visit except Argentina immediately extended cordial invitations to visit them. Argentina, after a long delay, inquired whether the visit would be official or unofficial.

Meanwhile Dr. Malbran had been cabling frequently and vigorously to President Yrigoyen. His cables angered President Yrigoyen, who ignored them. When the invitation to Mr. Hoover was tardily extended it was sent to the United States embassy at Buenos Aires instead of allowing Dr. Malbran to present it to the state department.

Boston Woman Loses Her $10,000 Pearl Necklace

Boston, Mass., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Mrs. H. Courtlandt Van Voorhis, social leader, reports the loss of a $10,000 pearl necklace while on a Boston shopping trip.

JOBLESS WOMAN, HIKING TO CITY, KILLED BY AUTO

Mrs. Lucille McMonigle, 53 years old, of Chicago, was killed last night by an automobile as she walked along the highway a mile south of Kenosha with her husband, John, 57 years old.

The McMonigles, who lived in a rooming house at the corner of Ogden and Clybourn avenues, had been in Milwaukee for a week in a futile search for work. With less than a dollar left, they started back to Chicago on foot yesterday morning.

The husband was walking a few feet ahead when the car struck Mrs. McMonigle and hurled her lifeless body into the ditch, while the driver sped on. McMonigle tried in vain to signal other cars which followed. Then his cries were heard by a nearby roadhouse keeper who called the Kenosha county sheriff.

Three deaths yesterday raised the Cook county motor toll to 737. The victims:

Casimir Czaplicki, 10 years old, 2530 South Sacramento avenue. Fatally injured this afternoon when he was struck at Whipple and 26th streets by an automobile driven by Anna Kitz, 19 years old, 3610 Gunderson avenue, Berwyn. She was held.

John Grant, 23 years old, 5532 South Green street. Died at St. Bernard's hospital of injuries incurred on Tuesday when his automobile crashed into a safety island at 8th street and the outer drive.

Abraham Rice, 53 years old, 7647 North Ashland avenue. Died at the Washington Boulevard hospital last night of injuries incurred on May 30 when the Yellow cab in which he was riding collided with a Checker taxicab at Rockwell street and Jackson boulevard.

FAMOUS PAINTING BY HALS BOUGHT BY U. S. WOMAN

New York, Sept. 20.—[Special.]—A painting by the Dutch master, Franz Hals, and valued at $250,000, has been bought here by Mrs. B. F. Jones Jr., of Sewickley, Pa., widow of a Pittsburgh steel man, it was learned tonight.

Thus the list of American owned paintings by Hals has been augmented by one of his finest male portraits entitled "Portrait of a Man," although the name of the purchaser was withheld by the John Levy Galleries, 559 Fifth avenue, which handled the transaction and confirmed a report of the sale emanating from Pittsburgh. It was learned there that the painting had been acquired for Mrs. Jones' private collection. The price paid for the portrait is believed to be one of the highest recorded in this country.

EUCHARIST MEET AT OMAHA DRAWS THRONGS TO CITY

First Regular Session Is Scheduled for Tuesday.

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 20.—(AP)—With the advance guard of visiting priests and laymen already beginning to flood the city, Omaha tonight was in readiness for the opening of the sixth National Eucharistic congress.

Throughout the city the papal colors of white and yellow mingled with the national colors.

Although regular sessions are not scheduled until Tuesday, the first of a series of welcomes and ceremonies will be held Monday when the Rt. Rev. Pietro Fumasoni-Biondi, apostolic delegate to the United States, will be welcomed. The apostolic delegate will read a papal message from Pope Pius XI. to the convention.

On Wednesday the public Eucharistic ceremony will be held in Creighton university stadium. Arrangements have been made to seat approximately 50,000 persons.

A procession of 44 archbishops and bishops, 12 abbotts, and several thousand priests and laymen will start the ceremony.

The ceremony will go on the air over the Columbia network. There will be addresses by Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago and Judge Martin T. Manton of New York. A 100 voice choir will sing and a 40 piece band will play.

On Thursday, the final day of the convention, the Eucharistic procession will feature. Thousands are expected to join in the procession.

CATHOLIC WOMEN MAKE PLANS FOR CHURCH JUBILEE

Though final organization of the women of the Catholic archdiocese of Chicago into a federation was not completed, as expected, yesterday at a gathering at Quigley Preparatory seminary, the membership voted to function as a unit in handling the lay celebration of the golden jubilee of the archdiocese next month. More than 300 women attended the meeting, representing scores of Catholic organizations.

Delay in effecting the adoption of a constitution and by-laws and holding an election of officers was due to the inability of the Rt. Rev. Bishop Sheil to examine and approve the submitted documents in time for the meeting. Another date will be set on which it is expected that the proposed action will be taken.

Meanwhile, at the invitation of Bishop Sheil, the assembled women expressed themselves in favor of taking charge of the jubilee observance. Mrs. George V. McIntye, temporary chairman, and Bishop Sheil were asked to select a committee to assist with the plans.

Rome Observes 60th Year of Its Fall; Will Stop the Fete

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Sept. 20.—Italy today for the last time celebrated its national holiday of Sept. 20, commemorating the 60th anniversary of the date Gen. Cardona's troops blew a breach in the walls of Rome and, by making Rome the capital of the new Italian kingdom, consolidated Italian unity. The date is also recalled as the last defeat of the papal troops and the loss of pontificial temporal power.

Now, in the interests of unity and in conformance with the spirit of the Lateran pact, Italy's national holiday is to be abolished by Premier Mussolini, according to a recent announcement.

Lay Wreath at Monument.

Today Gov. Boncompagni of Rome went to the monument at Porta Pia, which marks the wall where the troops entered, and laid a wreath of flowers. The Capitoline bell tolled and generally throughout the city flags were displayed with more ostentation than has been customary.

By Premier Mussolini's proposal Italy's new national holiday is in the future to be celebrated on Feb. 11, the date of the signing of the Lateran pact. This is considered a gesture to placate the Vatican, which objected to Sept. 20 as the national holiday for the unpleasant memories of the loss of the pope's power it recalled and also because that date in the past was the occasion for speeches uncomplimentary to the pope.

Celebrate Fascist Anniversary.

Mussolini-land also is making preparations to celebrate the ninth year of the Fascist era with a splurge of public works. Among the most interesting of these will be the excavation and complete restoration of the crypt and mausoleum of Augustus Caesar, first emperor of Rome. As Virgil mentions this musoleum its inauguration will also form a part of the classical celebration in honor of the Latin poet's bimillenary.

Excavations which brought to light the exact site of the crypt were undertaken two years ago. By next month, it is expected that access to the crypt will be open to the public.

At the same time excavations of the Via Alessandria will also be complete. This was one of the great streets of ancient Rome and is flanked by the most important monuments discovered in the course of the last century, including the forum of Augustus, the Trajan markets, the Nervae forum and the loggia of the knights of Rhodes.

The anniversary of the march on Rome today saw the opening of a semi-circular street which extends from the Victor Emmanuel monument as far as the temple of Janus by the side of the Marcellus theater. The street passes the famous Tarpeian rock. History and legends of the Tarpeian rock have lasted through centuries from the times of early kings.

Solve Many Fables.

Its archaeological importance is enhanced by its isolation from surrounding buildings and by the solution of many fabled stories which have made particularly awesome this spot where executions were carried on from early Roman times till the middle of the rennaisance. During the rennaisance the senators found their dignity was insulted by having the execution rock near the capital, so the place of execution was established in a square facing Saint Angelo castle.

Excavations going on around the Tarpeian rock are resulting in valuable finds. A well preserved and frescoed bathroom, a mosaic pavement, and a beautiful woman's head were unearthed this week. The excavations are also revealing turf, walls, and blocks which are the most ancient of all those recently discovered in the vicinity of Capitoline hill.

SLAYING VICTIM IS DISCOVERED IN MELROSE PARK

A mystery confronted Melrose Park police yesterday when they discovered the body of a man about 65 years old in a hollow near the Western Indiana Harbor Belt railroad tracks at Lake street. The man had been stabbed through the heart with an ice pick which was found near the body. He had been dead about three days.

Robbery was not the motive for the murder, police decided. They found $13.42 in the man's pockets and a booklet which had contained traveler's checks issued by the Mellon National bank of Pittsburgh.

LAYTON SCHOOL OF ART STARTS YEAR TOMORROW

Methodists Lead in Report of Protestants.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Chicago's Protestant churches spent $12,539,222 on new churches and religious structures during the last year. This figure was given by Walter R. Mee, general secretary of the Chicago Church federation, in the federation's 1930 year book. The first copies of the year book were available yesterday.

The Methodist Episcopal church led all others in building enterprises. The year book lists ten congregations of that denomination which have undertaken major building enterprises with a total outlay of $1.841,000. The largest Methodist building developments have been at the First church of Evanston and at the Wilmette church. In each case the expenditure was $400,000. The Rock River annual conference of the Methodist church will be held in the new Wilmette church beginning Oct. 1.

Lutherans a Close Second.

Lutherans of all synods, leaders in 1929, rank a close second to the Methodists with $1,741,000 spent on new buildings during the same period. The Lutheran bodies also show the largest membership gain of all Chicago Protestantism in the past year. Episcopalians rank third in building with $1,267,000 and Baptists are fourth with $605,000.

Mr. Mee reported that the evangelism campaign conducted by the church, stimulated by federation activity, culminating at Easter added 65,000 to the church membership rolls. The entire Protestant church growth, including the campaign of evangelism, totals an estimated 100,000. The Kernahan Visitation campaign brought a total of 12,546, according to the 200 churches reporting.

Many Churches Coöperate.

Definite coöperative expansion was pointed out in the federation secretary's report. Mr. Mee's statement declared that probably in no church federation in the country have so many denominations ever coöperated in as many major religious and welfare movements. The last year, he states, has added Lutheran and Episcopal coöperation to the federation's enterprises. Mr. Mee cited Episcopal coöperation in the united religious survey and Episcopal and Lutheran coöperation in evangelism. The survey has been going forward during the most of the last year and probably will not be complete for two years.

Attention of the federation has been turned to the 1933 Century of Progress exposition, according to the year book. The Rev. William F. McDermott, chairman of the department of publicity for the federation, tells in the year book of the active federation coöperation in the 1933 congress of religions. President Rufus C. Dawes of the World's Fair board has appointed George W. Dixon to be director of the congress.

Associated with Mr. Dixon in drawing congress plans are Dr. Allen D. Albert, the Rt. Rev. S. M. Griswold of the Episcopal church, the Rt. Rev Msgr. Thomas V. Shannon, pastor of St. Thomas' Roman Catholic church; the Rev. Edwin H. Hughes, bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church; Rabbi Gerson B. Levi, Dean Shailer Mathews, and Dr. John T. Stone.

Commenting on the 1933 congress, Mr. Dixon declared that Chicago "stands at the forefront of the cities of the world in religous power. Ninety per cent of the population of the city are church members or adherents of some faith.

Mr. Dixon pointed out that there are more theological seminaries and schools for religious training than any other city of the country and that more than 100,000 people are added to the church rolls annually. This figure, he stated, is in excess of the annual growth in population. The Rev. Mr. McDermott declared that the coming World's Fair has been a stimulant in the matter of new church building projects and in the general improvements of church property.

THERE'S NO REASON FOR HIGH COAL PRICES! PRICES IN EVERY LINE HAVE DECLINED.

During the past few months coal prices at the mines have been lower than any time since 1906. With the exception of Alwart Brothers, have you noticed lower retail prices.

Retail coal dealers who are still charging high prices to retail coal buyers, recently quoted the SCHOOL BOARD, CITY OF CHICAGO, AND COOK COUNTY INSTITUTIONS contract prices, even less than we could quote—yet their prices to retail buyers are much higher than Alwart Prices. Why?

If you are buying coal this fall, it will pay you to investigate the facts regarding retail coal prices.

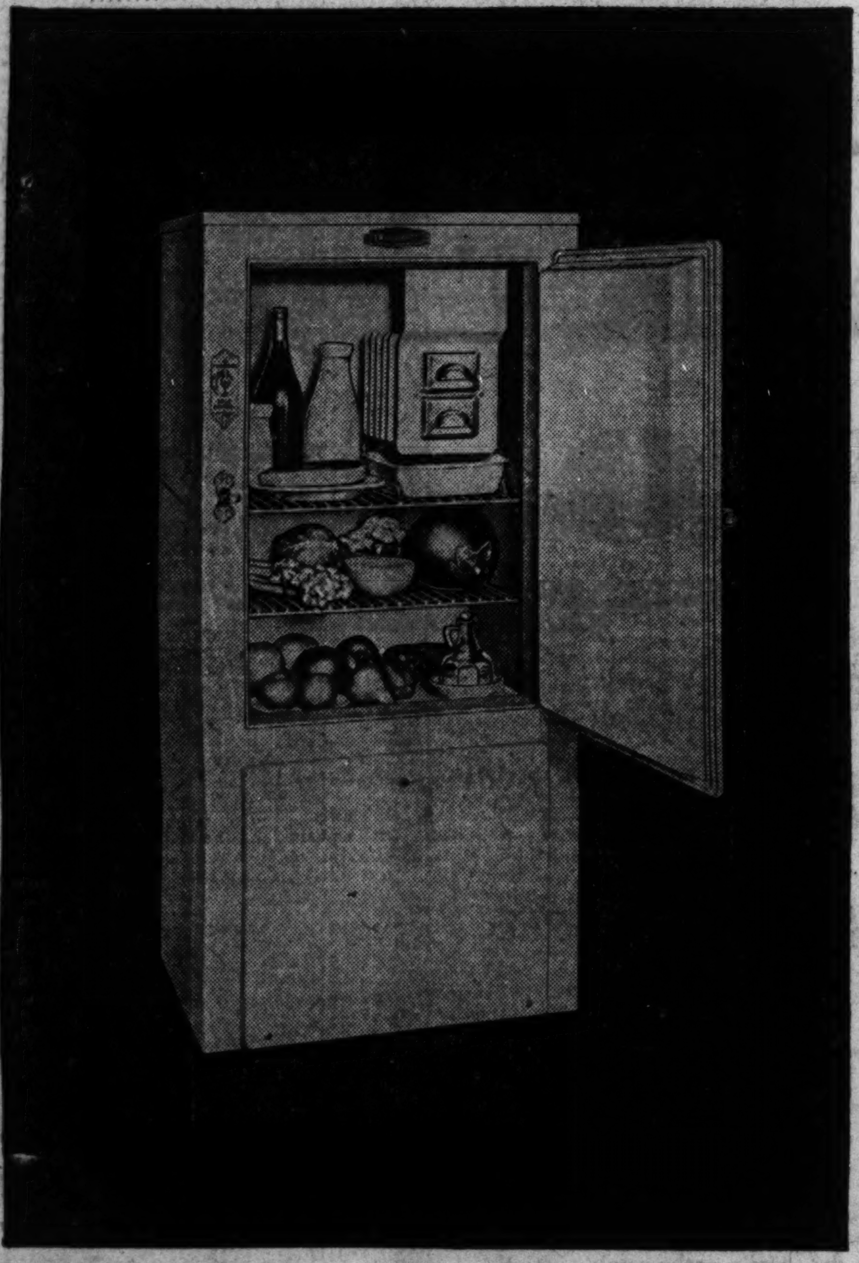
EQUIPPED WITH FRIGIDAIRE AUTOMATIC REFRIGERATION

Apartment owners realize tenants prefer Frigidaire



The New FRIGIDAIRE

Think of it! A FRIGIDAIRE at a price like this—"all porcelain" inside and out.

And a demonstration of this new Frigidaire makes this low price seem even more surprising. For here is the quiet, extra-powerful, time-proved Frigidaire mechanical unit. Here is the "Cold Control," the device that has made Frigidaire famous for fast freezing of ice and desserts. Here are elevated shelves with 4½ square feet of food storage space. Here are rounded corners and quality construction throughout—one of the greatest values in Frigidaire history—and the lowest priced all-Porcelain-on-steel electric refrigerator ever offered to the public.

Pick up any newspaper and turn to the classified section. What do you see? You see that the majority of desirable apartments are advertised as "equipped with Frigidaire."

Apartment owners ADVERTISE Frigidaire for the same reason they INSTALL it—because they know that Frigidaire helps rent apartments and reduces tenant turnover—because they know that this is the type of refrigeration that tenants want and look for—refrigeration that assures carefree operation, perfectly kept foods, fast freezing of ice, complete satisfaction.

And apartment owners also know that tenants look for Frigidaire for yet another reason—because they have learned that Frigidaire is an index to the character of the entire apartment—that where the refrigeration is modern other equipment is usually modern, too.

If you are an apartment owner searching for a way to speed up rentals, hold your tenants, and build a waiting list, you will find the key to what you want in the sign shown above, "equipped with Frigidaire automatic refrigeration."

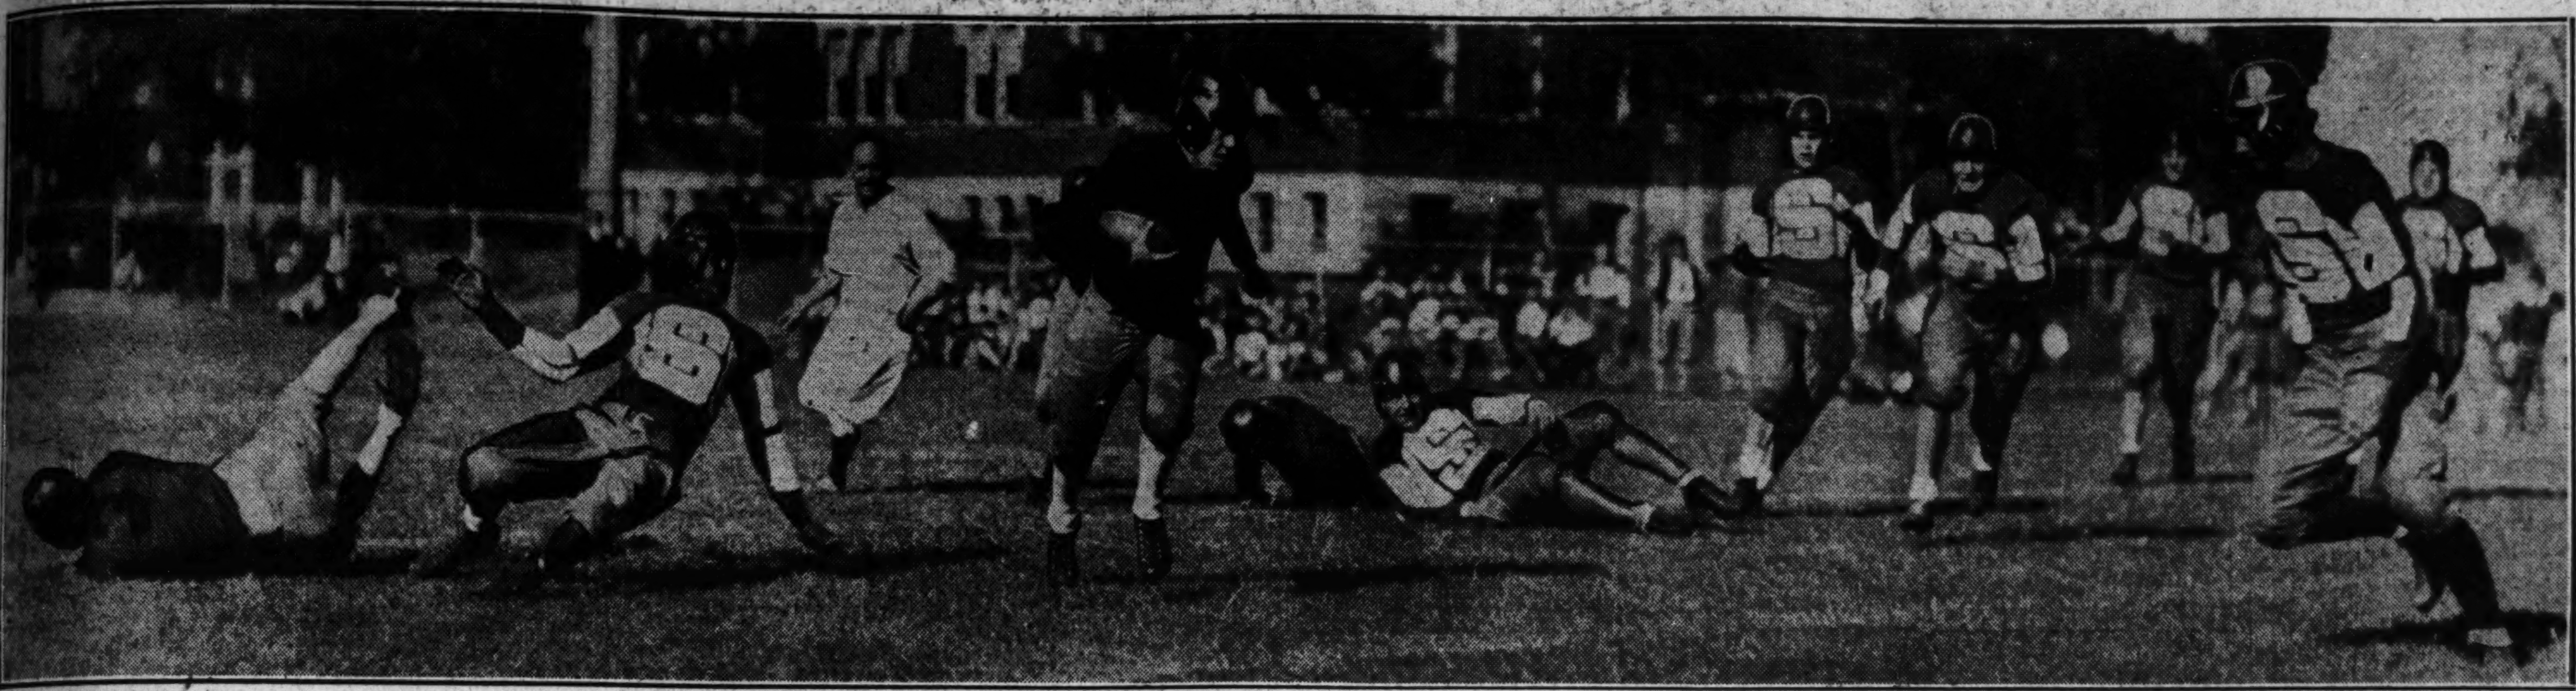
CARDS INCREASE LEAD AS CUBS LOSE, 3-2

PREPS' ANNUAL BATTLE TUNES VOCAL CORDS OF 10,000



Loyola academy and Senn High school rooters, to the number of 10,000, had their moments to cheer at Loyola university field yesterday when football teams of the rival north side schools met for the twenty-second time. Loyola fans left the scene of battle happy, for their boys won, 2 to 0, on a safety in the fourth quarter. The Loyola partisans had another occasion to cheer when this photo was made, with Harry Hofherr on his way to a long gain around Senn's left end in the second period. After stopping Loyola on its three yard line in the final quarter, Senn fumbled and gave the home team a safety and two points, which settled the argument. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

REDBIRDS SPLIT WITH PHILS, BUT GAIN HALF GAME

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—The Cardinals increased their lead to three games ahead of both the Cubs and Robins by splitting a doubleheader with the Phillies here today. The Red Birds won the first, 9 to 3, by smashing out seven runs in the seventh inning when the score was tied at 2 all.

In the second game Friberg's single with the bases full and none out in the ninth, and the score tied at 3 to 3, gave the Phillies a 4 to 3 triumph in a pitching duel between Hallahan and Benge.

Hallahan started his own downfall by throwing wild to first on Benge's grounder. Brickell, after twice failing in an attempted bunt, doubled off the center field wall, sending Benge to third. Thompson was walked purposely, but Friberg smacked the first pitch on a line to center field. The ball caromed off the concrete wall in center, but Friberg was credited with only a single.

Cards Take Lead, Lose It.

The Cardinals hopped off to a three run lead in the second encounter before the Phillies were able to cross the plate. Successive singles by Frisch, Bottomley and Hafey gave them a run in the first inning. There was no further scoring until the fifth, when singles by Hallahan and Douthit, a sacrifice fly by Frisch and Bottomley's double gave St. Louis two more.

The Phils got one of these back in the fifth when Brickell's single sent Sherlock, who had doubled, over the plate. In the sixth the Phillies tied the score. Klein led off with a two base hit to right and raced across the plate when Whitney singled to the same spot. Whitney went to second on Watkins' error, and to third while Bottomley was throwing out Rensa. Sherlock hit to Frisch and Whitney was out at the plate, but the batter raced to third while Whitney was being run down along the third base line. Thevenow then dropped a double along the foul line in right which scored Sherlock and knotted the score.

Two St. Louis Homers in 7th.

A slashing seven run attack in the seventh gave the Cards victory in the first game after the teams had battled along on even terms for six innings. Watkins and Mancuso led off in the lucky seventh with successive home runs, and before the last man was out, singles by Gelbert, Adams, Bottomley, and Watkins and a triple by Hafey added five more.

In the eighth Chuck Klein hit his 31th home run of the season for the Phillies' third run.

Isn't Football Too Big for All-America Honor Rolls?

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

New York, Sept. 20.—A professional exploiter, a successful dealer in the literary junk committed in anonymous rewrite men in the names of many celebrated athletes, has been sending me literature regarding a new and aggressive combination of football coaches who seem determined to take over the game and exploit it for their profit.

The plan has much in common with the methods of the prize fighting industry and it gives me to wonder if football must eventually lose its romantic character and become simply a racket for the enrichment of men who make their reputations by the achievements of the players under their charge.

All of Them Are Famous Coaches.

The gentlemen concerned in the monopoly are all football coaches connected with famous universities who have been reading of themselves as wizards and miracle men so long that they have come to accept these careless extravagances of expression at their face value.

They admit that they are very good and, being convinced of this, they have pooled their reputations, created by hundreds of players who have passed through their charge in the course of years, and are presuming to call themselves an all-America board of football with the right to issue certificates of distinction.

The combination is so plainly presumptuous that it occurs to me that this would be an opportune season to abandon the practice of selecting all-American teams. Walter Camp began it and with him it had at least the merit of originality, although it must be understood that Mr. Camp was not averse to earning a few shillings himself.

Nor need it be understood that he was entirely the author of all his own writings on the topic of sport, because it is no secret in the writing business that Mr. Paterson McNutt, the young playwright who wrote "Pigs" and produced the Ohio State track meet comedy, "The Poor Nut," was employed for considerable time in the latter years of that oracle's service, not, however, as the inventor of the all-America idea.

No High Pressure Tactics of Camp.

Mr. Camp was entitled to his profits and it cannot be alleged that he ever resorted to the high pressure business methods which I find employed in the present instances. I hold that no man is sincere who will allow his name to appear over another man's writings, but this was an amiable indiscretion of Mr. Camp's compared to the bold raid of the new combination.

The late Walter Eckersall for years picked all-star elevens for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. His experience as a player, official and writer made him one of the nation's outstanding critics. But in recent seasons he began to appreciate the futility of naming the eleven best players in the country.

On the impossibility of selecting a genuine all-America team nowadays, with about 500 colleges playing the game every fall, it seems unnecessary to enlarge. Each coach on the so-called board can see no more than ten games at most in the course of a season, and it follows that if he is conscientious to his own team he sees only the opponents which his own team plays. Thus he will have a chance to observe not more than eleven teams, including his own and, considering duplications when their respective teams play one another, the whole board will see not more than one-tenth of the teams in action.

However, there would be no reason to criticize the program of these self-confessed supermen if they were merely selecting an all-America team. It is of their further depredations against the romance of the game that I am slightly apprehensive. In time, with the coaches steadily enlarging their influence, will they not presume to take over the functions of the rules committee, and won't they work to abolish amateurism in intercollegiate football?

Graduate Managers Adopted Idea.

I understand, of course, that the colleges themselves, through their graduate managers, who are shrewd and practical business men, adopted the percentage and guarantee arrangements some time ago.

One of the coaches involved in the new combination, a man singularly bereft of romantic illusion regarding the game and the players, has argued with me that colleges are corporations and that it were no more detrimental to the game for a coach to draw a percentage than for a college to do so.

It is my idea that when a coach reaches this state of mind he has lost his principal quality as a coach but then my conception of the character of the coach is quite old fashioned, for I have always regarded him as being properly a sort of priest who shouldn't be too mindful of his own benefit. Perhaps this idea is too idealistic, but, nevertheless, I should think a parent who sends a son to college might feel some pardonable indignation on realizing that the selfless efforts of his boy and others like him were being converted into profit by the cheap and gaudy methods of the moving picture

OSWEGO TAKES RICH HANDICAP BY 2 LENGTHS

BY FRENCH LANE.

Oswego is a thoroughbred race horse that you'll be hearing something about next spring when it comes time to pick the successor to Gallant Fox the 3 year old champion.

A crowd of 18,000 shouted "It's Oswego" as a dozen of the west's finest 2 year olds headed in to the stretch in the Dearborn handicap at Lincoln Fields yesterday.

And the crowd made no mistake. For it was the Kentucky colt Oswego, owned by Gallagher & Combs of Lexington, out in front and running like the wind. He kept on running. And he was running faster than any of the others at the end of the seven furlong struggle which had a gross value of $8,100.

Doris Jean Takes Second.

Doris Jean, a Chicago filly, beaten by two lengths, was running gamely and took down second money. Hillsborough, a lowly field horse, was third. Neither threatened Oswego once he started his drive.

It was a drive that would break the heart of most any thoroughbred. It caused the fleet running Martha Jones to wilt and stop. It halted Back Log, Frigate Bird, Boiling, and others among the front runners. Oswego was running in close to track record time, and he ran the last eighth of a mile almost as fast as Martha Jones had run the first eighth.

Starter Morrissey sent them away in perfect alignment and Martha Jones, with her fleet burst of early speed, romped to the front soon after the start. Oswego and his stable mate, Back Log, were in close attendance, and Frigate Bird, the Camden crack, was also running with the first flight.

As they reached the last turn Martha Jones began to show the distress signal and when she dropped back Oswego moved up. Once in front he never left the result in doubt and Jockey G. Depeso, riding for all he was worth, never gave Oswego a breathing spell. Oswego withstood the hard drive in fine fashion and there is no question but that he was better than those which were trailing him.

Oswego Pays $5.12.

Oswego ran the seven furlongs in 1:24 3-5, which was just a second short of the track record. In the mutuels he paid $5.12 to win, $3.38 to place, and $2.74 to show. Doris Jean paid $10.62 to place and $6.78 to show. Hillsboro was at $10.74 to show.

Lady Fingers, the top heavy favorite, won the Avalon Park purse at six furlongs. She beat Taddywawa by two lengths, with Zacaweista third. Lady Fingers is one of the most consistent sprinters of the year. She has started seven times on Chicago tracks. She has won four of these engagements, was second twice, and once third. She ran the six furlongs in 1:11 3-5. She was the even money favorite.

The Camden racer Ellice, after leading all the way, was beaten by a nose in the last stride by Uncommon Gold in the Valley Brook Country Club purse at a mile. Jem, the old selling plater which has been graduated into the handicap class, was running very fast near the end and got third money, but he could not keep step with Ellice's early pace. Uncommon Gold ran the mile in 1:37 1-5 and in the mutuels paid $10.04 to win. He was ridden by Jockey A. Pendergrass.

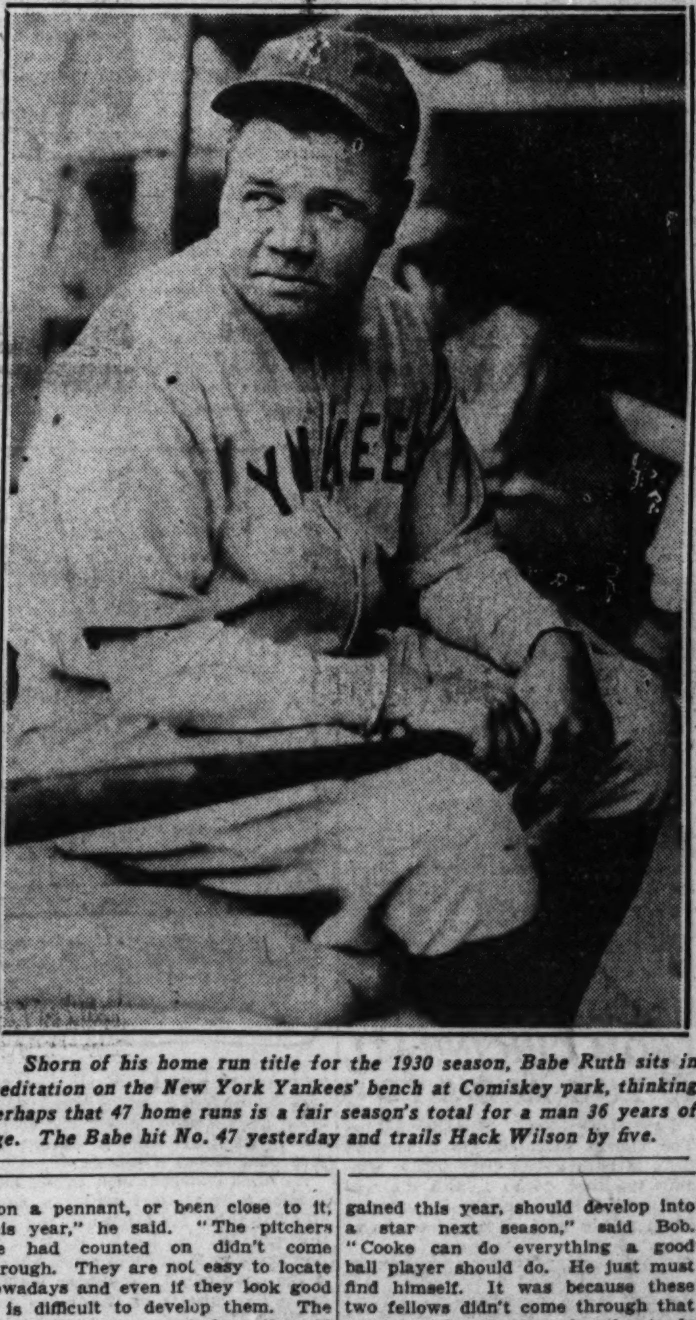
Three in Spill.

Three horses went down in a spectacular spill in the six furlong second race which engaged a dozen 2 year olds. The horses to fall were Weideleen, Talented Prince and Cousin Doll. Their jockeys, T. Vercher, C. Legnon and W. Johns, escaped with only severe shaking up.

Gunfire, favorite, was in front all the way and beat the long shot Miss Cheyenne by a length. Good Jest, another long shot, was third. Gunfire paid $7.10 to win.

Babe Ruth Nearing End of Baseball Road, Manager Bob Shawkey Admits

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.



Shorn of his home run title for the 1930 season, Babe Ruth sits in meditation on the New York Yankees' bench at Comiskey park, thinking perhaps that 47 home runs is a fair season's total for a man 36 years of age. The Babe hit No. 47 yesterday and trails Hack Wilson by five.

You don't know what big league baseball is all about until you become a manager. That's when the trouble begins.

Take this straight from Bob Shawkey, who just now is rounding out his first season as director general of Babe Ruth and the other men who go to make up the New York Yankee squad.

Shawkey is so tired, physically tired, right now that he feels as if he himself had actually pitched every game the Yanks have played. He HAS pitched them, but only on the bench. He has played every other position, also on the bench. Such details and a home to build a new winning team around Ruth before Ruth slips out completely would tire a manager hardened to disappointments, let alone one in his first year out of the ranks like Fightin' Bob. But he wants to continue.

Talks About Ruth.

Who said anything about Ruth going to slip? Well, Shawkey, draped against a railing at Comiskey park and wearing, among other things, the same sort of flaming red undershirt he made famous in his pitching days with the Macks and Yanks, said something about it yesterday.

"Yes, you can see it setting in," replied Shawkey to a question involving the Babe's physical state. "He has to be careful about his legs now. Injuries that a younger man pays no attention to cause him considerable trouble. A few steps have been taken from the distance he once could travel for a fly ball. When you stop and think about it, you wonder how he has kept going this long. His career has been just as strenuous as it has been brilliant."

Ruth isn't annoyed if you remind him that he is surely moving toward the exit. It doesn't even pique him to have somebody mention that for the first time since he abandoned pitching for the more lucrative rôle of a home run hitter his thunder has been stolen.

Can't Be On Top Forever.

"Why, hell, a fellow has to get down off the top sometime," is the Babe's stock reply to all who wish to know why he has hit only 47 homers while Hack Wilson has been rolling up 52. The Babe wouldn't even object if his own all time record of 60 should be eclipsed by Hack. However, if the record must be broken Ruth would prefer to do the breaking himself.

If you ask Shawkey about Ruth and the record he'll tell you that the Babe might have bettered the mark if he could have avoided injuries. There's nothing wrong with his batting eye and probably never will be. That's one thing they never lose. But the injuries prevented him from swinging normally. He hurt one hand when he jammed it through a screen early in July. He continued to play and while favoring the sore hand developed a bone bruise on the other. Then he wrenched his back. Minor ailments for a man of 25 but serious at 36.

Shawkey Seeks Pitchers.

After unburdening himself of the few words on Ruth, Shawkey turned to the subject nearest to his heart—pitching. He was one himself, a good one, and still thinks it the classy department of the profession. And he would like to find a few experts in that line. He needs them more than he needs help in any other positions.

"If I'd owned a pitching staff like the staff we once had I could have won a pennant, or been close to it, this year," he said. "The pitchers we had counted on didn't come through. They are not easy to locate nowadays and even if they look good it is difficult to develop them. The youngsters don't seem to have the will to win.

"In the old days there was nothing a kid pitcher wouldn't do to stay in the big leagues. They were always eager to pick up pointers from the old fellows. Nowadays they seem to be spoiled. Maybe it's because we have too many coaches and trainers around to pamper them. The kids don't try to improve themselves. They think that once they put on a big league uniform they are made. They don't know that the tough part is just starting.

Hard Hitting Discourages 'Em.

"No doubt the craze for hitting has discouraged more than one youth from taking up a pitching career, but I don't know as I would favor changing existing conditions. The pitchers, of course, haven't a chance. They've put so many hobbles on them that they are lucky to be alive. But the public still seems to want slugging, so why not cater to the spectators? Maybe when Ruth passes there will be a swing in the opposite direction."

"I think Byrd, with the experience gained this year, should develop into a star next season," said Bob. "Cooke can do everything a good ball player should do. He just must find himself. It was because these two fellows didn't come through that we were forced to make the trade that sent Koenig and Hoyt to Detroit. We had to make sacrifices to protect ourselves in the outfield.

"It was almost the same thing in the infield. I had to try one combination after another. The way it is now, I think, will work out successfully. Lazzeri was slowing up a bit at second base, but can play third, where there is less strain on his legs. Lary is coming along wonderfully at short and Chapman appears to be a made to order second baseman. He had never played the job before, but you wouldn't think it to watch him.

"As a catcher we have Dickey. He has all the mechanical qualifications, but it is taking time for him to learn the hitters and his own pitchers. By next year he will be seasoned. That makes it a matter of getting a few pitchers to put the Yanks back on top."

Worrying about getting these pitchers, provided he retains his job, will keep Shawkey's mind occupied this winter. That will help carry out his belief that a manager is never through with his work.

Tigers Sign Bucky Harris as Manager for 3d Year

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 20.—(AP)—Stanley R. [Bucky] Harris will pilot the Detroit Tigers in 1931. Announcement was made by the Tiger management today that the young manager had signed a contract for his third year. Harris came to Detroit in 1929 from Washington, where he had piloted the Senators to two pennants and to one world championship.

LOSS TO BRAVES CONVINCES CLUB IT'S ALL OVER

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., Sept. 20.—Even the die hards on the Chicago National league baseball club are beginning to suspect that the race is about over. The suspicion was strenghtened this afternoon when the Braves beat the Cubs, 3 to 2. Bob Smith, who has embarrassed the Cubs many times ere this, toyed with the fellows this afternoon, holding them to six hits.

The Cubs still are in a tie for second place thanks to Pittsburgh, which defeated Brooklyn, but they dropped a half game farther behind the Cardinals. They now trail the St. Lousians by three games, with six more to play. Until today there was a group of Cubs who were arguing that there still was a chance for a miracle that would return them winners of the league race, but now the whole sad matter is reduced in the minds of everybody to a desire to finish in second place, which will be worth about $400 more to each athlete than third place will pay.

Expect Sad Tidings at Home.

The fallen heroes also are hoping that they can get back home in time to autograph a few more baseballs and programs and attend a few more community suppers before the last sad tiding reach their ears.

The game today had several notable features. Hack Wilson improved his new National league record for runs batted in by sending Blair home with a single in the eighth. The smack also put the tying run on third, only to perish there. Another feature was a hit by Kiki Cuyler, his first since the club left Philadelphia. It was a triple which failed to result in a run.

The contest was the fifth which the Braves have won from the Cubs in 20 games this year. Two of the Cub season losses were suffered the last Sunday afternoon the Chicagoans were in Boston. They lost the first game on two infield errors, and then after trailing 3 to 0 in the second game, scored four runs in the first half of the ninth. But the Massachusetts blue law stepped in and ended the contest and the score reverted to the eighth inning and the Cubs, you'll remember, had to stand for a double trimming.

Malone to Hurl Today.

After getting caught in this money grabbing stunt of moving up games for Sunday double headers, the Cub management declared they never would be a party to such a manipulation again. As a consequence, Boston fans will not have their usual Sabbath double header tomorrow. One game will be played, and in it Pat Malone will endeavor to win his 19th victory of the season.

The Cubs will play the season final here Monday, then catch a train that Nothing more than home run No. 47 by G. Herman Ruth, the haberdasher, and the inability of Yankee pitchers to locate the plate was offered to keep some 8,000 clients awake while the White Sox won a 10 to 7 decision over the New Yorkers yesterday.

A slight stir was occasioned by Ruth's homer in the seventh, but otherwise the excitement was confined to the wildness of Frank Barnes, the rookie, making his first major league start, Henry Johnson and Lou McEvoy and the hysteria of the Ruppert employés in general.

Yank Pitchers Walk 11.

A total of eleven passes was issued to the Sox during the course of the afternoon. Mixed with nine hits, they were sufficient to give Bush's team victory.

Alphonse Thomas went seven innings for the Sox without impressing the clientele to any considerable extent, but he was still in there when the Comiskey's acquired their lead and consequently was credited with the win, though Jim Moore had to be summoned to pitch the last two innings.

Ted Lyons probably will oppose Edwin Wells in the final game today.

Both teams scored in the second inning. The Yankees were presented with a run when Johnny Kerr dropped a fly by Cooke and Dusty scored when Chapman beat out a bunt to the unsuspecting Kamm, after the side should have been retired. Jolley opened the Sox half by beating out a bunt to Barnes, but was forced at second by Mulleavy, who forthwith moved to third on Kamm's single to left and scored when Tate forced Willie at second.

Yanks Score Three.

A typical Yankee uprising netted the visitors three runs in the fourth inning. Chapman beat out another bunt to Kamm, Barnes doubled to left, Combs' fly to center field escaped Reynolds for a triple, and Lary sacrificed to Fothergill.

Barnes weakened in the fifth and before Henry Johnson could subdue the inspired Sox, three runners had crossed the plate to tie the score. Barnes walked Kerr, Watwood, and Fothergill and permitted a single by Jolley. This was enough to send him away in favor of Johnson.

Dickey's double, Chapman's walk and sacrifices by Johnson and Combs contrived to give the Yanks a run in the sixth and in the seventh Ruth lifted one of Thomas' slow curves into the left field pavilion for that 47th homer.

Hysteria seized upon the Yankees in the Comiskey half of the seventh after Johnson had walked Fothergill and Emile Barnes and singles had been contributed by Tate, Kerr, and Watwood, Chapman uncorked a wild throw and the Sox scored five runs to lead 9 to 6.

Both teams scored in the eighth, but the runs were inconsequential. Moore fanned two of the visitors in the ninth to conclude the game.

Pirates Score 5 in Eighth; Defeat Brooklyn, 6 to 2

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 20.—(AP)—A five run Pittsburgh rally with two out in the eighth inning today forced the Robins to take their fourth straight defeat, 6 to 2.

The defeat left the Robins in a tie for second place with the Chicago Cubs, who were also defeated, but dropped them to three games behind the league leading St. Louis Cardinals.

Babe Herman's 34th homer of the season in the first inning and another Brooklyn run off Larry French in the seventh came behind the shutout performance that Big Jim Elliott gave for seven frames but in the eighth, the huge left hander weakened and Moss and Thurston failed in their attempts to stop the Pirate attack.

Perhaps Malone'll Get That Moose He's Yearning For

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., Sept. 20.—Pat Malone naturally is pretty sad about the way things have been going for the Cubs, but not so sad that he has not thought up a mighty fine thing that he is going to do for Hack Wilson, the new home run king of the major leagues.

Of course, Hack has derived a lot of satisfaction in setting a new National league record for homers and a new major league record for runs batted in, but he was eager to get into another world series and show that sunny boy incident was just a terrible accident and never could happen again And, too, there would be added dough and a lot of talk about the way he has been socking the ball and setting himself up as the most powerful right handed hitter that ever smacked homers in the major leagues.

Sad Fellow, Despite All 1930 Successes.

Hack won't get any better than second place money, there won't be any crying demand for his literary output; he won't be paid to indorse new fangled suspenders or candy bars. So all in all he is a pretty sad fellow despite his tremendous success during the 1930 championship season.

As most fraternal men know, Hack became a Moose last winter, a mutually fine thing for Hack and the Martinsburg, W. Va., lodge. Hack has a fine home in Martinsburg and his den is the envy of all the slipper wearers and pipe smokers of the entire state of West Virginia.

Now Pat's idea is to go up to Canada, shoot the biggest moose (animal) in the Dominion, have it mounted by the best taxidermist in the land, and give it to Hack as an ornament for his den.

Something Always Prevents Pat from Getting Moose.

It seems that Pat always has wanted to slay a moose, and near the close of each season he has been in baseball has bought vast supplies of moose hunting paraphernalia. But something always has come up, and so far Pat has never shot a moose, nor has he shot at a moose. In fact, he has never seen a live moose.

Relatives say that from time to time Pat has invested a total of approximately $10,000 for moose slaying equipment, only to misplace it. Altogether, for instance, he has bought fourteen moose horns, including an inlaid one which cost $75, and nary a moose has heard a single call out of any of the horns.

Folks around Milan, O., and Altoona, Pa., say that Pat always has been a great hand to shoot rabbits and an occasional squirrel and each year has looked forward to the big moose hunt, only to be disappointed.

It's Supposed to Be a Surprise on Hack.

But this year Pat has a sentimental inspiration, and it will be well for the moose that considers himself the biggest in Canada to look out, for Pat means business.

The whole thing is supposed to be a surprise on Hack, but somehow Hack has found out about it. There always is some killjoy around to take the edge off surprises.

Hack is a little puzzled about the whole thing. "Don't say a word to Pat," Hack says, "because I wouldn't hurt his feelings for the world. I am deeply moved by the sentiment which is going to lead him to spend his money and time to brave the hardships entailed in shooting the biggest moose in Canada. No one but a real pal would do such a thing, and Pat is a pal to his friends through thick and thin.

"But the truth is, I've talked this moose head thing over with the missus, and she says she won't have it in the house. She says that, next to a model six masted ship, they are the worst dust catchers in the world. She also says they molt and that my den will be as hairy as a mattress factory by the time I settle down for my winter reading.

Has to Think of a Way to Get Rid of It.

"I thought some of giving the head to my lodge, telling Pat that I thought so much of it that I wanted others to share my joy. But the Martinsburg lodge has four moose heads already. I have got to think of some way of getting rid of the damn thing, but don't say a word to Pat, for I wouldn't hurt his feelings for the world."

The reason we have told you about this is because we think that maybe your wife does not know that moose heads are dust catchers. Think how much nicer it would be to have a moose head in your home than just an autographed baseball or album. The head of a moose killed by Pat Malone for Hack Wilson—think of it fans. Better write to Hack secretly about it. The idea strikes us as being the souvenir chance of a lifetime.

will have them back in Chicago Tuesday night.

English, who tripled the first time up in yesterday's game, thought it a good idea to do it again today, this time after Blair had flied to Berger. Woody scored while Maranville was throwing out Cuyler. Wilson walked. Then Heathcote rolled to Maguire.

Umpire Aids Petty.

The Braves went out in order in their first inning, and the Cubs did likewise in the first of the second, but the Braves managed to stir the fans a bit in the latter half of the second inning. Berger singled to left and stopped at second when Clark also singled to left. Chatham forced Berger at third, Petty to Bell. Then Spohrer sent a potential double along the right foul line that every one in the park thought was fair except Umpire Stark. There was much scurrying about, but when it was over the runners were back where they started from. Spohrer then fanned and Maguire fouled to Hartnett.

The Cubs faded out after starting something in the third. After Petty lined to Maguire, Blair beat out an infield single. English knocked a grounder toward right field and Blair, thinking the ball had gone past the inner defense, kept running on toward third. But Neun succeeded in cutting the hit toward Maguire, who tossed to Chatham for an easy put out on Blair. Smith threw out Cuyler.

Braves Sew Up Game.

The Braves rushed across three runs in the third inning for a 3 to 1 lead. Smith singled to left, and the bases were full with none out after Petty had walked Neun and Maranville. Richbourg singled to right, scoring Smith and Neun and putting Maranville on third. Berger fanned for the first out, but Clark singled to center, scoring Maranville and putting Richbourg on third. Blake relieved Petty and struck out Chatham. Spohrer flied to Wilson.

It was three up and three down for the Cubs in the fourth and fifth innings. In the sixth Blair flied to Berger and English struck out, but Cuyler tripled to right, his first hit in five games. The hit was wasted, for Maranville and Neun collaborated skillfully to retire Wilson.

Rally in 8th Nets a Run.

The Cubs got a man on base in the seventh. Hartnett walked with one out and died there, for Kelly fanned and Bell tapped to Smith.

Stephenson batted for Blake to start the eighth and flied to Richbourg. Blair doubled to right, and English walked. Cuyler flied to Clark and Blair took third after the catch. Wilson singled to right, scoring Blair and putting English on third with the tying run. Hack was forced on Heathcote's tap, Maguire to Maranville. Hartnett, Kelly and Bell were speedily disposed of in the ninth.

McCARTHY SILENT ON WRIGLEY'S CONTRACT TALK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., Sept. 20.—Manager Joe McCarthy of the Cubs refused today to comment on any statements quoted to him from THE TRIBUNE'S interview with Owner William Wrigley, printed in today's editions.

"I have not discussed contract matters with either Mr. Wrigley or Mr. Veeck and until such time as I do I'll not consider it proper to discuss anything pertaining to the future management of the Cubs," Mr. McCarthy said.

The Cubs' present field boss showed no emotions as he read some of the club owner's pointed remarks. He continued the pleasant, though firm attitude he has shown toward scores of eastern questioners who have sought to learn the inside reason, if any, for the rumors that for weeks have had him ousted, to be succeeded by Rogers Hornsby.

"My contract does not expire until Jan. 1, 1931. The future will take care of itself," has been Manager McCarthy's stock evasion for almost two months.

Root Hopes to Pitch Once More Before Season Ends

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., Sept. 20.—Charley Root, whose inability to pitch effectively during the last month except in one game in Cincinnati on Sept. 2, was one of the main reasons the Cubs flopped on the current eastern trip, He hopes ot get in shape for one more appearance at Wrigley field.

Root's ailment is one of the several mysteries that have caused the whole Cub entourage to scramble thoughts that should have been focused solely on baseball. For a time Charley denied he had a sore arm. Later he admitted he was hampered by a "catch" in his elbow, which prevented him from "bearing down." This meant that he was unable to furnish the snap that puts a hop on his fast ball.

Specialists Stumped.

A specialist or two have been unable to diagnose the trouble following minute examination. It is said there is no growth on the elbow nor any chips in the bone. For a while Charley tried to warm up each day, and he tried to pitch against Brooklyn and allowed three singles and two doubles before he retired with none out in the first inning. Recently he has confined his activity to catching returned balls for the fungo hitters in the pre-game fielding practices.

Root is known as one of the closest personal friends of Manager McCarthy on the team, and Boss Joe had counted on him and Malone to preserve the lead that the Cubs had when they started this road trip. Malone has won one and lost two in the east and Root has lost one and won none. Since beginning their road trip on Sept. 1 the Cubs have played twenty games, nineteen abroad and one at Wrigley field, when they jumped back with Pittsburgh for a Sunday contest. In this time they have lost thirteen while winning seven, which is .350, or tail end baseball.

The Cubs have not taken their last series with any club in the league. They split two to two with the Cardinals, lost three to two with the Pirates, lost three to nothing with the Robins, tied two to two with the Phillies, lost two to one with the Giants, and stand one and one with the Braves. They still have to play their final series with the Reds, who whipped them two games to one in the last series, played on Sept. 1 and 2.

How Cubs React to Defeat.

It is interesting to study the outward effects the September blowup has had on various members of the Cubs. They may be classified in two very distinct groups:

1. Those who are going down smiling, much as it hurts.
2. The melancholy boys who cannot conceal their great grief and chagrin.

Here are the groups:

Group 1—McCarthy, Burke, Wilson, Malone, Blake, Hornsby, Root, Schulte, Petty, Kelly, Bell, Stephenson, Grimm, Heathcote, and English.

Group 2—Schalk, Cuyler, Bush, Hartnett, Zack Taylor, Dan Taylor, Blair, Teachout, Beck, Osborn, Nelson, Shealy, Farrell, and Dr. Lotshaw.

Hasn't Football Grown Too Big for All-America Lists?

exploiter for the benefit of a coach who regarded the boys only as "material."

Tells of Tragedy of "Material."

The word "material," I think, very often expresses the attitude of the coach toward the players. One of the most shameful incidents I know of in sport, a tragedy as cruel as any that ever occurred in the prize fight business, where boys have been done to death by the ignorance and greed of low grade managers, occurred within the last few years on a foot ball field, the victim being "material" who was kept in the game by his coach when he might better have been in a hospital.

After all, coaches aren't important unless they serve some other purpose than mere instruction in football. The game needn't be so technical nor so highly refined to retain its sporting character and its ineffable charm for the public. The game could get along quite well without miracle men, but I would like to see two coaches try to play a game some day without players.

The plain fact is that the coaches are growing too greedy and are not any too considerate of the game when the opportunity offers to make money on the side.

ARMOUR SHOOTS 135 TO TAKE LEAD IN ST. LOUIS OPEN

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 20.—(AP)—Under pressure of a spectacular field of par busters, Tommy Armour of Detroit turned in the second half of a great 135 stroke card over the Sunset Hill Country club course today to take a two shot lead over Walter Hagen of New York in the $10,000 St. Louis open golf tournament.

A score of 151 or better was necessary to land among the low 64 who qualified for the final 36 hole grind tomorrow. Trailing Armour by five strokes with 140's were Al Espinosa of Chicago and Eddie Williams of Cleveland. Only two upsets marked the day's round. They were the failures to qualify of Wild Bill Mehlhorn of New York, who took a 152, and Charles Lacey, Clementson, N. J., who eight putted the par five tenth green today and ended his fight with a disastrous 155 total.

Among the leaders were:

Al Espinosa, Chicago..............71—69—140
Eddie Williams, Cleveland.........69—71—140
Johnny Manion, St. Louis..........69—72—141
Abe Espinosa, Chicago..............69—72—141

STEWART HOLDS A'S TO SIX HITS; BROWNS WIN, 4-1

Pitches Twentieth Victory Against Walberg.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 20.—(AP)—Southpaw Walter Stewart outpitched Southpaw George Walberg today to win his 20th game of the season as the St. Louis Browns defeated the Philadelphia Athletics, 4 to 1. Stewart allowed six hits. All runs were made in the sixth inning. The Browns used an infield composed of three rookies recently procured from the Texas league The Athletics also used several rookies and reserves. Score:

.500 Baseball Can Win Flag for Cards Now

Six games remain on the schedule of the three contenders for the National league flag, and with the Cardinals leading by three games, both the Cubs and Robins seem convinced that the time is too short to prevent St. Louis from meeting the Athletics in the world series. Second place money appears to be the only salvation for the Brooklyn and Chicago players.

If the Cardinals win only half of their six contests, they are assured of a tie for first place even if both pursuing clubs accomplish victories in their half a dozen battles. To clinch the flag, St. Louis must win four out of six in the event the others sweep through their opposition. The standing then would be:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Cardinals	91	63	.591
Cubs	90	64	.584
Robins	90	64	.584

The Cubs and Robins are likely to lose at least once more, and on that basis, the Cards can win three and lose the same number and finish on top by these figures:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Cardinals	90	64	.584
Cubs	89	65	.578
Robins	89	65	.578

St. Louis has an open date today, so the Cubs and Robins can reduce the leaders' margin to 2½ games by winning.

LOYOLA ACADEMY BEATS SENN, 2 TO 0, IN ANNUAL GRID BATTLE OF NORTH SIDE RIVALS. Yore, Loyola full back, is nearing the end of his journey around Senn's right end in the second quarter of game viewed by 10,000 at Loyola field. A Senn fumble in the fourth period made it possible for the home eleven to score a safety and victory.

40 BOYS SURVIVE IN TRIBUNE GRID CONTEST TRIALS

They'll Kick and Pass in Finals Saturday.

(Pictures on page 3, Sports.)

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Forty boys qualified yesterday in the seven sectional drop kicking and forward passing contests sponsored by THE TRIBUNE. They will compete in the championships next Saturday morning at 9 o'clock at Mills stadium. The four winners will be guests of THE TRIBUNE at a college football game.

More than 300 of the boys who registered for the tests reported yesterday morning at the sectionals. For two hours they stepped forward to test the accuracy of their aim in forward passing, or attempted to drop kick a perfect score and earn a berth in the city finals.

Three Perfect Scores.

Three perfect scores were registered in the junior division for boys 14 years of age and under. And the seniors, boys between the ages of 15 and 19, were almost equally proficient. Although there were no perfect scores, four out of five marks won in two sections, which was excellent considering the longer distances for the seniors.

Leon Stone won the junior forward passing contest held at Loyola university field with five perfect throws in as many attempts. He led in a comparison of scores with other sectionals. Stone threw five times from a distance of 15 yards at a hoop with a diameter of 3 feet. Each time he found the target. In three other sections the winning mark was four out of five attempts, while at Washington park six boys tied with three out of five and thus entered the finals.

Ernest Kelly, 1533 East 67th street competing at Washington park, and Richard Jenkins, 1639 East 86th street, at Bessemer park, had perfect scores in the junior drop kicking. In this event the boys were required to kick 20 yards from the goal posts.

Win as Contest Nears End.

The older boys forward passed 20 yards at the target. The additional five yards cut down the accuracy Harvey Featherley, one of the first ten boys to throw at De Paul university field, passed through the hoop three times, getting a mark which lasted until the last two contestants were called. This pair, Emmett Conley, 2618 Hampton court, and Jay Kearney 2748 North Richmond, scored four out of five throws and eliminated Featherley from the championships.

Conley won a football letter as an end at Columbia academy and now is on the squad at St. Michael's High school. Kearney won a letter at guard on the De Paul academy eleven last season and is out after another this year.

Donald McGinty won the senior drop kicking contest at Douglas park with four goals out of five attempts from a distance of 30 yards. His mark also led the seven sectionals. Contestants at Kelvyn park, De Paul field, Mills stadium and Loyola field scored three times in five trials.

Winners to See Big Game.

The winners in the finals next Saturday will receive a ticket and transportation to either the Notre Dame-Navy game at South Bend, Oct. 11, or the Illinois homecoming contest with Northwestern Oct. 18.

The forty boys eligible for the finals are divided as follows: Junior passing, 12; junior drop kicking, 8; senior passing, 10; senior drop kicking, 10. The summaries:

Infantry Major Wins Army Golf Title, 5 Up

Leavenworth, Kas., Sept. 20.—(AP)—Maj. R. K. Sutherland, infantry, unattached, won the national army golf championship here today, defeating Lieut. J. A. Cranston, West Point, 5 and 4. The match ended on the 32d green. Sutherland led 2 up at the end of 18 holes.

ELGIN LOSES BY POINT.

Elgin, Ill., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Elgin High heavyweights lost their season opener here today to La Salle-Peru, 7 to 6. Born scored for Elgin on an 80 yard run after intercepting a pass. Ebbert plunged over for La Salle-Peru and Galassi kicked the extra point that won the game. Elgin lightweights won the curtain raiser, 6 to 0.

THREE REASONS THE CARDS ARE ON TOP

BURLEIGH GRIMES. FRANK FRISCH. JIM BOTTOMLEY.

Not long ago the St. Louis Cardinals were doing a fine job of getting nowhere in the National league, but look at them now—leading the league and setting a pace that seems certain to land them the pennant. Acquisition of Burleigh Grimes, who steadied the pitching staff, and inspired performances of Frankie Frisch at second base and Jim Bottomley at first base, have transformed what had been an "also ran" into a championship team.

Chicago's Bears open the professional football season today, meeting Brooklyn at Mills' stadium. The game starts at 2:15 o'clock.

While the Bears and Brooklyn are engaged, the Chicago Cardinals, with Ernie Nevers again in the lead, clash with the Green Bay Packers on the league champions' gridiron.

Under the direction of Ralph Jones, former coach at Lake Forest academy and the University of Illinois, the Bears have completed two and a half weeks of preliminary drill the like of which a pro team seldom has undergone. Six new men will start on the Bears' eleven and as many more will see action during the contest.

Aim for Winning Team.

The number of recruits attests the desire of the owners, George Halas and Ed Sternaman, to produce a winning club. Last season the Bears won only four games while losing nine and tying in two other contests.

Bronko Nagurski, former Minnesota star, is one of the stars signed by the Bears. The Bronk will play tackle today although later he may be shifted to full back, where he is equally at home and equally valuable.

The other new men in the starting lineup are Lyle Drury, St. Louis university; Paul Schuette, Wisconsin, Babe Frump, Ohio Wesleyan; Dick Nesbit, Drake, and Joe Litzenich, St. Louis university.

Grange to Play Half.

Red Grange is slated for left half, his old position, but Walter Holmer, an all-conference full back in 1928, probably will be seen there most of the afternoon. Holmer was shifted from full back to half after Litzenich Nagurski, and Paul Frankling of Franklin college were secured by the Bears.

Carl Brumbaugh of Florida is understudying the veteran Joe Sternaman at quarter back, while Bill Senn and Laurie Walquist, Bear veterans, will replace Nesbit.

Paddy Driscoll, for more than ten years a star in the professional league, has not joined the team, because of a wrenched muscle in his leg. Driscoll may report later.

Brooklyn is a new entry in the National league. However, several of their men have played for the old New York Giants. Among these are Comstock, Kelly, McBride, and Hagberg. Izzy Yablok, who once called signals for the Colgate eleven, is Brooklyn's field general.

MORT POEHLMAN WINS UNIVERSITY CLUB GOLF MEET

The University club's stag golf tournament yesterday drew guests from the Hamilton, City and Collegiate clubs and the prize list was about evenly divided. The field shot 36 holes and Mort Poehlman of University, who is in the finals next Saturday for the club championship, finished with 76—80—156 for first low gross.

A. J. Dedrick, Hamilton club, was second with 87—83—170 while Charles Richardson, also Hamilton, took third with 87—90—177.

Competition in the net division was keen. H. J. Koenen won first with 192—60—132, one stroke ahead of J. H. Freeman with 193—60—133. F. J. Holland was third with 196—58—138. All three are from the University club.

Eddie Tolan Wins Two Sprints at Hamilton

HAMILTON, Ont., Sept. 20.—(AP)—Eddie Tolan, Negro sprinter from the University of Michigan, captured the 100 and 220 yard dashes at a track and field carnival conducted by the Hamilton Olympic club here today. Tolan defeated Leigh Miller of Hamilton, by three yards in the century, which he covered in 10 seconds flat over a water soaked track and into a head wind. Tolan ran the 220 in 22 2-10 seconds.

Bricklayers vs. Carpenters at De Paul field.

Notre Dame Varsity Beats Frosh, 76-0

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—The Notre Dame varsity, showing the same power which last year carried it to a national championship, today rolled up a 76 to 0 score against four freshman teams in a regulation game. It was the first scrimmage of the year.

Coach Knute Rockne used three complete teams, the first and second string men getting into the game twice. Coach Bill Jones put a formidable group of freshmen on the field and their offense and defense were better than the topheavy score would indicate.

Varsity Scores 3 Times.

The first varsity team played about ten minutes and scored three times during the first quarter. It lined up as follows:

In the second half, O'Brien had replaced Kosky at left end and he immediately snagged a 20 yard pass from Conley for a touchdown. Kosky made one run of 25 yards on an end around play and caught a pair of passes for long gains.

Savoldi and Mullins carried on their duel for the full back post, both performing brilliantly. Savoldi ran back a kickoff for 30 yards and took the ball 55 yards on the next play for a touchdown.

Carideo Kicks in Form.

Frank Carideo made seven successful place kicks for extra points, one being blocked, and his punting was on a par with his work of last year.

At left half, Schwartz made several long passes. Leahy got away for runs of 25 and 30 yards, both resulting in touchdowns that were called back.

Both Yarr and Butler showed up well at center and this hole seems to be taken care of satisfactorily.

DOC KRONE READY TO GIVE CHICAGO A MAT CLASSIC

If the Illinois Athletic commission sanctions the return of the heavyweight wrestlers to Chicago, John Doc Krone the mat impresario, has a card ready to present which he says will put Chicago right with the world, as far as the big boys who grunt and gouge are concerned.

A week ago Doc Krone announced his civic pride had been "cut to the core" because Chicago was the only city of any consequence in the country whose wrestling fans were denied the right to view their favorite sport. He pictured Dallas, Los Angeles, Philadelphia, Shreveport, Memphis and other cities going ahead of Chicago because Chicago had no wrestling.

The contest which promoter Krone has in mind is Jim London against Gus Sonnenberg.

"It is the match of the century", Krone said last night. "The rest of the world will be plenty jealous of Chicago if we can stage that match here".

BRUDER DISPLAYS OLD DASH AS N. U. TRAMPLES FROSH

Scores One of Purple's Five Touchdowns.

Northwestern's football squad, participating in its first combat of the season against the freshmen, yesterday displayed flashes of the power which is expected to make it a leading contender for the championship in the Western conference race.

The varsity accumulated a total of five touchdowns against a stubborn yearling crew, and in the last quarter the frosh resisted a threat on their goal line when Hart, Negro half back from Wendell Philips High school, intercepted a pass and ran 60 yards for the only freshman score.

Bruder Shows Old Dash.

Capt. Hank Bruder showed some of his old time dash by reeling off a number of long runs and scoring one of the varsity touchdowns. He scored on a reverse in which he smashed through right tackle, eluded the secondary and raced 30 yards to the goal line unmolested. The other varsity scores were made by Al Moore, Pug Rentner, Harry Pritchard and Reb Russell.

Coach Hanley admitted that he was pleased with the efforts of a number of the men but pointed out that there was a tendency to fumble and weakness in blocking.

Yesterday's game revealed weakness at the center position. Red Clark, understudy to Erickson last year, was absent from the workout and the pivot duties were handled by a trio of candidates including Paul McDonald and Harold Weldin, both sophomores, and Jimmy Vail, of last year's B team. Weldin, 165 pound youngster from Peoria, turned in the best offensive of all the center candidates.

Some brilliant running was done by Rentner and Russell, full backs, and Bruder, Moore, Griffin, Hails, Fossier and Martin, half backs. Lee Hanley, Lewis and Leach tossed a number of passes for good gains.

MICHIGAN SHOWS POWER.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Sparkling play by Hudson, Newman and Cox in the back field, and Daniels, Hewitt and Sikkenga at ends, stood out in the first scrimmage of the Michigan football squad today. The workout showed that the squad is much farther advanced in all around play than it was at a corresponding time last year.

Coach Kipke ran his first team, made up of Smith, center; Cornwell, Hozer, and Purdum, guards; Gitman and Draveling, tackles; Daniels and Hewitt, ends; Tessmer, quarter; Eastman, Heston and Simrall, half backs and Hudson and Cox, full backs, against a third string squad, while the second team was thrown against the fourth.

The first string eleven ran up a 20 to 0 score in two regulation quarters, counting twice through the line and once on a forward pass.

MAROONS STILL PASSING.

Although Coach A. A. Stagg has not indicated who will be included in his University of Chicago varsity eleven this year, Maroon stars of other years were speculating yesterday on the strongest team which could be selected from the squad. No scrimmage was held, most of both sessions being devoted to punting and passing under fire while the linesmen went through the usual fundamental drills.

As the alumni saw it, Andy Brislen, guard last year, is the best center. They expect to see Hamburg and MacKenzie, a utility full in 1929, at the guards; Trude, if he is eligible, and Horwitz at the tackle berths, and Wein and Cowley as the ends. Paul Stagg seems to have an edge on the quarter back post, with Capt. Van Nice, Temple, and Knudson standing out in the back field.

OHIO REGULARS PLAY SUBS.

Columbus, O., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Ohio State's first string played only with the second team in a practice game today. The starting first team was composed of Larkins and Farrier at end; Haubrich and Baumgarten at tackle; Selby and Wingert at guard; Ebrenberger at center; Wesley Fesler and Holcomb at halves; Sola at full back and Hinchman at quarter back.

The second team had Ferrall and Rubenstein at end; Griffith and Bell at tackle; Kite and Luks at guard; Nasman at center; Hodnick at quarter; Carroll and Gardner at halves, and Bauer at full.

FRESHMEN STOP PURDUE.

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Purdue's freshmen today put an end to any overconfidence that may have existed in the Boilermakers' football camp by stopping the Big Ten champions completely during a long offensive scrimmage.

With the exception of Alex Yunevich, who made several good gains during the short time he scrimmaged, and Jim Purvis, who gained occasionally through the line, the defensive ability of the yearlings was too much for the varsity back field.

The varsity lined up with Lewis Pope and Jim Purvis at halves, Alex Yunevich, full back; Jack White, quarterback; Paul Calvert and Ed Moon, ends; George Van Bibber and Horace Buttner, guards, and Lewis Miller, center. The blocking of the linemen was weak, while the back field was unable to time its attack accurately.

BADGERS STRESS TACKLING

Madison, Wis., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite sent the Wisconsin football squad through a stiff three hour workout of blocking, tackling, and charging this afternoon. Open field tackling lasted for half an hour.

The only scrimmage was kicking drill, in which punts were covered as in a regular game. Oman, Lusby, Rebholz, and a new back, Johns showed up well in the kicking and Linfor made several long runs in returning punts.

Capt. Milton Gantenbein and Art Fritsch, guard candidate each blocked two punts. Oman and Hayes kicked several goals from placement in scrimmage.

Lott Wins First Heat of Race for Outboard Prize

Fox Lake, Ill., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—E. P. Lott, Chicago outboard speed boat pilot, was first choice tonight for the outboard speed championship of the middle west. The Chicago boatman won the first heat today of the Commander Eugene F. McDonald Jr., trophy race, feature event of the central states divisional championship regatta, held here preliminary to the national championships at Middletown, Conn., next month.

Four world records were broken in the sensational meet which attracted 171 outboard pilots. Hilda Mueller, Bay City, Mich., pilot, opened the record breaking performance in the first race. Her time was 28.173 miles an hour in the A class race for small motors.

George Cost, Birmingham, Ala., won the B class race for professional drivers in the record time of 37.791 miles an hour. Julius Petriak, Berwyn, Ill., and Ray Pregenzer, Antioch, Ill., won the amateur and professional divisions, respectively, of the E class race in record breaking time. Petriak went 39.422 miles an hour and Pregenzer in 41.379.

Second and final heats in each class to determine the central states championships will be run tomorrow. The water chase for the McDonald trophy, $10,000 cup donated by the Chicago sportsman, will again feature the program.

FIVE THOUSAND SEE ONWENTSIA STEEPLECHASES

Five thousand witnessed the tenth annual race meeting held yesterday by the Onwentsia Hunt club.

In the event for amateur girls, Picadome, owned by John M. Hughes and ridden by Irene Michell, was first. Glovers Past, owned by Charles Glore, and ridden by Florine Goldsmith, was second, and Suit Yourself, owned by George Everitt and ridden by Laura Sprague, placed third.

In the first race three-quarters of a mile was to be covered by amateur riders mounted on half-bred horses. Golden Dawn, owned by Laurance Armour and ridden by James Simpson Jr., was first; Hillock, owned by J. B. Balding and ridden by Mr. Balding, was second, and Picadome, owned by John Hughes, was third.

The second race was won by Ticmer, owned by A. A. Schlesinger. Fire Cure, ridden by S. Farro and owned by C. H. Oshel, was second, and in third place was Lampear, owned by E. S. Nichols and ridden by W. Kirby.

The third and fifth races were combined as only a small number of entries were received. Tempo II., owned by the Walbri Farms and ridden by Regan McKinney, was first; Maitland, owned by Austin H. Niblack and ridden by J. A. Balding, was second, and third was Massillon, the possession of Benjamin Leslie Behr, and ridden by George Sprague.

An exciting feature of the last race was the recovery of Mr. Balding, who was thrown from his horse at the first jump. Mr. Balding ran alongside of his mount for a couple of seconds, jumped on while the horse was at a full gallop, and succeeded in taking third place. First place was won by Mas, owned by the Walbri Farms and ridden by A. G. Wilson. Second place was taken by the Laurance Armour entry, Myrthue, ridden by James Simpson Jr.

HURRICANES RIDE DOWN TEMPLETON FOR POLO TITLE

Take Third U. S. Crown, 6 to 5.

Westbury, N. Y., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Stephen Sanford's Hurricanes won their second consecutive open polo championship of the United States today, turning back Winston Guest's Templeton team, 6 to 5. The game was played before a crowd of 15,000 on the international field of the Meadowbrook club. This is the third time the Hurricanes have taken the title.

The victory made Sanford and Capt. C. T. I Roark, who rode with him at No. 3 today, title holders in both British and American polo, for the Hurricanes won the champion cup in London in June. In place of the younger Roark Aidan and Gerald Balding, who had played on the team in the London games, Eric Pedley and Robert E. Strawbridge Jr. carried on to today's victory.

The team as it rode today was exactly the same that defeated Argentina in the final of the tournament in 1926 and, with Watson Webb in Pedley's place, the same that turned back Sands Point last year.

The tide of the game swung back and forth and the Guests, Raymond and Winston, Lewis Lacey and Lieut. Humphrey Guinness, riding in top form, were not to be run away from. Toward the middle of the game it looked very much as though they were forcing things their own way.

But before Templeton could break through to the full attack the Hurricanes resumed their work and in the sixth and seventh periods came from behind with two goals in each to take a lead just sufficient to bring them victory. The lineup:

HURRICANES [6].		TEMPLETON [5].
S. Sanford	No. 1	R. Guest
E. L. Pedley	No. 2	W. F. C. Guest
Capt. Roark	No. 3	L. L. Lacey
R. E. Strawbridge Jr.	Back	Lieut. H. Guinness

Score by periods:

Hurricanes	1	0	1	0	0	2	1	0	—6
Templeton	1	0	1	0	2	0	0	1	—5

Goals: Hurricanes—Sanford [2], Pedley, Roark [3]. Templeton—Winston Guest [4], Lacey.

Referee—W. J. White. Time of period, 7½ minutes each.

Weather May Be Bad for Ducks—Rabbits Like It

BY BOB BECKER.

The old American sport of rabbit hunting, either with or without a hound, may be due for a big revival this fall because of the duck situation. With reports indicating anything but an abundance of waterfowl because of unfavorable nesting conditions in the north sportsmen will find it not only a sensible conservation policy but also time well spent to devote more attention to upland game this fall and take fewer trips to the marshes.

Any help that the 6,000,000 hunters in the United States will give to the duck situation by such a program will return "more bird" dividends in the 1931 season.

Whereas the waterfowl have had a tough break on nesting conditions for two years the dry weather has produced bumper crops of pheasants, quail, and rabbits. Dry weather for the upland game birds means good hatches. Therefore this year has been a shining example of how an "ill wind" for the ducks blows good for the game bird inhabitants of meadows and fields. South Dakota reports an enormous crop of pheasants. Sportsmen who budget a certain sum for one or two mallard hunts might well pass up these jaunts and invade the pheasant paradises of the northwest.

The spectacle out there in October both in North and South Dakota, is unlike anything in other parts of the Mississippi valley. On one drive through a big field it is possible to see more pheasants in an hour than a sportsman would believe could exist in such an area. South Dakota allows the nonresident to ship 25 birds.

In most of the counties the season opens Oct. 16. If a day's shoot for open water ducks (bluebills, canvasbacks) is wanted, it is possible to get it in some counties of the Dakotas, but pheasants should be the main event on the hunting program.

Incidentally, the nonresident license fee in South Dakota is $25. The same price prevails for the nonresident who takes out a North Dakota hunting license.

Just as the dry summer has produced a big crop of pheasants in those states which have stocked these game birds, so the quail have prospered.

JONES FANS GET TOGETHER EARLY ON MERION LINKS

2,500 Follow Bobby in Practice Round.

Haverford, Pa., Sept. 20.—(AP)—Prediction that new golf attendance records would be made at the national amateur championship at the Merion Cricket club next week seemed justified this afternoon when a gallery estimated at 2,500 to 3,000 followed Jimmy Johnston, the champion, and three former champions, Bobby Jones, Jess Sweetser, and Max Marston, over the course.

This outpouring of fans two days before the play officially starts caused furrows to appear in the faces of officials of the club as they wondered what they would do next week when the firing begins in earnest.

The attendance today was greater than that attracted by the final of the last championship played at Merion when Jones defeated Von Elm in 1924.

Come to See Jones.

There was applause in plenty for the other three members of the foursome, but the crowd came to see Jones and every one seemed anxious to have a ringside seat every time he addressed the ball.

One Merion member of mature years expressed the sentiment of the majority. "I haven't walked this far since the last time Jones was here," he said.

The open champion made no great effort to break scoring records this afternoon, preferring to try his shots in preparation for the tests to follow.

Although most of the players and all of the spectators would have been glad to take Bobby's play, shot for shot, for the rest of their lives, he said he was not playing well.

Jones Pairs with Johnston.

A friend from New York suggested that he hoped to see him before the play starts, as he was afraid the star of the tournament would be too busy next week.

"I may not be," replied Bobby. "As a matter of fact, I may be watching the others play. If that turns out to be the case we'll walk around together."

Jones and Johnston played Sweetser and Marston in a best ball match, and while all played good golf there was nothing about the match to cause excitement in a gallery demanding sensationalism. The crowd today simply wanted to see the players and did not ask for super-golf.

For the first nine holes the scores were very close, Sweetser leading with 36, even par, Jones and Marston scoring 37 and Johnston 38.

Practically all the leading players were in action this afternoon and most of them will get in a final round tomorrow in preparation for the first qualifying round Monday.

The course was reported in good condition in spite of a distressing appearance of brown patch on two greens and some clover here and there in the fairway.

Johnston Likes Course.

"It is a great golf course," said Jimmy Johnston. "I have found it one of the most interesting I have played in a championship."

In the battle of champions, Jones and Johnston defeated Sweetser and Marston, one up, by winning the 18th hole, with par fours. Marston took five and Sweetser encountered a lot of last minute trouble. Jimmy was close for his par, but Bob had to sink a six footer to finish with a perfect figure.

Approximate medal scores for the round were 74 for Jones and 76 each for the other three, although Jones was in two traps and did not bother to play out after his partner halved the holes.

Jones was hitting his woods long and reasonably straight and seemed about to "come on his game." Johnston, too, played the best golf he has shown in recent months.

The approximate cards:

LEADING PROS TO PLAY IN MEDINAH OPEN GOLF MEET

Some of the country's best professionals will be drawn to the Chicago district tomorrow for the $3,000 open golf tournament which will be held at the Medinah Country club. The committee in charge of the event has announced that Gene Sarazen, Walter Hagen, Horton Smith, Johnny Farrell, Leo Diegel, Mac Smith and many other brilliant players will be definite starters.

Chicago will be represented by its best golfers, among them being Harry Cooper, Al and Abe Espinosa, Frank Walsh, Laurie Ayton, and Jock Hutchison. A strong contingent of amateurs will try their skill against the pros, Chick Evans, George Dawson, Don Hamilton, and Frank Justin being on the list.

The field will number 60 and play will be at 36 holes.

The Women's Western medal play tournament will begin at Glen View on Tuesday and continue until Friday. Mrs. O. S. Hill of Kansas City, last year's western champion, is to compete, and a representative field of Chicago's best golfers is assured. Among the competitors will be Mrs. Lee Mida, Mrs. Melvin Jones, Virginia Van Wie, June and Florence Beebe, Virginia Vilas, Helen MacMorran, and Mrs. John Arends.

Midwest Football League to Play 7 Games Today

ADVERTISING MEN SAY NICE THINGS ABOUT CAMPOLO

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 20.—Some very nice publicity is being mailed out from the public relations bureau of the Garden corporation regarding the prize fight of next Thursday evening between Jack Sharkey and Vittorio Campolo. This is the prize fight which Mr. Sharkey contracted for at a late hour one night after he had agreed to fight Primo Carnera in Chicago. He had accepted the terms and the fat Michael Malloy, a trusting soul who wished to produce the Carnera display, had taken a train back home much pleased with himself and happy over the courteous treatment he had received from the Sharkey party in New York.

The next morning he heard that some lawyer for the Garden firm, pouring over some old documents, had discovered, quite by accident, that Sharkey owed the Garden one more fight under an old contract. This was the more shocking to Mr. Malloy because only two days before he had been invited out to the sumptuous home of Mr. Will Carey, the president of the Garden firm, and amid such dazzling luxuries and refinements as silver goblets, caviar canapes and costly cigars, had heard from Mr. Carey, himself, that the Garden firm had no hold on Sharkey.

Just an Oversight.

"I know nobody so refined would fool anybody deliberately," Mr. Malloy wrote a friend a few days later, "so I suppose the answer is that a big business man with an expensive home is likely to forget little details like a contract with a heavyweight fighter involving $100,000."

There is no urgent reason why Mr. Sharkey should fight Campolo but then there was no more reason for him to fight Primo Carnera. For that matter, so far as I have ever been able to discover, there is never any urgent public need for any fighter to fight anybody, so this bout, while it will have no bearing on the serious affairs of the world, is really no more gratuitous than any other.

Mr. Sharkey has been promised $100,000, regardless of the result, and somehow, somewhere along the course of the arrangements, a charity has been declared in on the profits, if any. It is now announced that the navy and marine memorial fund, to erect a monument in Washington, is still short $50,000 of the desired total of $500,000 and that it is hoped to make up the deficit through this prize fight.

I do not know what this hope is based on for up to the present time, with the ball clubs brawling on the local grounds of the National league for the pennant, there has been very little space in the Gazettes for the very nice publicity emanating from the public relations offices of the Garden firm.

Public Is Apathetic.

Consequently, the public has been whipped into a prodigious apathy toward the spectacle and you may hear shrewd financiers of the prize fight industry predict very freely that the corporation will be lucky to wiggle off the hook, meaning that the show will make little more than actual expense of production, if that. Still, it is always good to have a charity on the pay roll because this tends to minimize the commercialism and also sells tickets to persons interested in the charity but disinterested in prize fighting.

The best story I have received from the public relations office regarding the contest tells me that Vittorio Campolo is not the common type of prize fighter, but a very intellectual and patriotic young man, the scion of a wealthy house in Buenos Aires, who entered the ring contrary to the wishes of his father and mother, to bring honor to his country by winning the heavyweight championship of the world.

In so many words, the piece asserts that "Vittorio did not enter the ring for the purpose of making money."

"His decision to fight was prompted by his countrymen, who begged him to bring the world crown to South America," I read. "Public opinion prevailed against the desires of his wealthy and refined parents, and they finally gave their consent, although his father, who had retired to an exclusive society resort near Buenos Aires, wished him to take over the management of his ten thousand acre ranch."

OAK PARK ELEVEN WINS SEASON'S OPENER, 42 TO 0

Rubini Leads Attack Against Belvidere.

Oak Park high school, 1929 Suburban league champions, overwhelmed Belvidere high, 42 to 0, in the villagers' opening game on Oak Park field yesterday.

A second team made it an all Oak Park day by beating Schurz reserves, 19 to 0, in a preliminary game.

Belvidere was no match for the heavier and more experienced villagers. Rubini, Oak Park half back, was the star of the game, making runs through tackle and around the ends of twenty and forty yards.

Lineup:

Loyola Preps Beat Senn, 2-0, on Safety in Last Period

Loyola of the Catholic league and Senn of the City league met in their twenty-second annual practice game yesterday at the Loyola stadium, with the former winning, 2 to 0. A crowd of 10,000 saw the game. The first three quarters were about even, but in the middle of the last period Loyola obtained the ball and in seven plays brought it from the Senn 30 yard line to the three yard marker, where the City leaguers held. An attempted Senn punt from behind the goal posts became a fumble, and Capt. Beuchel of Senn fell on the ball for a safety. Acting Capt. Ray Durkin and Harry Hofherr featured for the victors, while Beuchel and Pollard stood out for Senn. Lineup:

Aurora, Ill., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—York High of Elmhurst defeated West Aurora here today, 2 to 0.

MANDELL WILL BE HIS OWN BOSS IN HERMAN FIGHT

Sammy Hopes to Climb to Top of Welters.

Sammy Mandell, who severed relations with Eddie Kane, his manager, after he lost his lightweight championship to Al Singer in New York, plans to regain ring honors under his own direction. Sammy signed the contract for his fight with Tommy Herman Friday night at the Coliseum and will be his own manager from now on.

Mandell plans a campaign in the welterweight class which he hopes will lead to a title opportunity against Tommy Freeman, who recently took the crown from Young Jack Thompson.

The bout with Herman Friday night will be Mandell's second since he was dethroned as lightweight champion. He won a ten round decision from Mickey O'Neill of Milwaukee at Janesville, Wis., last Monday night, and later was suspended by the Wisconsin boxing commission for coming into the ring a pound over the weight agreed upon.

Sammy is beginning near the bottom of the welterweight division in his efforts to win himself a new crown. His opponent Friday, Tommy Herman, has had few fights of importance.

Mandell is not unacquainted with the welter division, however, as he lost to Jimmy McLarnin twice and whipped Jackie Fields at catchweights before he lost his lightweight title.

The bout Friday night calls for eight rounds, matches Tuffy O'Dowd, of Pocatello, Idaho, and Ted Ross of South Chicago. The remainder of the card follows: Harry Fierro vs. Georgie Nate; Paul Liberto vs. Sammy Levine; Nick Broglio vs. Prince Saunders; Herbie Serex vs. Joey Bozart.

WOMAN DRIVER CLAIMS WOMEN DRIVERS SAFER

And Quotes Figures to Prove Her Point.

BY VIRGINIA SCHMITZ.

"Yeah, just what I thought, another woman driver," the gallant gentleman yelled as he passed, cutting me off so short I had to swerve out of line to escape.

"Just another woman driver"—the favorite remark of the man at the wheel. And we women, whatever we think of masculine driving, take it, but don't exactly like it.

Drive in the center lane and discover that you are usurping a purely masculine privilege; drive slowly and you are startled by loud tones announcing that "you're burning up your brakes."

"That's a Swell Hearse."

A Yale graduate and a Saturday night hoodlum sitting at the wheel in congested traffic are brothers under the skin when it comes to their expressed opinions of women driving.

Occasionally I obey the speed laws only to be greeted in passing by "That's a swell hearse you got, girlie."

And the other day I stopped at the corner of Glenwood and Elmdale to permit a white haired woman, marooned in the middle of the street frightened and bewildered, to pass over to the curb. I wasn't going more than 20 miles an hour, but after I put on my brakes an irate masculine voice issued from the car behind me:

"Move over to the side, if you're going to park."

Floating back on the exhaust as he rushed ahead came the familiar remark, "Well, what do you expect?—another woman driver."

But the statistics, as far as they go, lean to the feminine. Figures released by the Chicago Motor club show that it's safer to be just another woman driver.

Women Drivers Safer.

Surveys made on a national basis indicate that women compose 24 1-3 per cent of the drivers of the country and are involved in only six per cent of the accidents. The figures do not exclude women absolved of blame in accidents, but include all of them right or wrong. Out of 569,960 drivers involved in accidents 33,830 of them were women. That is, while roughly one out of every four drivers is a woman, they become involved in only one accident in 17.

Of course men may answer that paper figures of the number of women who drive cars mean nothing as long as there are no statistics showing the relative number of mile hours driven by men and women.

From Evanston comes the rebuttal to that, where police believe there are probably more women driving more hours that in any city in the world. Figures from the accident prevention bureau show that women are involved in only 7.77 per cent of the accidents occurring there.

More Women Getting Cars.

And whatever they say about the other women's driving, men are buying cars for their wives and letting them drive the family bus more and more often. The man who a few years ago went on record as saying, "I love my wife and I'm fond of my car and I want to keep them both," as an argument against letting her drive, hasn't lessened his affection for either but he taught her how to drive last year. Yet he's still swearing and swerving angrily ahead of "those idiotic women drivers."

The only man I found who would give even a faded bouquet to the feminine hand that turns the wheel said that men are better drivers but that "women drive better." By that, he explained, he meant that men know how to drive but are negligent about it, while women put into play all they know carefully and thoughtfully, but don't know enough.

On the other hand there is the man who said, "I can tell a woman driver a mile away. They falter along in an unmistakably feminine manner. See, there's one up ahead."

And to prove it he stepped on the gas and came abreast ready to gloat over "another woman driver."

Sure, it was a man.

United States Has 76 Pct. of World's Motor Vehicles

There are now over thirty-five million motor vehicles in the world for at the end of last year, according to "Facts and Figures of the Automobile Industry," just issued by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. there were 34,876,837. Of this number 26,501,443, or 76 per cent, were in the United States. This country has the greatest number in proportion to its population—one to every 4½ persons while the world average is one to 54½ people. Ethiopia may be considered the least motorized country for its population per motor vehicle is 17,781.

PENNSYLVANIA DESTROYS 32,235 ROADSIDE SIGNS

Employes of the Pennsylvania department of highways have just completed the destruction of 32,225 roadside signs embodying every type of blur, daub, scrawl, and tattered legend that came within the definition of illegal advertising. A report recently submitted to W. A. Van Duzer, assistant chief engineer of the department, awarded to Erie county the palm for the most notable improvement in roadside appearance. In that county alone caretakers hauled out 6,427 of the noxious emblems, and employes in nine other northwestern counties took down more than 7,000 signs.

The campaign was state wide. Orders were issued that illegal signs, including those on the highway right-of-way and those erected on private property without specific permission or lease, were to go. Signs constructed in imitation of the department's official markers were given the official taboo, and the perpetrators warned that such imitation was illegal.

AVIATION

PLANE'S DESIGN GREAT HELP IN COSTE'S FLIGHT

BY ROBERT WOOD.

A portion of the success of Coste and Bellonte in their conquest of the North Atlantic from Paris to New York belongs to the aeronautical engineers who designed the scarlet Breguet sesquiplane and its Hispano Suiza motor, for aeronautical experts agree that the efficient performance of the Question Mark on its long flight was due in a large measure to the nice relationship between speed and power incorporated in its design.

Power meant speed and speed was necessary to conquer the headwinds encountered, to push the heavy plane through the opposing force of contray winds. Power meant a bigger motor and more fuel to feed it. More fuel meant greater load. A nice calculation of the relationship between these factors was necessary.

"It is easy here to start a vicious circle," one engineer stated, in commenting on the design of the Question Mark, "but the engineers who built the Breguet and its big motor knew and agreed with Capt. Coste that he must have the speed that would enable him to make good headway against winds approaching 40 miles an hour."

Uses Bigger Engine.

When Coste and Le Brix flew the South Atlantic, making the first nonstop flight from the coast of Africa to South America, they used a Breguet powered with a Hisso motor that developed 600 horsepower. On the record breaking distance flight to the edge of Manchuria from Paris Coste and Bellonte used the same type engine, with about the same horsepower.

Last year, when they attempted the westward trans-Atlantic flight and turned back at the Azores, they again used the 600 horse power Hisso motor; but on his last flight Coste demanded and received a new engine of greater power by 150 units.

The plane with the new motor turning up 750 horsepower has a high speed close to 160 miles an hour, faster than any other machine to make the ocean crossing.

Col. Lindbergh's Spirit of St. Louis was a 125 mile an hour machine that could be forced up to about 130 and which cruised at a little more than 100. Chamberlin's Bellanca could easily attain 129 and cruised at 115. Admiral Byrd's America and Maj. Kingsford-Smith's Southern Cross cruised most economically at 85 to 90 miles, and the Southern Cross, a little the faster of the two, could be pushed up to 120.

Got Splendid Start.

If any of these planes had tried the western crossing from Paris it is unlikely that they would have reached New York. The Bremen, another slow machine, had great range because of its lift, but it is doubtful that it could have flown against head winds as the Breguet did.

An analysis of Capt. Coste's flight shows what speed did for him. With helping winds he attained an average speed of close to 140 miles for the first 600 miles. He probably had a wind of fifteen mile velocity, and that, plus his air speed of 125 miles with the big load, gave him a splendid start.

Toward the end of the flight the Question Mark slowed down so much that the average for the distance flown when calibrated is not likely to exceed 100 miles an hour. If Coste had had only 100 miles cruising speed it is unlikely that he would have reached New York in a single hop.

Coste Waited for the Weather.

Capt. Coste did one other thing that has been rare in westward trans-Atlantic attempts. He waited for the weather. He waited for unusual weather and did not let public opinion, pressure, or the enthusiasm of friends, or his own patriotism push him off before the meteorologists said the word.

The red Breguet on its record is one of the most efficient airplanes in the world, and yet it had no pay load. It carried merely the men necessary for the flight, the radio, fuel, and oil.

Air transport over the ocean in heavier than air machines, one engineer said, is certainly on the way, but he added that Capt. Coste's flight, successful as it has been, proved definitely that transoceanic air transport by plane is a long way off unless frequent landing places for refueling can be provided. The Coste plane was loaded, he said, far beyond the safety mark, and much must be done in the way of research, the perfection of new materials for lighter structures, and the development of greater power units with less weight before trans-Atlantic flying is as an economic factor.

FLIVVER MONOPLANE IN PRICE RANGE OF AUTO PUT ON MARKET

KANSAS CITY, Kas.—A "flivver" monoplane in the price range of automobiles has been placed in commercial production.

A "featherweight" of 580 pounds, it is powered with a two-cylinder motor weighing forty-six pounds which burns ordinary motor car gasoline.

Fuel and lubrication oil are mixed and carried in a single tank built into the cowling ahead of the pilot.

The plane has a speed of sixty miles an hour, carrying one person with the two cylinder motor and a pilot and passenger with a three cylinder engine.

It is called the American Eaglet and was designed by D. H. Webber, chief engineer of the American Eagle company, "for backyard aviators."

Scaled down from a full size airplane, the tiny ship has a wing span of 34 feet 4 inches, a length of 21½ feet, and a height of 78 inches.

Its landing gear has two air wheels twelve inches in diameter. The landing speed is fifteen miles an hour, and the plane has taken off in tests within fifty feet.

NASH IS GETTING READY FOR BUSY AUTO SEASON

Factories All Are Belching Smoke Again.

BY HAL FOUST.

C. W. NASH.

The Nash automobile factories in Racine, Milwaukee, and Kenosha, Wis., are belching smoke again after a quiet summer. Five thousand more men are employed than were at work last August. The heads of the plants see an end to the business depression that started with last October's stock market crash.

An official announcement is all that is lacking to confirm reports that the company will introduce its 1931 models early next month, an eight at a lower price than any eight now on the market, two larger eights, and a six at a lower price than any car ever produced by the Nash plant.

The time for presenting the new models, it was learned, was stepped up two months due to the prospects of an immediate improvement in the economic condition of the country. Originally it was planned to delay announcement of the 1931 line until December.

Public Has Been Hoarding.

"Since last fall," said C. W. Nash, president of the company, "the public has been hoarding, afraid of hard times. This fear has caused months of slack business. This fear has been the only cogent cause for the business slack.

"Money was taken out of circulation. Savings deposits have accumulated in banks. But society has suffered from its own parsimony.

"With a nonbuying public, factories were closed. Men were thrown out of work. Timid industries likewise caused unemployment by scrimping expenditures, in so-called retrenchment moves, rather than taking advantage of low costs for material and labor during the dull season to invest in permanent improvements.

"That's the economic history of the spring and summer of 1930. We're now entering a new period. Mr. John Jones and Mr. Tom Smith are beginning to see that most of their fears during the spring and summer had little foundation. They are loosening the strings of their purses.

There Is Money to Spend.

"Mr. Jones and Mr. Smith have money to spend. They have been frugal to a fault since last fall. They are putting the money back in circulation now, and that's what makes prosperity."

Mr. Nash is not a Pollyanna. His reputation is for conservatism. He is 66 years old. He manufactured carriages before the days of the automobile. He organized the Nash Motor company in 1916.

This is not idle talk from the Wisconsin manufacturer. He is not merely giving an interview to the effect that brighter days are ahead. He's backing this judgment with manufacturing schedules, advertising contracts and sales campaigns. If he is in error, the welfare of his company will suffer. If he's correct, the company will prosper from his judgment. He has much at stake.

"What is the Nash company going to do," he was asked, "to help start the American dollar rolling at last year's pace?"

Bargains for Car Buyers.

"It's not proper for me to discuss the new models before the official announcement is made after the dealers are stocked with cars," he replied, "but I suppose you've heard some of the reports about our new low prices.

"This fall is going to be bargain time for automobile buyers. To get the factories running full steam again the industry generally has slashed the profit margin to a minimum. The public is getting more car per dollar than ever before in the history of the automobile. Prices, generally speaking, can't go lower without wrecking the industry."

"Will you have anything new mechanically to inspire buying?" the interviewer inquired.

"That's also an improper subject for me to discuss before the official announcement of new models," he answered. "However, I want to call this to your attention. The driving public is demanding a quick get-away. Modern traffic puts a heavy demand on second gear. You can expect a development there.

"We'll have other nice refinements to improve riding comfort and ease of operation. However, there will be no radical changes. Today, as for years past, we are making exhaustive tests of every device conceived by the inventive genius of this mechanical world. But as far ahead as I can see, there will be no radical changes in the Nash automobile."

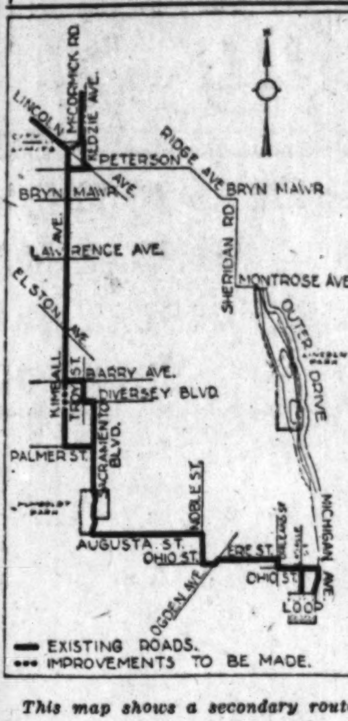
ROAD IS PLANNED TO LAND OF THE MIDNIGHT SUN

Steps toward the building of a road to "the land of the midnight sun" have been taken by congress. A pending measure, introduced by Senator Norbeck of South Dakota, provides for a report on the feasibility of a highway from Fairbanks to Point Barrow on the Arctic coast, or some other point at which the midnight sun is visible.

The proposal is in line with the study of a proposed highway to connect the northwestern part of the United States with British Columbia, the Yukon, and Alaska. The dominion of Canada is coöperating with the United States."

There is a growing sentiment, especially in the west, for a highway connecting this country and its territory of Alaska, penetrating one of the most picturesque sections of Canada. Western auto associations have given the project considerable support.

Northwest Route



This map shows a secondary route between the loop and the northwest side recommended by the Chicago Motor club for driving during rush hours to avoid the congestion on the diagonal streets bearing street cars and the overloaded boulevard route that uses Michigan avenue, the outer drive and Sheridan road. The Kimball avenue improvement at Diversey boulevard has struck legal difficulties and the connection between McCormick boulevard and Kimball avenue has been postponed until '31, due to the state's disapproval of the project for technical reasons.

NEWS AND VIEWS

More new models are being introduced, and at lower prices per value, as manufacturers are gaining impetus in sales and advertising campaigns in the revival of business this fall.

Marmon will soon add a V-16 to its line of straight eights. Cadillac, which inaugurated the V-16 motor this year, will have a V-12 next month.

Reo will be ready in a few weeks to introduce its new line of eights to be known as the Royal Reo.

The Austin roadster, following the lines of the present coupe, will soon be out. The Mathis, also in the bantam field, will reach quantity production at Durant's Lansing shops after the first of the year.

Studebaker announces a new Dictator with additional power, a new price range, and "free wheeling."

A new line of four cylinder Durants will be on exhibition before the end of the month, including three body types, sedan, coach, and coupe.

Many new trucks are coming into the market. White has added six new four cylinder chassis to its line. Dodge presents a new line, ranging in capacity from 1,000 to 11,800 pounds. Federal has entered the six wheel field with three heavy duty tandem drive units.

A super charger for small automobiles has been perfected by Ralph De Palma, experimental engineer, well known as a race driver. The device is clamped into place over the conventional carburetor. It will be ready for marketing next month.

The national automobile show will be held in New York Jan. 3 to 10 and in Chicago Jan. 24 to 31. The Motor and Equipment association will hold its annual show Nov. 10 to 14 at Cleveland.

Indicating a decided upturn in motor car demand, retail deliveries of Graham automobiles showed a national increase of 35 per cent during the last week of August over the preceding week, according to George H. Bird, president of Bird-Sykes company, Chicago distributors.

J. C. Chick has been appointed general sales manager of Cadillac.

Harold W. Roland has been appointed manager of truck sales for Reo.

BUS OPERATORS MEET IN CHICAGO LATE THIS MONTH

The National Association of Motor Bus operators will hold its annual convention in Chicago on Sept. 25 and 26. With close to two billion passengers now carried annually by buses in common carrier service, there will be much public interest in the program for the improvement of interline relations and the stabilization of local rates.

Arthur M. Hill of Charleston, W. Va., president of the national association, declared that with federal regulation of interstate lines one of the greatest needs in the field of bus transportation, and favorable action by congress at the next session anticipated, legislation will be featured on the convention agenda. Senator Glenn of Illinois has tentatively accepted an invitation to talk on this subject.

Another feature will be an address by Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club and chairman of the A. A. A. national committee on highway widening and planning, who will discuss the motor bus from the viewpoint of the private car owner.

"The aim of those engaged in bus transportation today," said Mr. Hill, "is to weave the more important lines of the country into a network of efficient systems, rendering the maximum service to the public. This must be brought about through connecting schedules, interline tickets, up-to-date methods of ticket accounting and other adjustments in line with public interest. The program outlined for the forthcoming convention is expected to be far reaching in bringing this about, as the leaders in this field will be in attendance.

"There has been no means of transportation yet developed which so closely fits into existing systems. This is evidenced by the wide use of the bus by rail carriers, in conjuction with air lines."

13 SENATORIAL CANDIDATES VOTE YES ON ROAD POLL

Seven Gave Unqualified Approval.

Replies were received from thirteen senators and senatorial candidates last week within forty-eight hours after they received questionnaires in THE TRIBUNE's poll on some important road problems that will confront the general assembly that convenes in January. All were favorable to the principles of widening and separating the grades of the important pavements.

The questions asked were:

1. Will you vote for a bill requiring the state highway department to give road improvements to the 37 senatorial districts of the metropolitan area in proportion to the revenue collected by the state from the motorists of this area?

2. Will you vote for grade separations and widening on arterial routes in preference to building new roads not o nthe bond issue systems?

3. Will you vote for a specific construction program such as the plan suggested by the Chicago Motor club?

Unqualified Affirmatives.

Seven men gave unqualified affirmative answers to all three questions. They were Frank E. Palacz [Rep., 9th district], 3020 West 22d street; R. V. Graham [Deeme., 19th district], 1916 South Autsin boulevard, Cicero; Arthur A. Huebsch [Rep., 7th district] 130 North Wells street; Harold G. Ward [Dem., 31st district], 1449 Rascher avenue; Herman Z. Haenisch [Rep., 31st district], 3752 Clifton avenue; Lowell B. Mason [Rep., 23d district], Oak Park; and Thomas A. Dillon [Dem., 5th district], 603 East 60th street.

Senator Victor P. Michel [Rep., 18th district] of Peoria gave a "yes" answer to the first two questions and replied to the third that he was not familiar with the Chicago Motor club plan, which is a specific construction program calling for the widening of 870 miles of radial highway, the building of 450 miles of two lane pavement to complete the state bond issue system, and the construction of 63 grade separations.

Certain Restrictions.

Senator James J. Parbour [Rep. 6th district] of Evanston wrote: "I am in favor of road building program outlined, but am unable to agree to vote for any measure until it is before the legislature for action."

Senator Richard R. Meents [Rep. 20th district] of Ashkum, in replying to No. 1, said, "So far as the gas tax is concerned, yes." He did not qualify his affirmative answer on No 2, but on No. 3 wrote, "Yes, with certain restrictions."

"The state is pledged," Senator Meents continues, "to finish the bond issue systems, and it would not be keeping faith with the voters to overlook that pledge. I am heartily in favor of the widening program in the metropolitan area, but not at the expense of delaying the completion of the state bond issue system through the diversion of funds derived from motor license fees. Certain portions of the gas tax could be and should be appropriated by the legislature for the widening program."

The Chicago Motor club program provides for the completion of the bond issue roads without delay, in 1932 and 1933.

Reserves Certain Rights.

Joseph J. Lelivelt [Dem., 7th district] of Maywood wrote, "I have signified my position in the affirmative on the three propositions, expressing my general position, but I reserve the right to act to the best interest of my district on specific bills presented."

C. W. Faltz [D., 35th dist.] of Somonauk replied affirmatively and without qualification on questions No. 2 and 3.

"Referring to question No. 1," he continued, "I do not believe that this would be fair to sparsely settled districts located close to the metropolitan area where country highways are used so extensively over week-ends. Neither would it be satisfactory eventually to the motorists of the metropolitan area who delight in taking a run out occasionally over the country highways.

"Arterial highways of sufficient width to care for all traffic should be built regardless of the amount of tax collected from motorists residing in the districts in which is is deemed advisable to locate such highways."

37 Senatorial Districts.

The metropolitan area, as considered from a traffic standpoint in the motor club's program, consists of an area lying within 100 or 150 miles of Chicago. The program calls for forty foot highways serving this territory. The territory includes 37 senatorial districts.

Senator Ray Paddock [R., 8th dist.] of Wauconda indicated he favored widening of pavements and separation of grades on arterial highways although he made several reservations that should not conflict with his voting for a program such as proposed by the motor club. His replies are as follows: "No. 1, "In my opinion the $100,000,000 program should be built as promised"; No. 2, "Yes, after the state has carried out its obligation regarding refunds to counties"; No. 3, "Yes, if it does not conflict with my answers to questions one and two."

The questionnaire was sent to all the senators and senatorial candidates of this larger metropolitan area. The replies will be published in THE TRIBUNE periodically as they are received, and they will be summarized shortly before the senatorial elections, for the information of the motoring public visiting the polls.

Auto Bus Industry Shows Much Progress in 10 Years

The last ten years have brought an entirely new mode of city, intercity and interstate travel with the development of the omnibus industry. Today there are 97,000 buses operating throughout the United States, of which approximately 50 per cent are engaged in passenger traffic, representing an original investment of $500,000,000 and earning a gross revenue of $325,000,000 annually.

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

ASHLAND AVENUE HAZARDS.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—I wish to state that the corner of Ainslie street and Ashland avenue is without protection to the pedestrians, especially so during the rush hours in the morning and evening. Safety islands have not been erected in order to afford at least a small amount of security to those who cross Ashland avenue to reach the Clark street surface line. The absence of these necessary devices, the widened street and the customary reckless speed of the drivers of autos make a veritable hazard to life.

The allusion to the rate of speed demands comment. The distance from Lawrence avenue to Foster street [about four or five blocks], which is without intervening "stop and go" lights, provides an opportunity for a long stretch of driving without traffic regulation. This possibility for unhindered motoring is accepted by many drivers as a license not only to exceed the speed limit in a strictly residential district but also to drive in race track fashion. Thus the security of the pedestrian, caused by the widened street and the absence of safety islands, is further enlarged. LEONARD G. FRIEL.

"SPEED TRAP."

Chicago, Sept. 19.—I wish to report a speed trap in operation Sunday, Sept. 7, on Montrose avenue approximately one-half block west of Sacramento avenue.

The trap consists of a man in a policeman's uniform, together with two other men who looked like corner loafers. The three of them hide behind cars parked along the north side of Montrose at least one-half block west of the west line of Sacramento. When a "sucker" comes driving along Montrose, the "policeman" jumps out suddenly from behind a parked car and loudly yells "Stop," and "Pull over to de curb." Perhaps the loafers are used as fake witnesses.

On Sunday, while there is a fair volume of traffic along Montrose at the intersection of Sacramento, the traffic along Sacramento at this point is very light. However, there is a stop sign at Sacramento.

With my wife and small son I was driving west in Montrose at a speed of 20-25 miles per hour and came to a full stop at Sacramento, and as there was no traffic at all along Sacramento, I started up my car quickly to a speed of 25 miles per hour and I was at least a half block west of Sacramento when the three individuals referred to suddenly jumped out from behind the car where they were hidden, ordered me to "pull over to de curb," where the "policeman" handed me a ticket alleging violation of city ordinance "23."

ATTORNEY R. E. LITTLE.

ANOTHER ROUTE TO ROCK ISLAND.

Princeton, Ill., Sept. 15.—Please be advised that your special correspondent, Mr. Hal Foust, is not very well informed on the highways of Illinois.

The best, most direct and original route from Rock Island to Chicago he has completely ignored. Practically all travel from the Tri-Cities to Chicago comes direct to Princeton over route 7. From Princeton to Chicago they may have their choice of two fine direct routes—No. 7 to Joliet and 4 or 4A Joliet to Chicago, or route 18, Princeton to Chicago, new, smooth, straight and in every way the opposite of the route that he suggests.

Mr. Foust's article is absolutely misleading, as your headline clearly shows.

R. S. ISAACSON.

MODERN CURB CORNERS.

Riverside, Ill., Aug. 29.—During my vacation I observed in a large city that all of the curbs and sidewalks at street intersections are rounded off at what appears a ninety degree arc. It makes quite a bit more room and gives the motorist an opportunity to maneuver his car without taking such a wide sweep around turns. I believe every city should adopt the idea; it promises great relief from bumping into sharp corners at least.

J. F. R.

NIGHT PARKING.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—I have been parking my car in the street along with half the people of the city. Recently the police have been busy handing out tickets on Lakeside place. That is certainly the thing to do if it is the law, but why are the police so particular about just one little street?

Every street around here is lined with parked cars every night, and I can't figure out why this partiality is shown.

Is it because some man in the nine hundred block has an empty eighteen dollar a month garage and made a complaint to the police about parked cars, hoping to make some money out of it?

Anyway, several of us living along this street think there is a great deal of unfairness displayed by the police in their method of enforcing the law.

THOMAS BENNETT.

21 STORY AUTO PARKING GARAGE IS OPENED HERE

A twenty-one story parking garage was opened last week at Harrison street and Wabash avenue. Its cost is given as $2,500,000. Its capacity is 850 cars.

As unusual as the size of the skyscraper automobile stable is the mechanical equipment for shooting the cars up and down three double elevators at a rate of a floor a second.

The doors of closed cars can be locked when the owner leaves his machine on the first floor. An aluminum arm operated by electricity gently grasps the differential and puts the car in the lift. A button is pushed, sending the vehicle to a designated stall on a designated floor. Some call the system automatic parking.

When the owner calls for his car, a teletype machine in the cashier's cage orders it for him. The teletype control, like those used in stock exchanges, flashes orders to the elevator operators who read ticker tape as they ride up and down. By the time a motorist gets his check and walks over to the elevator, his car will generally be ready.

Handling cars electrically has advantages besides speed and safety. It eliminates excessive gas fumes and noise, caused by running motors.

The garage interior, with lobby, waiting room, showers, locker rooms, check rooms, and other conveniences, has much the appearance of a modern hotel.

The new building is a unit of National Parking Garages, Inc., an organization which contemplates opening similar parking units in other cities. In Cincinnati, a parking unit is already well along in construction.

WESTERN GATES TO CHICAGO ARE BEING NEGLECTED

Wisconsin, Indiana Getting the Advantage.

The trend of pavement improvements within Chicago is working toward an advantage for eastern Wisconsin and northern Indiana in the commercial competition with sections of Illinois. The Lincoln park and the South park boards are extending traffic facilities along the lake front, but little progress is being made toward opening the western gates of the city.

Travel within Chicago constitutes a major part of the journey from the loop to any of the neighboring cities.

The driving time to Gary and to South Bend, Ind., has been reduced by the construction of the outer drive to Jackson park. It will be reduced further with the completion of Indiana pavement projects, and will be cut still more by the projected superhighway to connect Jackson park with the forty foot road under construction leading into Gary from the east.

Wisconsin Brought Closer.

Milwaukee and Kenosha, Wis., are being brought closer in motor time to Chicago by Lincoln park's outer drive. The park board has been making consistent progress in building the modern boulevard northward and there are definite plans for carrying it as far as Evanston.

In the meantime little is in sight for the entrances to Chicago from the northwest, the west, and the southwest. The growth of the Fox River valley cities is being retarded by the delays and hazards of the journey eastward after reaching Chicago's western suburbs. The same applies to the Illinois cities farther from Chicago, such as Rockford, Rock Island, Peoria, and Bloomington.

Elgin, Geneva, and Aurora will have forty foot highways this fall to the outskirts of Chicago. St. Charles has the four lane North avenue. Joliet will probably get its forty foot road in 1932. But all of these high speed roads end close to the city limits, far from the eastern destination of the traffic.

Progress Impeded.

The travel from the western city limits to the loop is over narrow, and in some places rough, pavements already congested without the additional traffic that the wider rural roads will bring. Heavy cross streams of vehicles and of pedestrians impede progress. The drive within Chicago is a hardship. Ogden avenue on the southwest side is a good example, or Milwaukee on the northwest side, or North avenue on the west side. Washington and Jackson boulevards are entirely inadequate.

State Senator Richard Barr, speaking of his home town, Joliet, recently made a statement that applies to other cities in the vicinity of Chicago.

"The future of Joliet," he said, "depends upon our proximity to Chicago, the market for our farm and factory products and the place of employment for many of our residents. Our distance in miles from Chicago is of little importance. The distance in time is the all important factor."

Modern Highways Proposed.

The senator was speaking in favor of widening the Joliet road and its improvement at the Joliet end. At the Chicago end of Joliet road is Ogden avenue, a narrow, rough street for considerable distance, and carrying a street car track. As long as Joliet motorists have to travel a street like the present one Joliet will remain too far in time from Chicago to enjoy fully the advantages of its geographic position.

The Chicago Plan commission has proposed modern highways from the western city limits to the center of Chicago, with continuous grade separation. The projects are costly.

There has been a growing sentiment for the state to undertake the job. This sentiment is taking root not only in Chicago but also in the neighboring Illinois cities, communities within driving distance of Chicago. This is especially pronounced in Illinois communities competing with eastern Wisconsin and northern Indiana for Chicago's trade.

The state's share of the gasoline tax is suggested as the means of paying at least a large portion of the total cost. This would be equitable, the proponents argue, because it would return to Chicago part of the $24,000,000 a year paid by Cook county motorists in gas tax and registration fees. At present the state does not spend any road money in Chicago.

Through Highway Projects Solution of Traffic Jams

Highway analysts are unanimous in indorsing through highway projects as one of the most effective plans to remedy congestion, especially that which exists by reason of automobiles passing through cities.

Nations Are Urged to Buy Silver to Bolster World Trade

OVIET REPORTS RING AN EARLY PORT IN WHEAT

Prices Lapse Later to Close Lower.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Reports that Russia has sold wheat in the Chicago market served to unsettle the trade yesterday and brought in a rush of short covering at the start which lifted prices 1⅛@ [illegible] over the early low with some orders caught on the way up. The market lapsed into dullness when the buying ceased, however, and dipped sharply toward the close in sympathy with Winnipeg, closing unchanged to ½c lower. September was 81c; December, 85@85⅛c, May, 91½@91⅝ at the last, with March at 88⅝c. The latter and May at a new low for the season.

Winnipeg wheat futures dropped to a new low on the crop on all deliveries with the October down to 76½c, any hedging at the last being responsible for net losses of 1@1⅛c. Reports from that market indicated that the trade was greatly worked up over the Russian selling. It was estimated around 500,000 bu Manitoba wheat was sold for export during the day.

Wheat Market Erratic.

Erratic fluctuations were a feature of the trade in wheat during the last week with the September showing independent strength and closing ⅝c higher as compared with the previous week while the deferred futures were [illegible] lower. Corn was 1⅛@2⅝c lower for the week with September higher; oats, 1⅜ higher to ⅝c lower, the former on September, and rye, [illegible] lower for the week. Net [illegible] of 10@15c were recorded in lard and a loss of 35c in bellies as compared with a week ago.

While many wheat traders were inclined to make light of the Russian news the price in Liverpool was 1@ [illegible] lower with pressure to sell Russian and other cash grain having a very depressing effect, and liquidation in futures developed on the way down. Beneficial rains were reported in parts of Argentina during the day, and apprehension regarding drought has been relieved for the time being. Buenos Ayres closed 1@1⅛c lower.

Action of Minneapolis wheat in closing [illegible] higher on wheat attracted some attention, as there was nothing in the general situation to cause that market to develop independent action. Movement of spring wheat this side of the international line continues to decrease, but in Canada there were indications of an increase. The trade looks for the visible supply on Monday to show a good increase, largely in the northwest.

Corn in Easy Close.

Corn advanced sharply early with local bulls, aggressive buyers and shorts covered freely, prices at the top showing as much as 3c over the early low, but the finish was easy and [illegible] lower with September 89⅝c at the last, with December 85⅛@ 85¼c, and May, 88½@88⅝c. Light frost was reported at some points in the Dakotas, but had little effect on the market and the forecast indicated higher temperatures over the week-end.

Strength in wheat and an improvement in the shipping demand were factors in causing the early upturn in corn. Shipping sales aggregated [illegible] bu with the spot basis unchanged to ¼c higher. Buenos Ayres closed ¼c lower for the day.

Independent Strength.

Oats developed independent strength and closed ⅛@1c higher, the latter on the September, which finished at [illegible]; while December was 40⅛@ [illegible], and May, 43⅛c. Commission houses bought on the dips, and more than offset hedging pressure and local selling.

December and May rye dropped to a new low on the crop as the result of scattered liquidation with the close [illegible] lower. September was 51c, December, 55⅛c, and May, 62@62⅛c at the last. Germany has abandoned its efforts to hold up the price of rye in that country, and admits that it has had to take a loss on its operations.

May Reopen Illinois Coal Mine Closed for 8 Years

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pana, Ill., Sept. 20.—It was reported semi-officially here today that the owners of the eight years closed Coalton coal mine near Nokomis, owned by the Illinois-Indiana Coal corporation of which Rice Miller of Hillsboro is president, are planning to reopen the mine, one of the largest in central Illinois. The mine is also one of the most completely equipped in the state, with large coal land leases. The report here also was that the Rutledge Coal company interests of St. Louis were negotiating for purchase and operation of the mine. Its reopening would mean employment of one thousand men.

Gas Industry Reports a Letdown During July

The generally depressed condition of trade and industry during July was reflected in operating results of both manufactured and natural gas utilities for the month. Reports received by the statistical department of the American Gas association representing 90 per cent of the manufactured gas industry indicate July sales of [illegible] cubic feet, a decrease of 1.3 per cent from the like month of 1929. A group of larger natural gas utilities, comprising about 80 per cent of the public utility distribution of natural gas, reports July sales of [illegible] cubic feet, a decrease of 14 per cent.

Stocks Here Finish Week with Flourish

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Wiping out earlier losses and forging above Friday's closing prices Chicago stocks ended the week with a flourish of strength yesterday. The upturn was a technical reaction resulting from the heavy selling of the market on the two preceding days. The gains that were made were accomplished on a small volume of sales.

Transactions for the day amounted to less than 100,000 shares the bulk of which represented dealings in one or two of the more active issues.

Early sales were made at prices considerably below the level of the previous day's close. Hang over liquidation and a vague uneasiness over the weakness in the market contributed to the early depression in prices.

Majestic Closes Higher.

Before the late brisk rally developed Majestic was forced to a new low below 18. Later, however, when many of the shorts in the stock began to cover their commitments for the week end the issue snapped back more than 4 points to 22¼, where it finished with a net gain of 2¼ points.

Grigsby finished the day about a point higher, having at no time during the day sold below its previous closing price. The strength in the issue, as in Majestic, was largely attributable to covering by the shorts. Sales in the stock amounted to approximately 11,000 shares.

Auburn enjoyed a quick recovery from its low around 112, finishing with a net gain for the day of 3 points on sales of a few hundred shares.

Transformer corporation, which was a weak spot in the dealings Wednesday and Thursday, slipped back 2 points to 12 on volume of less than 1,000 shares.

Fractional Gains.

The improvement among the utilities was moderate. Gains of a fraction were made by Missouri Kansas and Insull while Middle West was practically unchanged. An easier trend was noticeable among the investment trust shares, but declines were slight.

An analysis of the fifty most active stocks traded in on the exchange made by Otis & Co. shows a depreciation in market value for the week of $156,287,312, or 6.64 per cent. The market value of the fifty stocks at the close yesterday was $2,194,382,446, as compared with $2,350,669,758 at the close of the previous week.

The survey also shows that 36 of the stock were traded in last year These stock had a market value yesterday of $1,486,863,963, as compared with $2,910,536,148 on Sept. 21, 1929, a decline of $1,423,672,185, or 48.91 per cent.

SAVE TO SPEND IN DEPRESSION PERIOD: COOKE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 20.—Members of the Financial Advertisers' association, who are holding their annual convention here, celebrated with a banquet Friday evening at which Gov. Flem D. Sampson was guest of honor. During the banquet the governor announced that A. E. Bryson, retiring president of the association, has been made a colonel in the Kentucky National Guard. Mr. Bryson is a Chicagoan, being vice president of Halsey Stuart & Co.

A. E. BRYSON.

In a session earlier, Guy W. Cooke, advertising manager of the First National bank of Chicago, asserted that business depressions in the future will be entirely nullified when the people of the country learn to save and spend less in times of prosperity and to spend more when the business trend is downward. He said that the present system is to spend like a sailor when work and wages are plentiful and to hoard like a miser when things are not going so well.

Harold E. Wood, vice president of the Foreman-State corporation, talking on "Investment Banking in the Next Ten Years," expressed the opinion that the present buying of bonds by the public is only temporary and "good common stocks are more and more going to be regarded as prime investments for the individual and we must realize it." Natural gas securities, foreign loans, and investment trusts are three forms of investment which will be much in the public eye during the next ten years, he stated.

Weekly Debits Increase, Reserve Bank Reports

Debits to individual deposit account reported to the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago for the week ended Sept. 17, by 234 banks in thirty-eight leading clearing house cities in the seventh federal reserve district, aggregate $1,402,349,000, an increase of 16.6 per cent compared with a week ago [$1,202,198,000]. Compared with the corresponding week of last year [$2,023,970,000], a decrease of 30.7 per cent was shown.

BURDEN ON GOLD TOO HEAVY, SAYS BULLION EXPERT

Lays Money Ills to Britain, Mexico.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 20.—Urging that the treasuries of the United States, England, France, and Mexico revise their present policies regarding the coinage and holdings of stocks of silver whereby they would be heavier buyers of the metal at a time when the limited gold stocks of the world are operating in one sense to restrict international trade and the present low prices of silver in another, Rene Leon, partner of the banking house of W. C. Langley & Co., points out that no other measure could exert as great a constructive effect on world trade.

Mr. Leon, prior to joining the Langley firm, was in charge of bullion operations for the Guaranty Trust company, and frequently acted as an adviser to the United States treasury and the Federal Reserve bank of New York on matters affecting the precious metals. In 1924 a plan suggested by him to the French government affecting French exchange, was adopted by M. Poincare, then minister of finance.

On Bi-Metallic Basis.

"If half the world's population is on a gold basis while the other half is on a silver basis, then the commerce and trade of the world is on a bimetalic basis," said Mr. Leon. "If one metal is weakened the other must necessarily bear the financial burden of world trade. Sir Josiah Stamp and other distinguished economists seem to lay stress on the present scarcity of gold. It might well be that gold is now asked to carry part of the burden formerly borne by silver.

"For well upward of a century, silver has not been available at prices as low as current ones. Just so long as silver is the accepted medium of exchange of more than half of the population of the earth so long must it have some commodity value. The present buyers would, therefore, make a good bargain.

"On the other hand, purchases by the treasuries of the United States, England, France, and Mexico would instantly stimulate silver prices and the silver exchanges. No single constructive measure could conceivably approach it in its far reaching effects on the oriental psychology and through it on international trade."

Factors in Silver Market.

He points out that the chief factors in the silver market are the usage of the metal in commerce and the arts and buying by governments for coinage purposes. As far as the latter is concerned, Mr. Leon points out that some governments have ceased to buy while others have actually become sellers, thus helping to depress prices to unprecedented levels.

"Mexico, one of the two chief silver producing countries of the world, is now convening experts to solve the silver question," said Mr. Leon. "But Mexico did not consider the consequences when in September, 1921, it decided to reduce the weight and fineness of its time honored peso fuerte and of its fractional currency so as to enjoy a paltry seigniorage profit. By this act the Mexican government annually threw upon the markets of the world tons of the metal formerly used in coinage, while, on the other hand, the country's silver currency fell to a discount, when expressed in terms of Mexican gold, of approximately 10 per cent, despite the fact that silver coinage is legal tender to the extent of 20 pesos.

Tons of Silver Released.

"In March, 1920, Great Britain deliberately reduced the weight and fineness of its fractional currency, thereupon throwing tons of the metal upon the weakened markets in Bombay and Shanghai. And while the white metal piled up in ever increasing quantities at the Chinese treaty ports, the Chinese exchanges reacted in inverse ratio. Instead of importing cotton goods and other British manufactured commodities, the Chinese had imported British government silver.

"Mexico might have pleaded ignorance, for the country has little or no contact with the far east. Mexico's needs during troubled times were such that seigniorage profits accruing to the treasury had instant appeal, but Great Britain had no excuse. Practical psychologists are numerous in England. They should have considered the consequences before killing the goose that lays the silver eggs."

BIG TIRE FIRMS END PRICE WAR, NEW YORK HEARS

Will Stop 'Stealing' Others' Dealers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 20.—The termination of a price war in the tire industry, which has been going on secretly without a public change in the tire list since around July 1, has been agreed upon as a result of a series of conferences held during the last few days by leading factors in the tire industry, it is reported in the trade.

Although no formal agreements have been made as a result of these meetings, it is stated that some of the misunderstandings which were responsible for the price cutting campaign during the last few months have been cleared away and that the former discount allowed to dealers and commercial owners under the schedule of prices which went into effect early in June will be restored.

How War Started.

As a result of these meetings, it is said that certain trade practices, which were almost entirely disregarded in the recent price war, will be observed by the leading tire companies. For instance, the practice of a company to obtain the dealer or distributor of another company by giving secretly a larger discount will be discontinued.

The recent price war started, it is said, by one of the large companies taking an important dealer account from another large company by offering a larger discount. Almost immediately, the company which lost the dealer started to take as much of the other maker's business as possible by increasing the trade discount to its dealers.

Get Big Discounts.

As a result of this price war, tires, both commercial and passenger car types, were being bought by large users at four tens off, or the equivalent of a straight 35 per cent discount. In a few localities, five, six, and even seven tens off the list was the price to these users.

In the large centers, particularly, passenger car tires were being dumped under one pretext or another at equally liberal discounts. It has been the practice in the industry for several years to allow the large buyers of tires, the so-called commercial and national accounts, a trade discount of 10 per cent and 10 per cent, or "two tens."

Reports 24% Increase in Home Use of Electricity

Martin J. Insull, president of the Middle West Utilities company, reports an increase of 24 per cent in residential use of electricity by customers of the system during the first seven months of 1930, compared with the same period last year. The respective totals are 259,162,201 and 208,971,462 kilowatt hours, indicating that, despite business fluctuations, the household use of electricity is at a high level.

Activity Slackens Up in Heavy Construction Field

Activity slackened perceptibly during the last week in the nation's heavy construction and engineering field, Construction Daily reports. All classes of engineering jobs, excepting highways, aggregated $33,930,000, compared with $56,043,000 in the preceding week and $64,861,000 in the corresponding week last year.

TEST INDICATES TRADE BOOM NOW RETARDED BY EXCESSIVE THRIFT

That the current business depression is retarded in recovery by a rather widespread and unnecessarily severe pessimistic state of mind is indicated in a simple test recently conducted by James C. McDermott, president of the Philco Radio Distributing concern in Toledo, O.

According to Harold C. Place of the Toledo News-Bee, Mr. McDermott assumed the duties of an "inquiring reporter" and stopped forty-seven men and women, picked at random on the street, and put a series of questions to them.

The first question was, "Do you think business in general is good or bad?" Forty-four of the forty-seven said "bad."

The second query was, "Are you spending less than you would if you thought business was good?" And forty-one answered that they were spending less.

Next he asked, "Has the passing business depression decreased your income?" Again forty-four replied that it had not.

Then, to those who answered the last question in the negative, a final question was put. Here it is: "If your income has not been decreased, why are you spending less than you would if you thought business was good?" Thirty-six of the forty-seven confessed themselves completely stumped. They couldn't answer it. The rest offered fair or reasonable replies.

"The results of this test disclose to what a great extent state of mind is influencing the public attitude at the present time," Mr. Place declared. "We have gloomed ourselves into a hypnotic condition of economic fear. We have unconsciously created a mental hazard in our business relationships and in our buying habits which is responsible for unreasonable and unhealthy thrift. The practical effect is to retard the advancement of business and delay a return to something like normal conditions."

BANK CLEARINGS SHOW EXPANSION DURING WEEK

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Bank clearings for the third week of September show some expansion over the reports for the preceding weeks of the month, as is customary at this time.

The reduction in comparison with the unusually heavy total of last year, however, continues quite as large as in the earlier returns, while there is a considerable decline from the figures of two years ago as well. The total for this week at leading cities in the United States, as reported to Dun's Review, of $9,224,654,000 is 33.9 per cent below the amount of last year.

At New York City, clearings of $6,206,000,000 are 37.4 per cent under last year's, while the aggregate at leading centers outside of New York of $3,018,654,000 is 25.5 per cent less. At most of the larger cities in the east, as well as in the west and the south, the declines now are particularly heavy.

Will Build New $400,000 Steel Plant at Hammond

Plans for a $400,000 plant in Hammond, Ind., were announced yesterday by the W. G. Holliday company of Indianapolis, manufacturers of steel structural shapes. The plant is to be erected on ground bought from the Illinois Car company for $100,000.

If Your Investments Still Show a Loss—

BECAUSE of temporary losses have you resolved "to cut expenses to the bone," "to sit tight until the market comes back?" That attitude multiplied several million times only adds to depression and postpones trade improvement.

The Spring market upturn, based on premature expectations of revival, was more rapid than the upward movement in progress since the June slump, and therefore less stable. Value of all shares listed on the N. Y. Stock Exchange increased from $63,892,327,059 July 1st, to $67,721,086,999 on September 1st, a gain of nearly four billion dollars, wiping out more than one-third the June losses. New Offerings of Bonds Are 80 Millions

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 20.—Although new offerings of bonds showed a sharp decline this week from last, the total of $80,771,000 was nevertheless larger than for any other week since July. Last week's offerings aggregated $142,606,000, and during the corresponding week a year ago, $47,966,500. Only fourteen new issues were placed on the market this week, ranging in size from $23,735,000 to $329,000.

New railroad financing this week was heavier than that of any other group, with a total of $33,152,000, consisting of $23,755,000 Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis railroad general mortgage 4½s, $7,182,000 Cleveland and Pittsburgh railroad general and refunding mortgage 4½s, both guaranteed by the Pennsylvania railroad, and an issue of $2,235,000 Chicago Great Western railroad 4½ per cent equipment trust certificates.

Several Issues Pending.

Although several large pieces of new public utility financing are pending, only two issues were marketed this week, one an issue of $20,000,000 Customers Power company 4½s, priced to yield 4.40 per cent, and an issue of $2,500,000 Twin States Natural Gas company 6s, priced to net 6.75 per cent. The foreign financing comprised a single issue of $15,150,000 Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario 4¾s and 5s, guaranteed by the province of Ontario.

Unlike last week when more than $50,000,000 in new state and municipal financing was done, less than $10,000,000 was done this week, due to the fact that only a comparatively few large issues were scheduled for award. The principal municipal offering this week was that of $5,000,000 City of Los Angeles, Cal., 4¼s, which was brought out at prices to yield 3.00 to 4.10 per cent.

Offerings by Groups.

Offerings of bonds by groups for this and last week follow:

	This Week	Last Week
Railroad	$33,152,000	$22,000,000
Public utility	22,500,000	30,550,000
Foreign	15,150,000	——
State and municipal	9,969,000	50,056,000
Investment corporation	——	40,000,000
Total	$80,771,000	$142,606,000

New foreign financing is still an uncertain factor in the bond market. Several important issues are being discussed but it is considered likely that much of this will be deferred until later in the year. The government of Argentina has note issue of $50,000,000 which matures on Oct. 1, and subsequently an issue of $25,000,000, the latter being held in the London market.

ADVISES CAUTION IN LENDING TO LATIN AMERICA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 20.—In view of the unsatisfactory economic conditions in South America, indiscriminate lending to the Latin-American republics at this time would be unwise, according to Dr. Max Winkler, vice president of Bertron, Griscom & Co. He specifically points out that neither Peru nor Bolivia is in a position to contract additional loans.

"Many of the Latin-American nations have doubtless overborrowed," he said, "but what would seem to be more accurate, we have over-lent. We are placing hundreds of millions of dollars in Latin-American enterprises. We have invested huge sums in oil and, in many instances, the result was turmoil. We have placed large sums in Latin-American bonds and, in some cases, the result for the borrower was bondage. We have furnished substantial amounts to create booms in Latin-America and the result, in some cases, was boomerangs."

Citing the case of Peru, Dr. Winkler points out that within ten years the foreign debt of the country has increased from about $5,000,000 to $112,000,000, whereas Peruvian revenues during the same period advanced from $30,000,000 to only $50,000,000. He estimates the present total debt of Peru at $145,000,000.

"Bolivia, with a total debt of about $70,000,000, of which more than $60,000,000 is external, is another country which can hardly consider assuming additional burdens. Furthermore, Bolivia's annual revenes are about $15,000,000, resulting in chronic budgetary deficits."

ASKS FEDERAL BUREAU TO HOLD COTTON FOR YEAR

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—(AP)—The federal farm loan bureau was asked today by Senator George [Dem., Ga.] to take over cotton from the growers at current prices and hold it for a year awaiting better prices for the growers.

SENATOR WALTER F. GEORGE [Harris & Ewing Photo.]

In a letter to Commissioner Bestor of the farm loan bureau, Senator George said: "Some one is bound to make a profit on the 1930 crop. Why not let the farmer, who grew it, have a chance to make the profit?"

George said interest and partial payments would be due this fall on about $506,000,000 in farm land loans now being carried by federal farm mortgage banks.

"The cotton farmer can not pay his fertilizer bills and taxes and make his land payments with 10 cent cotton," George wrote. "Foreclosures will get the farms. The farmers will be out of doors and the interest payments will go unmade."

TELETYPE SALES IN 1929 TOTAL TWELVE MILLION

Sterling Morton, president of the Teletype corporation, the purchase of which has been announced by the American Telephone and Telegraph company, says that sales of the Teletype corporation totaled about $12,000,000 in 1929 and will be somewhat under that figure this year.

Mr. Morton stated also that the foreign business of the corporation was sold to Creed & Co., Ltd., of England, a subsidiary of the International Telephone and Telegraph company.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 20.—The stock market got back to its whittling today. Dealings represented little more than the usual week-end adjustment of speculative accounts and price changes of more than a point in either direction were rare. It was about as dull a two hour session as could be imagined.

As a rule the trend was downward during the first hour, due to the execution of an accumulation of overnight selling orders—some of them inspired, no doubt, by yesterday's scare over the German political situation—and back in the later trading. The finals were mostly higher.

United States Steel, after dipping to 162⅛, a new low for the movement, whipped back in rather vigorous fashion and mounted to 164⅞. It eased back a point just before the finish, however, and ended the day with a net gain of three-quarters of a point. Several other high grade issues, among them Westinghouse, also dropped to new lows for the movement in the early selling, but a majority of them likewise made impressive comebacks.

Little News on Hand.

Nothing much in the way of news was on the hook to influence speculative thought, anyway. The week-end trade journals were not particularly encouraging in their reports on the state of the steel trade, but that is an old story and nobody gave it a tumble. The German revolution rumor had ceased to alarm and the money situation was unchanged.

Western Union was a comparatively weak spot in the utility group, declining nearly five points to 160. Just what caused the selling in this sometime favorite was not clear. American Waterworks was also under pressure and receded at one time about 2 points, but later recovered to within a fraction of its Friday closing figure. On the other hand, Consolidated Gas and one or two other issues of the section were strong from the outset and kept pointing upwards even when the early selling was at its height. Gas gained more than a point on the day's turnover.

International Business Machines, which yesterday broke 9½ points, selling down to 166½, recovered more than 5 points of its loss in a spirited little buying wave. Diamond Match, another bear target of late, however, went in the other direction, adding another 3 point loss to its decline of the same amount yesterday.

Expect Test Soon.

Observers believe the stock market is likely to meet its supreme test in the course of the next week or so and

EXPECT BANKERS TO CHANGE STAND ON CHAIN SYSTEM

Good Roads Help Cities to Get Rural Business.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 20.—The American Bankers' association, representing about 20,000 of the 24,000 banks in the country, which has in the past steadfastly opposed the extension of branch banking, is expected to reverse its stand in the forthcoming convention, to be held at Cleveland, Sept. 29 to Oct. 2. Leaders in the organization, it is understood, have decided, in the light of the last year's developments, that the time has come for the association to recognize the vast sweep away from old fashioned unit banking.

Already more than half the total loans and investments of all the banks of the country are lodged in institutions representing some form of chain, group or branch banking, while more than 25 per cent of all the banking offices in the country belong to such organizations.

As the development of communication through road building, the automobile, and other facilities has brought the city bank, with its broader facilities and greater resources, within reach of the farmer and rural merchant or manufacturer, unit banks operating in small towns have been faced with the alternative of seeing their good business go to the city, leaving behind only business which the city bank rejects, or allying themselves with the city bank as a unit in a large banking group.

Forced Out of Business.

The small unit banker, it is observed, is being virtually forced out of business by modern conditions. Where he has not thrown in his lot with the city bank he has frequently been forced to the wall, as witness the failure of over 1,000 small banks this year.

In recent years the problem of branch banking and the allied question of chain and group banking has figured largely in the discussions of the annual conventions of the association. There have been sharp debates as to the stand which the organization ought to take on the matter, but up to now the sentiment against these movements has been sufficient to result in the passage each year of a resolution signifying the opposition of the association to branch and group banking.

Last year's convention, held in San Francisco, stronghold of the forces of A. P. Gainnini, the man who has done more than any other American banker to develop branch banking, was almost completely absorbed by the discussion of branch and group banking. All other topics faded into insignificance in the minds of the delegates, who debated the issue in general sessions, divisional meetings, and all over the convention headquarters.

Opposed by Majority.

The most commonly expressed opinion heard then was to the effect that branch banking is inevitable but bitterly opposed by the majority of bankers. It was generally thought that the proponents of branch banking, who included Controller of the Currency Pole, had presented a much stronger case than the opponents of the system. Nevertheless the association again went on record as opposed to its extension.

The explanation of this widespread opposition, as it was advanced by delegates to last year's convention, is simply that the majority of the bankers present were unit bankers. They had been accustomed for years to the personal conduct of their institutions and to personal contacts between themselves and their clients.

The prospect of becoming only a branch manager in a large organization, of being compelled to refuse a loan to an old friend if he could not produce a balance sheet satisfactory to the organization, of having to run a country bank along the "hardboiled" lines of a city institution, governed by set rules and regulations, was distinctly distasteful.

Branch Feeling Gains.

While it is recognized that the attitude of the majority of unit bankers has not in all probability undergone any great change during the last year, it is thought that the feeling that branch and group banking has grown in strength will have increased. Many delegates who were unit bankers last year may return to the convention this year as members of a group system.

Others will have experienced the encircling effects of the extension of group and branch banking which has occurred during the year. Still others, it is thought, will have been impressed with the pronouncements made during the year by Controller Pole and Roy A. Young, former governor of the federal reserve board, both of whom have indorsed branch banking within trade areas, and by the revelations before the house banking and currency committee in its investigation into branch banking.

Francis H. Sisson, vice president of the Guaranty Trust company of New York, will be nominated for the office of second vice president of the association and will be elected without opposition. In accordance with the regular procedure of the organization, this will result in Mr. Sisson's elevation to the presidency of the association in 1932.

HAY REMAINS STRONG

The Saturday run was a small one, with only 2 cars of alfalfa, 1 packing, and 2 rye straw constituting the total of the day's offerings, and the market remained very firm at the previous day's quotations, which follow:

Half Truths.

Half or the facts can sometimes be more injurious than no facts at all.

An investment should be made only after a study of all the information. If the whole story cannot be told it is not worth listening to.

The other day an inquirer asked about a certain company whose stock was being offered for sale. It was a small concern and the only available information was contained in a circular distributed by the dealer who was selling the stock.

This circular contained several pages of printed material. There was an abbreviated balance sheet containing such items as "other assets" which were not explained.

Under the heading "Earnings" was a paragraph explaining that profits for the last five years had been a certain amount. This lump sum was then divided by five and the reader was informed what "average annual earnings" for the last five years had been. It was impossible to determine from the circular what the trend in earnings had been.

There were laudatory remarks concerning the company's management, but the names of those who made up this management were not mentioned.

The rest of the material presented was either too vague or too brief to be of any use in forming an opinion concerning the merit of the stock as an investment.

Those who composed the circular may not have been intentionally obscure in their presentation of facts. It is entirely possible that the story if told in full would have been quite favorable.

Nevertheless, circulars of this kind leave a bad impression with the experienced investor. He feels that there must be some reason for apparent unwillingness to present the facts in the customary manner.

For the less experienced investor danger may lurk behind a sales talk of this type. He may easily draw false inferences from it. It lends itself particularly well to the use of unscrupulous promoters.

It is possible to have a full report on a company and still make a mistake. Without adequate information the investor is blindly taking a chance.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

One of the closest observers on conditions in the wheat pit in commenting on the action of the market of late said that the rank and file of traders and commission houses were decidedly bullish at heart, and would probably take the buying side were there anything in the situation to cause them to believe that there was a probability of more than a temporary rally. As he sees it bulges will be hard to maintain until there is a letup in the hedging pressure and a sustained foreign demand.

Effect of the scattered rains in the Argentine wheat belt is expected to be reflected Monday in lower cables from Liverpool. Apprehension of drought has been a factor in holding up the latter market of late.

About 45 per cent of the South Dakota corn crop had matured by Sept. 15, according to the midmonth crop report, compared with 58 per cent last year and in 1928. There was 35 per cent in the hard dough stage against 32 per cent last year.

Argentina is shipping corn freely to North America, clearances the past week including 425,000 bu to Canada and 197,000 bu to the United States.

Pit brokers said that the advance of 1c in the price of September oats yesterday was due to the filling of several small buying orders which found offerings light. They suggest that trading in the nearby month be confined to limited orders as it is almost impossible to give satisfactory executions otherwise. They also feel that the average trader would do well to confine his operations to the May delivery.

CASH GRAIN NEWS

While the seaboard failed to report any foreign demand for wheat of consequence a Winnipeg message indicated that sales of around 500,000 bu Manitobas had been made. No. 2 hard winter and No. 3 Manitobas were reported offered at about the same prices abroad, with Russian wheat at 1½c discount.

Local handlers sold 25,000 bu wheat, 125,000 bu corn, 44,000 bu oats, 4,000 bu rye, and 3,000 bu barley to the domestic trade, with 50,000 bu corn, 65,000 bu oats and 150,000 bu rye sold to go to store. Deliveries on September contracts aggregated 26,000 bu wheat, 25,000 bu corn, and 95,000 bu rye.

There was no change in the basis in the cash wheat market with No. 1 red quoted at 2¼@2½c under and No. 2 red 2@2¼c over December, while No. 1 hard was 1@1½c under; No. 2 hard, 1½@2c under; No. 1 northern, 1¾@2c under, and No. 2 northern, 2½@3c under the December.

Offerings of cash corn were not large and the basis was steady to ¼c higher. Premiums as compared with September follow: No. 1 and No. 2 mixed, 2¼c; yellow, 2@2½c; white, 5@6c; No. 3 mixed, 1¾c; yellow, 1½@1¾c; white, 4¼@4½c.

Demand for cash oats was fair with the basis steady. No. 2 white was 1¼@1½c under and No. 3 white, 1¾@2¼c under December. No. 2 rye was quoted at 2@9c over December.

Official receipts of grain at Chicago Saturday: Wheat, 20 cars; corn, 144 cars; oats, 34 cars; rye, 2 cars; barley, 13 cars.

BUTTER AND EGGS

Frenzied selling started November eggs on the downgrade on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday and prices reaching the lowest point since August, 1922. Heavy unloading of weakly held contracts, and short selling sent the November delivery down to 24⅛c, the first time in the history of the exchange that such a level has been touched in any previous September. Short covering and a small amount of new buying entered toward the close to bring the delivery back fractionally. The close was at 24⅛c, off ⅛c from yesterday. December closed at 25c, off ½c.

The nervousness and decline in eggs had some effect on butter, selling pressure forcing the November delivery down sharply. Short selling and liquidation combined to record a loss of ⅝@¾c in November at a close of 38⅝@38½c. December loss, ⅝c at 38½c.

Sales—Butter: November, 224 cars; December, 9 cars; eggs: November, 208 cars; December, 4 cars. Receipts: Butter, 9,770 tubs; eggs, 9,044 cases. Prices follow:

An Investment Plan with a Definite Profit Objective

As an investor, you will surely be interested in securing a free copy of a unique investment program which Mr. Louis Guenther, Publisher, has just written under the heading "Income Plus Profits". It affords the investor a satisfactory measure of safety and yet possesses reasonable expectations of substantial profits to one who disposes of his holdings two years from now.

While some of our subscribers may be inclined to take small profits we believe that the most advantageous results will be achieved by holding the entire group for a two-year period. The average minimum income yield will be about 4½% but it is more than likely that this yield will be very materially augmented by including as income the profits which develop in a two-year period if the program works out even half as well as Mr. Guenther anticipates.

You may have free for the asking a copy of Mr. Guenther's new investment program and also a copy of the Prosperity Number (dated September 24) of The Financial World if you return this "ad" with your address. No solicitor will call upon you.

Top yesterday, $8.50; average, $7.75.

Estimated receipts at Chicago Monday, 20,000 cattle, 37,000 hogs, and 35,000 sheep.

Hogs on the week-end session sold on a "catch as catch can" basis, as usual on Saturdays. Prices ranged from steady to 25c lower, in spite of the fact that offerings were too few to establish a fair list of quotations in all branches of the trade.

Good 230@250 lb butchers sold at $10.75, although none of outstanding quality eligible to top quotations were available. The general average lost 15c at $9.90, due partly to poor quality. The clearance was good and only 1,000 remained at the close.

Hog Futures Hold Steady.

Trading in hog futures was steady yesterday. September lights opened at $10.45 and closed at $10.55. Mediums for this month opened at $10.80 and closed at $10.85. December mediums sold at $9.00. On the "to arrive" market mediums for Monday's delivery were bid $10.80, lights $10.50, and heavy grades, $10.65. There are 94 September contracts due to be cleared within the next 8 days. To date there have been 871 contracts for 42,620 hogs sold on the futures market at Chicago.

Slightly larger receipts, narrower shipping demand and a break in the wholesale price of pork loins shifted the advantage to the buying side in the hog market during the last week, and the general average price came down 25c at $10.00.

Although the seasonal movement of light weight hogs from the new crop was large enough at all points to curtail eastern demand at markets in the middle west and brought light weight loins to the lowest level since early last month, the movement is smaller than at this time in 1929. The estimated average at 246 lbs compares with 242 lbs a year ago and with 239 lbs two years ago. Outsiders bought only 14 per cent of Chicago receipts, against 18 per cent a week ago and 18 per cent a year ago.

All influences governing the cattle market during the last week were of a bearish nature, resulting in a break of 50c to $1.00 in steers and butcher stock. Big receipts in face of Jewish holidays next week crowded coolers with beef. Total arrivals of 57,900 were only 3,600 below the largest receipts since 1925. Receipts a year ago this week at 61,469 were the largest during all of 1929, while the total two years ago at 65 073 was the largest in 1928.

Wholesale Beef Lower.

Beef on the wholesale market broke 1@2c per pound, closing at 9@21½c. The general average price of live steers at $10.85 was 15c under last week and compared with $13.40 a year ago and with $15.75 two years ago.

Lamb prices dropped to a new level during the last week. The general average for the week at $7.90 stands lowest since September, 1914. At the high point of the western range season last June the average was up to $12.30 and early last January "fed" lambs averaged $13.60 during one week, the highest this year. The lowest weekly average in 1914 was $7.40 in September. Back in 1911 the weekly average went down to $5.20 in November. Although supplies decreased toward the end of the week, resulting in a slight improvement in the market at the close, buyers were cautious in view of a probable increase in receipts from the west next week.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 20,000 cattle, 37,000 hogs, and 35,000 sheep, against 26,233 cattle, 32,592 hogs, and 29,373 sheep a week ago and 19,602 cattle, 38,269 hogs, and 25 470 sheep the corresponding day a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 55,000 cattle, 115,000 hogs, and 118,000 sheep, against 54,998 cattle, 130,413 hogs, and 98,662 sheep a year ago.

STOCK MARKET AMBLES ALONG IN DULL TRADING

it should be plain by the end of that time whether the upward trend is to remain intact or the trend of the market reversed. On the August reaction stocks were strongly supported somewhat above the lows reached on the June break, and if the forward trend is to hold, support should be forthcoming in this instance proportionately above the August lows.

Thus it is calculated that American Can, for example, should meet support on this occasion around 120, Steel common between 163 and 160, General Electric between 66 and 68, American Telephone around 210, Consolidated Gas 105, and Westinghouse Electric from 140 to 143. Ability of these stocks to hold the foregoing resistance levels would be accepted by chart readers as clearly indicating the market had definitely entered the first phases of a new bull move.

MORE BUOYANT TONE NOTED IN STEEL AND IRON

New York, Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Scattered evidences of a breaking away from hand to mouth buying, the first deviation from that policy in many months, constitute the feature of the week's news in iron and steel, according to the Iron Age. No sweeping change in the attitude of the trade has yet developed, but the fact that any sizable forward commitments should be negotiated, or even considered, is sufficient to give the market a more buoyant tone, it is stated.

"Willingness to contract ahead has thus far been most notable among pig iron buyers, with a number of large consumers covering for the remainder of the year and, in a few cases, through the first half of 1931," the review says: "Greater conservatism rules among buyers of finished steel. More than half of September has passed without bringing an appreciable gain in aggregate bookings. The steel industry's operations, as measured by ingot output, remain unchanged at 58 per cent of capacity."

POOL CONTRACT VIOLATORS MAY GET 25c BU. FINE

A technicality has halted efforts of the Manitoba wheat pool to obtain permanent injunctions against two of its members alleged to have "bootlegged" their grain to nonpool buyers, a breach of the five year contract with the farmer organization, it is reported from Winnipeg.

Interim injunctions had been obtained, but technical errors in the drawing up of the injunctions were noted by Justice Kilgour, and they were dissolved without the merits of the suits being reviewed.

A score of other agrarians were scheduled to have a hearing on interim injunctions obtained by pool authorities, but these cases were adjourned until Oct. 1. Violation of the pool contract subjects the farmer members to a fine of 25 cents per bushel on all grain sold to a nonpool purchaser.

News and Gossip of Stock Marts

Blast Pool Hopes.

The current decline has again blasted hopes of a number of new pools which had just begun to get under way, Wall street hears.

No Rights Available.

Yesterday was the last day in which trading in rights to subscribe to new stock of the Michigan Steel company could be done. The rights will expire Monday. That will leave the market without any rights to subscribe outstanding. It will be the first time in several years that such a condition existed. A year ago rights to fourteen different offerings were outstanding.

Ohio Brass.

Considering the general decline in industrial activity and the relatively poor showing of most corporations, current estimates regarding earnings of the Ohio Brass company in 1930 indicate the continued ability of the management to curtail costs and share in new business allotted by public utility organizations in furtherance of their expansion plans. Ohio Brass reported earnings equal to $7.78 a share in 1929.

Little Interest at Moment.

There seems to be little or no speculative interest in National Shirt at the moment. E. A. Sarg, president of the company, in a recent statement, points out that the inventory situation of the corporation is more favorable than at any time since 1924. "Other inventories will remain at these levels," he explained, "during September and October, which are always, even under better conditions, rather difficult months to bridge, and what we will do for November and December is something that is not known now."

BOND PRICES CLIMB IN ONE OF YEAR'S BUSIEST HALF DAY SESSIONS

New York, Sept. 20.—(AP)—In one of the busiest half day sessions of the year, prices of domestic bonds were marked up sharply and more than two dozen issues finished at new 1930 peaks. The wide demand for the best grade issues, particularly of railroad and utility companies, enabled the market to establish a new high in the averages for 30 bonds for the third time this week.

Principal interest in the foreign list centered in the movement of German liens. German International 5½s, which led the decline of bonds of the republic yesterday, staged a rally, rising ⅝, but liquidation continued in the rest of the list, and the Dawes 7 per cent issue reached a new year's low at 104½ and losses of 1 and 2 points were registered by several others. British 5½s was a strong feature of standard European issues, reaching a new year's high at 106⅛.

The buying of treasury 4s was the heaviest of any government issue in months. On a turnover surpassing $1,500,000 the bond gained 2-32. Liberty 4th 4¼s came within the smallest fraction of duplicating its year's peak price.

Not in a long time has the bond group experienced such activity. Normally the short session that ends the week is dull with trading and price movement of a nominal character. The volume of business today totaled $7,034,000 which is as large as some full sessions recently. It was the largest Saturday turnover since May 3.

Domestic bonds establishing new high prices for the year included American Telephone debenture 5½s and 5s, Chicago Great Western 4s, Connecticut Railway and Traction 5s, General Baking 5½s, Hudson County Gas 5s, Kentucky and Indiana Terminal 4½s, Long Island 4s, Louisville and Jefferson Bridge 4s, New Haven debenture 4s, and Pennsylvania gold 6½s.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—(AP)—COTTONSEED OIL was inactive and without definite trend today, little disposition being shown to do business. The tone was steady with price changes irregular and unimportant. Old contracts closed net unchanged to 7 points lower and new contracts 5 points higher to 3 lower. Total sales were 1,200 barrels, all in new contracts. Prime crude 6.37½c; prime summer yellow old, spot 7.75c; September, 7.80c; October and December, 7.88c. New, December, 7.40c; January, 7.48c; March, 7.63c.

OLIVEN PLANS HUGE EUROPEAN POWER SYSTEM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 20.—A good deal of the recent American interest in the European electric power industry lies in the prospects of furthering the so-called Oliven plan for a $500,000,000 European super-power system, extending across all political boundaries and connecting the hydro-electric plants of the Alps and greater rivers with the fuel burning plants of the great industrial areas.

The plan is named after Dr. Oskar Oliven, president of the Gesfural, or Gesellschaft fur Electrische Unternehmungen, the Electric Bond and Share company of Europe, and introduced by Dr. Oliven at the second world power conference at Berlin this year.

Exchange of Energy.

According to Dr. Oliven, the exchange of energy and the compensation of load between European countries is a question of the greatest importance for the whole continent, which can be solved only if existing visible and invisible boundaries are opened to electrical energy in spite of personal, material, and political difficulties.

Constructional difficulties need not be considered great, he says, for much more serious is the question of economic yield. "In transmitting large energies over great distances losses occur which for the present limit the commercially feasible voltage to about 400,000 volts. The principal advantage of interconnection is the balancing of the generation and consumption of electricity, both of which are of decisive importance for the economic employment of electrical energy in a transcontinental system."

Balancing of Supply.

Dr. Oliven points to the electrical interconnection of high alpine water powers, with their maximum output from the melting snow in summer time, with the hydraulic works on the Danube at the iron gate, still to be constructed, and the water powers on the Adriatic coast, where atmospheric precipitations run down the valleys in winter time, as an outstanding instance of the balancing of power supply and demand.

MEMPHIS NATURAL GAS SALES.

Memphis Natural Gas company reports sales of 5,658,761,500 cubic feet of natural gas during the first eight months of 1930, against 3,430,154,800 for the corresponding period last year, a gain of over 65 per cent.

Chindblom Finds Fault with Home Grown Critics

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—Representative Carl R. Chindblom [Rep., Ill.] told President Hoover that most of the European criticism of the new tariff bill originates with American business men abroad. Mr. Chindblom has just returned from Europe.

"I told the President," he said, "how thoroughly disgusted I was with Americans abroad who apologize for the tariff bill and denounce it. I heard no criticism of the American tariff by Europeans." Mr. Chindblom said most of the criticism came from representatives stationed abroad by importing houses in this country. He said there was not one-half the depression and unemployment in this country that existed today in Germany and Great Britain.

DISTURBANCES IN WORLD AFFAIRS BOTHER LONDON

New York Selling Helps Depress Market.

BY SIDNEY CAVE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 20.—Wall street's unloading of many of its international favorites after an overnight setback helped to bring a depressing atmosphere to the finish of this week's stock exchange business. Most international industrials were marked down appreciably on New York selling, accompanied by a noticeable local liquidation.

The London market has apparently given up hope for a prolonged bullish lead from Wall street for some time ahead. There is still a subdued atmosphere throughout the house, although cheap money assists in maintaining firmness in high class investments, but in the semi-speculative sections the investors are adopting a cautious selective policy which according to present indications will continue during the winter months.

The recent activity seems to have definitely subsided owing to lack of public support, and with the disturbing elements in the international situation the bears have given sign of renewing their activity, especially taking advantage of the alarmist Berlin rumors to depress German and Austrian loans.

Foreign Bonds Disturbed.

The stock exchange regards the result of the German elections as adding to the unsettlement of the international political outlook, the foreign bond market being correspondingly disturbed. The actual selling of German loans, however, has not been large, the marking down of prices being mainly precautionary measures. It is generally feared, however, that German sterling loans, which have hitherto been regarded as definitely among the better class of sterling bonds, will in the future lack such consistent support as before and the prices therefore may drift away friendlessly.

The uncertainty of the political future of Germany has imparted a feeling of uneasiness to most other foreign stocks, and the sentiment also has been affected by the sterling exchange fluctuations, with a more or less general movement against London. The break in the sterling-dollar rate was not altogether expected for this time of year. The French rate refused to make any sustained response to gold imports from London, while sales in Berlin, Holland, Switzerland, and Brussels show a downward tendency.

Situation on Silver.

An effect was produced on the silver market by the Washington report that President Hoover was to be asked to take up with Great Britain the question of international conferences to help the metal. Financial circles here are of the opinion that it is extremely unlikely that the various nations will agree to use silver for currency purposes on any considerably larger scale than at present, for paper money is more convenient. However it is pointed out that some sentimental effect upon the market might be produced if Great Britain restored the pre-war fineness of silver coinage. During the inflation period of 1919-'20 the price of her silver touched $1.19 per ounce, and as a result the silver content of English coins was reduced by a half. It is argued that it would not cost a great deal to restore it to its former value.

ACTION IN PARIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 20.—The market is giving signs of more active trading. Funds are less persistently offered for long commitments, the holders seeming to wish to abstain from entering into future engagements at low rates and money is thus lent on short terms, indicating the hope is still entertained that a long awaited business revival is near.

The crushing gains scored by the Fascists and communists in the German elections impressed the bourse unfavorably on Monday. Practically all of the listed securities dropped several points, and when the opening prices in Berlin were transmitted showing heavy losses, visible signs of consternation were seen.

Although the bourse remained somewhat disconcerted throughout the week, it seems that the unfavorable impression was eradicated and a better feeling prevailed during the middle of the week, owing to the belief that the situation in Germany was not as dark as it appeared at first. The last session of the week was very calm after a session of consolidation on Thursday. The average price level was slightly lower, but the differences were based only on small transactions, so the declines were of little significance.

Soviet Pulpwood Reaches North America in 17 Ships

New York, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Seventeen ships brought Russian pulpwood to North America during July and the first half of August, a report of the American-Russian Chamber of Commerce in New York showed today. One of the ships unloaded at Sorrel, Que., and another at Three Rivers, Que. Nine ships unloaded at New York; four at Portland, Me.; one at South Brewer, Me., and one at Baltimore. Thirteen of the steamers carrying pulpwood cargo were of the Spanish-American line. The cargoes averaged about $50,000 in estimated value.

MILLION TONS OF CUBA SUGAR MAY GO OFF MARKET

Island Considers Plan to Stabilize Industry.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Sept. 20.—A plan for the stabilization of the world's sugar industry, calling for the immediate retirement from the markets of 1,000,000 tons of Cuban sugar by converting 500,000 tons of this surplus into alcohol for local consumption and burning or dumping the rest into the sea, is now being considered by the Cuban sugar commission.

Prominent Cuban and American sugar producers seem to agree that if this million tons of sugar did not exist today, the price quoted for the product in the markets would be at least one cent a pound higher than it is.

As a compensation to sugar manufacturers who would be involved in the retirement of this enormous supply, which resulted from overproduction during the past two grinding seasons, it is proposed to request the government to levy a tax of 5 cents on each bag of sugar produced during the next ten consecutive sugar crops.

Self Imposed Tax.

This self-imposed tax among the producers for the compensation of the sugar to be discarded from the market would produce an annual revenue of $1,800,000, which is approximately the amount necessary to cancel the indebtedness of $17,408,000 plus accrued interest and representing the value of the sugar retired.

It is also suggested that it be left to the administration to finance this operation or to make arrangements for it with some local or foreign institution, its cancellation to be guaranteed with the suggested 5 cent tax on every bag of sugar produced during the next ten years.

No Opposition to Date.

No opposition to the plan has been presented to date, although, according to reports, it has been under consideration for several weeks, no mention of it having been made until it was ready for submission to the executive board of the commission.

That the conversion of 500,000 tons of sugar into alcohol would not affect the local market for molasses, because very little of this product is consumed in Cuba, was the opinion expressed here. Most of the molasses is shipped directly to the United States where it finds a ready market.

OFFICIAL WEATHER FORECAST.

The official forecast for today and tomorrow and yesterday's table of records follow:

Indiana—Increasing cloudiness, slightly warmer in central and north portions Sunday; Monday probably unsettled with local showers.

Lower Michigan—Increasing cloudiness and slightly warmer Sunday, probably local showers Sunday night or Monday.

Upper Michigan—Mostly cloudy Sunday, probably showers by Sunday night or Monday; slightly warmer Sunday.

Wisconsin—Partly cloudy or cloudy Sunday and Monday, possibly local showers by Sunday night or Monday; slightly warmer Sunday.

Missouri—Fair with increasing cloudiness, slightly warmer Sunday; Monday unsettled.

Iowa—Mostly unsettled Sunday and Monday, some likely local showers; slightly warmer Sunday in east and central portions.

Ohio—Fair Sunday; Monday cloudy with possibility of light local showers; not much change in temperature.

FARM and GARDEN

BY PAUL POTTER

VETERAN PARKS GARDENER TELLS CARE OF TREES

Starts Transplanting in October.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Many beautifying tasks about the yards and parks of a community may well be performed in the fall, instead of leaving all of them to crowd the short spring season when most people seem inclined to do their planting or transplanting. Particularly is this true regarding shade trees.

H. BENTHE.

Let's visit with Mr. H. Benthe, who for 36 years has been chief landscape gardener in Chicago's south parks system, and to whom tree and shrub care is like three square meals a day. In this world famous parks system, fall transplanting of trees usually starts about Oct. 15 and continues until the ground freezes.

Keeps Roots from Air.

"We try to have the roots of young trees as little exposed to air as possible during the moving," he explains. "This is possible when we have our own nurseries, but can be watched also by the amateur gardener. Pruning the tops is also necessary, cutting away at least two-thirds of the top, some of the surplus center and all side branches being cut back."

Mr. Benthe cautions seeing that this trimming is balanced, and declares that trees with an unbalanced start may be evened up when transplanted. They should never be set deeper than an inch below the level in which they were originally growing. The hole must be amply wide, so no roots are bent or doubled, just as a shoe must be large to comfortably encase the foot.

"We do not put fertilizer in the hole with the newly set tree," he explains. "Some people use good compost dirt or other rich soil around the roots. Then water thoroughly, this being essential to the young tree's start. Later, well rotted manure or other fertilizer may be put around the loose soil."

Good Dirt Around Roots.

Fertilizing older trees is an important and much overlooked practice, Mr. Benthe finds. Two methods are recommended: First, taking up the sod, fertilizing the earth, watering and replacing the sod; second, boring holes in the ground beginning three feet from the trunk and extending as far out as the branches reach, injecting chemical or other good fertilizers into the holes.

Will Treat Park Trees.

This application may be made in the fall. The south parks system intends to begin treating all its older trees in this manner next spring. When trees are fed in the fall, it should be done after November, when growing has ceased.

When a tree is six or seven inches in diameter, it must be transplanted in winter, with a "frost ball" or ball of frozen earth about the roots, the tops being lightened considerably. Trees of ten inch diameter or so, if they have been previously transplanted, may be moved again with this frost ball. In the east even larger trees are so handled, he states.

Feed the Crowded Trees.

"Many city trees are being crowded by curbs, pavements or sidewalks," says Mr. Benthe. "In such cases heavy watering of the exposed ground around the tree, with ample feeding at least in alternate years, can save it. At best, a three or four foot space between a walk and curb is a difficult place to keep a tree alive without ample watering and feeding."

Mr. Benthe agrees with many others that evergreens cannot be successfully grown in downtown Chicago, but do well in suburbs. Nurserymen do not guarantee evergreens for Chicago planting, but many replace them every few years, as they are important in winter landscaping. There are only a few Austrian pines left in the south parks.

New Elms Introduced.

The American elm is the recognized favorite for street and shade planting. Recently, new types of elms have been developed from the American, called the Moline and Vase elms. These are budded stock grafted onto American elm base, and can be trimmed to uniform shapes, growing evenly. The formal plantings about the Buckingham fountain in Grant park are of this type.

Gardeners and nurserymen are now developing the Chinese elms, and they are yet to become popularized in this country. They are to be tried out in Grant park, from stock originating in Manchuria. They can be trimmed like cedars, into cones, balls, or other shapes, grow rapidly and seem hardy in the Chicago region.

Leaves Falling Month Earlier.

"The dry summer is causing leaves to fall fully a month earlier than usual," says Mr. Benthe. "In all my experience I have never seen such conditions for trees. Reports of a rust or browning of elm, hackberry or linden trees have been prevalent this year, due to the red spider, which thrives in dry weather. Smaller trees sprayed daily with water, or occasionally with black leaf 40 can be rid of this, but larger trees are difficult to handle."

Planting of poplars for screening and fast growth, as well as ash, is being discouraged in recent years because of their susceptibility to oyster shell scale.

Agricultural Questions

Farm and garden questions of general interest will be answered to the limit of space in this department. Individual replies will be made to specific questions if stamped, self-addressed envelope is inclosed. Address letter to Agricultural Editor, Chicago Tribune.

WHEN TO PLANT GRAPES.

Would you please inform me which is the best time to plant grape vines and also asparagus? MRS. R. C.

REPLY.

Asparagus seed or plants are placed in a well prepared bed April 15 to June 15, requiring two to three years before the bed is established. Spring planting of grape plants also is recommended after thorough preparation of the soil through deep plowing or spading and a previous fall application of well rotted manure. One year old plants usually are purchased for starting a vineyard.

CARE OF PINE TREES.

Would appreciate advice on the care and transplanting of Norway pine trees. A. H.

REPLY.

Norway pine trees should be planted at once, as August and September are regarded as the best months for setting them in place. They should be moved with dirt ball and burlap, but no trimming of the top. These trees also can be planted in May, but are better suited for fall transplanting.

THREE SOUTHERN STATE'S REPORT GAIN IN FARMS

Three contiguous states, Mississippi, Arkansas, and Oklahoma, have set a new high record in numerical increase of farms in the last decade, as reported by the census bureau.

Mississippi, with an increase of 40,352 farms, far surpassed any state thus far reporting, Oklahoma, with an increase of 12,280 farms, being her nearest competitor. Arkansas gained by 10,612 farms.

However, Mississippi was surpassed in percentage of increase by Arizona, which gained by 32.9 per cent, as against 14.8 per cent in Mississippi. Texas and California are among the states unreported.

Figures announced for the three states were: Mississippi, total 312,453, as against 272,101 in 1920, increase 40,352 or 14.8 per cent. Oklahoma, total 204,268, as against 191,988 in 1920, increase 12,280 or 6.4 per cent. Arkansas, total 243,216, as against 232,604 in 1920, increase 10,612 or 8.6 per cent.

Big Cocoa Producing Firm Is Suspended by Exchange

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 20.—The United African corporation, one of the largest cocoa producing companies in the world, has been suspended from membership in the New York Cocoa exchange for one year. The suspension of the corporation and the three officers was based on a rule of the exchange which involves the reporting of stocks of cocoa in warehouses.

WILL TRANSFER CHAPMAN-STEIN CO. CONTROL

Negotiations have been completed for transfer of control of Chapman-Stein Co., a subsidiary of G. J. Cooper-Bessemer Co., of Mount Vernon, O., to Surface Combustion Co. of Toledo, a Henry L. Doherty & Co. subsidiary.

Both companies are manufacturers of industrial heating equipment. Chapman-Stein specializes in soaking pits and furnaces in the roughing operations of the steel industry, while Surface Combustion specializes in gas fired industrial furnaces for the finishing operations in the steel mill and automotive fields.

A joint statement by Cooper-Bessemer Co. and Henry L. Doherty & Co. said the purpose of the merger is to permit of more rapid development of furnaces and processes for the more efficient use of natural and manufactured gas. The Chapman-Stein organization will be transferred to Toledo in the near future.

MEDIUM PRICED FLAT PROJECTS PROVE POPULAR

Four Big Groups Nearly All Rented.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Managers of Chicago's four big popular priced apartment projects, the Marshall Field Garden Apartment homes, the Michigan Boulevard Garden apartments, and the two large projects fostered by John T. Wheeler, are all wearing contented smiles these days despite the real estate market. Practically every apartment in this quartet of medium priced suites is occupied. Two of the four have a few vacancies in their five room suites but this is offset in one by a waiting list for smaller flats.

JOHN T. WHEELER.
[Koehne Photo.]

There are 1,643 apartments in these four projects. Mr. Wheeler has one vacancy in his two large buildings, containing a total of 561 suites. The Michigan Boulevard Garden apartments have been 100 per cent rented up to yesterday when four vacancies were reported in the five room suites. To offset this, however, at least psychologically if not from a business standpoint, there is a waiting list of twenty-five who want three and four room flats, according to Robert R. Taylor, manager. The Marshall Field Garden apartments are between 92 and 94 per cent occupied.

Mr. Wheeler Builds Two.

Although the John T. Wheeler projects are not as large as the Field or Michigan Boulevard apartment developments they are perhaps more significant because they show what an individual can do along these lines.

In October of 1928 Mr. Wheeler announced plans for an apartment building that would meet the requirements of the medium salaried family. He erected a structure containing 250 one and two room units which were complete in housekeeping detail, though unfurnished.

The rents in this modern, fireproof building ranged from $35 to $45 per month for one room and kitchenette, and from $55 to $65 for living room, bedroom and kitchenette. The location is 1140 North La Salle street. This building was entirely rented thirty days before completion. It is now all rented with the exception of one apartment and this vacancy is caused by the fact that one year leases, which are required, expire at different months during the year so that some terminate each month.

Is 100 Per Cent Rented.

The second building of this type erected by Mr. Wheeler is a sixteen story structure at the northwest corner of La Salle and Maple. It contains 311 apartments of one and two rooms and was completed May 1, 1930. This building is slightly more pretentious in its fittings and rents from $42 to $53 for one room suites and $60 to $67 for two room units. This structure is 100 per cent rented.

The class of tenancy is thoroughly investigated and nothing less than a one year lease is accepted. Mr. Wheeler is now taking under consideration the erection of another building of the same kind and will proceed, he states, with the work as soon as possible.

Opened in April, 1929.

The Marshall Field Garden apartment homes were opened to tenants in April, 1929. There are 627 suites of 3½, 4, 4½, 5 and 6 rooms. The prices are as follows: $55 for 3½ room flats; $50 to $58 for four rooms; $68 for 4½ rooms; $60 to $70 for five rooms, and $72 to $78 for the six room units. The five room suites seem to be the least popular, most of the unrented flats being of this size.

The Michigan Boulevard Garden apartments, financed by Julius Rosenwald, are occupied solely by colored families. The four vacancies already mentioned, in the five room units, mean less than 1 per cent of the total is empty. This big flat project, at Michigan and 47th, was completed in August, 1929. It has 421 suites and in addition there are thirty-four apartments in an old building eventually to be demolished to make way for an enlargement of the original project.

There are seventy-four suites of five rooms in the main section; 246 fours and 101 threes. In the older part the apartments contain four, five, six and seven rooms.

MILWAUKEE TO HAVE UNUSUAL MODERN PLANT

Milwaukee is to have one of the most striking examples of modern architecture adapted to a business building probably to be found in the country. It is the new research and engineering building now being erected by the A. O. Smith corporation of Milwaukee. It was planned by the company's engineers and architects, assisted by Holabird & Root of Chicago.

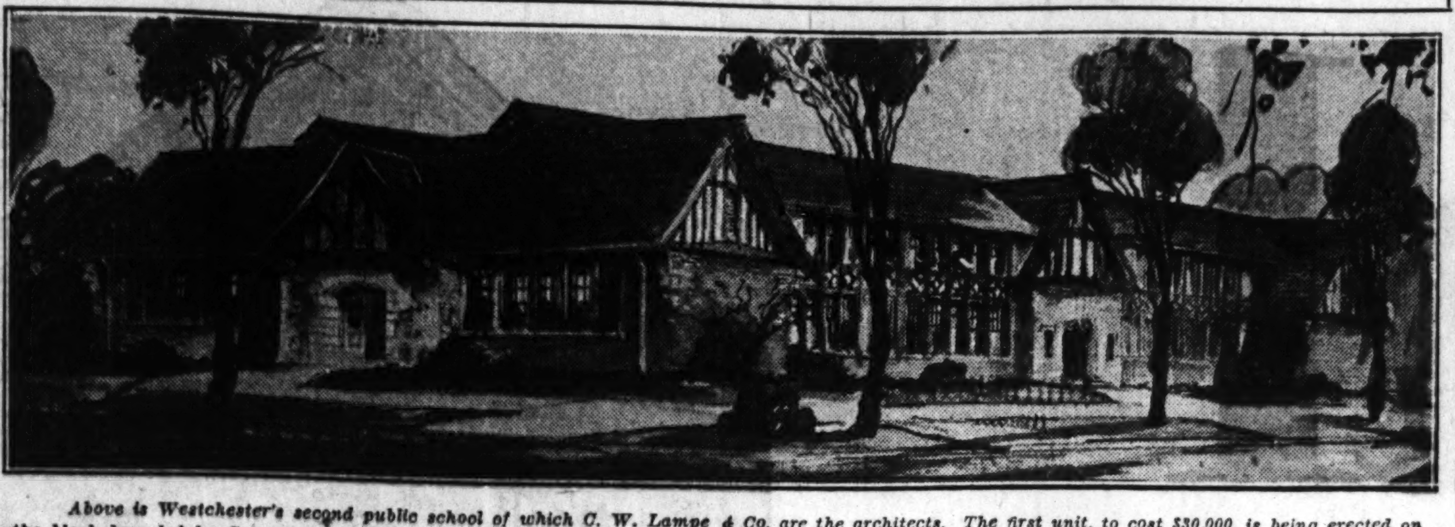
It will house the scientific laboratories and engineering workrooms for the Smith corporation now numbering 400 engineers and scientists but soon to be increased to 1,000.

The skeleton will be a honeycomb of hollow columns and hollow girders to be used not only as a support but as ducts for steam heat, electric lights, telephone lines, gas lines and water lines. In addition steam power lines, high tension electric lines for welding, compressed air lines and even oxygen lines will be carried through the hollow columns and girders.

Cutmore to Tell Real Estators About Taxes

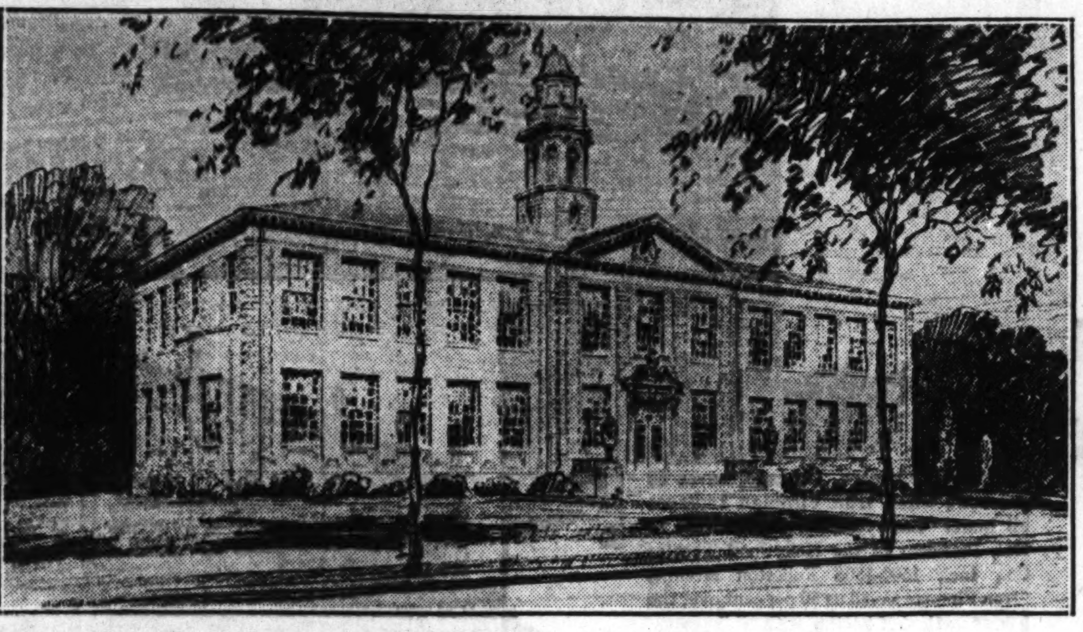
Harry S. Cutmore, tax reassessment director, will address members of the Cook County Real Estate board at 3:30 p. m., Tuesday, Sept. 23, in the board's rooms at 100 North La Salle street. He will talk on "Taxes."

WESTCHESTER'S SECOND PUBLIC SCHOOL



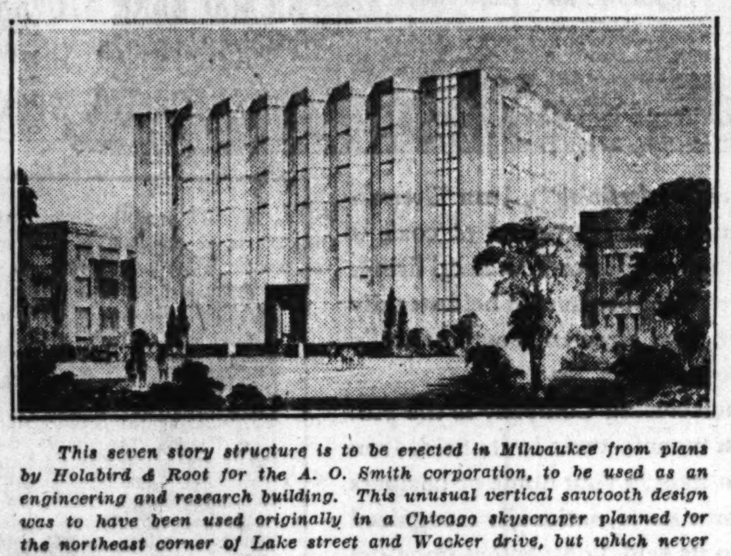
Above is Westchester's second public school of which C. W. Lampe & Co. are the architects. The first unit, to cost $30,000, is being erected on the block bounded by Canterbury, Suffolk, Kent, and Norfolk avenues. The Schmidt Brothers Construction company has the general contract.

LAKE BLUFF ORPHANAGE COMMUNITY CENTER



This is the Mackey Memorial Community Center at the Lake Bluff orphanage. It is to be in memory of the Mackey family—father, mother, sons and daughter—and is presented by another daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. McIntosh of Lake Forest. It is designed by the son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. McIntosh, T. H. Buell of Denver, with Edward A. Schiewe of Chicago as associate architect.

FOR CITY'S NORTHERN SUBURB



This seven story structure is to be erected in Milwaukee from plans by Holabird & Root for the A. O. Smith corporation, to be used as an engineering and research building. This unusual vertical sawtooth design was to have been used originally in a Chicago skyscraper planned for the northeast corner of Lake street and Wacker drive, but which never was built.

GIVES MEMORIAL COMMUNITY HALL TO ORPHANAGE

The Mackey Memorial community center, at the Lake Bluff orphanage, scheduled for completion by Jan. 1, will be the third of eight fireproof brick buildings planned by the trustees in 1929 to replace the present inadequate frame structures. The two already completed are the Swift Memorial health center and the heating plant. Other buildings to be added are those for administration, specialized care, a commissary, and halls for boys and girls.

The community center is a memorial to the Mackey family, father, mother, sons and daughter, and is presented by another daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. McIntosh, of Lake Forest. The building is designed by the son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. McIntosh, T. H. Beull of Denver, with Edward A. Schiewe of Chicago as associate architect.

It will be of Georgian architecture, of brick and stone and entirely fireproof. It will provide for the pre-school and primary school units, an opportunity room, a juvenile library, recreational room, offices and clinics.

The first floor is given over to the pre-school life, arranged in two separate departments for the nursery school and kindergarten, each with its own entrance, cloakroom, bathroom, quietroom, large playroom, and workshop. The nursery school is to have a set-up that will lead to purposeful activities, muscular coördination, emotional stability, and correct habit formation for the children of two and three years. Its location on the south, with a large bay window on the east, will admit sunshine throughout most of the day.

The kindergarten department for the four and five year old children is similarly situated with a bay window on the west and a south exposure.

This floor will include an office for the educational director and a classroom for parent education (in this case the substitute parent), which is a definite part of the educational program of the orphanage.

On the second floor are the first and second grade rooms, each with its separate activity room for group or individual projects.

In addition to the grade rooms there is a juvenile library, where the children may come to read or assemble in small groups for the story hour, the clinics for the mental health program, and an opportunity room with an adjoining hobby room, where a special program based on individual differences of handicapped children is provided so that those who are not equal to group work and can't quite keep pace with the others may have special and individual attention.

MISS HASTINGS WILL OPEN TEA SHOP ON WABASH

Gertrude J. Hastings and Ada A. Myer have leased a store at 129 South Wabash avenue, formerly occupied by "Julia King" and Carder's, Inc., from O. W. Richardson & Co. and will open in the premises about Oct. 1 a fountain, tea, and candy shop. The Julia King Candy company will occupy a part of the premises with the first of a new chain of candy stores. Miss Hastings and Miss Myers operate in the loop Miss Hastings' tearooms, the Blue Gate cafeteria, and are associated with Charles W. Silvernail in the operation of the Silvernail 10 and 15 cent cafeteria in the Mallers building. Gerard E. Hausen & Co. were brokers in the Wabash avenue lease.

SALLY FROCKS LEASES SPACE FOR NEW STORE

Samuel Katz has leased the entire second, third, fourth and fifth floors of the former Holden building, at 231-33 South State street, together with the north show window and the center case, to Sally Frocks for eighteen years at a total reported rental of $718,000. Cerf & Ehrenhalt were brokers. After extensive remodeling the lessee will move in on Oct. 1. Mr. Katz, lessor, will share the first floor space with the lessee, with his millinery business. Meyer Rosengard and Poppenhusen, Johnston, Thompson & Cole were attorneys.

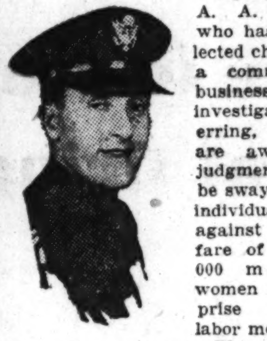
LABOR LEADER PENS PRAISE OF COL. SPRAGUE

Says Trade Unions Have Faith in Him.

BY THOMAS WREN.

Chicago trade unionists have great confidence in the fairness and in the integrity of Col. A. A. Sprague, who has been selected chairman of a committee of business men to investigate racketerring, and they are aware his judgment cannot be swayed by any individual interest against the welfare of the 350,000 men and women who comprise Chicago's labor movement.



CAPT. A. F. OBRILL.

This statement was made by Capt. Al. F. Obrill, a Chicago labor executive, who has taken an active part in the hospitalization plans of the disabled American war veterans since the close of the war. He served overseas with the first unit of American doughboys who followed Gen. Pershing to France and he was commissioned a captain shortly before the armistice was signed.

In his letter to Col. Sprague, Capt. Obrill states:

Acclaimed by Unions.

"It is indeed gratifying in these turbulent days to see a man of your civic leadership accept the chairmanship of a committee whose purpose is to divorce racketeering from the industrial life of Chicago. I'm sure your leadership on this important committee is received with acclaim by the regular and legitimate trade union movement of our city.

"Labor's confidence in you dates back to your position of commissioner of public works under Mayor William E. Dever. Your fairness then percolated through both the rank and file and officialdom of labor. The situation today is quite critical.

Raps Employers' Association.

"There are many diversified interests that will note the progress made in your warfare which is now necessary to wage because of the deplorable lawless conditions occasioned by the enactment of the prohibition law. Futile attempts to enforce this unpopular law has corrupted the main arteries of our city life.

"Racketeering is complicated and cancerous in growth. There are some civic interests whose activities are prompted by a desire to rid and cleanse the community of this public menace. It is my belief that the Employers' Association of Chicago has blocked the success of former crusades against racketeering because its fight is mainly a subterfuge to crush and destroy the legitimate trade union movement.

HOME BUILDING AND REMODELING

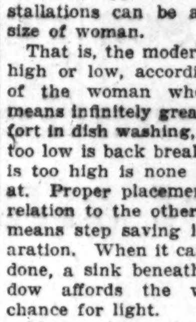
THE KITCHEN SINK, ONE-TIME JOKE, COMES INTO OWN

Is Notable Contribution to Home Comfort.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.
[Home Builders' Editor.]

(The first of a series of articles on modern home equipment.)

One of the plumbing industry's outstanding contributions to the home is the present day sink and its accessories.



LOUISE BARGELT.
[Hutchinson Photo.]

A sink is no longer just a has-to-be evil in the kitchen. It is, in its modern guise, a handsome piece of equipment, white, vividly colorful, or softly hued. And equipped as it can be today it has removed countless hours of drudgery from the domestic routine.

There are sinks for every type of home, and sink installations can be adjusted to every size of woman.

That is, the modern sink can be set high or low, according to the height of the woman who uses it. This means infinitely greater ease and comfort in dish washing, for a sink that is too low is back breaking and one that is too high is none too easy to work at. Proper placement of the sink in relation to the other kitchen features means step saving in the meal preparation. When it can be conveniently done, a sink beneath an outside window affords the worker the best chance for light.

If one wishes, there are sinks with three distinct features: a utility sink at one end, with metal cover, an electric dishwasher at the other, and a conventional sink compartment in between.

Frequently one sees sinks with compartments underneath. These swing out easily, one compartment for kitchen utensils and the other for garbage.

Special swing spout faucet and hose connections mean available water at any temperature and facility in directing this water to any part of the sink. Soap dishes are practically universal. Débris catching drainers are a part of many sinks.

There are sinks with extremely deep compartments for women who prefer them, sinks with legs and sinks without them.

Some women prefer to do a part of the laundry work in the kitchen and to meet this need we see special sinks with a built-in washing machine. The wringer can be removable and the metal top of the machine can be used as a drain board.

Cast in One Unit.

Immensely popular for the home owner who must practice strict economy are the simple drain board sinks cast in one unit, with swing spot faucet or separate hot and cold water faucets. Another type of inexpensive sink is one with a separately cast drainboard and separate hot and cold water faucets.

These inexpensive types may be had in regular enamel finish and nickel plated fittings or, at a slightly increased cost, with chromium plated fittings and acid resisting enamel.

A small book could be filled describing the various types of available sinks. There are many other styles than those mentioned here, all meeting a demand of their own.

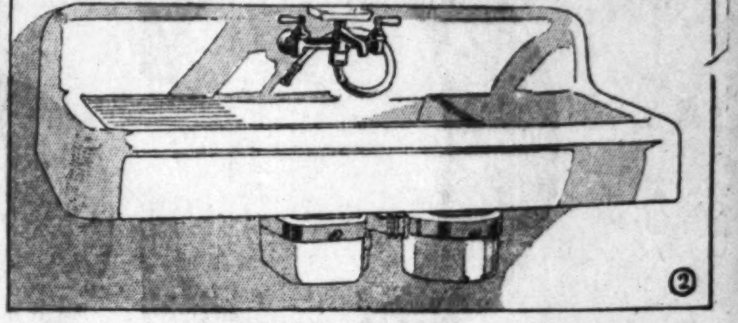
It is interesting to note that twenty years ago colored plumbing would not sell at all; today the demand for color in plumbing fixtures is vast. Green ranks as one of the most popular shades, probably because it is a cool and refreshing shade. Lavender, orchid, ivory, brown, and white all have their followers.

Centuries of Experiment.

It is not hard to believe, when one looks at the handsome pieces of up to date plumbing industry, that it has required centuries and endless experiments to find pigments that would withstand the heat of 2,200 degrees in the firing of vitreous china, and the somewhat lesser heat necessary for the baking of porcelain enamel on iron.

Beauty, variety, and utility all combine in the sink of today; and prices too, are not high—lower indeed than they have been for some years past.

EFFICIENCY IN THE HOME



This sink represents the last word in efficiency with its double drainboard, swing spout mixing faucet and swing arm containers.

THERMOSTAT ON FURNACE SLICES WORK IN HOUSE

Ends Starting Fire in Dawn in Cold.

BY HOMER GRANT.

The days are approaching when automatic control of the furnace, insuring uniform temperatures through the day and automatically opening the draft in the early morning hours, becomes a real comfort and joy in the home.

Formerly this automatic control was considered in the light of a luxury, associated with only very costly heating plants.

In the course of a winter considerable fuel is often wasted and also much needless effort of running up and down stairs expended, through drafts and dampers not operating at the right time.

For instance, a big fire is started in the morning and while the housewife is busy with her morning duties fuel is recklessly consumed and the temperature mounts high before she remembers to close up the furnace. By the time she attends to it, more fuel must be added again.

All this is costly business, needless waste, too, when one considers the reliability of the automatic thermostat, which does not forget. When a draft should be closed the thermostat closes it and when the temperature in the house drops a degree or two the thermostat opens it again.

As bed time approaches the same clock lowers the setting for the scheduled temperature so that the house is kept cooler during the night hours, and fuel is proportionately saved. Perhaps, though, of all its advantages the fact that this little clock will shove the thermostat setting to seventy in the early morning hours, and then open the drafts is the most noteworthy. This last performance contributes most comfort—at least to the one in the house on whose shoulders rests the duty of tending fires.

Coal
now replacing other fuels

These important enterprises return to coal with Iron Fireman automatic coal firing

. . . reduce fuel bills

50%

Hotel Abraham Lincoln, Springfield, Ill., cuts fuel costs approximately 70 per cent when Iron Fireman replaces oil. "Previous to installing Iron Fireman in 1926, we used approximately $600 worth of oil per month," writes R. R. Hoss, Chief Engineer. "With Iron Fireman we are burning Sangoman County screenings and our fuel bill averages $185 per month."

Hollywood Theatre, Chicago, saves 50 per cent when Iron Fireman replaces oil heat! "Last year," writes Harold A. Hill, President of the Hollywood Theatre Co., Inc., 1500-1508 Fullerton Avenue, "Iron Fireman saved us 50 per cent over the former method of heating with oil."

Iron Fireman replaces oil and pays for itself in one year! "Both Iron Fireman installed last year were put in buildings where I was burning oil," states Nelson Thomasson, Jr., 4804 N. Kedzie Ave., Chicago. "They paid for themselves, over and above the oil, in one year."

HERE ARE SIX buildings in this district where Iron Fireman, the machine that made coal an automatic fuel, has replaced other automatic firing devices using other fuels. Fifty per cent fuel savings have resulted. The large number of similar experiences throughout the United States proves beyond question that, all things considered, Iron Fireman is as superior to other kinds of automatic heating as it is to hand firing.

Iron Fireman burns coal, the ideal fuel for home or business. Coal is America's permanent source of heat and power. Coal is safe, dependable, economical, and now, with Iron Fireman, coal is being burned automatically.

An Iron Fireman Automatic Coal Burner strikes at the very heart of inefficiency and waste in heating or power plants. It provides the safest and most economical firing ever developed. In addition, it prevents smoke, saves labor, and automatically holds temperatures or boiler pressures even and exactly where you want them.

Fuel Savings Alone Earn Users 39.44% per year

Yearly fuel savings, as reported by 392 industrial users in 41 states, averaged 31.62%, an amount equal to an annual return of 39.44% on their Iron Fireman investment. Fuel savings in 102 homes averaged 45.61%—or an average yearly reduction in fuel bills of $90 per home.

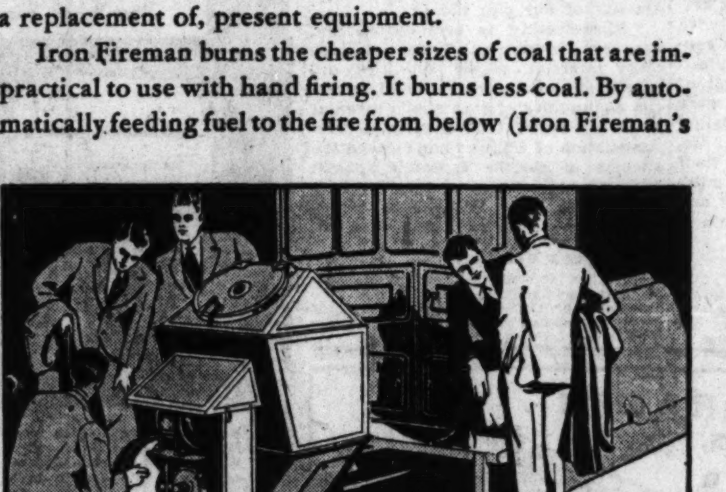
Cost of oil heat cut 50 per cent with Iron Fireman at W. L. Wieting Funeral Service, 1939 W. 35th St., Chicago. "Since replacing oil with an Iron Fireman Automatic Coal Burner," writes W. L. Wieting, "my heating cost has been reduced fully 50 per cent and we are able to maintain an even building temperature, something we did not have when using an oil burner. I am very well pleased with Iron Fireman and it is my pleasure to recommend it."

Thousands of Iron Fireman Automatic Coal Burners in use throughout America are literally saving their owners millions of dollars every year in fuel costs alone. The improved heating service they render is an extra profit which costs owners nothing.

Stick to Coal—Use Iron Fireman

If you fire coal by hand in your home or business and have considered the possibility of replacing this old-fashioned method with automatic heat, by all means check up on Iron Fireman operation and performance before you reach a decision. An Iron Fireman will protect your furnace or boiler room investment because it is an addition to, not a replacement of, present equipment.

Iron Fireman burns the cheaper sizes of coal that are impractical to use with hand firing. It burns less coal. By automatically feeding fuel to the fire from below (Iron Fireman's scientific principle of "forced underfiring"), Iron Fireman gets the maximum of heat from every pound of coal. It makes a fire 500 to 1000 degrees hotter than hand firing. There is no smoke. Heat or boiler pressure is held steadily at any predetermined point. Iron Fireman is automatically controlled. Labor costs are slashed.

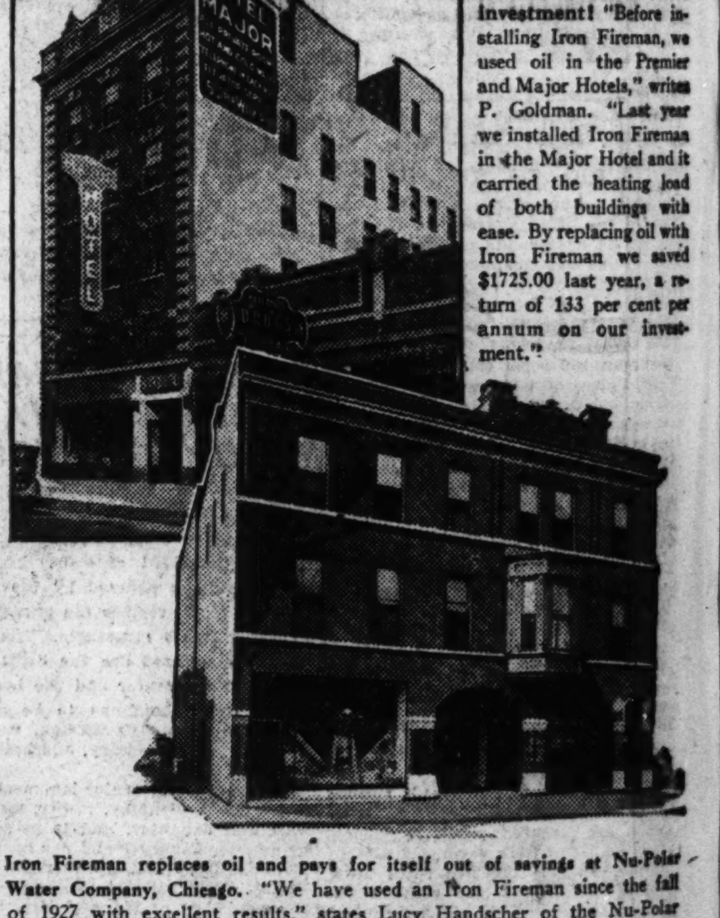


Iron Fireman burns coal, the safe, dependable fuel, automatically. It is made in a range of sizes which adapt it to any firing job from the home furnace up to large commercial heating and power plants.

The Iron Fireman Manufacturing Company is the pioneer, and by far the largest manufacturer in its field. Iron Fireman is the machine you want in your home or business because it is the finest machine made, nationally recognized as the outstanding leader in its field. Long before imitators appeared, Iron Fireman had proved its merit in every section of the country. Iron Fireman leadership today is more dominant than ever. Don't expect Iron Fireman performance from any other machine.

Get the Facts about Iron Fireman Write for Booklet

Make every penny of your fuel dollars return the utmost in value. Investigate Iron Fireman without delay. Write for illustrated booklet that explains simply and clearly, the scientific principle of "forced underfiring" employed by Iron Fireman. An understanding of this principle will make it clear to you not only how but also why Iron Fireman can deliver such definitely superior results. Or for quick action, ask for an engineer to make a survey of your furnace or boiler room. This service is free and in no way obligates you. His report will be sufficient proof that Iron Fireman is the best, most economical heating equipment you can buy. Use the coupon below.



Major Hotel, 660 W. Madison St., Chicago, earn 133 per cent a year on their Iron Fireman investment! "Before installing Iron Fireman, we used oil in the Premier and Major Hotels," writes P. Goldman. "Last year we installed Iron Fireman in the Major Hotel and it carried the heating load of both buildings with ease. By replacing oil with Iron Fireman we saved $1725.00 last year, a return of 133 per cent per annum on our investment."

Iron Fireman replaces oil and pays for itself out of savings at Nu-Polar Water Company, Chicago. "We have used an Iron Fireman since the fall of 1927 with excellent results," states Lucy Handscher of the Nu-Polar Water Co., 1011-13 Webster Avenue. "Our cost while using oil was .0395 per gallon. With Iron Fireman our cost dropped to .0063 per gallon. This cost included heating of building as well as sterilization of bottles. Iron Fireman has more than paid for itself."

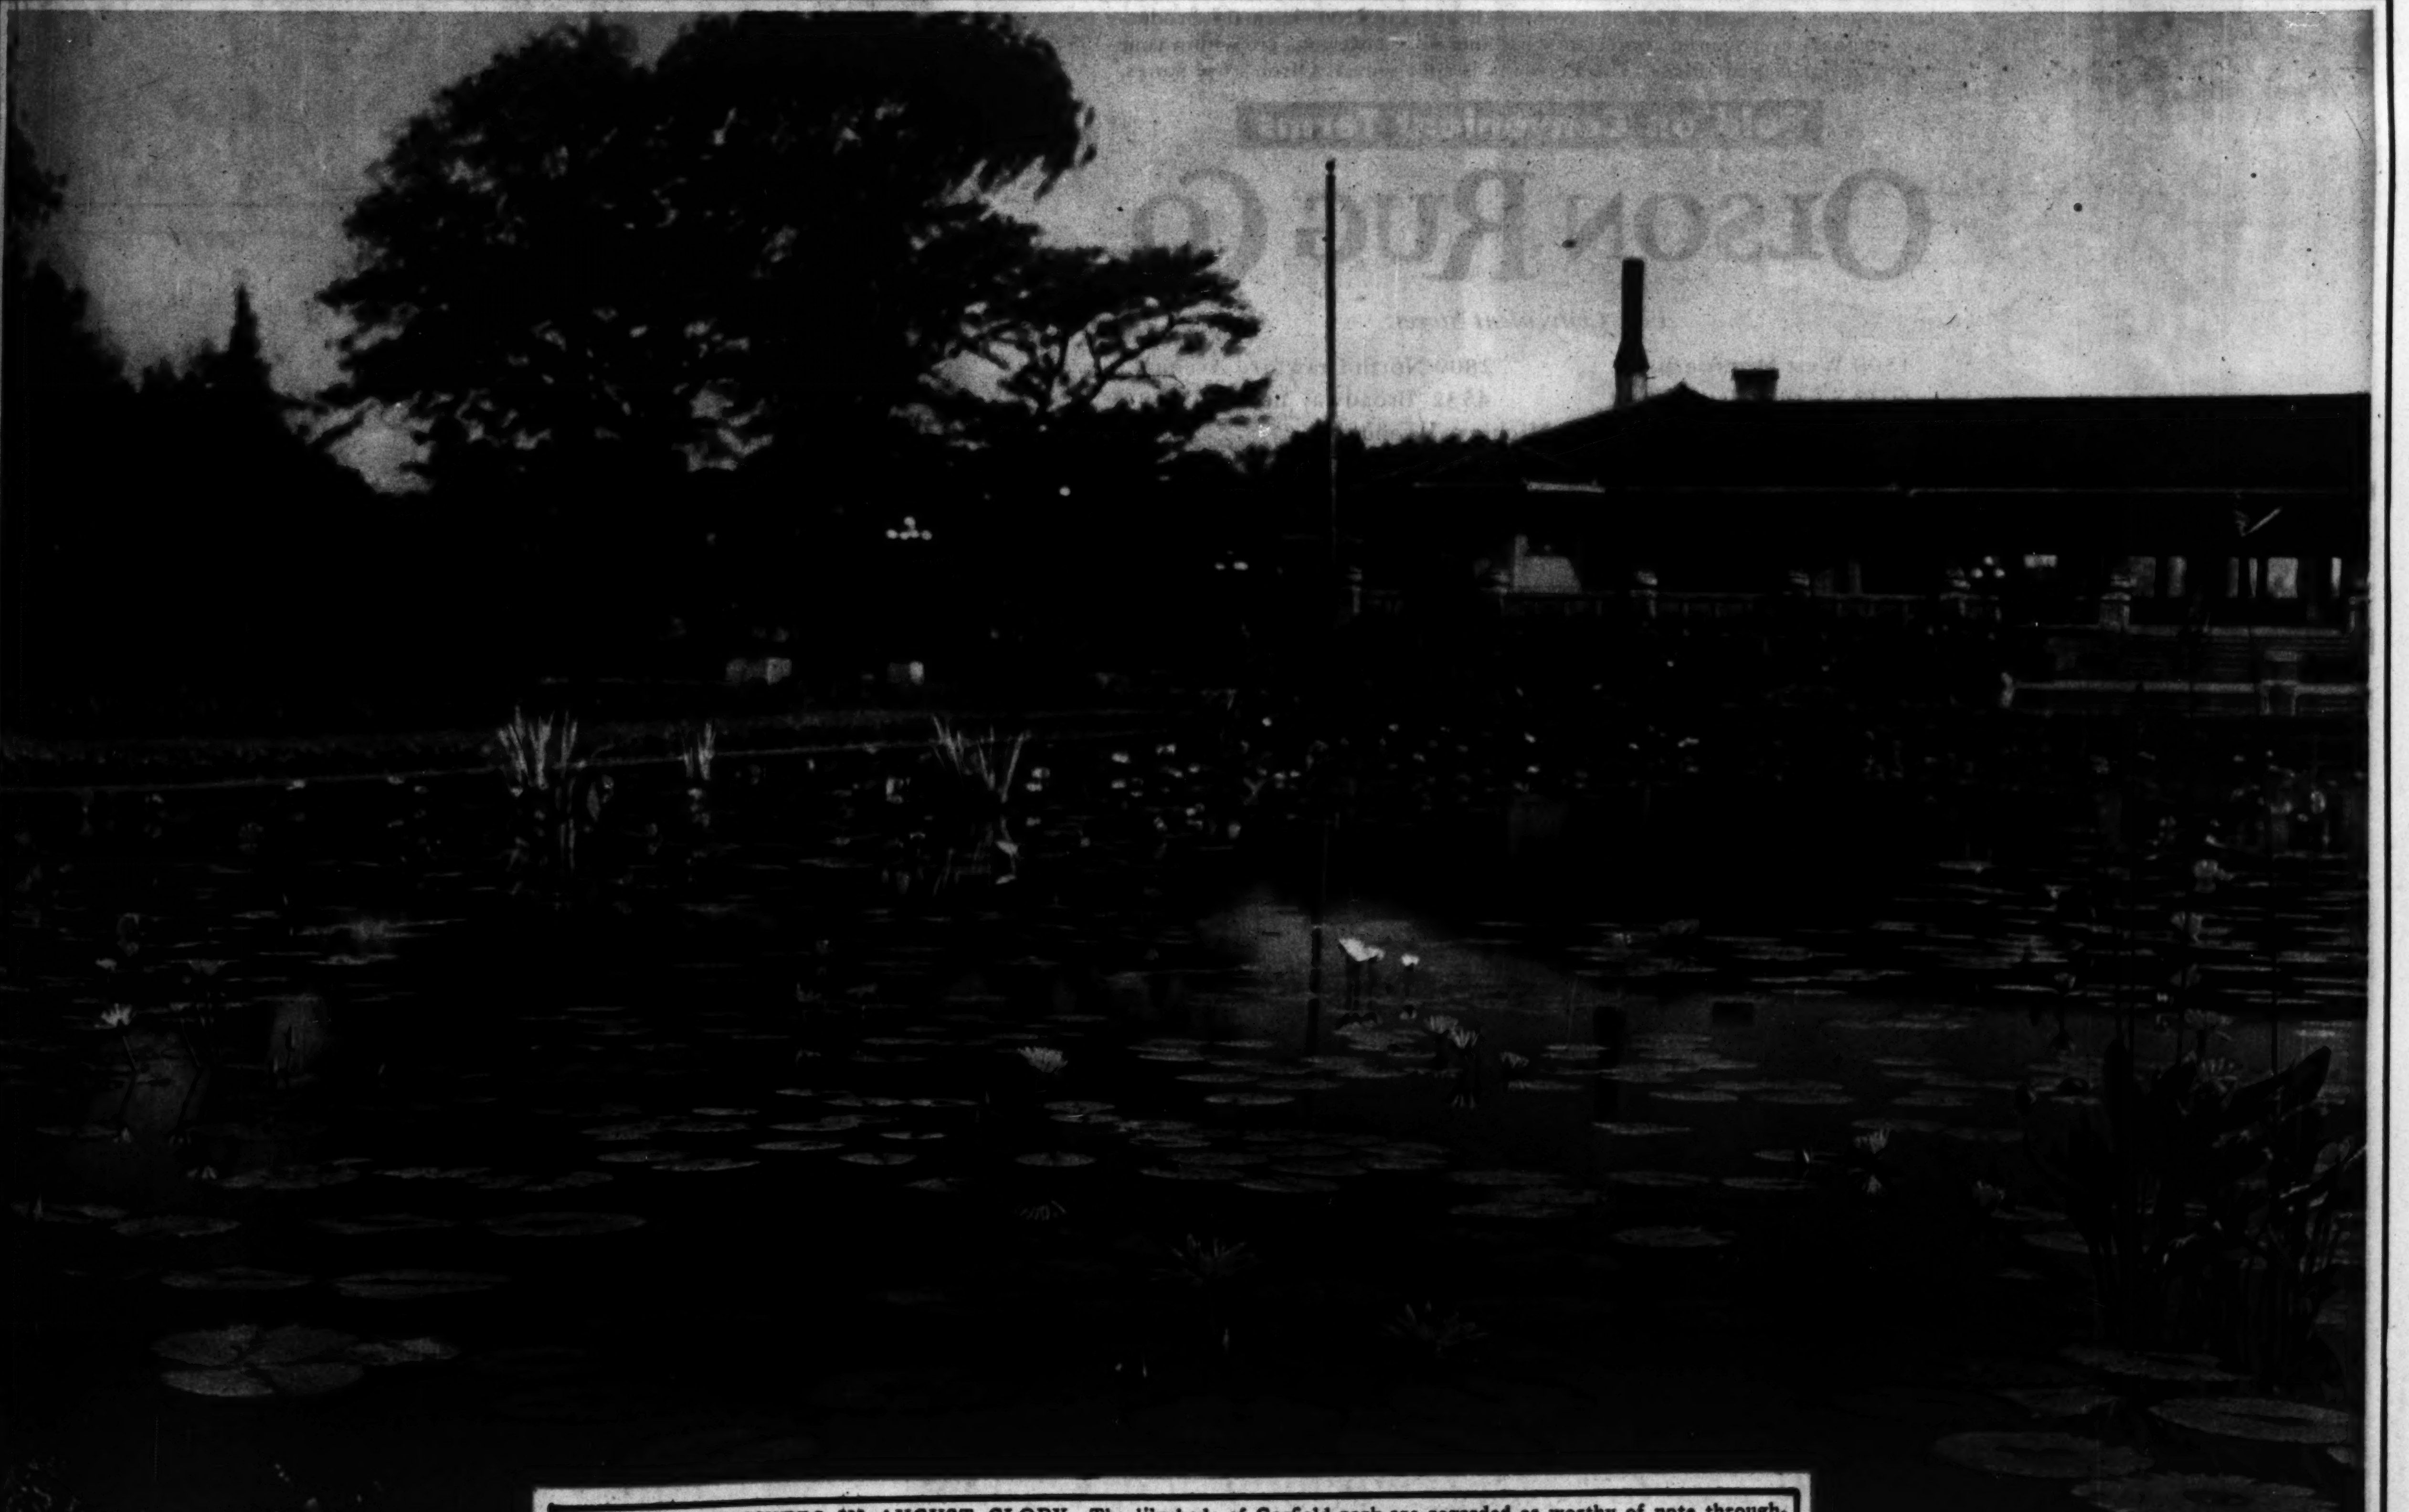
FIRST TOUCHES OF AUTUMN—The north woods begin taking on their glorious tints in early September, and in groves of poplars, birch, maple, and basswood, with a background of dark pines, the color effects are fascinating. This roadside scene was photographed in natural colors near Cable, Wisconsin. (Photo by E. L. Braley.)



WATER FLOWERS IN AUGUST GLORY—The lily beds of Garfield park are regarded as worthy of note throughout the world. In the late days of August and early in September, with the blooms in a variety of colors, the display is considered at its best and attracts throngs of admirers not only from Chicago but also from the surrounding region. A Sensational Rug · Sensationally Priced

AMERICA'S FINEST ORIENTAL REPRODUCTION
Made in the Factories of the Olson Rug Company

Pershana RUGS

for the 9 x 12 ft. size

Factory Price to Everyone

Compare the prized Pershana with the costliest, silkiest Oriental you have ever seen. You will find the same glowing colors, the same glistening sheen, the same priceless, Oriental patterns. . . . Words cannot describe this glorious new rug! It is so luxurious, so like a genuine Oriental, even experts are amazed at the almost uncanny fidelity with which our artists have reproduced century-old, handwoven masterpieces. . . . No longer need you deny yourself that Oriental richness you have always wanted for your home. For, the Pershana Rug is offered at low factory prices within means of everyone. . . . The Pershana Rug is manufactured in our $1,000,000 daylight factories on the latest improved machinery. It is seamless. It is made as fine as human skill and modern equipment can make it. Long fibred selected wools, the same as in genuine Orientals, are especially imported from far-off India, Persia and China. . . . Never again choose a rug until you have seen the glorious Pershana. You must see it, feel it, examine it to be thrilled by its luxuriousness, its beauty. You must compare it with any $200 Oriental reproduction you have ever seen to appreciate what finer floor coverings are within your means at our factory prices. The Pershana is sold only at Olson's five stores.

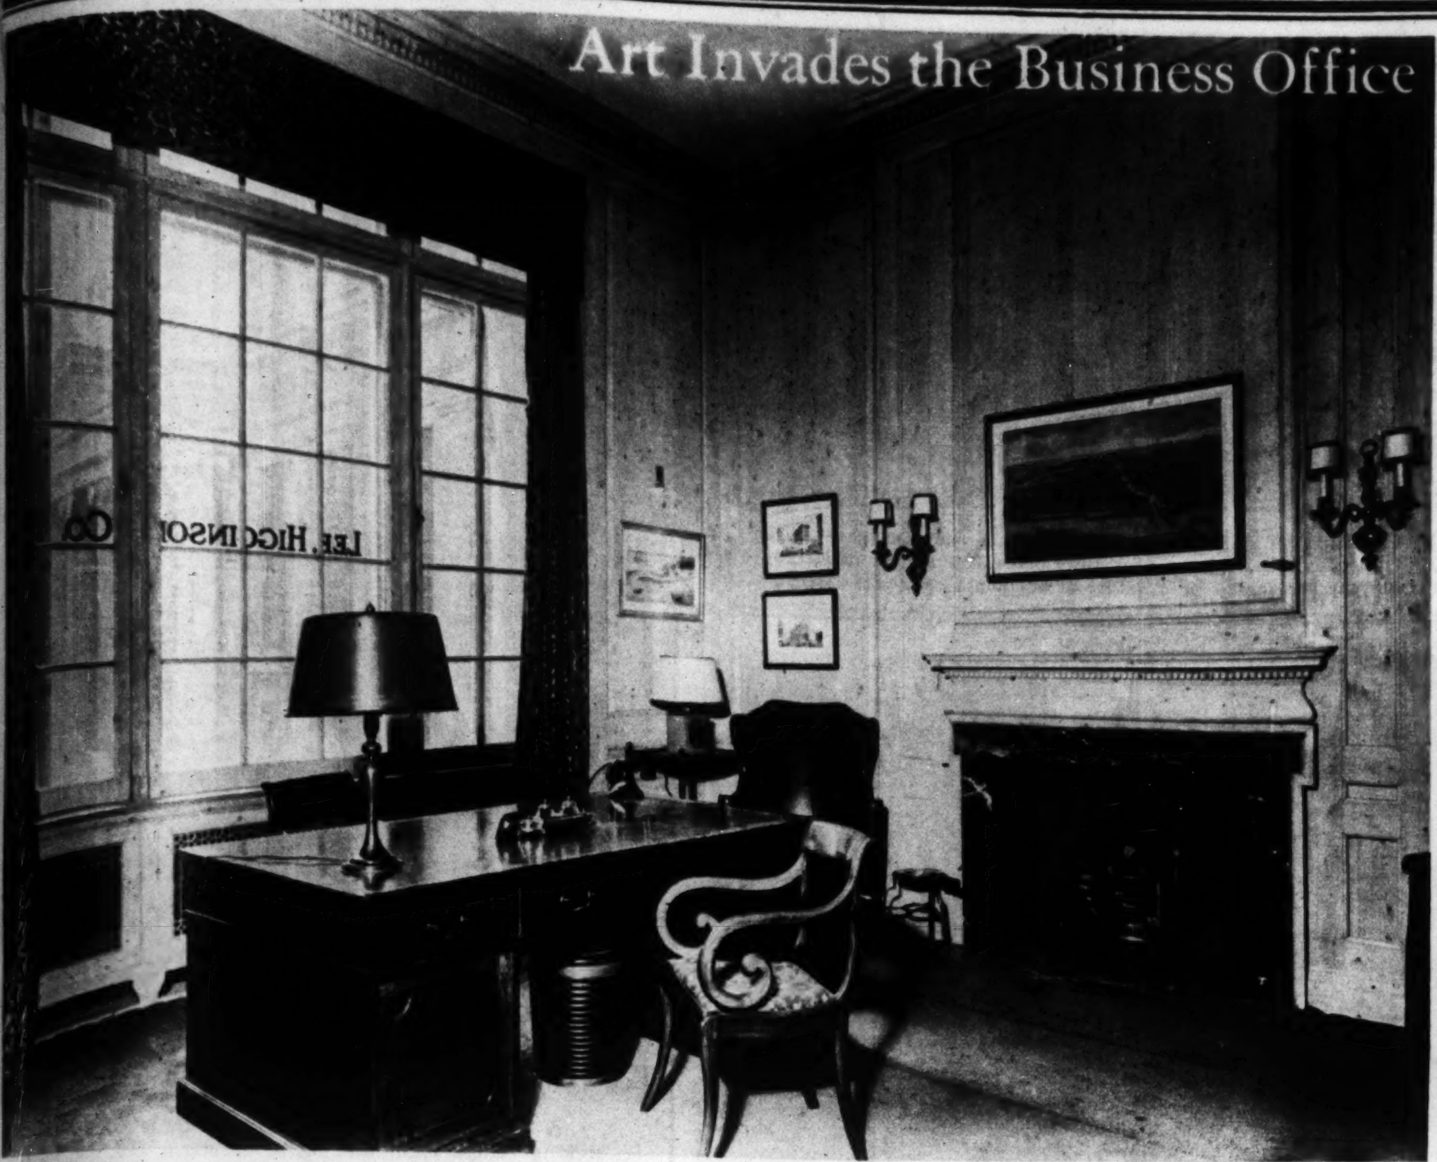
Art Invades the Business Office



INTERIOR DECORATION IS CALLED INTO CONFERENCE with commerce and industry in the making of new Chicago, with the result that the office here attains a beauty perhaps unsurpassed anywhere in America. A period note is sounded in the office of Charles H. Schweppe of Lee, Higginson & Co., in the Board of Trade building. The treatment, influenced by the Georgian, is in marked contrast to the modernistic manner of the skyscraper. The paneling is English oak; the furniture is distinguished both for age and design.

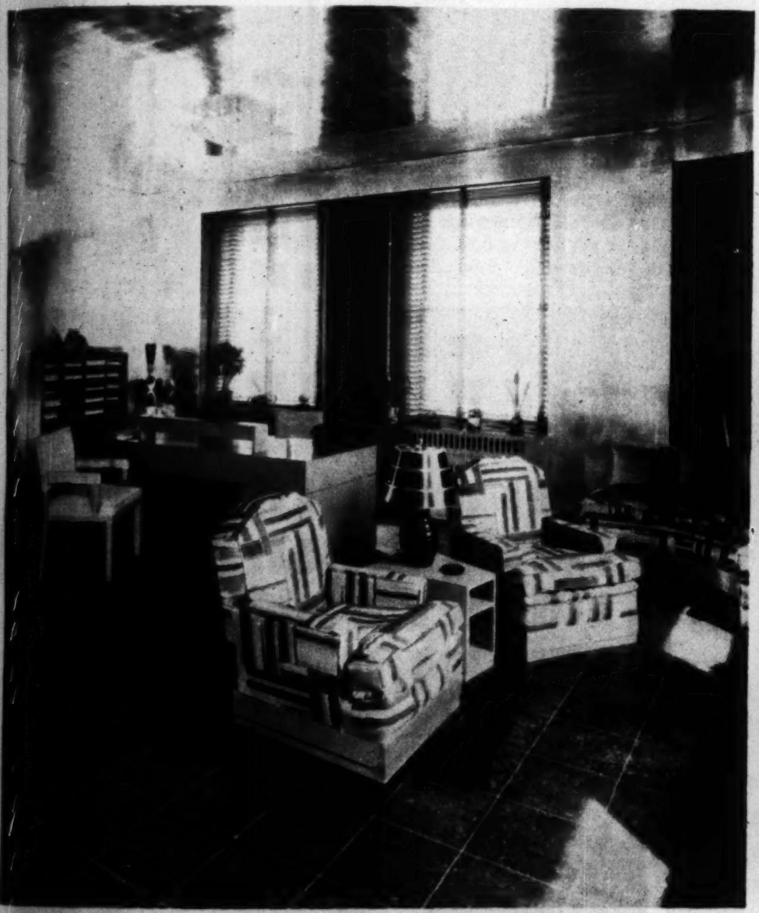
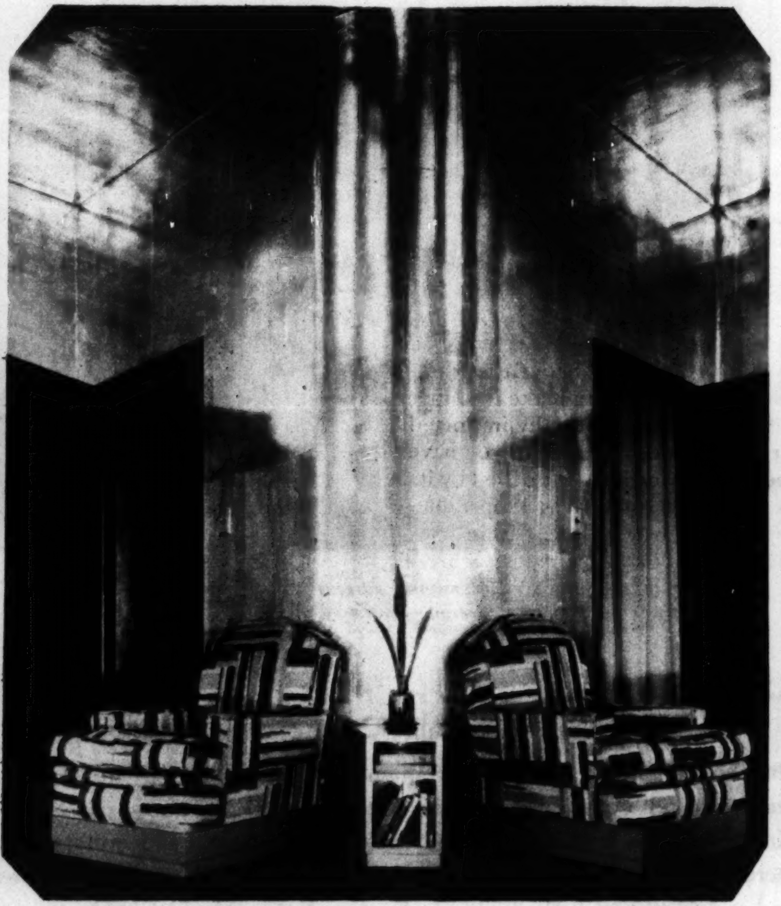
THE ATMOSPHERE OF MODERNISM as encountered in the office of Benjamin V. Becker of Levinson, Becker, Glenn & Schwartz, of 1 N. La Salle street, designed by Pola and Wolfgang Hoffmann. Walls are of a new canvas-backed walnut veneer; carpet neutral tan. The cushion of the walnut chair is of lemon yellow Morocco, the lamp of silver metal.
(Hedrich-Blessing photo.)



AN IMPRESSIONISTIC SYMPHONY is played with colors and contours in the office of Frances Hooper in the Wrigley building. Silver, turquoise, and black are the predominating colors; ceiling and walls are of silver tea chest paper; and the floor is of a black composition. (Hedrich-Blessing photo.)



A GROUP OF ARRESTING INTEREST in the Frances Hooper office. The furniture is covered in heavy linen crash in black, beige, and blue on a cream ground; the cactus plant and burnt orange draperies in a black door are accentuating touches.

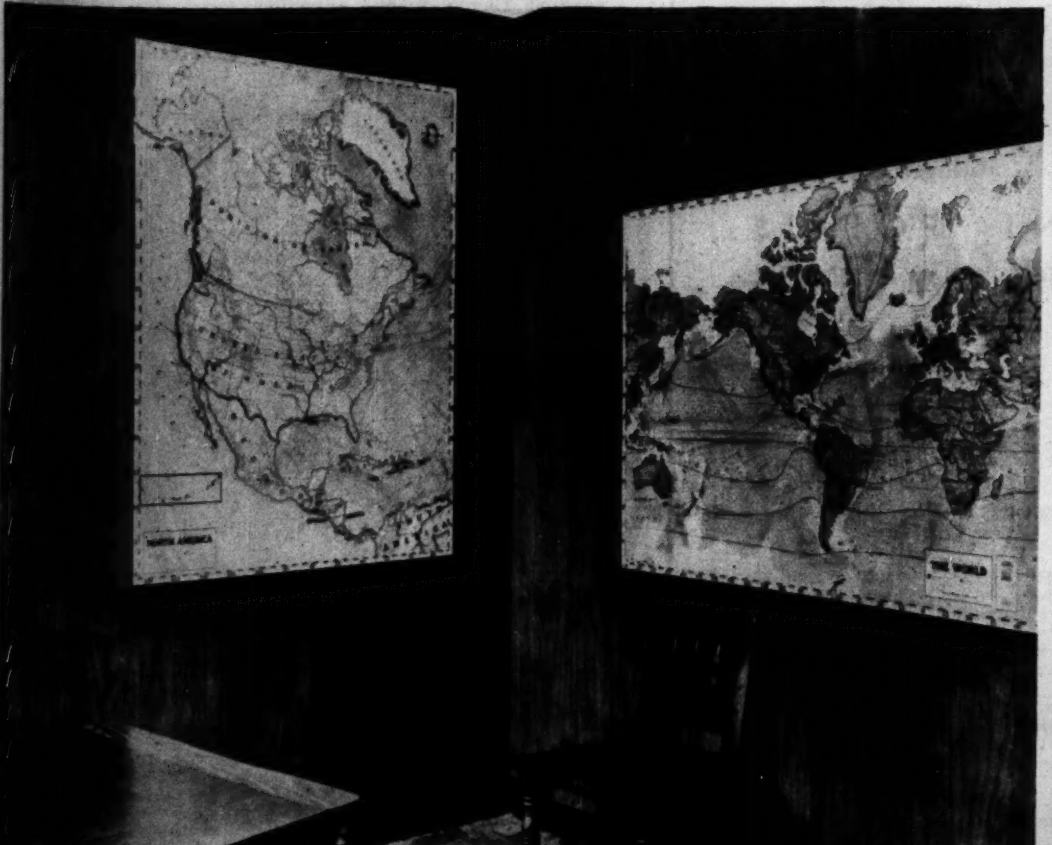
FLUTED WALLS OF WOOD, whose secret is a canvas backed veneer of quartered oak, distinguish the Russell-Brewster office, in the Civic Opera building. Trimming is of a metal simulating gold, which makes its gleaming appearance again in the lighting fixture above the stenographer's desk.



A MOLDING OF FASHION TO FUNCTION appears in the incorporation of maps into the walls of the office of the R. R. Holden company, a railroad equipment firm, in the Palmolive building. The wall covering is a canvas-bound walnut veneer, and the furniture, which reproduces old English pieces, is oak.

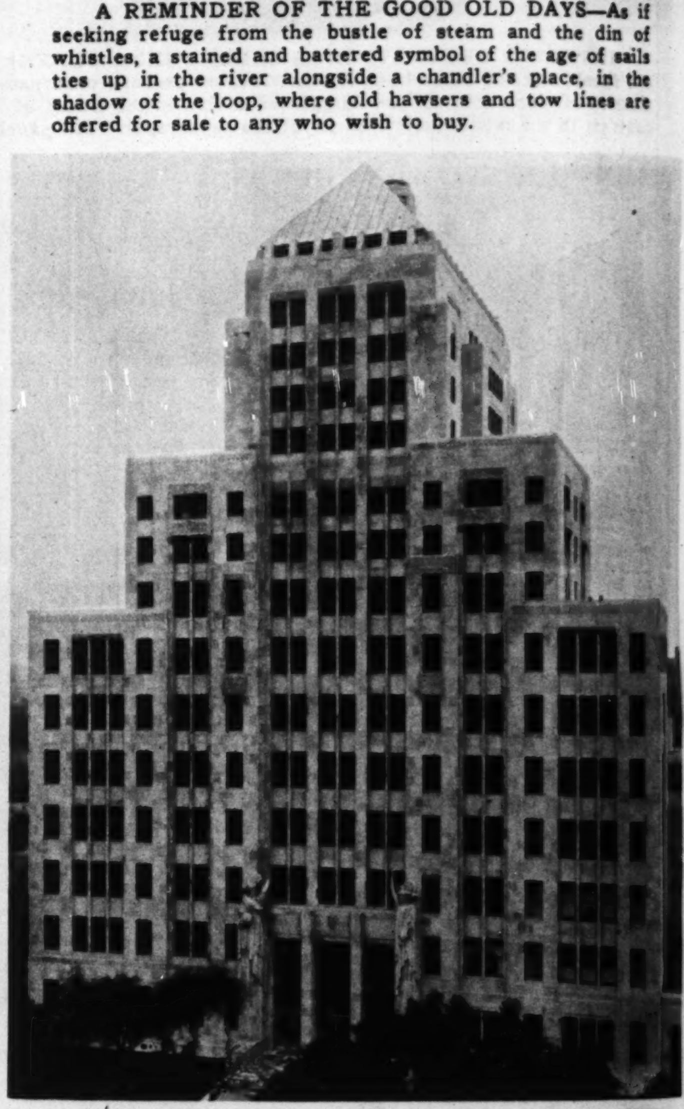
TREASURES FROM THE HANDS OF MASTER CRAFTSMEN enrich the office of Walter S. Ross of Ross & Browne, in the Palmolive building. All pieces of furniture are genuine antiques, and are considered of such value that a special humidifier is operated for their preservation. The desk, which once belonged to a speaker of the House of Commons, is of yew, walnut, and rare woods, with hardware of silver, mother of pearl keyholes, and top of fine old tooled leather. Paneling is teak and walnut.
(Kaufmann & Fabry photo.)

HEAVEN HELPS HIM WHO HELPS HIMSELF— Missouri's smartest pig milks himself a lunch; and if the calf goes hungry, should he be concerned?
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

VISUALIZING INTERESTING LETTERS— Rue Gambetta, in the seashore village of Nemours, in Algeria, whence came today's letter from a far-away place. The streets of Nemours are narrow and inconvenient; on them may be seen an odd mixture of occidental and near eastern styles.

A REMINDER OF THE GOOD OLD DAYS— As if seeking refuge from the bustle of steam and the din of whistles, a stained and battered symbol of the age of sails ties up in the river alongside a chandler's place, in the shadow of the loop, where old hawsers and tow lines are offered for sale to any who wish to buy.



A NEW ENTRANT INTO CHICAGO'S ACADEMIC CIRCLES— The newly completed fifteen story home of Mundelein College for Girls, on the north side of Sheridan road at Devon avenue extended, overlooking the Loyola university campus. Affiliated with Loyola, it will be conducted by the Sisters of Charity of the Blessed Virgin Mary.

AMERICAN HEROES

THE CONQUEROR OF THE NORTHWEST, George Rogers Clark, who wrested an empire from the British and held it for infant America. Clifford Raymond tells the stirring tale on the editorial page, in the main news section, of today's Tribune.

"Sale or Rent"

THAT SIGN WILL COME DOWN SOONER IF THE BATHROOMS AND THE KITCHEN ARE RIGHT

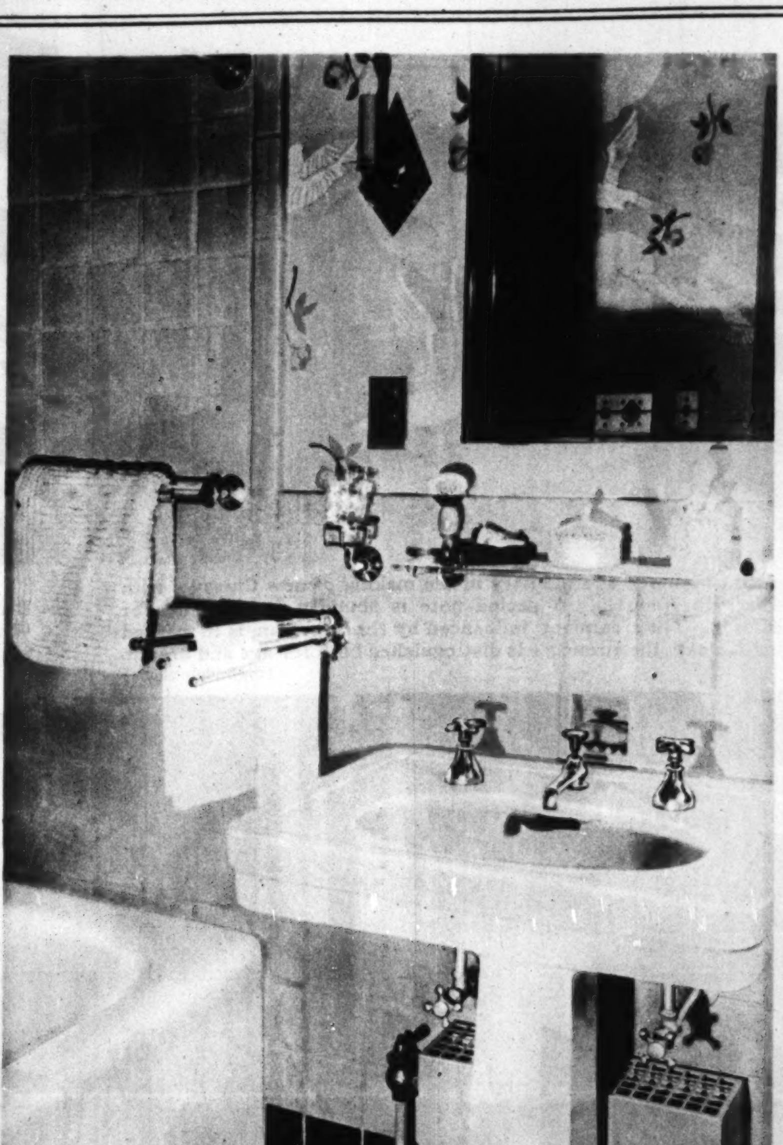
Nobody wants to live in a place that has half-right plumbing! And nobody should . . . since health of body and ease of mind depend on a plentiful water supply and proper drainage. In this day and age, efficiency in the home is every woman's right. Then, too, the bathroom and the kitchen tell so much . . . about the builder's ideas of good construction . . . about the tenant's ideals of cleanliness and care.

When you go home hunting, look critically at the plumbing fixtures. Where you find the Kohler mark, you find, too, good design, fine finish, and beautiful workmanship—down to the last detail. Kohler colors are clear, correct, and not too striking. The white is the perfect white of fine linen. . . . And the smooth, shining glaze of Kohler enamel or vitreous china is indestructibly part of the piece. Kohler quality is built-in, for the life of the home.

• Examine the working parts

Kohler faucets, handles, and other fittings are really decorative—but minus all useless adornment. True to purpose. Test their operating efficiency. If possible, look inside and see how things work. You will find fewer parts, heavier castings, more accurate machining, simpler and stronger mechanisms. All Kohler fittings are made of tough, rustless brass—and engineered for hard service. Long after your present car wears out, they will still be working with clock-like precision.

Thoroughness and care are traditions at Kohler Village, where all Kohler products are made. Each step is done with the accuracy of science, and with the enthusiasm of art. Since so much of the work must be done by hand, the spirit of craftsmanship adds worth to each Kohler piece . . . brings into your home its real and tangible benefits, new distinction and new utilty.



New beauty and utility . . . STANDISH *vitreous china lavatory with fittings in Dynamic design—*VICEROY built-in bath.

• Compare the quality . . . compare the costs

One builder states that Kohler plumbing helped more than any other feature to sell out a large new development. Others give similar credit to Kohler quality. Fine fixtures and fittings are always good investments—increasing property values, paying daily dividends of charm and comfort, and saving money in the long run. First costs are only little more than the prices paid for obviously inferior design and doubtful service.

A visit to the nearest Kohler showroom will give you a wealth of new ideas on fixtures and fittings. If you plan to build or remodel, discuss this important subject with your architect and plumbing contractor. Meanwhile, write for Booklet H-9, which illustrates attractive groupings and suggests modern ideas about home plumbing. . . . Kohler Co. Founded 1873. Kohler, Wisconsin. . . . Manufacturers of Kohler Electric Plants.

ELEVEN IMPORTANT POINTS ABOUT PLUMBING

1 Kohler designs are decorative, purposeful, correct.

2 Kohler enamel is made by an exclusive formula, fused with an everlasting bond and keeps its smooth, glistening surface.

3 Vitreous china pieces are sculptured for beauty and service . . . thoroughly vitrified at high temperatures and armored with a smooth, lustrous, lasting glaze.

4 Kohler colors are soft, livable pastels . . . the white is a pure perfect white.

5 Kohler metal fittings are engineered for efficiency . . . heavily plated with chromium, nickel or gold. They match the fixtures in style, character and quality.

6 Materials are the finest—manufacture is most particular. All Kohler products show craftsmanship and care.

7 This company pioneered many of the big advances in plumbing. This year's Kohler products are next year's new ideas.

8 Kohler quality extends to the kitchen and laundry—for every plumbing need.

9 Kohler quality costs no more . . . and saves money later.

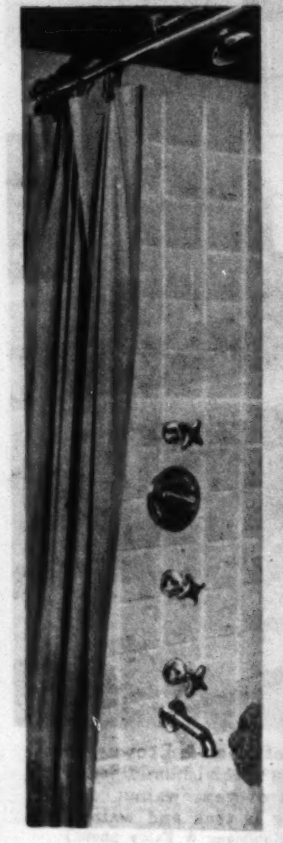
10 Kohler fixtures and fittings are handled and installed by qualified plumbers.

11 Back of the Kohler trade-mark are the traditions and spirit of an entire community . . . beautiful Kohler Village.

Kohler Octachrome lavatory fittings are smart in appearance—rapid, quiet and efficient in action.



Correct in design, precise in operation . . . HALEFORD over-rim bath and shower fitting in Dynamic style.

A marvel of kitchen convenience. . . . The Kohler Electric Sink-Dishwasher. Fittings in Octachrome design.

THE AERIAL CAMERA REPORTS ON A $10,000,000 PROJECT—The aviator's view of progress toward construction of Chicago's greatest bridge, which is to connect the south park and Lincoln park boulevard systems at the mouth of the river. The river, across which the principal span will be thrown, is at left center. At the center a steamer puts in at Ogden slip; just around the "corner" from it will be noted the beginnings of the substructure for the secondary bridge across the slip, and across from that to the north a lane cut through a building to make way for the north approach. In the distance is Lake Shore drive, to which the approach will lead. The murky area about the steamer, it may be explained for the curious, is mud.

NORTH STAR BLANKETS
(PUREST WOOL)

IT isn't so easy to tell the North Star Blanket story. If you keep to the truth, you must use superlatives, since everything that goes into their making is superlatively fine. Way back, in the days of the Civil War, the founders of the North Star Woolen Mill thought that was the way to make blankets, started doing it, and have been undeviatingly at it in this way ever since. What do we now have? A line of blankets of surpassing loveliness for every possible use to which a blanket may be put. Yes, they are truly very, very beautiful. On Sale in Your Local Store. to the Millions who miss BEER

All its finest delights are still with you

There is today a brew in most ways better than the best of old. Just as pure and sparkling, just as flavory and aromatic. Just as quieting, healthful and invigorating as any malt-and-hop brew of the past.

Less alcohol—that's true. But that was a minor factor. Malt and hops gave the flavor. Carbonic gas gave the foam and sparkle. The esters and aldehydes were the main invigorating factors. All those joys remain.

Were you told that this brew was an old reserve, you could not discover the difference. Any seeming lack is largely in the mind.

The New-Day Brew

Atlas, in the old days, was a leading brew. It's a better brew today. For ten years we have spent effort and money—lavishly—to legally satisfy your craving for this ideal drink.

We have never made a "near-beer." Atlas Special Brew is the brew of old, perfected. It is fermented and aged like the old. Then we evaporate sufficient alcohol to come within the law.

Both Rich and Pure

Atlas Special Brew is extra-heavy. It is rich in esters and aldehydes—the invigorating factors. It is rich in tonic effects, the quieting properties of barley malt and Bohemian hops.

It has the old sparkle and foam, the old flavor and aroma. It has the age, because we store it in glass-lined tanks for months. It has the utter purity. It is boiled for hours to sterilize. It is filtered again and again. Distilled water is used in washing the bottles. Then the filled bottles are pasteurized.

On every bottle of Atlas Special Brew, a famous laboratory certifies to the purity and quality. You never saw that on the old brews.

Bring Old Days Back

If you loved a malt-and-hop brew, pure and aged, here you have it at its best. If you drank a bottle with your meals to aid digestion, do it now. If a bottle at bedtime brought you sleep, it will do so still.

If you need its tonic effects, or love its delights, have them ever with you. Forget the alcohol. That was never the reason for beer.

Don't try to meet the craving for a healthful malt-and-hop brew with something wretched and impure.

Let us prove how much this Atlas Special Brew will mean to you and yours. It costs only 15c a bottle, much less by the case of 24 bottles. It is supplied by over 30,000 grocers, delicatessen stores and drug stores in Chicago and surrounding states. Look for the green Atlas Special label on each bottle. Atlas Brewing Company, 2107 Blue Island Ave., Chicago, Ill. Today's TRIBUNE

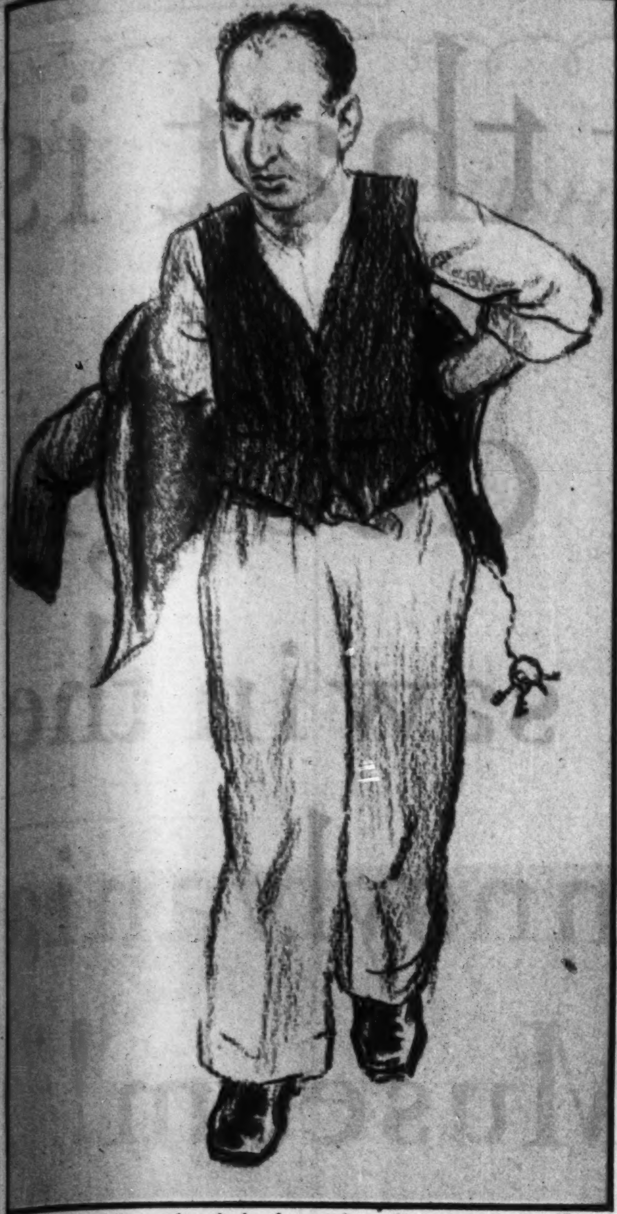
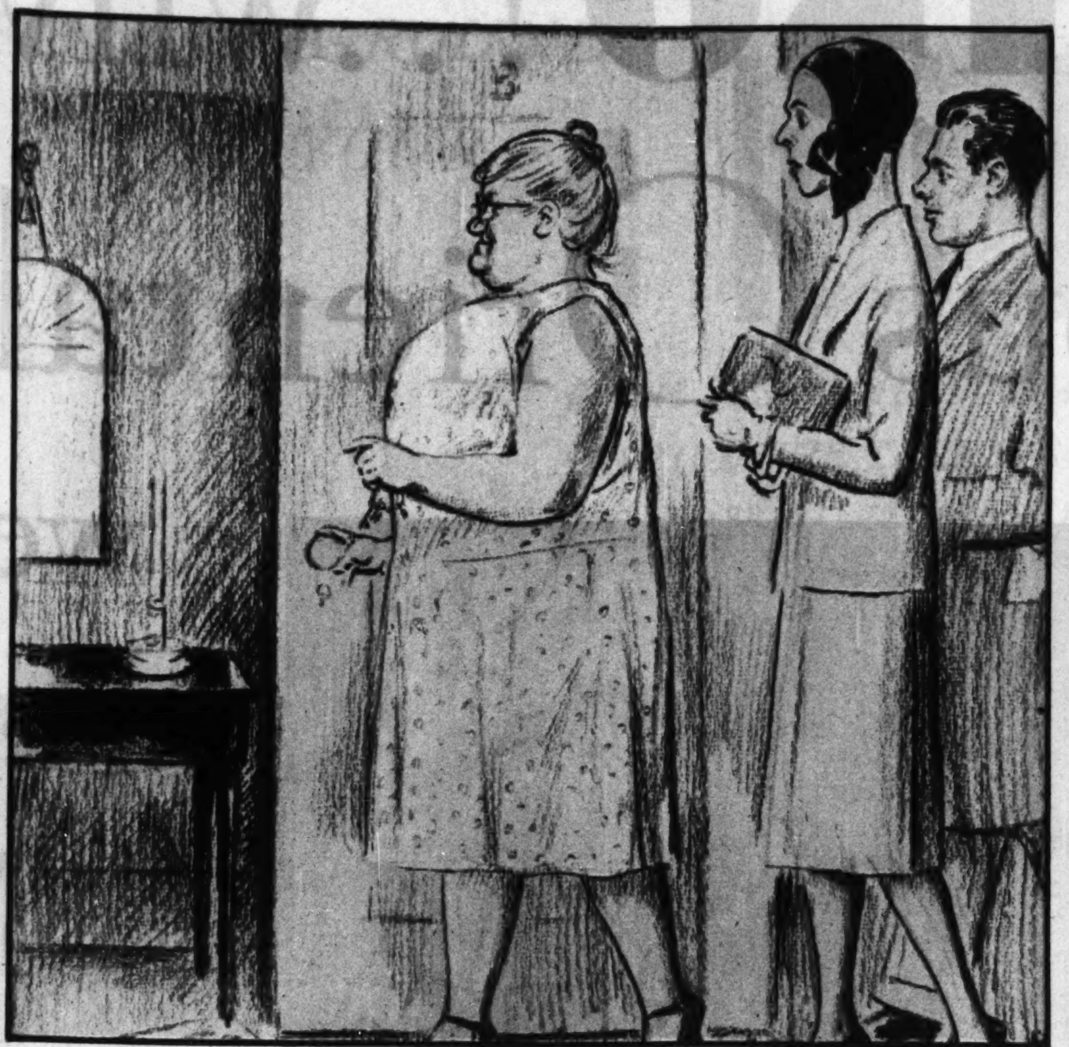
Caretaker on Premises

By W. E. Hill

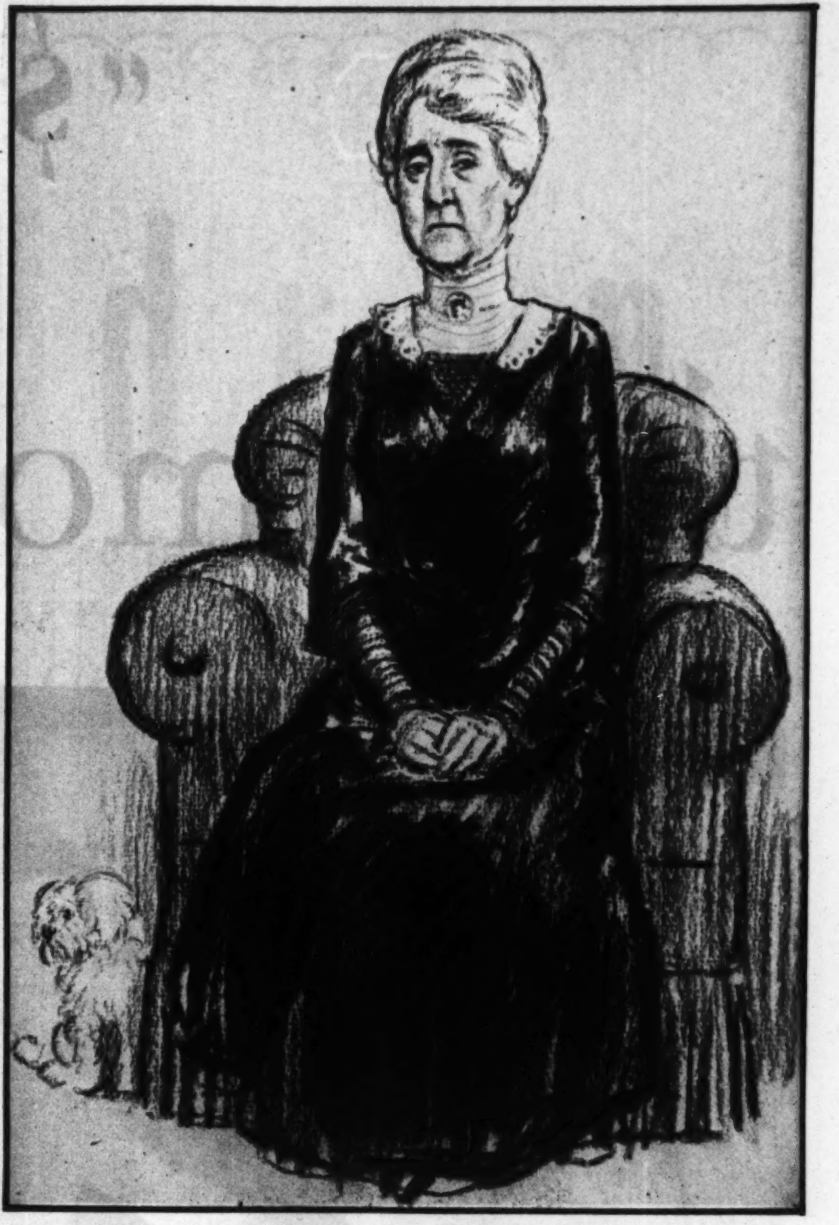
[Copyright: 1930: By The Chicago Tribune.]



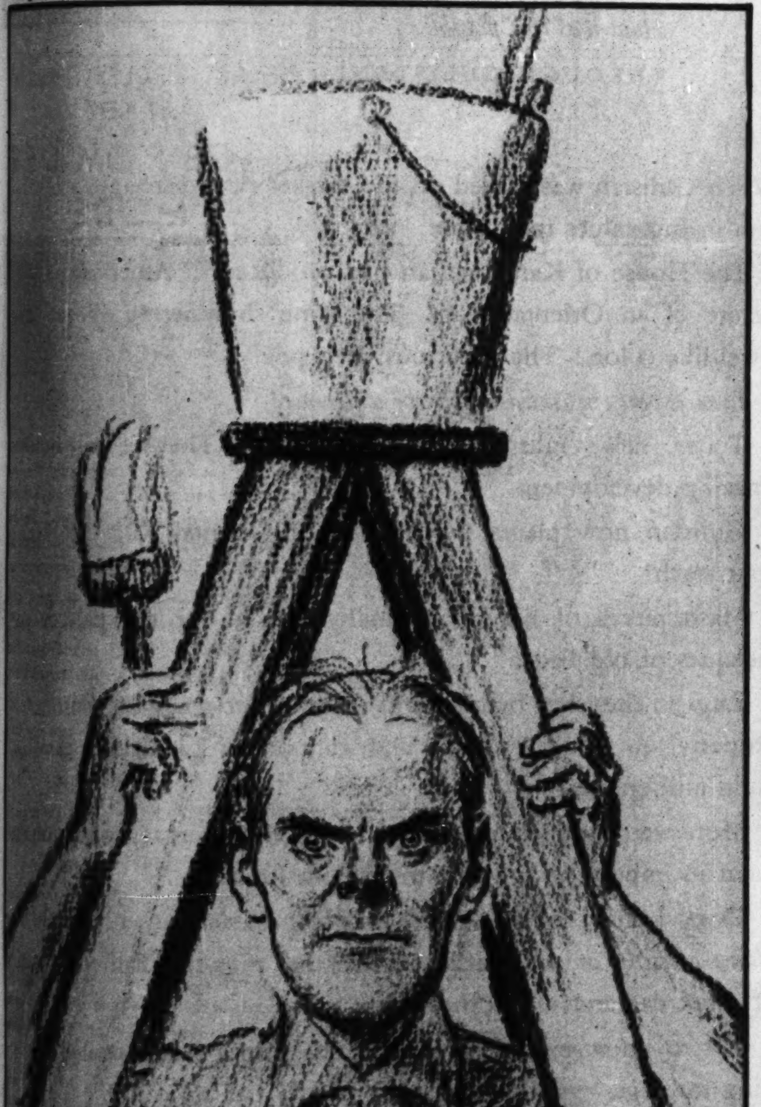
Now come the melancholy days when the caretaker's life is made hideous by the apartment hunters looking for three, four and five rooms with baths and kitchenette, redecorated to suit. Leo, caretaker and superintendent of the Dolores apartments, is being summoned from a pinochle game in the boiler room to show the spokeswoman of a family of eight a three room, bath, kitchenette and dinette apartment. Leo knows in advance that the woman will exclaim, "O, what inadequate closet space," and want new decorations throughout.



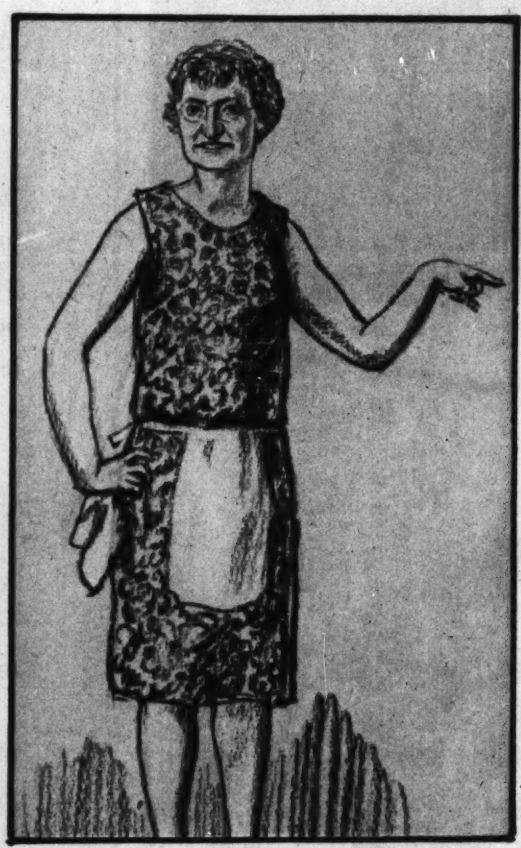
Mrs. Schmaltz, lady caretaker of the "La France" apartment block, spares no pains to capture a new tenant. Should the prospective tenant voice his or her objection to size or arrangement of the rooms, Mrs. Schmaltz will insist gaily but forcefully that a visit be made to a similar apartment, "just so," she explains, "you can see how the Jennings get over that difficulty. They have six in the family, and the baby's nurse sleeps in the dinette. Then they keep the bread and dry cereals under one of the beds, and the meat and vegetables on ice in the bathtub, and Mrs. Jennings' father sleeps in the foyer hall when he's in from the road. I guess there's nobody home; we'll go right in!"



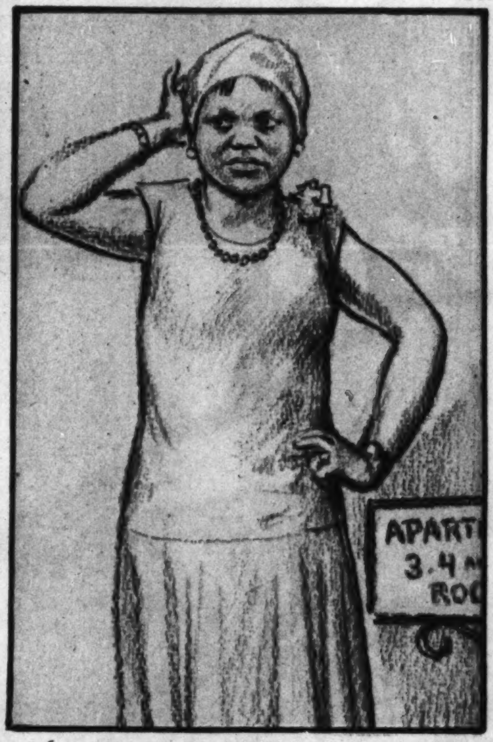
Mrs. House lets the basement and top floors of her old brownstone front, and does the renting and showing of it all by her lonesome. A very careful person is Mrs. House, and demands some thirty or forty ironbound references. She only shows the apartments to the elite looking. She has to be careful, seeing that once upon a time she rented her top floor to an old man with eight daughters. And it turned out that they weren't his daughters at all, they were his wives; so, naturally Mrs. House has to look the new tenants over before allowing them beneath her roof.



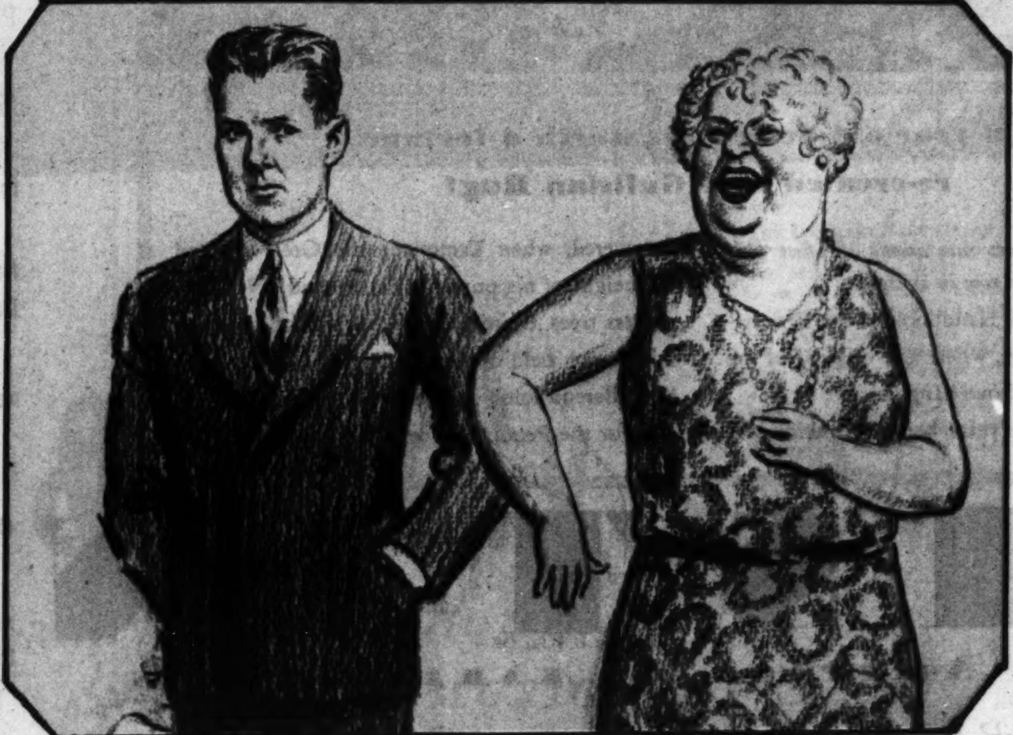
Meet Mr. Herman Wohl, peeking out from a stepladder and ready to answer the bell if it rings long and loud enough. It's not so easy getting Mr. Wohl's attention away from his duties at the Marlborough Arms apartment building. For Herman (as he is known to the favored few) is engineer, electrician, painter, and scavenger for the Marlborough tenants, and, being a walkup building, this is no mean job.



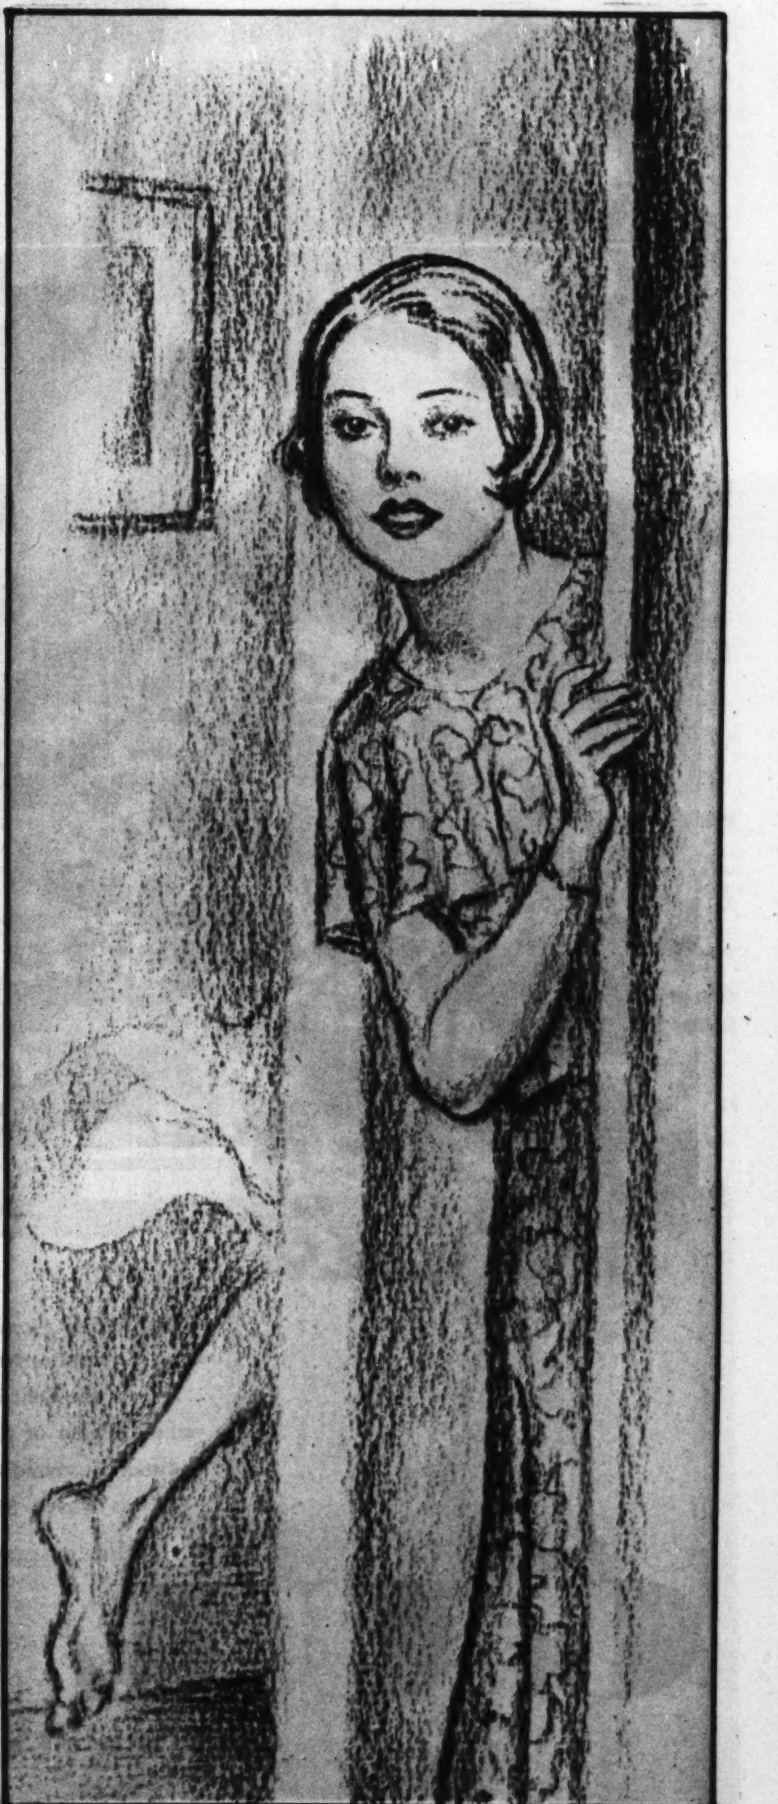
"Now this little alcove off the living room would look real chic and Frenchy if you was to fix it up with an occasional bed in it!" Mrs. Mayley, the caretaker's wife, has no call to bemean herself by showing apartment hunters through the building, but when she does do the honors she is very elegant about it, and brings out all the good points.



Mrs. Brown, being a widow, had to have something besides society to take up the gap in her life caused by Mr. Brown's departure with another lady for parts unknown; so she took upon herself the duties as janitress and caretaker de luxe of the Esplanade Towers apartments. It is Mrs Brown's belief that people just look and look at apartments for pleasure and she is pretty choosy about showing vacancies to the common herd. "Yes," Mrs. Brown will say, "there's a three-room and bath vacant, but you'll have to come back again; I've a couple of lady friends in for the evening."



Mrs. Sam Kagna is caretaker in spirit only, for doesn't she own the whole block of flats called Dorsetshire Arms? Though ever the lady, there are those who have thought Mrs. Kagna just a teeny bit too entre nous among the apartment seekers. "Do you play the piano?" asks Mrs. K., wafting a pungent whiff of Mitsouko from her lace hanky. "Mrs. Axle, my last tenant, had a piano and I used to come in and stay for hours and hours while she sat down and drummed. 'Come on, Mrs. Axle,' I'd say, 'sit down and tickle the ivories with a fudge by Bach.' I'm so glad you play. And do you care for auction?"



"Would you mind waiting till my girl friend gets some clothes on? She was just going to bed." Some apartments, especially those one-time private homes which have been converted into flats, dispense with a paid caretaker and let the tenants do the best they can with the people who come from the renting office. This is really good business, as the prospective tenants are usually too scared to look into the closets or examine the plumbing.

"$150!..why that is the famous Oriental design we saw in the Pennsylvania Museum!"

That same rug, they had been informed, was worth a fortune.

Yet here was this masterpiece of Oriental design in their friend's home, shimmering with silky sheen, recognizable in every detail.

How was this possible?

THROUGH GULISTAN!

When Gulistan was placed on the market two years ago, a revolution in rug values took place.

The House of Karagheusian had produced in America the silky beauty of an Oriental Rug! The same shimmering sheen! The jewel-like colors! The luxurious deep pile!

Even experts hesitated to tell the difference!

Today, new Gulistans are in the stores. They reveal another amazing development.

Gulistan now places Old Masters of Oriental Rug Art within your reach!

Masterpieces of design originally created for the palaces and mosques of old Persia!

Rugs so cherished by museums that they are really the sentimental property of whole peoples and cannot be purchased even by multi-millionaires!

Moreover, rugs so intricate in design that even reproductions of them in imported Orientals are seldom found!

Does beauty such as this transform a home, a room? One glance gives the answer. Little wonder that rugs this Fall come ahead of other demands upon the family purse!

But to know exactly what you are getting when you go shopping for rugs, remember these plain facts.

Gulistan is the American product of Karagheusian, the largest makers of Oriental Rugs.

Only Karagheusian can make Gulistan. All rugs so marked come from this famous House.

In Gulistan you have the same sturdy Oriental wool yarns, the finest dyes, the very same finishing process as you get in their expensive Persian and Chinese rugs.

Naturally, all the best stores have Gulistans. Many of them have arranged art gallery displays to show these beautiful rugs appropriately.

Look on the back of the rug for the silken label pictured below.

That is your guarantee of authenticity. No Gulistan Rug has been O. K.'d by Karagheusian without it.

There are many designs and color combinations. Sizes from 22½ by 36 inches ($10) to 11 feet 3 inches by 21 feet ($435). Also Stair Carpets and Hall Runners.

THE GULISTAN RUG

500 year old design . . . worth a fortune, re-created in a Gulistan Rug!

A carpet that "scholars rate among the first half dozen of ancient carpets now in existence."

So says the Official Handbook of the Pennsylvania Museum of Art, where the original of the Gulistan illustrated above hangs today!

It was woven 88 years before America was discovered, when Tamerlane the Great reached the height of his power in Samarkand! Note the cypress trees, expressing life eternal, which make up the rich field of this rug!

Six different color combinations to choose from. Ask for the Persian Garden Rug, No. 25082.

A DISTINGUISHED BACKGROUND FOR YOUR children

WITH ITS TRADITIONAL ABILITY TO DEVELOP AND INSPIRE THE TALENTS OF YOUR CHILDREN, WITH ALL ITS POSSIBILITIES FOR CIVILIZED ENTERTAINMENT, THE STEINWAY NOW IS EASILY WITHIN YOUR REACH

Study of Child at the Piano by Anton Bruehl

THE STEINWAY will give your children an attractive accomplishment that will help them to make friends. It will permit them to develop their talents, unhampered, on what is both the strongest and most perfect instrument. And it will subtly connect them with a glorious tradition . . . for virtually every great musician since Wagner has used the Steinway.

In its graceful case, made from the finest woods, the Steinway is the cultured decoration for the beautiful room. It is a friendly, personal instrument that lends itself as well to pleasant moments of reverie, as to the gay informalities of an evening gathering.

Yet the Steinway is the piano that can find its way most easily into every man's home without putting any undue financial strain upon him. You can pay for the Steinway as you enjoy it. Ten per cent down. The balance in three years. Go into any one of Lyon & Healy's conveniently located neighborhood stores. Listen to an artist play upon the Steinway. Then let Lyon & Healy send the Instrument of the Immortals to your home . . . to entertain your guests, to endow your children with an instrument that is adequate for the highest genius as well as for years of the most rugged use. . . . The Steinway is the finest piano made. Come in and be convinced.

A new Steinway Upright piano can be bought for a total as low as $875

10% down balance in three years

Any Steinway piano may be purchased with a cash deposit of 10% and the balance in a period of three years. Used pianos accepted in partial exchange.

LYON & HEALY, Wabash Avenue at Jackson Boulevard, Chicago.

RUDOLPH GANZ says of the Steinway: "It has both singing tone and piano action in an unapproachable degree."

AMERICA'S GREAT MUSIC HOUSE
EVERYTHING KNOWN IN MUSIC

THE STEINWAY BABY GRAND —A Steinway of this size and power . . . at $1425 . . . is an extraordinary value. It is the ideal instrument for the majority of homes. Its beautiful finish harmonizes with any plan of interior decoration, and its size is such as to conserve floor space, and still retain that beauty and breadth of tone which a true grand piano ought to have. There are many Steinway sizes and prices (including period models) from $875 upward.

AN ARMADA OF YACHTING FANS—Big boats, little boats, propelled by steam, gasoline, and sails, scurried and scampered, tooted and hooted their way out from Newport for the race of the Enterprise and the Shamrock. ITALY'S NEW FRONTIERS—A busy hour view of the handsome Piazza Giuseppe Verdi in Fiume, ceded to the Italians by Jugo-Slavia in 1924. The port is a jewel of a beauty spot in a setting of Julian Alps, but grass grows in the streets that once hummed with bustling traffic. In an article in today's Drama section David Darrah, The Tribune's correspondent at Rome, writes the dramatic story of the city's decline.

AN IMAGINARY LINE WHERE TWO NATIONS MEET, here materialized by an artist, separates Italian Fiume from Jugo-Slav Sussak. In the foreground is Fiume, which has been sinking toward innocuous desuetude since it became Italian, much to the advantage of its rival.

Sound Sleep

Instantly you go to bed

HERE'S a simple way to get to sleep almost instantly you go to bed—a drugless way that brings restful nights, wide-awake days.

You waken fresh, clear-eyed, buoyant—with energy to last all day long. From 8 hours' natural sleep—sleep without drugs!

A new-type food-drink from Switzerland does this. You take it with warm milk at night, before you go to bed. You get to sleep almost immediately.

It is called Ovaltine. It contains no drugs, no sedatives. It is a concentrated, easily digested food—that works at once to quiet digestive unrest; to feed overstrained nerves.

Thus it brings sound, natural sleep that rests and invigorates. It is the recognized best "night cap" all over the world. 20,000 doctors advise Ovaltine. Your grocer or druggist has it, or send coupon for test supply.

YOUTH HAS ITS DAY A-HORSEBACK—Lake Forest youngsters entered in the costume contest at the gymkhana held at the Onwentsia polo grounds. Peggy McIlvaine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. McIlvaine, who was a Joan of Arc in silver cloth, was awarded the prize for the prettiest costume.

Frederic McLaughlin of Chicago, at the left, favored the single-breasted coat in a striped fabric, and added a touch of color with a polka dot bow. The double-breasted, in a dark shade, was worn by John Mackay, second from left, who in this case at least preferred a stiff collar. Harry Payne Bingham, second from right, like Mr. McLaughlin, was an exponent of the notched lapel; and Hutton Miller, at right, like Mr. Mackay, had chosen the peaked lapel.

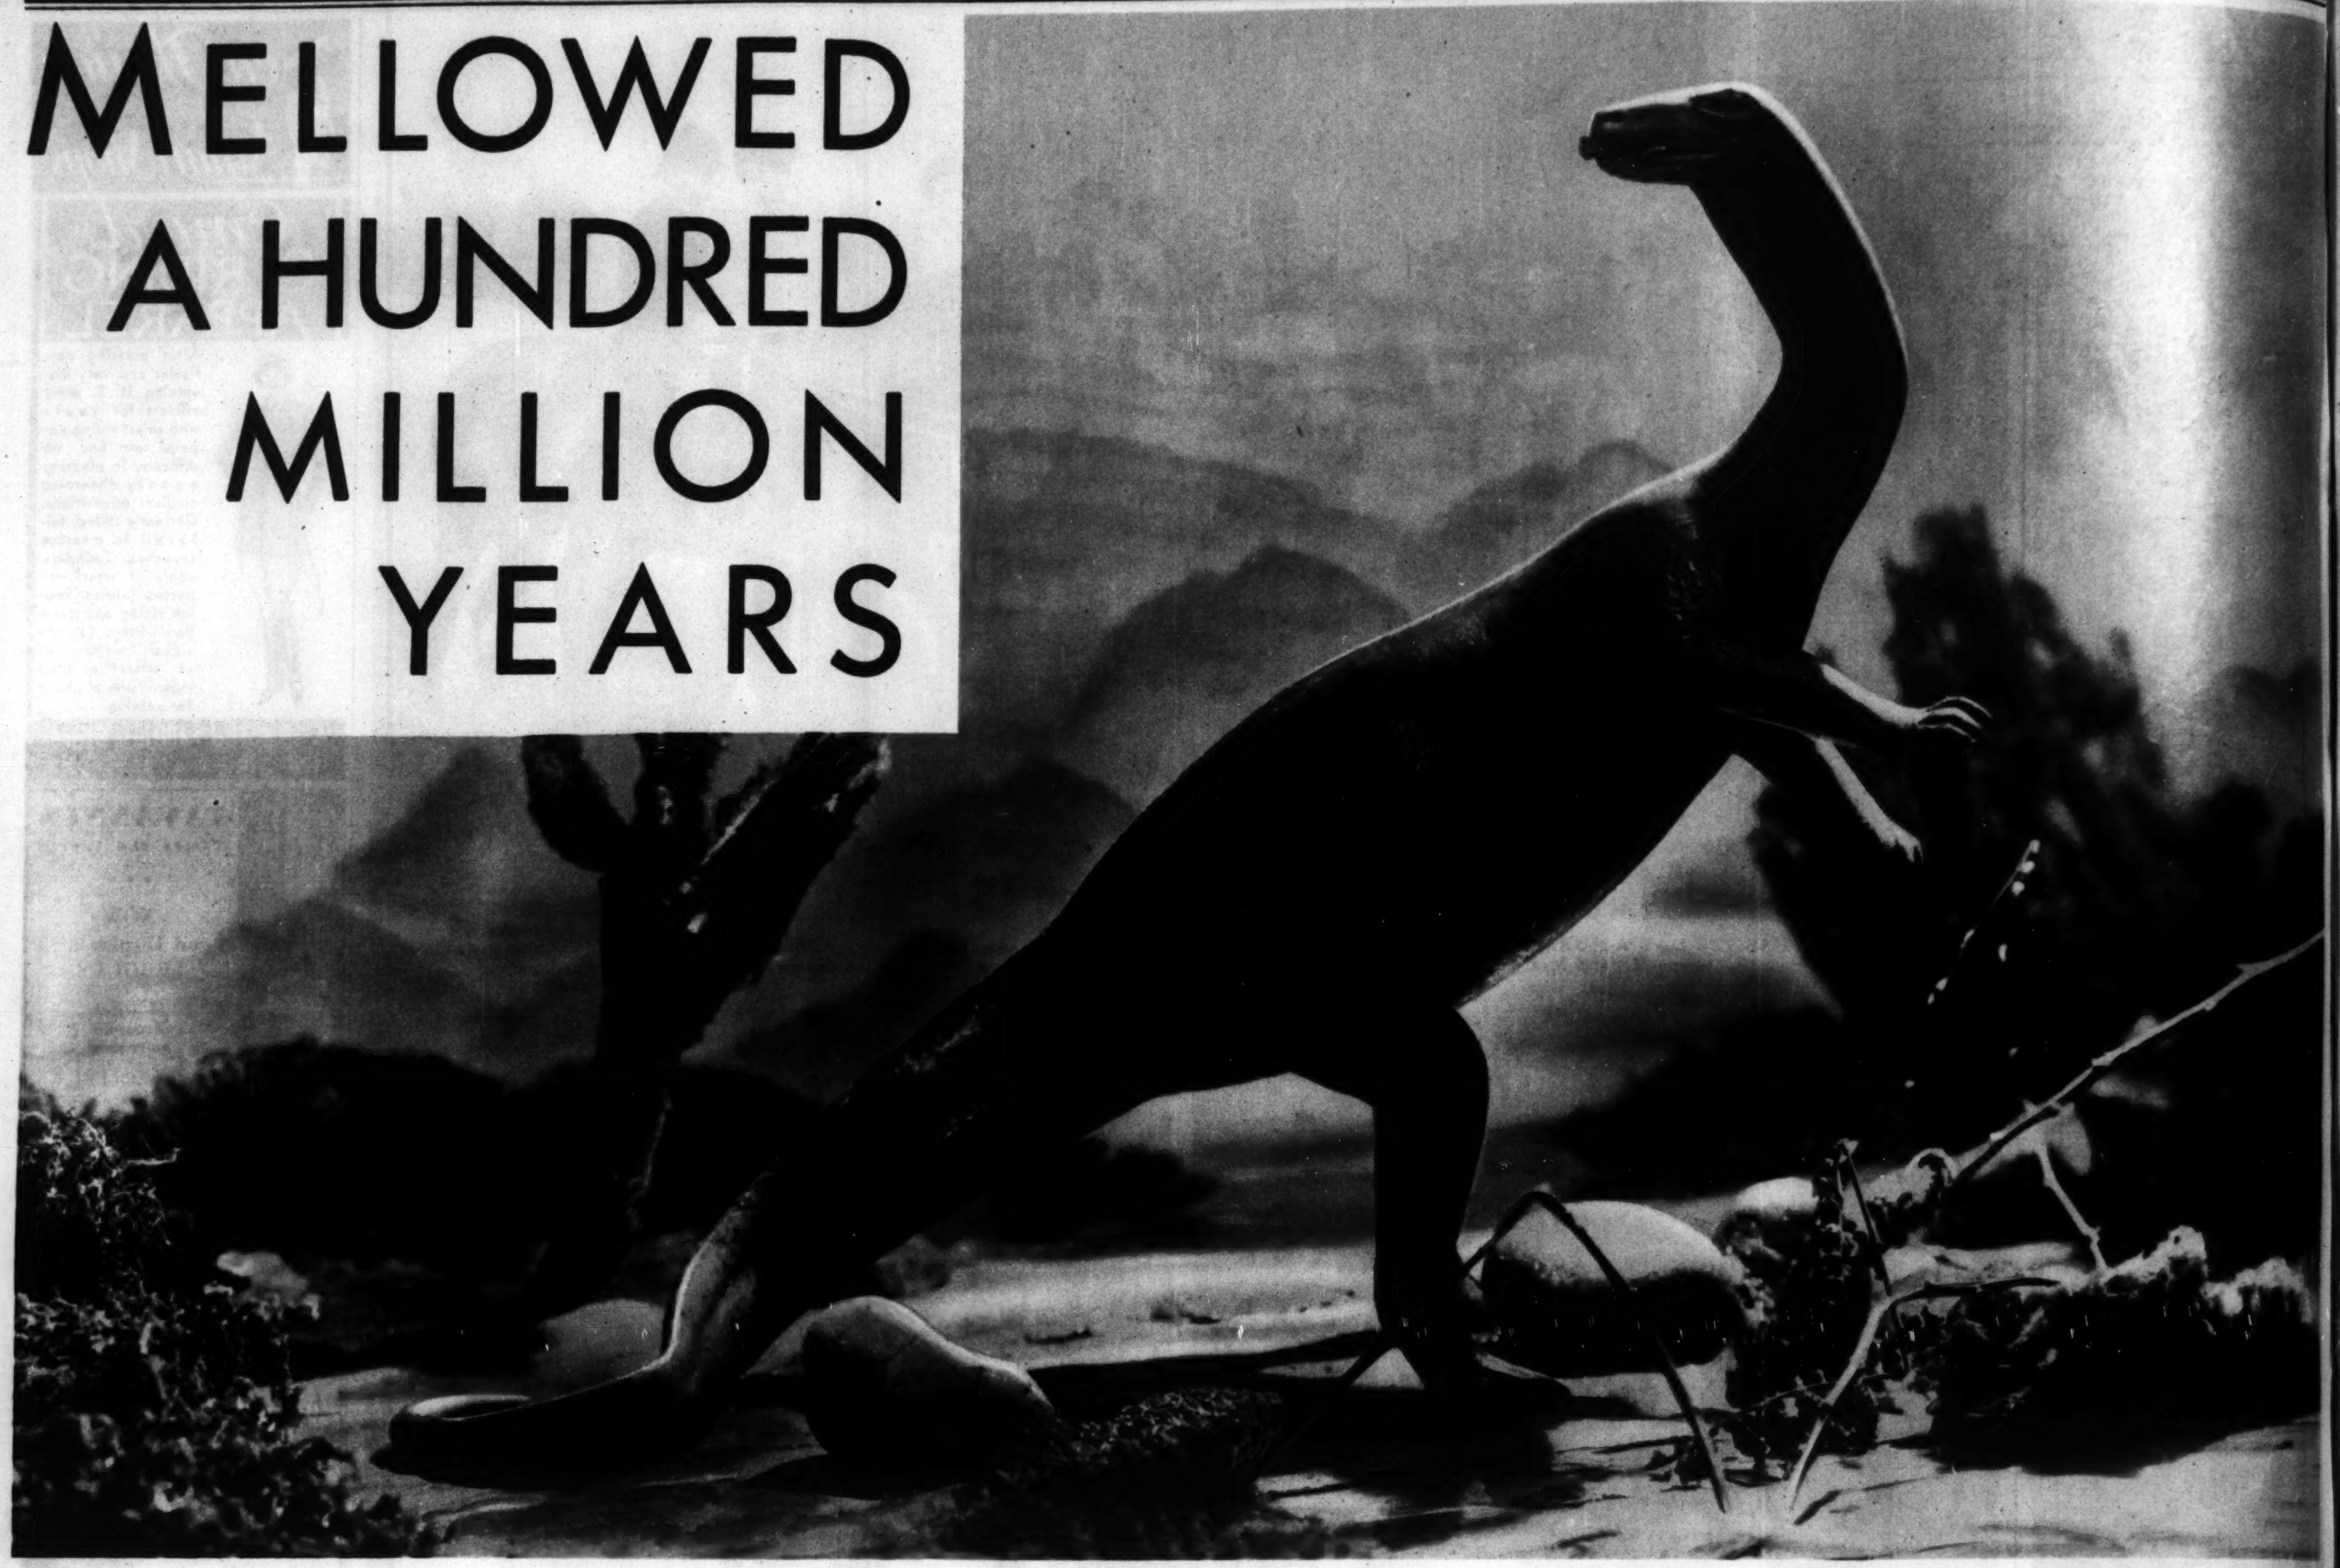
MELLOWED A HUNDRED MILLION YEARS



Long, long ago in PENNSYLVANIA

MILLIONS of years ago in the Devonian Age —while the world rocked with earthquakes and mighty, armored fish swam the seas—Nature stowed away in the Bradford-Allegany District of the Pennsylvania field her most valuable crude oil.

Most crudes refined for motor oils today are millions of years younger than Bradford-Allegany crude. A few are older. But among them all this Bradford-Allegany crude was formed at a time when earth conditions were 100% favorable—so favorable that a hundred million years of filtering and mellowing have brought this crude to the highest known point of lubricating quality!

That is why Sinclair has built at Wellsville, N. Y., the largest single refinery devoted exclusively to the manufacture of Pennsylvania grade motor oil. Here, under the careful supervision of laboratory experts, Sinclair refines Bradford-Allegany crude into Sinclair Mobiline.

Have the nearest Sinclair dealer change your oil to Sinclair Mobiline according to the Sinclair Law of Lubrication. After a period of long, hard driving examine this Mobiline. Note how it stands up—how it comes out of the crankcase almost as good as it went in. Note especially how very little Mobiline your engine has used up—positive, visible proof that it stays in the engine and lubricates for the last mile as well as the first!

Send our nearest office your name and address and a list of the states where you intend touring and we will send you road maps and the Sinclair Law of Lubrication booklet, free. Sinclair Refining Company, (Inc.) New York, Atlanta, Chicago, Houston, Kansas City.

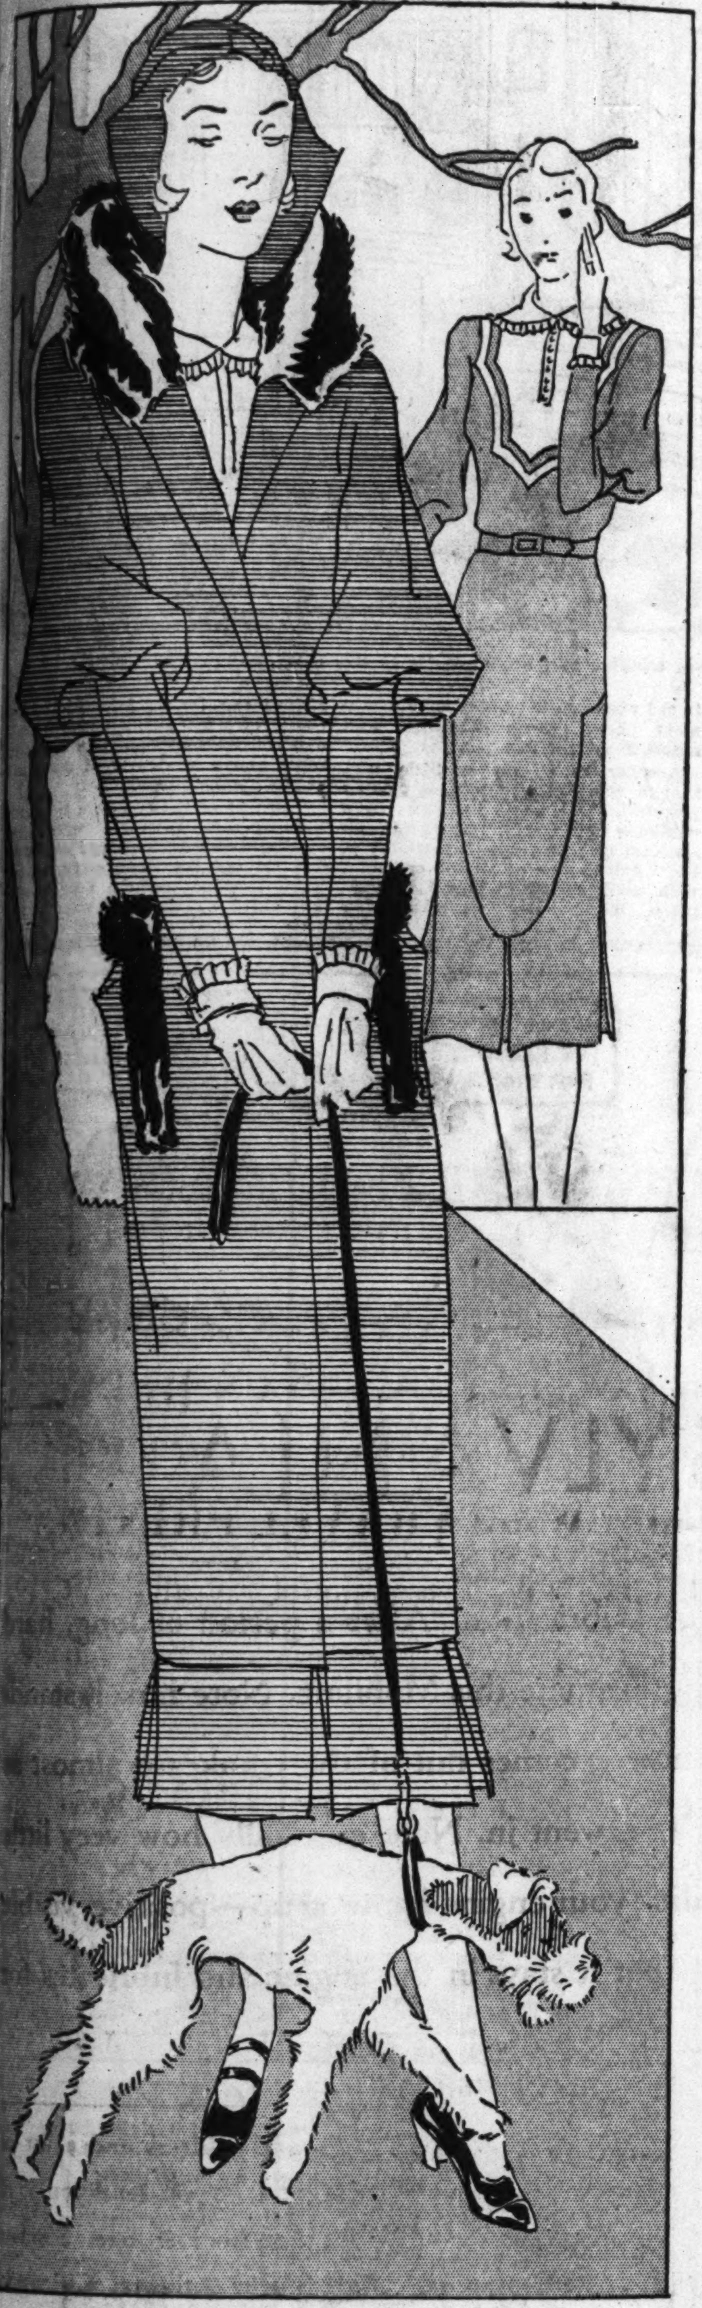
EVEN MORE FEMININITY IN FALL MODES

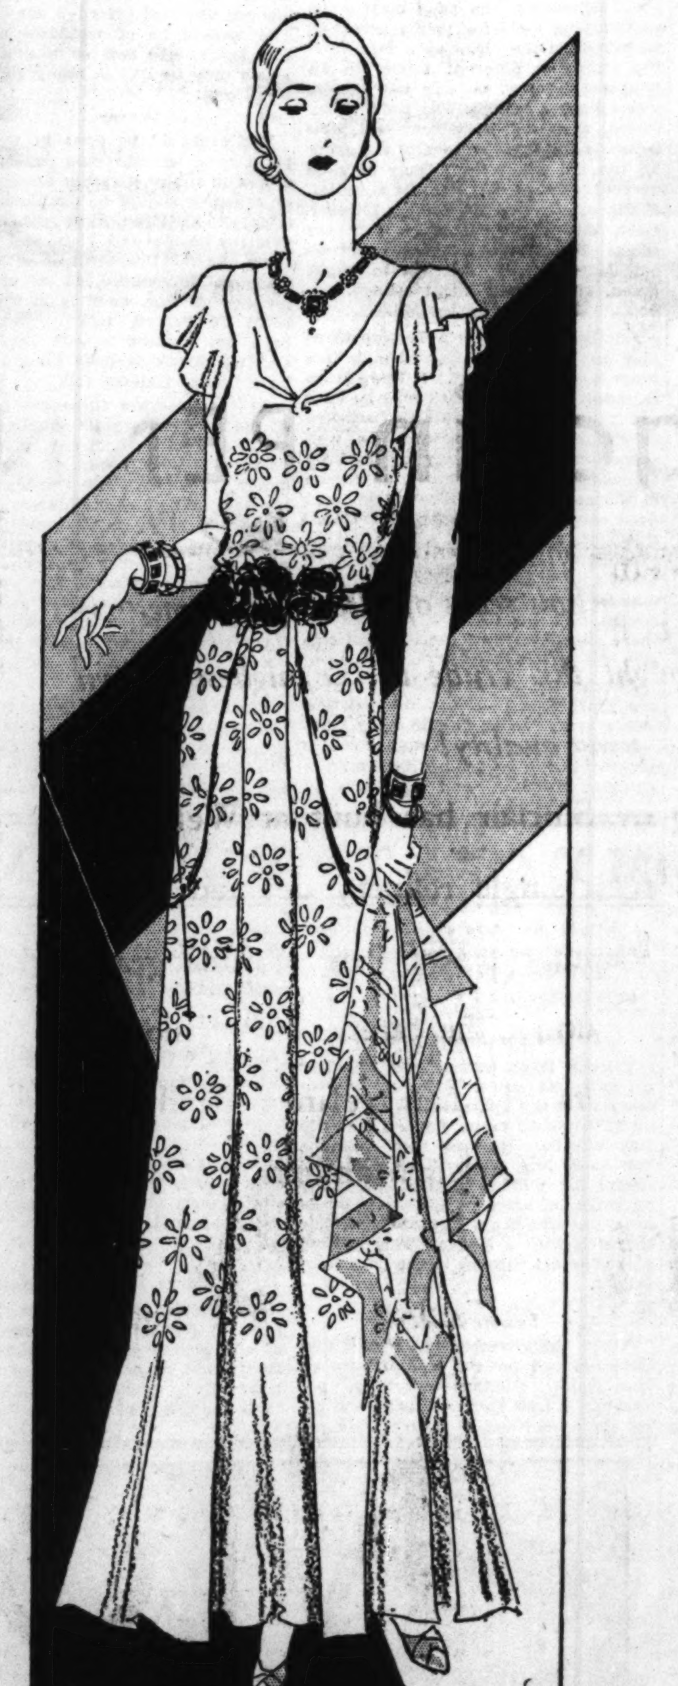
The Hourglass Silhouette Is Back Again with Its 18-Inch Waist, Its Puff Sleeves and Its Full Skirts

Paris Snapshots

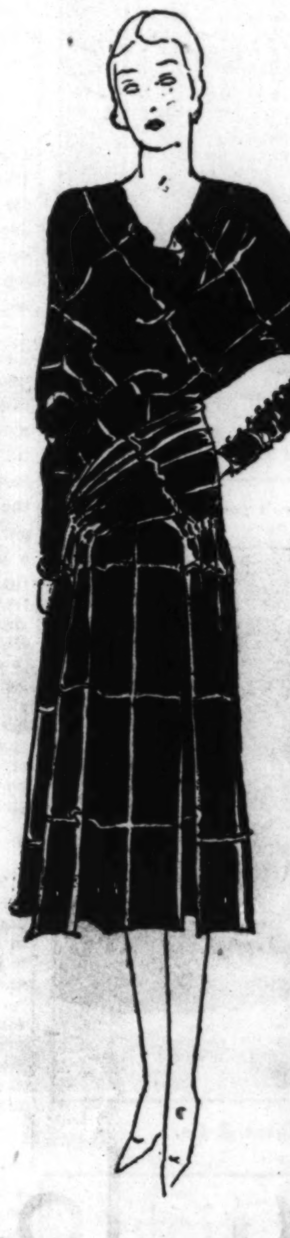
- ¶ Molyneux makes the sensational hit of the Paris fashion shows with his new Revolution silhouette that has Empire waistline and long skirts progressively flared by wide bands shirred to each other. Coats have the same fullness from mother-hubbard yokes.
- ¶ Chanel is flaring the fronts of many of her skirts by fans of the material made of bands embroidered together and reaching from high waistlines to hems.
- ¶ It looks like Egyptian front skirt draperies and draped girdles would be the next new fashion, with Lanvin, Jean Patou, and Martial et Armand featuring them.
- ¶ Wide striped silk sashes on white satin evening gowns are a Lanvin sensation.
- ¶ Ostrich plumes and some willow plumes are used for trimming felt hats by Jean Patou and Molyneux, also coque feathers.

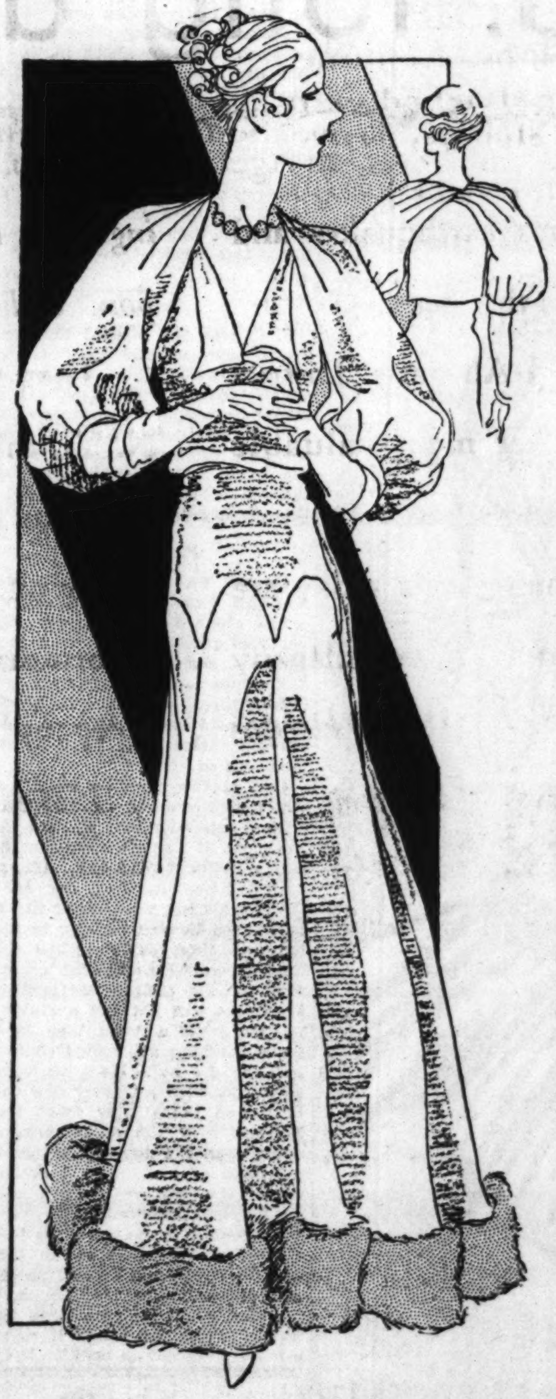


Gathered puffs make the sleeves of this Redfern dress and coat wide above the elbows. It's dark green broadcloth and cloky jersey and trimmed with mink.

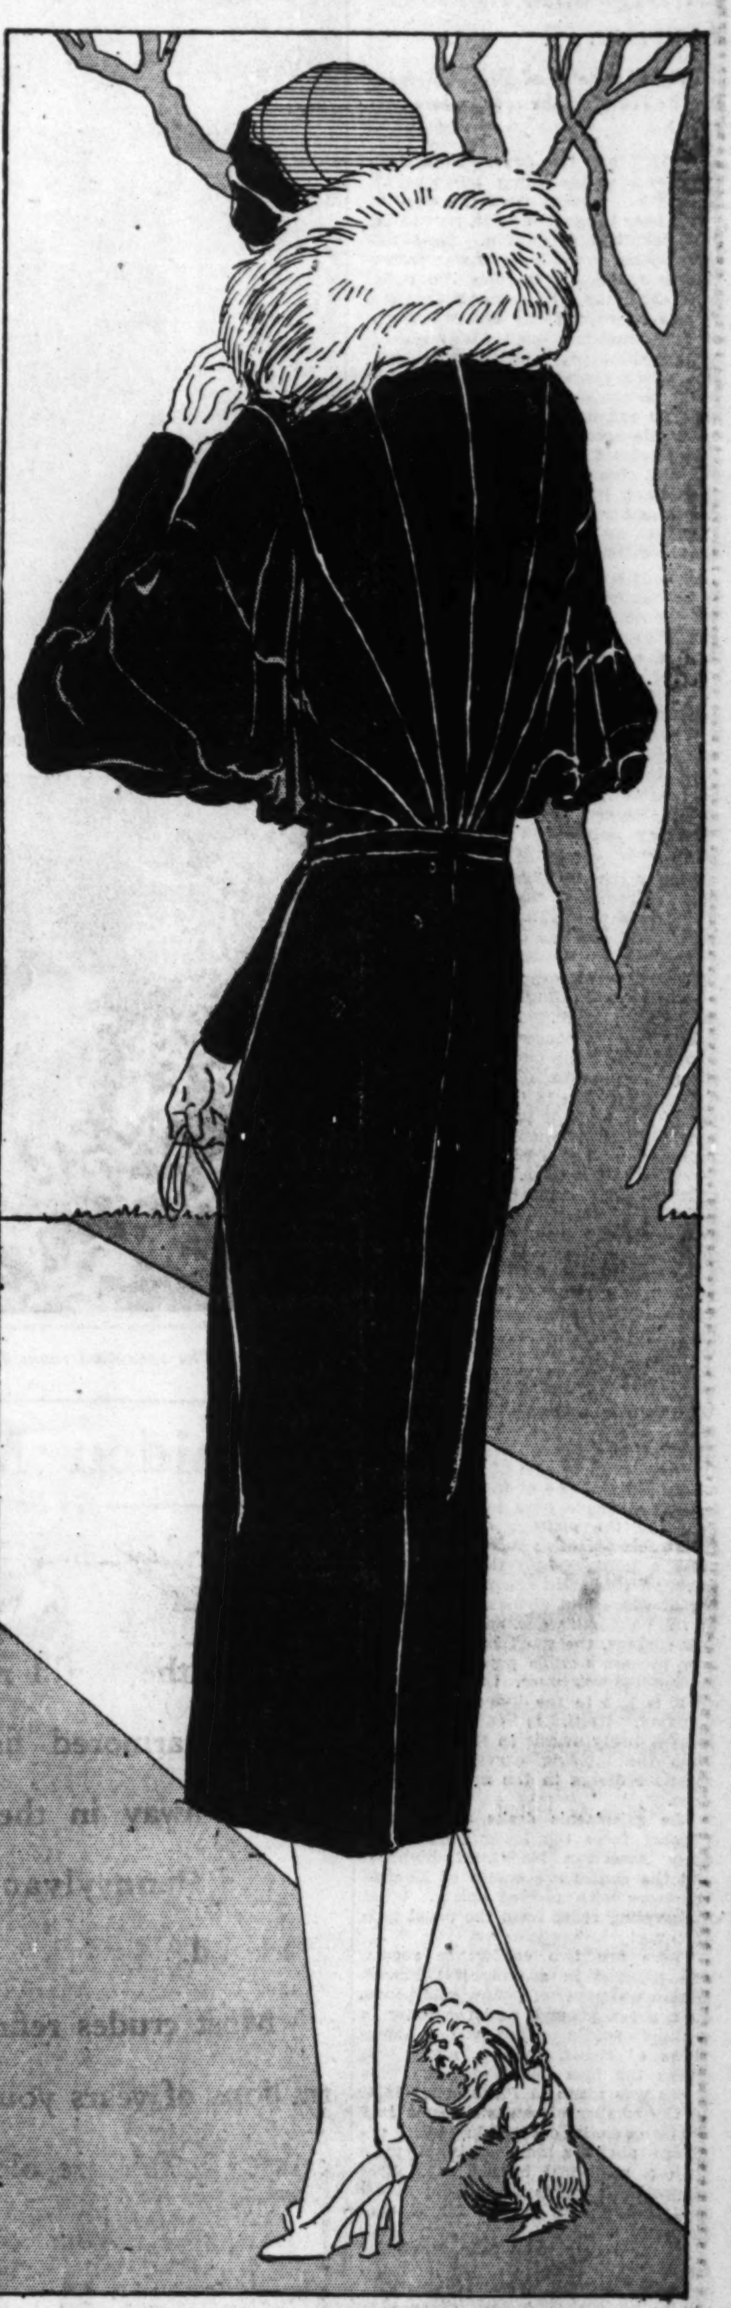


Lucile Paray makes this frock of wine red eyelet-embroidered georgette and adds a girdle of green velvet with velvet flowers.





Balloon sleeves invade the evening mode, too, as this Champcommunal model of begonia red, lusterless satin shows. The sleeves can be taken off.



This is the 1930 daytime dolman coat as created by Redfern. It's made of black velvet and trimmed with white fox.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—(Special.)—The Paris fall fashion shows have restored prewar femininity with a vengeance. The violent opposition that this movement met last autumn appears only to have intensified the determination that we shall dress like ladies, in spite of the sexless freedom of our modern life.

Longer skirts keep right on, and normal waistlines flourish, but this is not the key to the new styles. It is to be found in the emphasis that Paris puts on the feminine silhouette by widening and curving the shoulder lines and by correspondingly tightening the belt around the waistline so that even the slimmest Venus is going to look somewhat hour-glasslike in outline. Patou has some real eighteen-inch waists, girls, and all the other Paris dressmakers make 'em look small no matter what the actual measurement may happen to be. Skirts are either slinky and sheathlike to almost the knees, or they flow in feminine folds from the slim waistline.

Sleeves on both coats and dresses are important. In most of the houses they are puffed toward the top, and there are thousands of ways of doing this. Even the evening dresses have short sleeves or sleeve effects. Leg o' mutton, bishop, dolman, plasant, cape and angel sleeves romp all over the style-scape for fall.

Embroidery comes back both for day and evening, and lace dresses or real lace trimmings are legion. Fur appears on dresses as well as coats, and fur sets are revived by Patou in fur shawls, dolmans, pelerines, stoles and capes, with muffs to match. Every Paris house shows muffs. Lanvin has collapsible ones about a yard long.

Egyptian front drapery on skirts at Patou's vies with back drapery in the Lelong collection and elsewhere. Bustle and all-around peplums make the waistline look even slimmer and the hipline appear more curved. Tunic blouses and jackets that flare from the belt or girdle to the hips, knees or below produce the same effect. Blouses go over the top of the skirt even when they're not tunics, and they are opulent, being made of brocade, lame, or velvet in many cases.

Coats divide into waist and skirt, with waistlines held by belts, buttons or ties. Lots of redingotes with real, flared skirts are to be found in houses like Irene Dana, Jeanne Lanvin, Schiaparelli, and suits at Lelong's have double breasted redingote closings. All coats are luxuriously laden with fur trimmings, and the furs are often precious, such as sable, mink, ermine, and real seal. Some houses, like Ardanse, dye fur to match the color of the coat.

Sports clothes are few and far between, and when they do appear slipon fur or suede vests give them a rich air. Patou and Schiaparelli both show slip-on vests. Jane Regny revives the clan plaids of Scotland. Lanvin shows lame sweaters, and Schiaparelli drapes 'em a la Grec.

Important concessions to the hurry of our modern life are found in the vast numbers of informal evening clothes that can be worn also in the late afternoon. It looks as though bare backs and nude arms would become rarities in Paris fashions, for these dresses that are to be worn both for cocktails (or what have you between five and seven?) either have modest necklines and short sleeves, or they are accompanied by the tiniest of jackets with puffed or ruffled sleeves that can be left off later on.

Skirt lengths continue to operate on a sliding scale, though none are shorter than six inches below the knees to just below at Jenny's only. Afternoon clothes are generally eight or ten inches from the ground, and some of them touch the ankles or insteps. Evening clothes agree on the insteps to end their downward career, except chez Patou and Callot. Patou often lifts them in front, by his Egyptian drapery and occasionally splits them almost to the knee so there are glimpses of the leg. He compensates by dipping them down to the floor, or lengthening them in trails at the back. The uneven hemline for day and evening clothes is important at Patou's and in the collection of Lucile Paray. Elsewhere it is even all around save for a slight dip at the back for formal clothes.

Patou brings out two new colors, bright yellowish-green and an opalescent, smoking gray that he calls "Astrakhan Beige." Dark rich reds are everywhere and they are usually winey in tone. Indelible-ink purple is a new and difficult shade. Ardanse revives American beauty red and some of the others also show it. Callot clings to blue in graded tones, and everybody has dark, turquoise and light blue. Darkest brown, firmament blue, wine red, and green please Lelong very much. Black trimmed with white is the most important of the color combinations seen everywhere. Lanvin trims black with periwinkle blue, Irish green and red.

I have chosen the models that are sketched out of the new collections. None of them were ever seen until this week, and one glance will show you how important sleeves have become in the new Paris fashions. They will also illustrate the femininity of both coats and dresses.

Look at the Redfern ensemble shown today. This is the 1930 dolman sleeved coat. It's made of black velvet and the wide topped sleeves are further flared by two set on bands that narrow into the front and back waistline, so that it looks more slender, and the pie-piece gores in the coat body do the same things. The big, shawl collar is made of white fox that is being revived.

The dress that accompanies this coat is made of black faille silk with a big plaid design in gold. (Lots of gold and silver for daytime this fall.) The blouse of this dress is cut in one with the sleeves that are waistdeep at the top and tightly fitted from the elbows. The skirt has two side-front shirred panels that become the crossed draped girdle that hugs the waist and hiplines.

Another daytime ensemble shown is also from Redfern and, as you see, the three-quarters coat has bishop sleeves with elbow-length fitted cuffs and so has the dress. This ensemble is made of dark green chiffon broadcloth and cloky jersey. The coat of broadcloth has a collar of mink and the bands that make a square top for the pockets are of the same fur. The dress of cloky jersey has a yoke of white georgette.

Th way in which evening clothes glide into afternoon is shown in the Champcommunal ensemble. This dress and its big sleeved, tiny jacket are made of heavy lusterless satin in Begonia red. The jacket is something really new, for it is only as long as the shoulder blades in back and in front is nothing but sleeves. The tucks on the shoulder blades fit it to the body. Under it the frock is low-necked, with revers at the V decollette in front.

The full, circular skirt has a hem of sable fur, and this is another fashion note, for many of the new fall evening frocks have fur hems or bands on the skirts. Fur often trims the thinnest of chiffon or lace.

Eyelet embroidered georgette, satin and velvet are used by all the great Paris dressmakers to make evening dresses, and the Lucile Paray frock in another sketch is made of dark red eyelet-embroidered georgette, with the upper bodice, cape sleeves and deep skirt hem left plain. The belt of this dress is deep green velvet, and there are three green velvet flowers across the front of it.

Offices and Atmosphere

By Edith Weigle

This Is the First in a Group of Articles that Will Appear from Time to Time Describing Some of Chicago's Distinguished Business Interiors.

GONE are the days of the drab and uninteresting business office. Houses were the first to hear the call of color, new ideas, and beautiful decoration. Now the industrious workship where father sits in majesty and rules the roost [and earns the money that makes the wheels go round] has felt the touch of the decorator's hand. Why should a man who appreciates fine furniture, soft colors, charming draperies in his home, be content to spend his days at an ugly red mahogany desk with its inevitable accompaniment of white or buff plastered walls, mud colored carpet, and clumsy red mahogany chairs with black leather seats—all built to dispel rather than to invite comfort? Why not an attractive office as well as an attractive home?

Chicago is going in for the new idea. It is appropriate that the interiors of some of our new and remarkably beautiful skyscrapers should be as artistic as the exteriors. I have visited a number of these new buildings lately and I think it is safe to say that, without exaggeration, we have as fine a group of offices as any city in this country. Whether they are the last word in modernity or whether they are mellow with the rich atmosphere of the 18th century, they are complete in every detail and are most distinguished.

Among the most beautiful suites of business rooms in the country is that which houses Lee, Higginson & Co., the investment banking house founded 82 years ago in Boston. The Chicago branch occupies over one-half of the second floor of a huge new skyscraper on La Salle street.

The note of conservatism and dignity is struck the moment one enters the paneled entrance hall and ascends a broad staircase to the main waiting room. This hall is paneled in butternut which has been left as nearly as possible in its natural state and is a lovely light tan color. A Chippendale sofa with roll arms is placed before the windows at the end of the room and two Georgian serving tables are against opposite walls. Over them hang tall gilt mirrors topped with plaster-gilt eagles. Chairs are covered in leaf-brown leather and are ribbon-back Chippendale and Sheraton in design. Unusually beautiful brass lighting fixtures on the side walls and hanging from the ceiling reproduce 18th century originals. Window draperies are dull orange red velours. Most of the furniture was brought from England by one of the members of the firm. Some of it, on the other hand, was made here in Chicago.

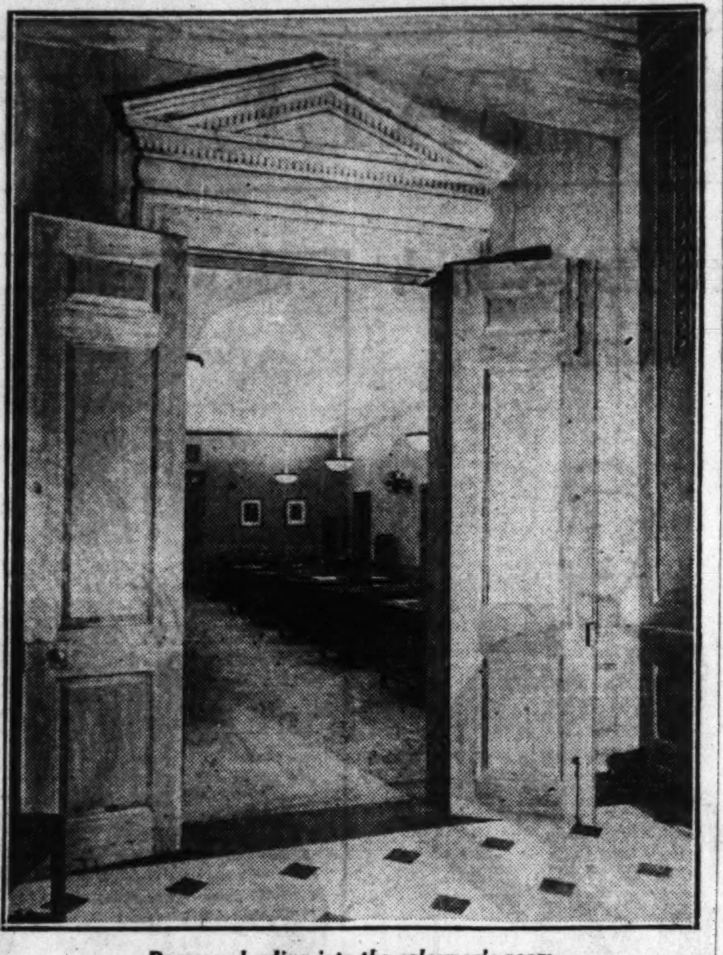
One of the pictures on this page shows this reception room. The other gives a glimpse into the salesmen's room, off this main apartment. A feeling of space and airiness is achieved by the light oak walls, doors, and window casings, the wood here being the new process flexible paneling that is applied like wallpaper. Only a glimpse of it is had in the inner room. The doorway, itself, is of remarkable beauty, being classic in its simplicity. Note the molding carved in Greek meander design in the arch over the door.

The salesmen's desks are walnut, adapted from the lower part of an early American blockfront highboy, and the chairs are copies of English Windsors with pierced splats. What a charming relief from the usual type of thing!

There are two conference rooms, one papered in a delightful French empire wallpaper of yellow gold bosses on a green ground, and the other in antique scenic paper which shows views of Rome, London, and Paris, where the firm has branches. This paper was made in Paris about 1825. In the smaller of the two rooms four Sheraton chairs covered in leather are placed about a square Adam table with a patterned leather top. Two Heppelwhite spade foot buffet tables hold books and papers for a conference.

In the larger room four provincial Chippendale armchairs, tall and impressive, are used with Georgian sidechairs of simple design, covered in black horsehair.

Better than any blatant advertising could possibly do, or publicity achieve, the simple and lovely wooden paneling of these offices and the quiet aristocracy of the fine old furniture proclaim that this is a private banking house that stands for conservatism, tradition, and honor. Environment creates atmosphere and atmosphere leaves an indefinable something that sticks in the memory far better than a few trick phrases. Here is an office that reflects the whole life of a distinguished group of men and does it admirably.



Doorway leading into the salesmen's room.

The Biggest Liar

Who was the biggest liar you ever knew and what yarn did he tell? If you want to see him in print address Biggest Liar editor, Chicago Sunday Tribune.

Outdoor Lore.

One day I was hunting quail on my father's farm in southern Illinois. I was just back of the cornfield when on the limb of a tree I saw seven quail. I fired and missed the birds, but struck the limb of the tree. The limb split and caught the toes of all the birds, holding them fast. I fired again and this shot broke the limb from the tree, which fell into a small creek that runs along the edge of the cornfield right under the tree. I waded into the creek to get the limb and the birds. Of course, I wore rubber boots, and when I came back to shore I pulled off the boots and found them full of fish! Can any one beat that?

H. M.

Hot Axes.

While on a recent trout fishing trip I heard a story the truth of which I am somewhat in doubt. We stopped for the night with a settler and as he showed us over his 40 acre clearing I remarked that it must have been some job to clear a farm of that size in the heart of such dense woods.

"No job 'tall," replied the settler. "Done him all in a day. Am a bit old now, but was some chopper when I came here. Started in on this 40 one morning and chopped right through till I done the job. The only help I had was a fellow to take my axes to the river and cool 'em off when they got too hot. That evening, needing a little exercise, I walked to the settlement five miles down the river and found the farmers there taking advantage of the boiling water in the river that my hot axes had caused to scald their hogs and prepare them for market. They were mighty pleased at what I'd done for them and gave me a jug of apple-jack, but the next day a shower of chips spoiled their crops and the damage I had to pay has kept a mortgage on this 40 ever since.

O. C. S.

Frozen Music.

The biggest liar I know is my brother. He belongs to the high school band, and once they gave a concert in midwinter, in the street. He says it was so cold that he blew and blew and played a whole piece through, but no music came because it froze before it got out. Then, he says, that evening he put the instrument by the stove and it thawed out and played all the notes of the piece that were frozen.

M. K.

Dog Story.

The biggest liar I ever knew was a neighbor who told me the following story when I was a boy. He claimed he had a fast running dog with more endurance than any other dog in the country. It came about in this way: One day when the dog was making one of his famous runs he ran into something sharp which cut him in two, from head to tail. They immediately put him together again but in doing so two legs were placed up and two down. Ever after that he would run on two legs until he was tired then turn over and run on the other two until he finished the journey.

L. I. S.

Terrible.

J. C. was the biggest bragger and liar in our neighborhood. He would tell a lie, and if there was any doubt as to the truthfulness of his statements he would tell another still bigger. Once he declared that he chopped wood all day and at night had only ten cords to his credit. Upon investigation he learned he had used only the axe handle.

Petrified Dog.

On my way home from a visit to Chicago two years ago, when the train reached Birmingham, Ala., a party of quail hunters got on the car. Being a resident of lower Alabama and somewhat of a sportsman myself, I foregathered with them in the smoker listening to the various accounts of crack pointers given by the different members of the party.

One of the members of the party who remained silent until the last, said he had a pointer that was the best in the state. It was a daughter of Dough Boy, a national champion. He said he was out hunting with her one day. Getting his bag limit about sun down, he started home whistling to his dog but lost sight of her when passing through a tall growth of grass. He whistled and called. He said, "You know one can not call a really good pointer from a point" so he went home thinking she would come later, but she did not. He advertised and made inquiries but never saw the dog until two years later when he was hunting over the same terrain and came upon the dog still at point, but petrified.

J. B. J.

Wabash Blues.

A friend of mine spent his boyhood along the Wabash river in Indiana. One day while out fishing he noticed something drifting downstream. When it came close he could see that it was a human head and it was singing: "I ain't got no-body."

The Child's Own Room

By WillElla de Campi

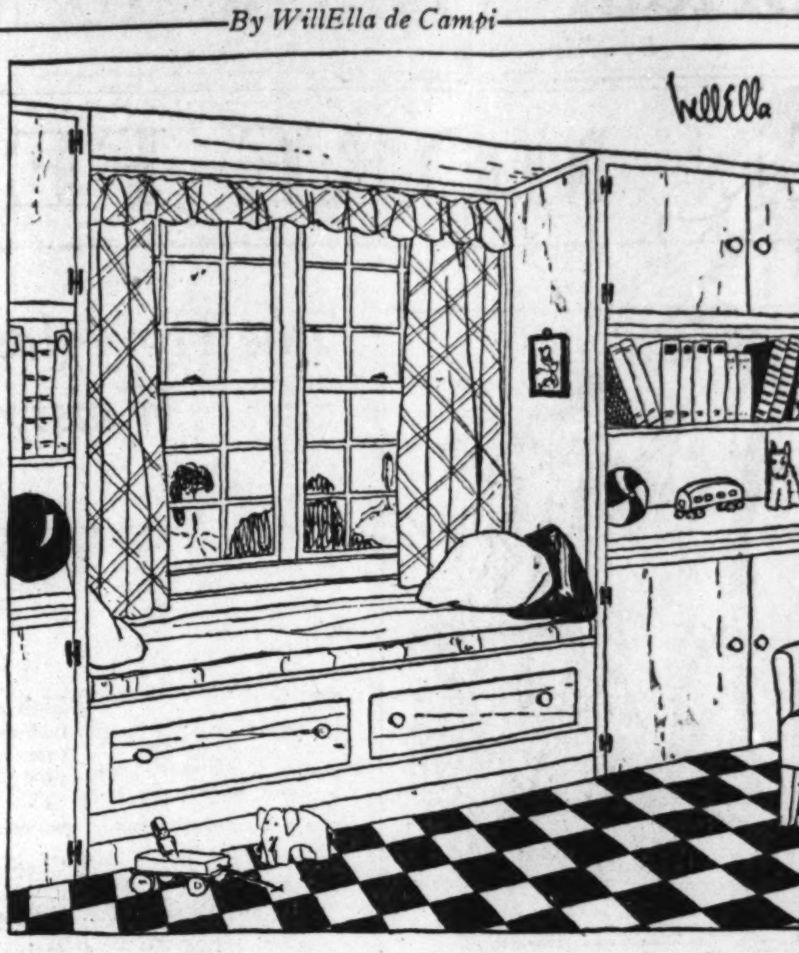
Now That Furniture Is Made Epecially for Youngsters, and Cretonnes and Wall Papers Are Designed for Them, It Is Easy to Make Their Bedrooms Attractive.

WillElla de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problem pertaining to home furnishings. Address your letters to WillElla de Campi, The Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped, addressed envelope for personal reply.

NOW that the closing of the summer vacation period is bringing young citizens back from seashore, camp, woodland, and farm, children's rooms demand attention in every well organized ménage. Winter days to come will compel the young ones to spend more time indoors, and their own rooms must be made ready for invasion. Every normal child loves to have a special domain with his very own furniture, his favorite colors, and his dearest treasures arranged to suit his comfort. It is easy, now, to create such a room for him, where he and his playmates may forgather to spend many happy hours.

Important manufacturers design special furniture for children's rooms—furniture that is simple, sturdy and suitable, well balanced, and at the same time light enough to be moved about easily, so that with it childish flights of fancy and lively imaginations may build all manner of delightful vehicles. It is an excellent idea to have three or four flat pads or mattresses in a child's room. Piled one on top of the other they form a satisfactory couch, low enough to prevent falls which might be seriously injurious. Separated, the pads may serve as tumbling mats for young acrobats; as barges in the river; as a fast moving train; as different rooms in an imaginary house, or any one of numerous other fancies. The pads, themselves, need not be expensive. Mattresses such as those used in the army fill the bill admirably. They may be covered with any serviceable material, denim or rep being the most feasible. Each one might be in a different color. For instance, there could be one done in navy blue, one in bright green, and one in burnt orange.

Another item which adds immeasurably to a child's satisfaction in his room is a window seat. If there is no recessed window, a bench may be built out into the room beneath any window or group of windows, and the wall spaces at each side may be filled by cupboards or open shelves, as shown in the accompanying illustration. Any good carpenter can easily do work of this sort, and the cost should not be exorbitant. The seat itself may be fitted with a boxed cushion, and there may be several extra pillows with gay covers. If the window is high up there should be a decorative grill outside for safety's sake.



A built-in window seat adds greatly to this room.

Fabrics for use in children's rooms are procurable now in wide varieties. There are patterns to suit every taste—hunting scenes, ships, and circuses for the small boy; fairy tale scenes, cunning animals, and all sorts of flower designs for the little girl. Plain materials, too, may be had in many fascinating colors and there are gayly intriguing plaids and checks. In any event, whether they be plain or figured, the fabrics used in children's rooms should be washable, and of practical wearing quality. Many of the new waterproofed materials are excellently adaptable.

Most satisfactory for flooring are cork, rubber tile, or linoleum because of their durability, and because they may be easily washed and quickly dried. The disadvantages of carpeting are obvious! If rugs are desired, they should be of washable quality, like the simple rag or braided rugs which may be had in many colors, at small cost.

Walls should be done in washable paint or in waterproofed paper, which comes in many pleasing designs. Color schemes should be simple and unaffected. Children, as a rule, like the primary colors—red, blue, and yellow. Even the most forceful of these, red, may be introduced in a carefully planned scheme, as it is in the boy's room illustrated today. The walls here are painted a soft sand color and woodwork is deep blue, relieved by a line of Chinese red.

At the windows there are curtains of red and white plaid gingham, of a sunfast quality. The window seat cushion has a cover of deep blue denim, piped with red. Cupboards and shelves built at each side are painted deep blue, with red linings. An excellent feature of the room is that the cupboards are placed low down so that the child may take out and put away his own belongings without assistance. Special toys which are not intended for everyday use are kept in the upper cupboards safely out of reach and out of sight.

Sand and blue linoleum in small squares, covers the floor. Furniture is painted deep blue and the bed cover matches the window curtains. The simple little arm chair is upholstered in red wool rep. Sidelights have parchment paper shields decorated with amusing animal pictures.

Another room, for a little girl, though charmingly dainty, is equally practical. The walls are done in a washable paper, with tiny flowers on a cream colored ground. Curtains at the windows are of yellow organdie, with scalloped edges bound in light green. The window seat cushion has a slip cover of green and yellow striped rep [washable], and the bed cover, with full side flounces, is made of the same material. One little arm chair has a slip cover of green and cream checked linen.

The rest of the furniture is painted light green, decorated with floral motifs, and woodwork and cupboards are painted the same green. Green jaspe linoleum on the floor is supplemented by washable rugs in two tones of green and yellow.

MY PET ECONOMY

Would you care to pass on to some one else your pet economy? If so, address Pet Economy, Chicago Tribune.

Device for Picking Fruit.

Take a large tomato can or other tin can and cut a V-shaped hole in one side at the top, about ½ inch wide and 2½ inches long. On the opposite side of the V-shaped hole nail the can to a long pole. This device is useful for picking apples and many varieties of fruit from the upper branches which are almost impossible to reach with a ladder. This method also prevents damage to the fruit from falling.

Lemon Rind.

When using lemons in a recipe that does not call for the rind, I pare off the yellow portions carefully, put through a food chopper, using the finest plate, and spread to dry, then put into a bottle, corking tightly. It frequently saves grating when one is in a hurry or makes a pleasant flavoring when fresh lemons are not at hand.

Cuts the Gas Bill.

For my family I need only a small roast, so I bought a little box tin oven and place it on top of my gas range. I place my potatoes, carrots, and meat all in one roasting pan and cook nearly my whole dinner over one burner, and use less gas than I would by using the oven.

Plants Potato Parings.

My pet economy this spring has been to plant potato parings, and I now have fine plants in bloom, grown from what usually goes into the garbage can. During the late war I raised many potatoes in this manner.

After 40, Bowel Trouble is Most Dangerous
CONSTIPATION may easily become chronic after forty. Continued constipation at that time of life is productive of piles—and a host of other disorders.
Watch your bowels at any age. Guard them with particular care after forty. When they need help, a doctor knows what is best.
"Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin," is a doctor's prescription for the bowels. Tested by 47 years' practice, it has been found thoroughly effective in relieving constipation and its ills for men, women and children of all ages. It has proven perfectly safe even for babies. Made from fresh laxative herbs, pure pepsin, and other mild, harmless ingredients, it cannot gripe; will not sicken you or weaken you; can be used without harm as often as your breath is bad, your tongue is coated; whenever a headachy, bilious, gassy condition warns of constipation.
Next time, take a spoonful of this family doctor's laxative. See how good it tastes; how gently and thoroughly it acts. All drugstores.

—WOULD YOU BELIEVE I'VE HAD THESE SHEETS FOR EIGHT YEARS?
—HOW DO YOU DO IT? SCRUBBING AND BOILING EVERY WEEK RUINS MY LINENS!
—NONE OF MY THINGS ARE EVER SCRUBBED —NOT WHEN THERE'S A SOAP LIKE RINSO TO SOAK OUT THE DIRT—
—RINSO AGAIN! I MUST TRY THAT SOAP EVERYBODY'S TALKING ABOUT IT—
NEXT WASHDAY
—LOOK, MOTHER—DID YOU EVER SEE SUCH SUDS? HOW GLAD I AM I CHANGED TO RINSO—
ISN'T IT WONDERFUL? I NEVER SAW WHITER CLOTHES

(Millions use Rinso. Thousands write us letters like this.)
"Fine for dishes, too," says Mrs. A. Curtis of River Forest.
"I tried many soaps in my washer before I came to Rinso. There's nothing like it for speed! The clothes come so bright and snowy, they look like new. And Rinso is so economical; a little gives a lot of thick, lasting suds. I like it for dishes, too—it loosens grease in a flash. Lately I've been using Rinso for all cleaning, too; it's such a wonderful help."
MRS. A. CURTIS, 934 Bonnie Brae, River Forest, Ill.
Rinso's rich suds loosen dirt like magic. Clothes soak so white and clean, even boiling isn't needed. Rinso is safe. And economical, because it's granulated, compact. One cupful gives twice as much suds as one cupful of lightweight, puffed-up soap.

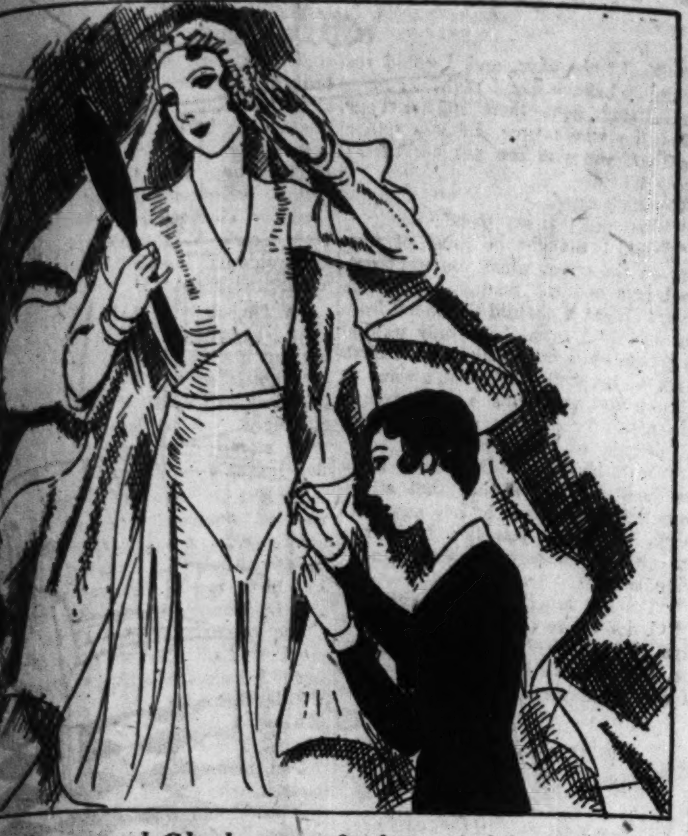
Fall Bridal Trousseaux

By Helen Bartlett



of Linens and Clothes for the Girl Who Will Walk to the Altar Here Are Helpful Lists This Autumn.

FALL brides are beseeching us for trousseau lists, preferably those listing a conservative but adequate amount of linen and a wardrobe neither too extravagant nor too meager.

It's almost impossible to make standard lists that will suit all girls from all classes, and our first warning to the bride in this: The kind of life you are going to lead should be the strongest influence in your selection of linens and of clothes.

For instance, if a bride plans to keep her job, as so many do, her wardrobe will be quite different from that of the young woman who plans to keep house, and to be social both in the afternoon and evening. The working wife's wardrobe will run pretty much to tailored things, while the other girl's trousseau will probably contain few tailored things such as are suitable for business but a number of afternon dresses, house dresses and as many evening gowns as she can afford and use.

The same rule holds in regard to linens. If a bride is going to have an elaborate establishment, do much entertaining or belong to a social set where a well equipped house is almost a necessity, her needs are far different from those of the girl who starts her domestic career in a kitchenette apartment and who will not, perhaps because she works, perhaps because she must be economical, entertain with any frequency or splendor.

The following linen list cannot be called too extensive, but neither is it so conservative that it cannot be cut down if circumstances warrant it:

LINEN LIST.

One dozen bath towels.
Two dozen hand towels.
One dozen guest towels.
Three bath mats.
One dozen wash cloths.
One large dinner tablecloth.
One dozen large dinner napkins.
Two medium sized tablecloths.
Two dozen napkins.
Two breakfast sets.
Two luncheon sets.
Linen runner.
Lace runner.
One dozen small napkins (tea or cocktail).
Tray cloths.
Silencing cloth.
Mats (to put under hot dishes).
Bureau covers.
Table covers.

FOR THE KITCHEN.

One dozen glass towels.
Two dozen dish towels.
Six roller towels.
One dozen dish cloths.
Six pot holders.
Three ironing sheets.
Cleaning cloths.
Dust cloths.

FOR THE BEDROOM.

Each bed:
Three pair of sheets.
One pair of blankets.
One quilt.
Three pairs of pillow cases.
Eiderdown comforter.
Mattress cover.
Counterpane.

The clothes list below would probably be suitable for the average bride leading an average city life on an average income. This is as good a time as any, incidentally, to say that trousseaux are certainly not what they used to be when it comes to size. A bride might get a fur coat or an evening wrap or something like that with the expectation of getting a few years out of it but the balance of her wardrobe she selects for not more than one or two seasons. Styles change too fast to permit the purchase, as in the old days, of lingerie, dresses and hats to be worn for ever and a day.

Winter Trosseau.

Here is our idea of what the fall bride should have for winter wear:

Six nightgowns.
Six underwear sets (for daytime wear).
Three underwear sets (for evening wear).
Six pair hose for daytime wear.
Six pair sheer hose for evening.
Three pair woolen or sports hose.
One pair street shoes.
Two pair afternoon shoes.
1 pair sports shoes.
Evening slippers to match gowns.
Six pair tan or beige suede gloves (washable).
One fur coat.
One cloth coat.
Two cloth dresses.
Two crepe dresses.
One heavyweight ensemble.
Three hats for street wear.
One afternoon hat.
One formal evening gown.
Two dinner gowns.
Two afternoon frocks.
Negligees.
One dressing gown.
One evening wrap (suitable with evening gown and dinner frocks).
One evening bag.
One dress bag.
Two bags to match outdoors costumes.

If the bride expects to go out a great deal in winter she will need more than one evening gown, of course, but she is the best judge of this. Gloves, hose and shoes are things she should have in abundance, if she can possibly afford to; just how many it is impossible for us to say. This year all day time gloves appear to be of suede, washable kid or heavy chamoisette for tailored dress.

Should she plan to live in the country, or a country-ish suburb, she ought to have plenty of smart, warm sports clothes, with matching berets and flat heeled shoes as accessories.

Popular Colors.

Colors for this year, according to the authorities, are rich, but not loud. Wine color, rich browns and Napoleon beiges, lively but not loud blues and the omnipresent black, relieved with sharp touches of white, head the lists. Styles, as such, are almost nonexistent, this year. Individuality is the keynote. For example, in Paris, if we take Miss Bedwell's word for it, skirt lengths are not decreed by the couturiers; they are decided upon by the wearers of the clothes. Short Parisiennes will not wear long skirts; tall women will wear them. It's a suit yourself proposition which we heartily endorse.

If the fall or winter bride is honeymooning in a warm climate such as Bermuda, Cuba, Naussau, or perhaps going south here in the states, her selection of clothes must be even more painstaking. For such trips she will need summery clothes, and pretty ones, which are most expensive right now, so she should choose with the greatest discrimination and try to get things she can make use of here next summer. She will have to have summer evening gowns and at least one summer wrap and a great many sports clothes in light weight and light color material, but she'll also have to have a winter trousseau for wear after her honeymoon, so she should count her pennies and spend them with the greatest care.

Answers to Etiquette Questions.

"I live with an aunt and uncle and will be married in their home. Should they issue the wedding announcements, or should my parents, who live in a distant state? M. K."

Your parents' names appear on the announcement.

"If I ask a friend to escort me to my sorority dance am I expected to pay for the tickets? H. J."

No, your friend will undoubtedly offer to pay for them.

"What dress is appropriate for a woman at a country club golf tournament and breakfast? She will not play golf. M. S."

Sports clothes of the spectator variety, neither too sporty nor too dressy. A modified sports suit with matching hat and shoes would be correct.

A Friend in Need

By Sally Joy Brown

Every Piece of Furniture, Rug, or Curtain You Are Planning to Discard Will Be Welcomed by Families Who Are in Urgent Need of Help.

AUTUMN days and the month of October will mean for numerous householders in and about Chicago the business of finding new apartments or houses. Others reserve these days for the tremendous task of house cleaning and decorating. If you are engaged in either of these it is quite likely that you are also devoting considerable time to the purchasing of new pieces of furniture, rugs, curtains, draperies, and the other appurtenances that go to make a comfortable home.

If this be true, then you're probably finding yourself burdened with old articles for which you can't possibly find a market and the prospect of cluttering your store room or basement with them is not exactly appealing. Has it occurred to you that they might be welcomed by hundreds of families who haven't enough beds to go around, in houses where the chairs won't hold together much longer, and where lack of other necessary pieces is making surroundings bleak and uncomfortable?

Everything you are planning to discard or replace can be used by one of the poor families who have come to my attention. If the beds, chairs, or tables show evidences of much use, a bit of paint will help to restore their original beauty, and curtains and draperies can be mended or cut down to fit smaller windows. It won't be necessary, either, for you to do this renovating yourself. The grateful recipients will welcome your gift of furniture even if its present appearance is a bit unsightly.

A letter from a reader asks:

"Is there in the home of one of your readers a discarded fireplace set? We need a screen, andirons, and tongs. A lawn mower would also be of real value to us. I dislike to ask for these things, but we recently moved into a house and our income has dropped so much in the last few months that we are in debt and I cannot afford to buy them for our home. Mrs. T. G."

Perhaps these fireplace pieces are among the things you are discarding in your fall house cleaning. If so they'd make an attractive addition in Mrs. T. G.'s living room.

Asks for Fireless Cooker.

"I am writing to you for a fireless cooker. I work all day and if I had one my meals would be ready when I got home. My husband is not well and cannot eat fried things, so this would do nicely for us. Mrs. R. W."

Caring for the home and being official breadwinner becomes wearing after a time and if there are any labor saving methods they certainly should be adopted. This woman thinks the fireless cooker would solve the problem for her. Have you one to give?

Out of Work.

"I am out of work and my wife is expecting a baby this month. We have had to put our three children in a home until I can get a job and take care of them again. I think if my clothing were not so shabby I'd have a better chance of finding something. Could you get me a suit, size 42, and shoes, size 9? We shall need baby clothing for the child we are expecting, too. H. R."

This man is making every effort to locate employment and so far he has been unsuccessful. Perhaps his appearance does have something to do with it. If so, I hope we can put an end to that by finding the suit he needs. And has some one baby clothing for them, too?

Elderly Couple in Need.

"Will you please try and get me some kind of cook stove, coal or wood burner? We have nothing to cook on except a small oil stove which has been loaned to us and we must return it soon. We could also use some beds or cots. We are past 60 years old and haven't any work, so it's hard for us to get along. We rented one room unfurnished and can't buy anything to put in it. Mrs. M. G."

We should be able to collect enough pieces to make this tiny home comfortable for its elderly inmates and put an end to some of their worry. What can you donate?

> I want to be the medium through which the friends in need and the friends in deed may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy and you would gladly give it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.

> When information is wanted by mail a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send article to The Tribune, but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

ACTIVITIES OF WOMEN

Women in oriental countries stain their feet with henna, sometimes binding their legs with ribbons sandalwise before applying the dye, in order to produce a patterned effect.

As vital statistics clerk at city hall, in Windsor, Ontario, Miss Edith Whitfield has the distinction of being the first woman in the border cities to issue her own marriage license. She recently became the wife of William McMullen, town engineer of Sudbury.

English race tracks may see women jockeys astride horses in the near future. Favorable reaction of the Jockey club has been noticed recently and applications for licenses by women are expected shortly. The women will ride under the same rules as male jockeys.

Miss Elizabeth Ahrens and Miss Mary Shapiro, graduates of the School of Journalism of the University of Missouri, are on a trip around the world, earning their way by working on newspapers in the cities they visit. They already have visited Hawaii and Japan.

An army of suffragettes has been formed in Marseilles, France. They plan to march on the southern provinches at regular intervals, battling the reactionary natives with tracts, pamphlets, posters, banners and fiery speeches, until their cause is won.

Money Made at Home

How you have made or are making money at home is of interest to other women. Would you care to tell them about it? Address Money at Home, Sunday Tribune.

Hand Made Lingerie.

I have some darling patterns for lingerie, and made myself some out of white voile, edged with dainty, filmy lace. I had them hanging across a chair, freshly laundered, when a friend dropped in, and spying it, fell in love with it. I offered to make her some and did.

Now, I make all of her lingerie, and for many of her friends. I take in a fair amount of pin money in this way, and it's fun. G. F.

Dry Cleans for Neighbors.

Just three months ago I bought a home dry cleaning outfit for $3 from a neighbor. I cleaned my draperies, children's coats, tams, etc., at a considerable saving. Telling this to a friend, she asked me to clean her draperies. Being well pleased with the results and price, she brought some dresses. She told her friends, who also sent work.

During these months I have earned over $22. More work is coming in all the time, and every one is pleased. E. F.

Mercolized Wax Keeps Skin Young

Do you know that just beneath that soiled, discolored, faded or aged complexion is one fair to look upon? Nature causes the normal skin to peel off in tiny, unseen, flour-like particles, a little each day, renewing the complexion of youth naturally, but there comes a time when this skin shedding slows up. Worry, overwork, sickness, inactivity are reasons that cause the face to be blotchy, discolored, pimply and old looking. The thing to do, if you wish to look your prettiest at all times, is to assist nature in the process of absorption by using pure Mercolized Wax. Get an ounce at any drug store or beauty counter and use as directed. It gently but surely peels away the outer scarf skin, removing freckles, pimples, blackheads or a muddy complexion. The underneath skin, now in evidence, is clear, pink, fresh and velvety, and the entire face looks years younger. Mercolized Wax brings out the hidden beauty. To quickly remove wrinkles and other age lines we recommend a face lotion of unusual merit. One ounce powdered saxolite and one-half pint witch hazel.

Pay Like Rent

BACK TO THE PRICES OF 1914

Open Monday Tuesday Thursday and Saturday Evenings

You'd just about land in your landlord's lap and kiss him to death if he should drop in today and tell you that he had added up your rent receipts and they were equal to the selling price of your apartment; therefore, it was yours, out and out, because you had, really, paid for it—no more rent, never, wow! Well, that very thing happens every day at the General, and we never give it a second thought. Do you realize that you only rent the furniture you get here? And that you even have two years to pay that rent in, then the furniture is yours? Honestly, it's foolish to be without good furniture under such circumstances; think it over!

NOON CHIMES by CANBY CHAMBERS

Connie.

The Chimes of Grace Church Which Ring Out Loud and Clear at Noon Over Broadway Once Caused a Lovers' Quarrel and Something Else to the Boy and Girl Who Listened to Them.

At noon the chimes of Grace church ring out loud and clear above the rumble of traffic down on Broadway. The traffic has never been affected by them. But they once caused a lovers' quarrel that brought heartbreak and something else to a boy and girl who heard them.

The girl's name was Constance. The minute her boss went out for lunch she slipped into his office. She waited there while the other girls employed in the workroom of the Broadway Paper Novelty company filed past on their way to the cloakroom. She waited in the deserted office with her eyes fixed on the silent telephone and mutely prayed:

"Aw, God, make it ring. Now, God. Let him call me up this noon. Go on, God. Please!"

She was a little girl and not very noticeable among the thousands who pour down into Broadway at noon six days a week from shop and factory and office. Yet she had a shyly pretty face with humid blue eyes—eyes with something wistful about them, like bluebells under water. She wore no hat now. Her soft blonde hair, unbobbed, was parted on the extreme left and drawn down low over her forehead on the other side. That was where her birth mark was.

It was not much of a birth mark—just an irregular reddish-purple splotch, like a nasty bruise, high up on her right temple. It was almost concealed by her hair and was quite concealed when she wore a hat. No, it was not much of a birth mark.

Br-r-rur-ring! She snatched up the receiver.

As she did so the bells of Grace church, directly across the street, began to peal out their noon chimes. Now high, now low, now with a swelling cadence that drowned out the rumbling growl of Broadway six floors below, their solemn resonance came flooding into the office. A boy's voice asked confidently:

"Connie?"

"Yeah. How'd you know?"

"Dinja tell me you'd always be there at noon punchool?"

"You mighta got the wrong number."

"Not a chance. I can hear those church bells ringin' across from where you work. Say, I guess they're dinner bells for us. Whaddaya say, kid—O. K.?"

"Sure, Snap. Where'll I meet you—same place?"

When she replaced the receiver a subtle change had taken place in her, illuminating her face and bringing a glad radiance to her eyes. She was still smiling tenderly on the telephone when one of the other girls came back from the cloakroom.

Using the Wrong Tactics.

Maybelle—she spelled her name that way—stopped short in the doorway. She cocked her saucy head on one side. Her eyes were mocking behind their thicket of gummed lashes.

"Say, Connie, you make me weak with laffin'! You're acting like a dunce about Snap Nelson, if you ask me."

"I din ask you."

"Well, you are."

Doubt crept into Connie's blue eyes.

"Why yam I?"

"How many times you seen him since that Sunday?" countered Maybelle, stepping into the office.

"That Sunday" was the day Connie had met Snap. Maybelle lived in the same block as he. She had persuaded him to take both of them into the country in his taxi when he was driving out to look at a service station he hoped to buy.

"Only three times," replied Connie. "When he's phoned me here."

"Just at lunch?" Maybelle's glance rested speculatively on the wave of hair over Connie's right forehead. "I mean—he ain't never seen you, only out of doors and in cafeterias?"

A flush swept up Connie's throat and spread into her cheeks. She knew as well as if her friend had said so that what Maybelle meant was: "Hasn't he ever seen you without your hat?" But she merely said:

"That's all." Then she added: "It makes it kinda tough—another way."

"How you mean?"

"Never being alone with him anywheres—like evenings. Account of him driving the cab nights."

"That's so, too. You ain't got much chance either way."

"Why do you say I'm acting like a dunce about him?" asked Connie. "What's the matter with Snap?"

"There ain't nothing the matter with him. He's a prince, Snap is. There's lots of girls have made a play for him. Only, when it comes to getting married, he's the original fox that saw the trap in time."

"How you know I wanna marry him?"

"Why wouldn't you? Every girl's gotta get her man; and I never knew you to have any other fellow. Snap's as fine as they make 'em. Snap is all there, Connie. Only you're going after him the wrong way. I grew up in the same block with that boy, and I know!"

"Yeah?"

"You said it. Soon as Snap thinks any girl is making a play for him, he just lays off her. Like he was afraid she was trying to put something over on him. That's why I say you're acting like a dunce, waiting here every day for him to telephone you. He'll think you haven't any pride. You don't wanna be always looking at him the way you were looking at that telephone—drowning yourself in his eyes. You wanna make Snap think he picked you out himself. Make him chase you. Act as if there was somebody else. Your boss, now. I'll help you out that way by telling Snap he isn't all the cream there is in your coffee!"

Puts Advice Into Practice.

There was a bleak look on Connie's face as she left the office. Men were like that, she supposed. But how could you make a man jealous when you turned to jelly at the touch of his hand? How could you pretend indifference when you were reduced to a sort of sick mess inside by your fear that he might not really care at all? How could you have any pride, anyhow, when you were sick with love?

Snap was waiting on their corner. Only a few inches taller than Connie, there was a certain air of bantam cockiness about him. But it was the likable cockiness of a small man who is spunkily determined to hold his own against the world, and anything else it might have connoted was immediately belied by his grin.

Connie saw that grin as he caught sight of her. She loved it. When he was in a good mood, it seemed to be built into his face and as genuinely a part of it as any of his features. She saw the friendly crinkles around his blue eyes and, as he removed his cap, the crisp curl of his clean red hair.

"Late, aren't you, baby?"

"Yeah. My boss—he kept me there in his office." Connie swallowed and looked straight before her. "He's always trying to fool with me."

"Any time he gets fresh, just you say the word. I'll give him a bust on the nose."

"I don't want you to bust him. I like him all right. He was just trying to kid me today about your calling up."

"What's it to him?"

"O, nothing. So long as you don't call before noon."

Suddenly she saw that the grin was ironed out of Snap's face. He had no faculty for dissimulation. Emotions succeeded each other in his open boyish countenance like shadow and sunlight.

"You mean you were just standing me up, I guess," he declared, "because you wanted to stay there monkeyin' with your boss. Is that it?"

"Aw, Snap!"

She looked at him with tender reproach. But he did not speak again until they had found two seats in a cafeteria.

"Whatta you goin' to have?" he asked formally.

"Whatta you?"

"I ast you first."

"I'm going to have—a—crabmeat salad, marshmallow sundae and a choc'late éclair," said Connie with dignity. "Whatta you?"

"Two corned beef sandwiches and a cup of coffee."

They were silent until the food came. Then Connie murmured:

"I didn't mean anything special, Snap, about my boss. Why did you act that way?"

Snap took a large bite of sandwich, chewed it without enthusiasm and rinsed his mouth with coffee.

"Drivin' a cab, nights, in this town," he observed with the dark wisdom of nineteen, "a guy gets wise to women. Sometimes I think all skirts are alike, once they get alone with some fellow. If taxicabs could talk——!"

"Why, whatta you mean?"

"Some women think a man can't tell what's goin' on behind his back. They think a taxi driver is so dumb he can't tell even when he finds the inside of his cab all smelled up with perfume and with liquor and with hairpins and things lying on the seat."

"Snap," cried Connie indignantly. "What are you trying to say to me?"

"I'm not sayin' anything," he muttered doggedly. "All I say is: If taxicabs could talk——!"

She was melted suddenly by the hurt in his voice. She wanted to touch him.

Lovers' Retreat.

"Aw, Snap," she whispered, her eyes reaching for his. "Not all girls are like that."

"That's what you say."

She realized she had made him angry, but she did not know how to placate him. Presently they surrendered their seats to a couple that was waiting, and were squeezed out of the cafeteria onto Fourteenth street.

"Whatta we do now?" she asked bleakly.

It was the invariable and all important question after they had lunched. For since Snap worked at night, the fifteen or twenty minutes that remained of Connie's noon hour were her only chance to be alone with him.

"It's too cold to sit in Union square, I guess."

"I don't know," she protested.

"Yeah. You'd get cold. Wanna go to a movie?"

"O, Snap." She pressed his arm. "You mustn't waste money that way, while you're trying to save up for the service station. Why, we couldn't see a quarter of the show!"

"Well, do you wanna go to the Penny Arcade again—get weighed or something?"

"I was weighed last time. I'd just be the same."

So, jostled by the crowd, they wandered back along Broadway.

Horns hooted, bells clanged, the earth trembled at the passage of subway trains. At every crossing trucks charged down on them and the blast of the traffic officer's whistle smote upon their ears. When they came opposite Connie's office, it still lacked ten minutes of one. Snap eyed a sign in front of Grace church, announcing that it was open during the noon hour for rest and worship and that visitors were welcome.

"We could go in there," he suggested, half facetiously.

"Aw right, I've never been," assented Connie automatically. Then she looked up doubtfully. "Would it be aw right, though?"

"Why wouldn't it be?" he demanded. "What do you think we are—a coupla bums, can't go into a church? Come on, if you want."

They entered and tiptoed to one of the rear pews. "Going into a church—imagine!" thought Connie. "Gee, if Maybelle could see me now, she'd die of laughing."

But as her eyes grew accustomed to the obscurity, and her ears, to the silence, her feeling of incongruity gave way to one of tenderness and wonder. The church seemed to be unfolding above her like a gigantic flower. She fixed her gaze on the light that streamed down from one stained glass window. It was almost better than if they had gone to a movie, after all, for here she could sit beside Snap undistracted and in silence.

She felt his hand close over hers.

"I didn't mean anything at lunch," he murmured. "I'm just queer that way, I guess. Only, sometimes I can't help it, because——"

She waited. His voice broke boyishly.

"Constance, I'm tellin' you something I never told anybody," he confided. "You see, once when I was a kid and Pop was away——" His hand tightened on hers. There was a look of mute suffering in his eyes, which were not directed at her but straight ahead. "Well, I caught Mom with another fellow. See?"

She raised his hand impulsively and pressed her face against his sleeve. It smelled faintly of tweed, and tobacco, and of gasoline.

"I was just a kid," he repeated, still not looking at her. "It always kinda stayed with me, see?"

Yes, she saw! You could never quite get rid of a thing like that. It was like—a birthmark. And all at once, in this, their first moment of real intimacy, she wanted to tell him about her own birthmark—to tell him so that he should know the worst about her, so that there should be no deception between them and no secrets.

She swallowed. But her throat tied itself into a knot, and so it was a minute or two before her voice would come.

"Snap——" she began.

"Yeah." He let go her hand abruptly and stood up. "It's 1 o'clock, I know. You gotta go."

By the time he reached the door, he had recovered the air of bantam cockiness with which he faced the world. Connie stood for a moment, looking up at him. Her eyes were tender; they were questioning; they were supplicating.

"Snap," she whispered, "I'm not like that."

He pulled on his cap at a rakish angle.

"Aw right. But if I ever found you was——!"

All Girls That Way?

"So I told him——" said Maybelle to Connie, who was working beside her at a table littered with orange and black crépe paper out of which they were manufacturing Halloween favors for the Boardway Paper Novelty company, "I told him, I says: 'You think you're the cream in Connie's coffee, don't you? Well, you're all wet, Snap,' I says. 'But you're nothing but skim milk to Connie. That girl is there,' I says. 'Why, you should see how crazy our boss is about her. Like a loving chiropractor,' I says, 'always trying to get her into his office to give her a little treatment'"

"You din say that!"

"Aw, I din say you were crazy about the boss. Only that he was crazy about you. I'm helpin' you, Connie. I grew up in the same block with Snap, I tell you, and I know him. Soon as he thinks any girl is making a play for him, he lays off her. Like he was afraid she was trying to put something over on him. But after the earful I gave him, I bet he calls you up for lunch."

He did call—punctually, as the bells of Grace church rang out their noon chimes.

But there was no grin upon his face when Connie met him on their corner. Her glance met his eyes and stopped there; she could not see into them.

"I'm punchool today, Snap."

"Yeah," he replied without expression.

They walked half a block.

"Snap."

"What?"

"Are you—sore at me, or something?"

"Why should I be? I was out late last night, if you wanna know."

"O! Did you have a good night?"

"Sure. I ran into it." He laughed suddenly, without mirth. "Some guy ridin' a girl around the park for three hours."

"Imagine!"

"Yeah. And the way that cuddlecootie was tryin' to play him for a sucker is nobody's business. On the way back, she just stages a big fight and then tries to make him pay for her dress."

"She din do that!"

"I'm tellin' you. She even asks me to call a cop to see if that will make him come across. 'Lookit, my dress,' she squawks. 'It's ruint. He beat me up in your cab.'"

"What did you do?"

"Why, I told her, I says: 'Aw, be yourself. You ain't been beat up. I bet you was never even knocked out—like you deserve!'"

Discovers the Birthmark.

He brought out the last three words with a savagery that left Connie uncomfortable and silent.

"Yeah," he observed presently, "I guess women are pretty much alike all over. New York, Brooklyn, or the Bronx, Greenwich Village or Broadway, it don't seem to make much difference so far as I can see. I'll be glad when I can get that service station in the country and be shut of this town."

"Aw, Snap, not all girls are that way."

"Well, you said your boss was always fooling with you, dinja? And you liked it all right?"

"He just kids me about you when I go into his office to answer the phone. But I never let him get fresh, Snap."

"Well, I won't call up tomorrow, so you won't have to go into his office. Will you just meet me on our corner—a little after twelve?"

"Sure, Snap, I'd like to. And I'll be punchool."

So they made a tentative peace during luncheon.

Afterward he took her to a studio for automatic photographs on Fourteenth street. "Eight pictures, eight poses, in eight minutes," said the sign. Connie sat before a white boxlike machine. She made sure in its mirror that she looked all right.

"Don't you want to take your hat off, miss?" asked the attendant.

"Sure, Connie. I never seen you without your hat."

"I'd rather not. My hair's a sight."

"Aw, go on. Take it off."

With rough playfulness Snap snatched it from her head. Then:

"Gees! What's that?"

"What?" asked Connie, quickly pulling down her hair.

"I mean—who socked you? You look like you'd got hit with a plate of goulash!"

"Nobody socked me. I—I've always been like that."

The attendant dropped Snap's quarter in the slot. A light went on before her. Then, as the attendant told her to look this way and that as he adjured her: "Give your boy friend a good smile," the shutter clicked eight times.

"Your turn next, sir," said the attendant briskly. "The pictures will come out of the back of the machine in eight minutes."

Snap removed his cap. He sat down before the machine and tightened his cravat. He put a quarter in the slot.

But when he got up Connie had fled.

That night she telephoned to a facial surgeon, one of whose cards had long ago come into her hands. She learned that he had no evening office hours, but that he could see her if she would call during her noon hour.

As soon as her boss went out for lunch the next day Connie slipped into his office and called up Snap.

"Listen, Snap. I'm awful sorry, but I can't meet you today. . . . Yeah, I know you were just leaving. That's why I called. . . . No, I'm not having lunch with anybody else. My boss—he's sent me over to the warehouse in Brooklyn and I won't be able to get back in time. . . . I say I won't be able. . . . What? There's a window open and I can't hear you for the noise."

Suddenly his voice came with ominous distinctness:

"I said, 'Is z-a-t so?'"

"Why, sure, Snap," she protested, confused. "I'm over there now. Honest I am, and I couldn't possibly get back in time."

"You think you're a great little heartbreaker, don't you?" he demanded. "Well, maybe you can break your boss's heart, but you'll never break mine!"

And his receiver slammed upon the hook.

She stared blankly at the telephone. She said "Snap?" twice in a frightened voice. When she was sure the wire was dead she replaced the receiver and went slowly from the office. All the way up to the doctor's, in the subway, she kept wondering miserably what had made Snap do that. His thoughtless remark of the day before rang in her ears:

"You look like you'd got hit with a plate of goulash!"

Her consultation with the doctor was short. Yes, her birth mark could be removed. But it would require repeated applications of an electric needle. When he told her how much the whole operation would cost, she knew that she must keep that birth mark always.

Evidently the doctor understood from her face. For he smiled reassuringly.

"I don't think it's worth bothering about at all," he said. "Why, it scarcely shows, the way you wear your hair. Does it trouble you so much?"

"No," she said in a flat voice. "Not much. I—I just thought I'd ask."

Snap Refuses to Call.

Snap did not telephone her the next noon. He did not telephone her the day after, nor the day after that. Connie knew, because each day she waited in the office until long after the chimes of Grace church, across the street, were silent.

"Don't you worry, kid," Maybelle assured her. "He's just sore about something. He'll call you up tomorrow sure. You'll see."

But Snap did not call up.

"Do you think," Connie suggested shyly to her friend, "you could sorta find out what's the matter? I don't know just why he's off me."

Two days later Maybelle delivered her report:

"I saw him Sunday in the ice cream parlor on our corner. I says to him, casual-like: 'Say, Snap, is there anything the matter between you and Connie? I don't hear you calling her up no more.'

"'I don't have to call her up,' he says, 'after the way she broke that last date with me.'

"'Why, Snap,' I says, 'whaddya mean? She couldn't help it, could she, when the boss sent her clear over to Brooklyn?'

"'Yeah? he says, and I could see he didn't believe me. 'Yeah? . . . She was sitting right there in her boss' office the whole time she was telling me that, and you can tell her that I know it!'"

Connie gasped.

"What did you say then?"

"Well, I thought he must of seen you on the street when you went out. So I says to him, 'Snap, you must be crazy! What if she did telephone from the office?' I says. 'She only wanted to go see some doctor about that birth mark of hers. But she didn't want to tell you that, so she made up an excuse. She didn't break that date with you on account of her boss.'

"'No? he says. 'How do I know her boss didn't give her that strawberry? I never knew she had any birth mark. Anyhow, you lied for her a minute ago, so why wouldn't you be lying now?'

"'I'm not lying, Snap,' I says.

"'I don't care if you are or not,' he says. 'After the way Connie lied to me, I don't have to be calling her up. If she has anything to say to me she can telephone me at the garage any noon.'"

There was a look of dumb agony in Connie's eyes.

"Do you think I oughta call him up?"

"What! After him sending you a message like that?" demanded Maybelle indignantly. "Cert'nly not! Imagine! . . . Why, doncha see, he was just waiting for you to call him up so he could bawl you out? But now he's more worried than what you are. The longer you let him stew in his own juice the sweeter he'll be when he comes back to you. He'll either call you up himself or manage to meet you somewheres like it was by accident. You'll see!"

But the days dragged by and Snap did not call up. Every noon when her boss went out for lunch Connie slipped into his office and waited with her eyes fixed anxiously on the telephone. Not until the church chimes were silent did she go slowly out. When she came to the corner where Snap and she had used to meet she looked steathily about. But he was never there.

'He'll Wait a Long Time."

Maybelle made another attempt at reconciliation. But Snap merely sent back the ultimatum he had issued first:

"I don't have to be calling her up. If Connie has anything to say to me, she knows where she can get me."

"Well, he'll wait a l-o-n-g time!" declared Connie.

"That's what I told him," approved Maybelle. "I says, 'Snap, you must be crazy to think she's going to call you up after the way you hung up on her. You had no right getting sore because she broke a lunch date. Why, you must be crazy if you expect her to be the first to make this quarrel up!'"

"Imagine!" assented Connie.

But her sick voice had no ring of confidence. Her blue eyes had begun to lose their luster and there were lilac shadows beneath them. There was an indefinable relaxation about her cheek and mouth muscles that made her wistfully pretty little face look very woebegone indeed. It was all horribly difficult to know what to do. If she called Snap up now, he would think she was running after him and had no pride. Yet if she did not call——

One day Maybelle reported:

"Snap's bought that service station in the country. He's leaving town on Friday."

A cold hand closed about Connie's heart.

Snap! Snap! She loved him. She wanted him back. She wanted his grin again, the friendly crinkles around his eyes, the touch and smell of him. Should she call him up? But how could she, now that their pride had brought them to a deadlock? He'd already hurt her so much. Yes, that was it, she told herself; he'd already hurt her too much. So she would never call him up. She would just go on making paper novelties for Halloween, then for Thanksgiving, for Christmas, New Year's, Valentine's day. . . . But she would never call Snap up—not in a hundred years.

On Thursday night, in an apathy of grief, she stretched out upon her bed without undressing or even turning out the light. She lay there, very still, upon her back. Her hair was drawn down smoothly over her forehead; her eyes were closed; her hands folded across her breast. . . . Folded in death. . . .

After a while Snap was standing beside the bed, looking down at her still, cold form. With one finger he lifted the hair from her right temple and touched her birth mark. He was sorry now. . . . O, Connie, beloved——

She opened her eyes as her alarm clock went off. But there was only the unshaded electric light, looking silly in the dawn.

Toward noon her suffering became almost more than she could bear. "God, make him call me up at twelve o'clock," she prayed, her eyes watching the workroom clock. "Go on, God—please!" Maybelle made no comment. But she evidently understood, for when the other girls filed out to the cloakroom and Connie lingered at the office door, Maybelle stopped beside her.

"Aw, go on in and call him up!" she counseled, weakening at last. "You and Snap have worried yourself as thin over this as a coupla dimes!"

"I've nothing to say to him."

Girl Friend to the Rescue.

Connie spoke without bitterness, merely with the dignity of one who has made a great renunciation.

"Aw, sure you have. Snap's more stubborn than what I thought. So you may as well back down and call him up."

"I wouldn't give him the satisfaction. He'd just think I was making a play to get him back. I don't have to run after any man if he don't want me. I got more pride."

"Your pride won't do you any good when he's gone," Maybelle pointed out. "You wanna get him back first, Connie. Then you can make him feel as mean as you want afterwards. Why, once you get him to marry you, you got all the rest of your life to get even with him!"

"I won't be the first to call up."

Maybelle drew Connie into the office and closed the door.

"If I call him up, will you talk to him?"

Without waiting for an answer, she picked up the telephone book. Out of the corner of her eye, Connie saw her finger nail tracing its way down the column of names. She heard her give the number.

"Will you call Mr. Snap Nelson to the phone?"

Maybelle turned and peremptorily held out the instrument.

"Go on, kid. Now talk to him!"

Connie's left hand rose to her breast. Her eyes were moist. Her lips quivered and her chin puckered up. But she did not take the telephone.

"Go ahead! . . . I'm tellin' you, Snap's goin' away this afternoon. So this is your last chance."

Connie's eyes fixed themselves miserably on the telephone. Her facial muscles twitched in an agony of indecision. Her lips opened and her breath began to come in gasps. Tears appeared on her eyelids. From first one eye, then the other, then darted down along the sides of her nose. Then:

"I won't do it!" she cried passionately. "I—just—wu-won't!"

As an inquiring "hello?" crackled in the telephone, she collapsed across a desk, her face pillowed on her crooked arm. Her shoulders shook convulsively as she tried to choke back her strangling sobs.

Solemnly the bells of Grace church began to ring. Now high, now low, their swelling cadence came flooding into the office. Those sonorous waves of sound wrapped around her. They beat into her. They were crushing her. They meant Snap and her love for him that was all over. As their last, lingering reverberation died away, Snap's voice crackled again, faintly in the telephone:

"Connie——?"

But Connie did not hear. Maybelle, standing with the telephone in her hands, was staring compassionately at Connie's shoulders. Very slowly she replaced the receiver.

"Aw, gee, kid——" she began.

Connie jerked to her feet. With eyes streaming and shoulders still shaking convulsively she fled toward the cloak room.

All Due to the Chimes.

Several minutes later, dry eyed and with face freshly powdered, she left the office. As she approached the corner where she and Snap had used to meet, she saw him coming toward her.

A sudden weakness seized her. She paused, uncertain whether to turn back. Then his eyes met hers—leaped at her, and in an instant he was at her side.

"O, gee!" he was stammering. "Gee, Connie! . . . You did wanna see me, dinja?"

His hand was on her arm. The friendly crinkles were all there again at the corners of his blue eyes. Happy, eager eyes.

"I sup-pup-pose I did," she faltered. "But I didn't wanna be the first to make it up."

"You sure had me scared," he admitted. "O, boy, I was just sick about it. Only I thought somehow that you'd call up today."

"No," said Connie firmly. "I wasn't goin' to be the first to call up—not even if you went away."

He took a quick step backward. His

The War of the Sexes

By Doris Blake

Why This Strong Feeling of Antagonism Between Men and Girls? Erase the Cause and You'll Lay the Basis for Peace.

JUDGING from confidences extended on both sides by the modern man and girl and their marriage question, one is forced to conclude that there is current a pathetic misunderstanding between the sexes.

Men of marriageable age misunderstand the real character of girls and there is no question that women are unwilling to concede to man the qualities that are his.

You could not read the mail received by me in a month without being moved to ask "Why is this war between the sexes?" You wouldn't ask, "Is there such a war?" The ammunition is laid out too obviously—girls turning their verbal grenades on the male sex and the compliment being returned by the other side in no less vindictive measure.

Sometimes you wonder, with such a large sized "hate" loose, how marriage keeps on getting recruits daily. Except that you are balanced enough to realize the "hate" is not deep rooted, and on both sides is born of a peeve due to misunderstanding.

As nearly as I can make out, the "differences" that exist spring from one main objection—and curiously enough that objection is something in which both sides participate and the participation leaves a bad flavor in the minds of man and girl about each other's sex.

The Same Old Snag.

Yes, it's none other than our old friend kissing or mauling or necking or whatever term you wish to ascribe to the performance that is the basis, as I see it, for so much of our current sex distrust and antagonism.

Men kiss, and are revolted by the easiness of their conquest. Women indulge or permit the familiarities and loathe the feeling of commonness that follows.

The silly part of it is that young men believe they are performing a little duty that is expected of them. Not all young men, of course, but I've had enough confidences from the male side to believe that they honestly think they're not doing right by the little girl they take out unless they finish the evening off with a demonstration of their amatory skill, much of it, from reports, pretty crude exhibitions.

The girls are divided into two groups in this connection. Those who stoutly refuse to accede to the amorous advances and resent the "lonesome" penalty for their prudence, and girls who operate under the conviction that a little mauling isn't going to hurt any and it may get them quicker date returns. Not all of the latter confine themselves to moderate measures.

And the evidence is a bit disconcerting to the young woman who refuses to play the game in her flighty sister's way. She, the former, is justified in some degree to inquire, as she frequently does, whether it is not better to kick over the ideals and have a good time, even though this form of popularity may be short lived.

Strong Prejudices.

But that is not the phase in which we are interested today. It is the sex antagonism we are concerned with, because it indicates an unhealthy state of mind and heart from which our young men and women should be freed.

Beside the mauling, which is resented by self-respecting girls, there is flowering a strong prejudice against men because they are losing the flair for marriage. So the girls say, at any rate.

Men retort with accusations about the mercenariness of our modern femme, sometimes with personally experienced figures to uphold the high cost of entertaining or marrying them. Or, they bemoan the passing of the home-loving, motherly, unselfish type of femme. In return, they are accused by the girls with being equally lacking in the qualities that make good husbands and fathers of their progenitors.

And so it goes. With no more chivalry on one side than on the other. No more understanding of the real character behind these modern exteriors! And it is all so silly, since neither man or girl get along happily, successfully, or well without the other.

If the antagonism is to be eliminated, the first step must be to try to turn the light of investigation on the other side's wrongs, not on one's own. Human nature does not change radically in a generation or two. There must be just as fine motives extant in both male and female bosom today as there ever were. But an antagonistic attitude certainly is not going to bring them out. A little more faith in the goodness and the fineness of the other side would clear up the atmosphere appreciably.

Their Arguments.

Men say: "What has marriage to offer me with the average girl without ideals wanting heaven and earth and unwilling to make a home and have babies?

Women say: "What has marriage to offer me with the average man who is not respect-inspiring nor dependable as a husband-prospect? I'm better off unmarried than to be a wife, like So-and-So's."

Stupid and silly reasoning! You can't turn a block in any city street nor a corner in any town of our country but you'll find young men and young women living thereabout possessed with all the character, the decency, the fineness that is needed to make marriage go. But those qualities to be brought out and developed to their finest pitch will flourish only on faith in their presence.

Why don't you young men and women give up talking disagreeably about the other sex? Why not believe in men, in girls? Give each a chance to unfold their real selves.

In order to do this it would help immeasurably did each side eliminate as an entertainment feature the pawing and the necking and such habits already referred to—at least until two people get to a point where they honestly care for each other. It would help more than you can believe to restore that faith in each other's sex which is now so regrettably lacking.

Suppose you young men and women try out a few dates without the amorous expressions and give each other a chance to exhibit his and her finer self. You see by now where the cheap, surface behavior is getting you in each other's opinion. My object certainly is not to withhold the joys of living from you young ones. On the contrary, I plead that you give yourselves a chance to learn that there is much, much good in the opposite sex. It's the quickest way I know to reëstablish kindly relations between the sexes and to make marriage more attractive to both sides.

Certainly, the freedom of amorous exchange has not left a pleasing taste in the mouth, nor has it raised either sex highly in the esteem of the other. So why not adopt a new program, and give it a trial!

I have been studying foreign languages to prepare myself for going into the South Sea islands to cover the territory for several prominent magazines at a salary which most men would envy. A few weeks ago I dreamed that I was learning these languages to fit myself as a missionary to those islands instead of a writer. I laughed as I told my friends about it and promptly forgot the dream, for I did not even know how one went about offering one's self as a missionary.

Then a week ago I was asked to make a trip with some friends and they took me to a missionary rally. I was one of the first to volunteer, which means that I have given up my fine job with its wonderful salary. Even when I volunteered I did not think of my dream until my friends reminded me of it. It had occurred just as I had dreamed it, right down to the last detail.

S. L. P.

Vision of Work Fulfilled.

I was out of work and had been seeking employment for several weeks.

One night I dreamed that I was sitting at a desk containing a typewriter, that the desk was heaped high with work, and I was trying desperately to get through with it before 5 o'clock. I thought 5 o'clock came, but I was not through. The lights went out, and I had to work in the dark far into the night.

Well, the next day I secured a position as stenographer and found myself sitting at a desk just like the one in my dream, although, luckily for me, the rest of the dream did not materialize.

MY FUNNIEST EXPERIENCE

Did you ever have a funny experience that makes you smile whenever you recall it? If you did and care to pass it along write to Funniest Experience editor, Chicago Sunday Tribune.

No Wine for Them.

We had gathered a basket of dandelion blossoms and were going to make some dandelion wine. My wife was busy boiling the blossoms in the kitchenette. I looked out of the window of our apartment and there on the corner was a policeman looking up at our window.

My wife said, "Wouldn't it be a funny thing if he could smell these blossoms boiling?"

The policeman started over to our apartment, came in the building and knocked on our door. My wife heard him and, running to the kitchenette, dumped the pot of boiling blossom tops into the garbage can.

She then opened the door trembling with that guilty feeling, expecting to be pinched every minute. The policeman inquired in regard to an address, thanked her and walked away.

"Never again," said the wife, as we surveyed the results of several hours of gathering dandelion blossoms and boiling them. "If you have anything to drink this winter, you will have to see the doctor and get a prescription."

E. C. S.

Reports Didn't Tally.

I once knew a man who had been everywhere, seen everything, done everything, tried everything, and was a general know-it-all. If you mentioned heat he could start, with, "Say, heat, when I was in the Hawaiian islands—I was there eight years," or if you said tea he would start out, "When I was in China, I was there ten years," or mention sugar, he knew sugar, as he was in Porto Rico five years." "Pass the coffee" brought out the fact he had been in Brazil nine years. Rabbits made him remember Australia, having been there fifteen years.

We had company one evening, and I drew him out to lie his best. I prepared a sheet of paper with names on it of countries. When he mentioned a few years here or there, I'd jot them down. Suddenly I said, "Say, how old are you?"

He said, "Thirty-two years."

"Well," I said, "I was just wondering, as I know you have lived here for thirteen years, but you have traveled 135 years. That makes you just 148 years old."

He did not speak again all the rest of the evening. In the morning he was gone, leaving a board bill behind. I believe he takes a prize of some kind.

HARLEY AND JOAN

by ROLAND PERTWEE

THE STORY IN RESUME.

Harley Trevelyan, spending the last night of his leave from the front in London, dines with Paula Drayton, whose younger brother, David Drayton, through Trevelyan's influence, has been assigned to his own battery. Paula tells him she loves him. Harley is walking the streets when the Zeppelins raid London, and, being used to gunfire, does not run to cover. A young woman in a window sends her brother to bring him into the house, and he discovers that the boy is Freddie Miller, an old schoolmate, and the girl is Joan. With Joan he goes up on the roof to watch the air raid, and they see an airplane shoot down one of the Zeps. Harley realizes he is in love with this girl. Freddie and he leave for the front, and when Harley rejoins his battery he discovers that Paula's brother, a second lieutenant, already is on hand. Maj. Fawlk, Harley's commanding officer, writes a letter to Joan's father intimating that Harley is in love with Paula, and Joan, wondering, talks with Paula. Paula goes to Amiens with a relative. Harley visits her there, and they become engaged. Young Drayton is killed. Catching a Bavarian robbing the dead, Harley kills him in a hand to hand encounter. Harley is reported killed, but Joan receives a letter from him from a German prison camp, and with it confounds Maj. Fawlk. Harley escapes from prison in Germany, and gets home in time to take part in the armistice celebration. Fawlk tells Paula that Trevelyan's cowardice caused her brother's death. She goes to kill Trevelyan, but fails to do so. Fawlk manages to have Trevelyan accused of cheating at cards.

INSTALLMENT XIII.

Suicide.

THE whole sequence of events had happened with such paralyzing suddenness that Harley had found neither the inspiration nor the opportunity to put forward a defense. That the charge proved against Freddie should have taken this twist and involved himself had so stunned imagination as to leave him without words.

Freddie's hysterical claim to have marked the cards had deceived no one—Harley least of all. Both alike, they were branded as cheats and presently—within a few hours their clubs would know—the world they moved in would know—Joan would know.

A cheat is always posted—neither friendship nor loyalties protect him. The polite code of West End civilization, elastic in its judgments of murder, violence, and seduction, has no mercy for the cheat, the man who, under cover of good fellowship, violates the sacred conventions that protect a game of chance.

With full realization of the consequences of this ghastly embroglio, Harley stared at the door slammed by the last of his guests. His nails were dug into the palms of his hands and his breath whistled through shut teeth.

He could not trust himself to turn and face Freddie Miller. Neither philosophy nor affection could help him now. He had devoutly believed what he had said in Freddie's defense. From a shell shocked mind moral obligations and observances fall away like leaves from a tree. It loses all sense of proportion—of reference. One could not read the reports of the courts in any newspaper without finding proof of that. Moral wreckage was not the least part of the war's final accountancy. Harley would have moved heaven and earth to have proved the case he was presenting for his friend when he himself became involved in the same charge.

At such a time he would have been a poor lover had not his own predicament loomed larger than that of his friend. The case against himself was far more despicable. These men had thought that he had tried to cover up his own traces under a stalwart display of loyalty.

Harley was sane enough to know that they had every justification to think so—every excuse. God almighty, what else could they think?

Marked cards, and he had himself admitted buying them. There was no possibility that the cards had been changed during the evening. Save for the first pack, he had himself taken them from the drawer.

Freddie Miller was standing in the center of the room, his arms limp to his sides and the tears running down his cheeks. His whole body vibrated with sobs that he made no effort to hide or govern.

In the extremity of his grief he was pitiably unashamed.

"Much good that'll do," Harley said.

Freddie Miller lashed out an arm as an hysterical school girl might have done at a hated governess.

"Damn you," he gasped. "O, damn you, damn you."

Harley humped a shoulder and turned away.

"Better get your head under a tap."

Freddie's arm swung out again and fastened on his shoulder.

"Don't you high horse me, damn you, damn you."

Harley's mood was dangerous.

"Pity if anything happened—let go."

But Freddie held fast; struggling to force words through the sobs that shook him.

"Nothing worse—could happen. You—no excuse—got everything—not like me—no devil riding your shoulder whispering, coaxing. O, hell! Why—why did you?"

With his free hand he hammered on Harley's chest, but Harley took his wrists and forced him down on a chesterfield.

Grief had robbed Freddie of the strength to resist.

"Murderer," he moaned, "murderer."

"For God's sake, be quiet."

Harley was surprised, even shocked, at the venom in his own voice.

Freddie Miller pointed at him accusingly.

"My hero—until now. Believed you—not like other men—and you've killed that—murdered it. Joan shan't have you. She shan't." His voice rose to a high pitched wail. "No reason—no excuse."

"You fool, do you believe it was I who marked those cards?"

"Who else?"

"No—No, I tell you."

And Harley knelt beside him on the sofa driving in denial with a shut fist.

Even at the summit of his agony the love Freddie bore for Harley was manifest in every word and look, but at these words it died like a torch thrown into deep water.

"Liar," he cried, "dirty, rotten liar." And fled from the room.

The door banged and another beyond.

Harley did not move.

Half a minute later the door was pushed open—an arm appeared and something black described an arc and fell on the sofa beside him.

Running feet and the front door slamming so violently that the glasses on the sideboard jingled and buzzed.

The black object was a service revolver—loaded.

Two Dabs of Wax.

Harley made no attempt to follow. His resentment had spent itself in the crazy exchange of words they had made, but he had not yet recovered himself enough to feel interest or concern in what might happen to Freddie.

The problem of his own inculpation was uppermost. Proof positive was his only hope of clearing himself. But how to obtain and where to look for proof?

Until then, with the possible exception of Fawlk, he had thought of himself as a man without enemies. But it was doubtful if Fawlk even knew where he lived. And was Fawlk the man to think of anything so subtle—so intricate?

Harley shook his head. The man was hardly so contemptible as that. And yet it couldn't have been an accident that the cards were marked.

He picked up one of the wrappers from the floor and looked at it. A tartan paper wrapper sealed with white wax. Two dabs of white wax. One of the dabs was brownish. Harley brought it nearer to the light. Yes, certainly it was browner than the rest, and the paper near the seal was slightly discolored. When he pinched it with his fingers it broke. The other side did not break. The explanation was obvious. The paper had been scorched.

Harley was conscious of a thrill of excitement. And yet after all it was obvious that the cards had been tampered with. He examined the rest of the wrappers, but discovered no further evidence of discoloration.

Whoever was responsible had been thorough—fiendishly so.

He began to run over his absences from the flat that day. At ten o'clock he had walked to Paula's. Back again by eleven. He had lunched at one o'clock at the Carfax and returned about two-thirty. Since then he had not gone out.

Assuming the exchange had been made that day it must have been done between ten and eleven or while he was lunching at the club.

Harley looked at his watch. The time was just before midnight. Rising, he went to the lift shaft and rang the bell. In the hall below a gate clashed metallically and the lift droned upward.

"Sir," said the porter.

"Come in," said Harley. Then, "Help yourself to a drink."

The porter said he could just do with one.

"Who was on duty between ten and eleven this morning?" Harley demanded.

"Young Sidney, sir."

"And during the luncheon hour?"

"Me myself, sir."

"Did any one call or ask for me at that time?"

"No, sir."

"Does the boy Sydney sleep in the flats?"

"No, sir, he doesn't."

"Thank you; that's all. Good night. O! help yourself to another if you want it."

The porter seemed to think it would do him good, what with the war being over and everything.

"Your 'ealth and prosperity," he said.

The telephone rang. Harley picked up the receiver.

"Hold the line for a trunk call," said the operator.

Joan! Ringing up from Camberley.

"Finish that and go," said Harley with a gesture of dismissal.

The front door closed discreetly.

Then Joan's voice—rippling.

"Angel."

"Joan."

"Back at three o'clock tomorrow afternoon."

"Joan," he began.

But she hated the telephone. Refused to regard it as an instrument of courtship. Lines got crossed. Operators listened in.

"Good night, Angel."

"Joan," he said urgently.

"They've rung off. Good night," said Trunks.

"Just as well," Harley thought. "Just as well."

Up the Thoroughfare.

Freddie Miller left the flats at a run. Up Duke street and along Piccadilly he ran as though the devil were behind him.

Hatless, coatless — wild-eyed — he plowed through the theater crowds in the Circus and Shaftesbury avenue, cursing whoever impeded his progress.

A man shouted protestingly and a constable clutched, but he wriggled free and raced on, turning sharp to the left in Wardour street and plunging through the open doors of a garage.

The man on night duty grinned a greeting.

"In the usual 'urry, Mr. Miller?"

Freddie swore at him.

"The colonel's car—I want it."

The garage was one of the firm's by-products and it was no unusual thing for Freddie to collect Sherlock's car, which looked like an enormous mackerel.

"No call to talk to any one like that," the man complained, but he lost no time in clearing the vehicles that obstructed the way.

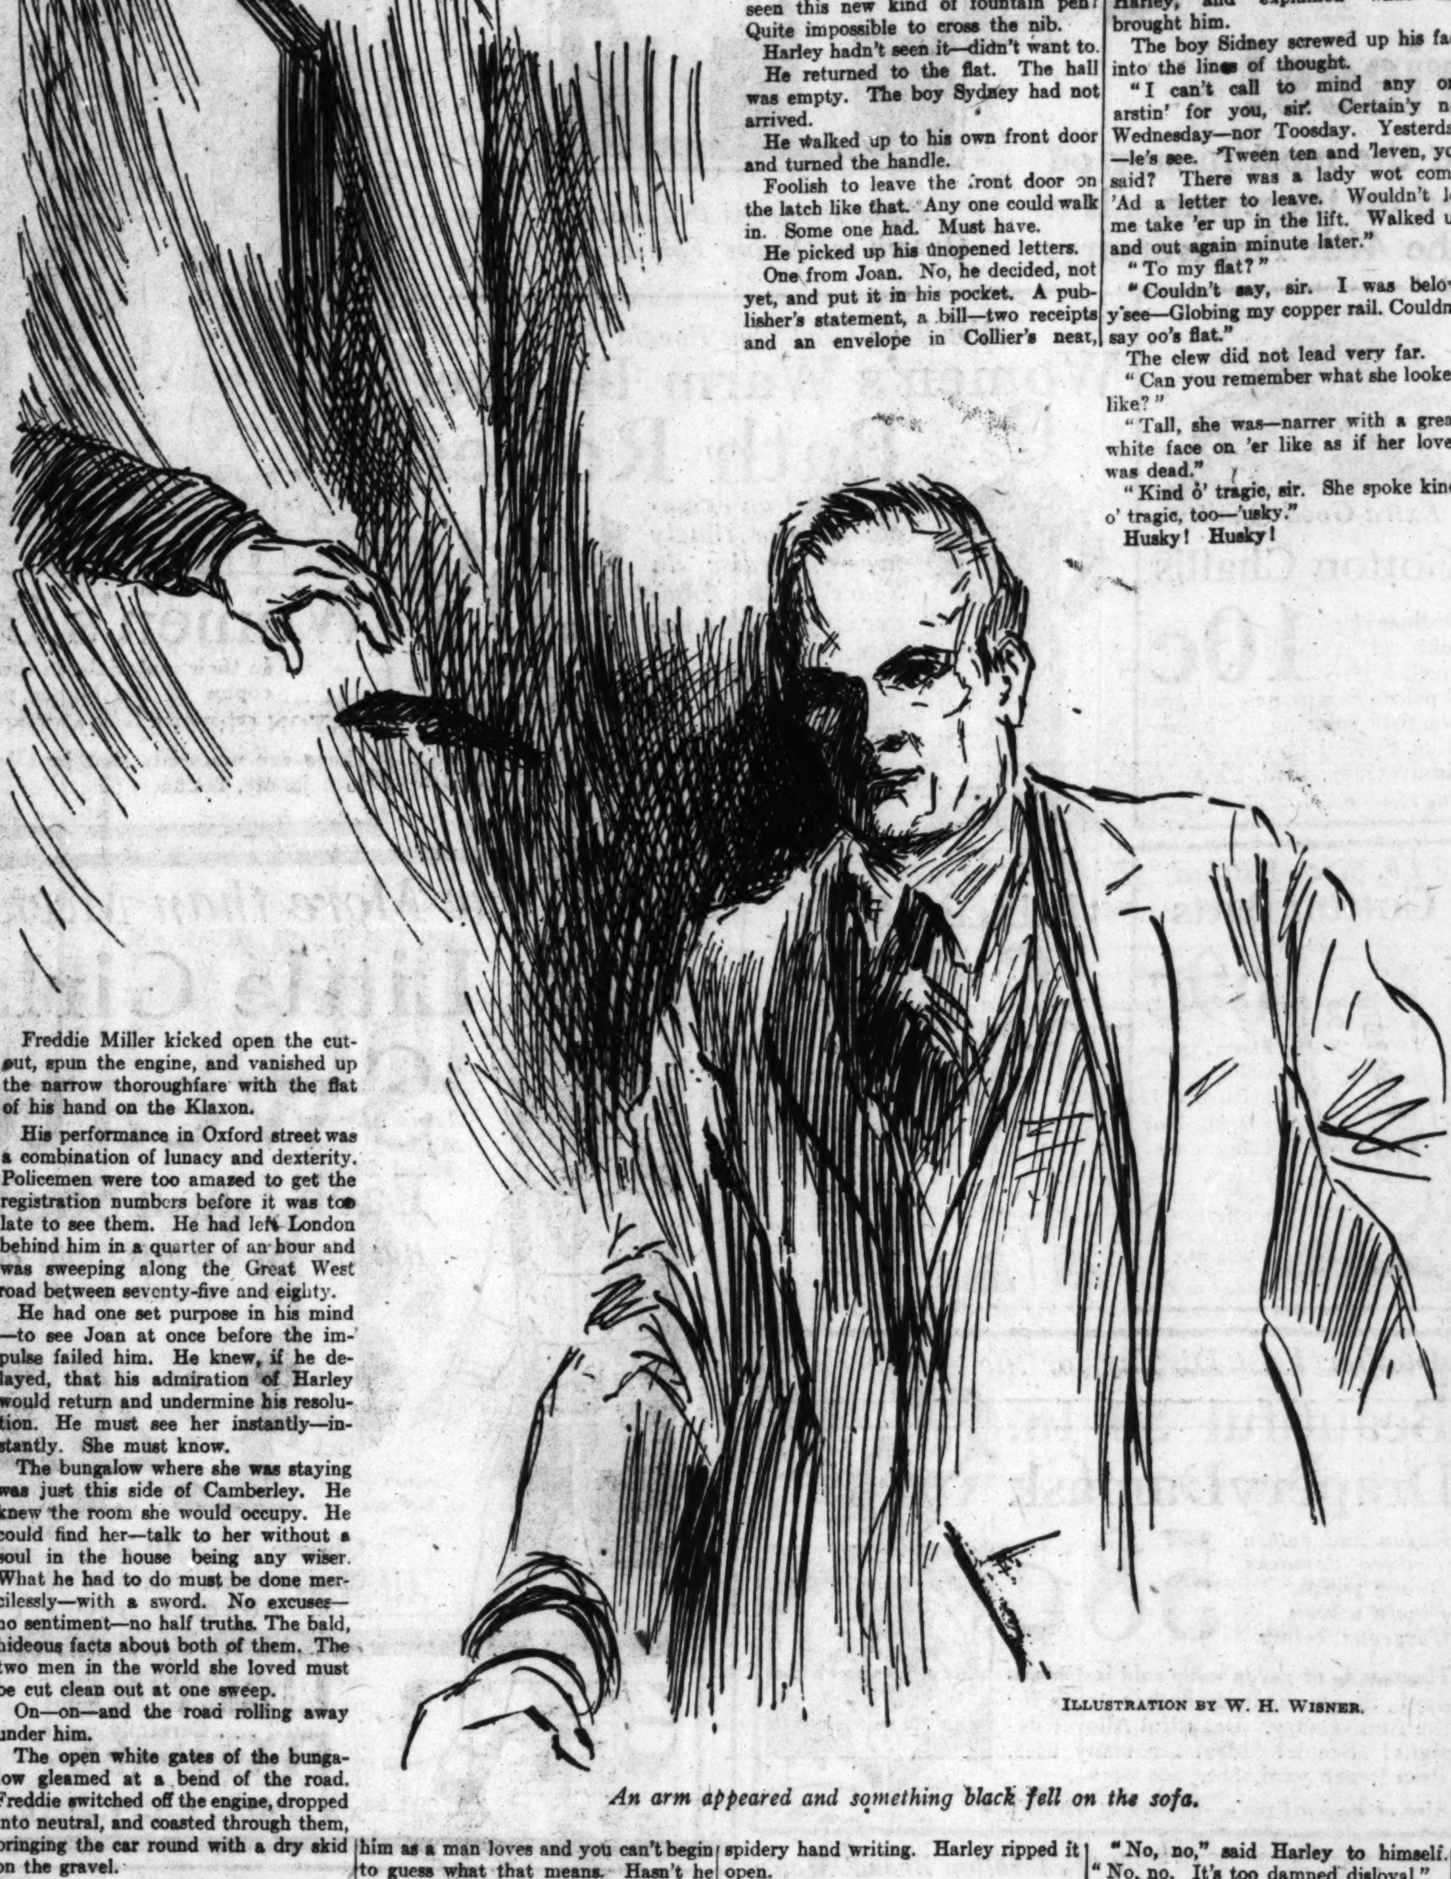

ILLUSTRATION BY W. H. WISNER.

An arm appeared and something black fell on the sofa.

Freddie Miller kicked open the cut-out, spun the engine, and vanished up the narrow thoroughfare with the flat of his hand on the Klaxon.

His performance in Oxford street was a combination of lunacy and dexterity. Policemen were too amazed to get the registration numbers before it was too late to see them. He had left London behind him in a quarter of an hour and was sweeping along the Great West road between seventy-five and eighty.

He had one set purpose in his mind—to see Joan at once before the impulse failed him. He knew, if he delayed, that his admiration of Harley would return and undermine his resolution. He must see her instantly—instantly. She must know.

The bungalow where she was staying was just this side of Camberley. He knew the room she would occupy. He could find her—talk to her without a soul in the house being any wiser. What he had to do must be done mercilessly—with a sword. No excuses—no sentiment—no half truths. The bald, hideous facts about both of them. The two men in the world she loved must be cut clean out at one sweep.

On—on—and the road rolling away under him.

The open white gates of the bungalow gleamed at a bend of the road. Freddie switched off the engine, dropped into neutral, and coasted through them, bringing the car round with a dry skid on the gravel.

There were no lights in the bungalow, but he could have found his way in the blackest darkness.

Here was Joan's window—wide open, of course, as he had known it would be.

He vaulted over the sill, landed lightly in the room, heard the rustle of bed clothes, the faint creak of springs, and saw a figure sitting up in bed.

Clearing Out.

For the moment he was too breathless to speak, but there was not a tremor in the voice that spoke out of the darkness.

"You won't find any jewelry, because I hate the stuff, but there's about fourteen shillings in my bag on the dressing table."

"Joan," he whispered.

Instantly she jumped out of bed.

"Freddie—Freddie, you big idiot—I thought—— What's the matter?"

"Had to see you."

There was no mistaking the agony in his voice.

"Wait 'till I find the switch."

He caught and held her.

"No—no light—in the dark. Better in the dark."

So he was in trouble—bad trouble—and ashamed.

"There!" she said soothingly. "It's all right, old man; we'll manage something."

"You can't," he stammered and began to blubber. Then, "Blast me! Why can't I keep a stiff upper lip."

"It's Harley," said Joan steadily.

"Harley. Yes—both of us. A couple of cheap crooks—that's us."

A wave of relief went over her. With all her courage she had been afraid.

"Yes, old man—but never mind—if that's all."

"All," he repeated savagely. "Damn it, do you think I'm mad, too? Hell! that was the excuse he made for me and had nearly convinced 'em when Collier tumbled on the truth."

"Freddie, stop jargoning. I can't understand a word." Her voice had hardened.

"Ring him up and ask him. Ring up Collier—Regan—any of the damned crowd."

"It was something that happened when you were playing poker tonight?"

"Something—yes—a couple of cheats caught out."

"Who?"

"Me—don't I keep saying so? Me and Harley."

"Better look out," she said warningly.

"Loyalty won't help. Every damned court card marked and he'd cleaned up a pile, too. God knows if there'd been a ghost of a chance of believing in him I'd have taken it. I even lied to the other men—but it was no good. You love him as a woman loves, but I loved him as a man loves and you can't begin to guess what that means. Hasn't he been my one anchorage at a time when I've jazzed about at the whim of every crazy impulse. Haven't we faced life and death together. Do you think I want to believe my one real pal is just as much of a sham and a rotter as I've become?"

"Tell me everything," said Joan.

In broken sentences the wretched story was told. At the end Joan was silent for a long while.

"I could understand with you," she said. "You're just ill—muddled—but Harley." She beat her fists passionately on the pillow. "I can't believe—I can't—I won't. It 'ud be—blasphemy."

"You've got to."

"No, no," she repeated. "On the night the papers said he'd been killed I prayed him alive again. Not for this."

"Better for both of us if he had been killed," he answered, took her by the shoulders and held her fast. "Face it, Joan, you've got to face it."

Picking up her hand he crushed it against his cheek.

"There's plenty of better stuff, thank God."

She saw his shadow moving across the room.

"Where are you going"

"Clearing out."

"But where?"

"Clearing out," he repeated and vaulted over the sill.

A second later she heard the wild tattoo of the engine and the shriek of spinning wheels upon the gravel.

The car roared itself away into the hollow silence of the night.

Joan went back from the window and sat on the bed.

Dizzy, she felt, all dizzy.

"No, not the telephone," she decided. "Not even now. Tomorrow early—face to face."

She wanted to see his eyes.

Spidery Writing.

The next morning Harley walked to the stationer's shop in Jermyn street where he had bought the cards.

The manager was dubious.

"I daresay we've sold three dozen packs in the last few days."

"Can you remember any one buying four packs. There'd be counterfoil bills surely."

There were, and it appeared that in the preceding ninety-two hours no fewer than five people had bought four packs. The various assistants were not very enlightening.

"After all, one serves so many customers, sir. Quite impossible to remember a quarter of 'em. What sort of a person would it be? A lady—a gentleman?"

Harley didn't know.

Well, there you were then!

They were desolated at not being more helpful. Was there any other service they could render? Had he seen this new kind of fountain pen? Quite impossible to cross the nib.

Harley hadn't seen it—didn't want to.

He returned to the flat. The hall was empty. The boy Sydney had not arrived.

He walked up to his own front door and turned the handle.

Foolish to leave the front door on the latch like that. Any one could walk in. Some one had. Must have.

He picked up his unopened letters.

One from Joan. No, he decided, not yet, and put it in his pocket. A publisher's statement, a bill—two receipts and an envelope in Collier's neat, spidery hand writing. Harley ripped it open.

Dear Trevelyan:

As a fellow member of the Carfax it is my duty to place the facts of what occurred last night before the committee. As I think it probable you may be going abroad, I shall postpone laying this information until after the week-end.

Yours very truly,
F. H. COLLIER.

A decent letter, Harley thought. Characteristic of the sender—discipline seasoned by good manners.

A communication from Sherlock and Mayduke was another category. It was couched in the third person—in two third persons. It stated in detail the losses sustained by them at his flat over a period of six weeks. It omitted and ignored any reference to gains. The phrase which composed the final paragraph informed "Capt. Trevelyan that failing immediate satisfaction and discharge of their claim, Col. Sherlock and Maj. Mayduke intend to lodge a complaint with the public prosecutor."

Harley locked it away in a drawer of his bureau, picked up the address of the boy Sidney which the housekeeper had given him, and was going out when the telephone rang.

"Kind o' Tragic."

He was aware of nerves when he picked up the receiver.

"Trevelyan? Cosmo Regan here."

"Well," said Harley.

An awkward pause and a sudden cataract of words.

"Not my mission to preach at a man whin he's taken the count. It's not aisy to droive out affection with a shwape of a broom. Braver toims and doings kape gettin' on their hoind ligs askin' to be remimbered. Damn yer eyes thin, if foive hundred down 'ud open the port to——"

"O, no," Harley shouted. "Cut that, for God's sake."

He hung up the receiver, grabbed his hat, and bolted. He was seeing badly and dashed the back of his hand across his eyes. There was moisture on it.

"Where to?" said the driver of the taxi he hailed.

Harley fished out the address and stared at it without comprehension.

"There, read it yourself," and pushed the paper into the man's palm.

Presently the taxi stopped at a house in Waterloo Bridge road.

"Wait," said Harley.

A woman, who said she was not his mother but his "auntie," conducted Harley to an attic where the patient was lying.

The boy Sidney was in bed. An exotic film paper was spread out before him.

Recognizing Harley, a flush of embarrassment encarnadined the palors of colic.

"I'm sure I beg pardon, sir, and I 'ope you'll sit down," said he.

"Now, listen to me, Sidney," said Harley, and explained what had brought him.

The boy Sidney screwed up his face into the lines of thought.

"I can't call to mind any one arstin' for you, sir. Certain'y not Wednesday—nor Toosday. Yesterday—le's see. 'Tween ten and 'leven, you said? There was a lady wot come. 'Ad a letter to leave. Wouldn't let me take 'er up in the lift. Walked up and out again minute later."

"To my flat?"

"Couldn't say, sir. I was below, y'see—Globing my copper rail. Couldn't say oo's flat."

The clew did not lead very far.

"Can you remember what she looked like?"

"Tall, she was—narrer with a great white face on 'er like as if her lover was dead."

"Kind o' tragic, sir. She spoke kind o' tragic, too—'usky."

Husky! Husky!

"No, no," said Harley to himself. "No, no. It's too damned disloyal."

But in spite of that he forced the interrogation a stage further.

"What color was her hair?"

But the boy Sidney shook his head.

"You know 'ow it is with these 'ats they were nowadays. I reckon a woman's glory is a thing o' the past."

A Common Cheat.

Harley told the taxi man to drive to Paula's house in Clarges street, but canceled the instruction a minute later. After all, the boy's description might have applied to a thousand women. So many nowadays wore the mask of tragedy—that look as if a lover had died.

In part it was loyalty that kept him away—loyalty and common sense. For what motive could Paula have for such an act. Yet in duty to himself, his future and to Joan, he could not afford to ignore even the slenderest clew.

If not in suspicion, he might at least go to her in friendship. Her wit and intuition would see deeper into the mystery than his clumsy imagination. It was impossible that Paula could have had anything to do with it.

At Paula's house a maid informed him that her mistress was out, but he was welcome to wait.

"Will she be long?"

"I couldn't say, I'm sure. Very erratic these days. Never been the same since poor Master David——"

Harley was shown into the orange and black drawing room. The smell of ambre, Paula's scent, was heavy in the air. Would he care for an illustrated paper? No thanks. He was left alone.

Harley sank into a chair before a writing table in the window recess and took his head in his hands. Under his elbows was a blotter with orange blotting paper. A strand of black thread trailed across it. Harley picked up the thread and fiddled with it. A needle was attached. A clumsy skewer of a needle that pierced the blotting paper. He wondered vaguely at finding anything so domestic on Paula's table. Paula, who had never sewed on a button or darned a sock. Paula of the yellow backed books—Russian novels and cigarets — Paula of the restless swinging toe.

A needle. Fumbling with it, he pricked his thumb and started violently.

What was a needle doing there anyway?

Four packs of cards pricked with a needle.

Angrily and with force enough to have thrown a brick across the street, he flung the little shining thing down on the table.

A pretty business if one's suspicions were to be aroused by a trifle like that.

Sick and angry with himself, he picked up a book and dropped into an arm chair before the fire. He switched on a table lamp, but no light came. He shook it irritably but without effect. Probably the wall plug was out, he thought. No, the plug, with its length of flex, was fixed in the skirting. He pushed back his chair to make sure it was making contact. Something bright at the end of the wire shone between his feet.

An electric iron. Harley stared at it as at a snake.

In the hall below a voice sounded—two voices.

"Who?"

The answer was inaudible.

"You'd no right."

Footsteps running up the stairs.

A Woman's Jealousy.

Harley was on his feet when the door opened.

Paula's figure was a black silhouette against the glow from the lamp in the hall below.

"I didn't ask you to come here. Please go."

"Let's have the door shut," he said.

"Go. After what's happened—what I've heard—I want you to go."

"No yet, Paula."

Crossing, he closed the door and switched on the lights.

Her eyes were blazing hate at him.

Why hate? he wondered. Disgust, disappointment, yes—but why hate?

"Paula, what have you heard and how?"

It was difficult, almost impossible, for her to speak. She wanted to snarl. She managed:

"This morning—everything. From Col. Sherlock."

"Between kisses?" he asked.

Intuitively she guessed he was trying to break down what little control was left to her. Intuitively she realized that he was dangerous. She backed into the refuge of satire.

"A common cheat—a sharper. Did you learn those clever tricks in the shelter of a prisoner's camp?"

The word "shelter" puzzled him. He could not believe it to be her own inspiration.

"No," he said and shook his head. "No, from a woman."

"Joan, perhaps. Why not? It's in the blood. Her own brother——"

"Not Joan," he answered simply. "Joan is good. This was done by some one bad—wicked—a damnable woman."

She laughed an ugly laugh.

"I thought you were above the machinations of bad women. Moral rectitude was your showcard."

"Yes, until some one pricked the back of it with a needle—this needle," and crossing he picked it up from the writing table.

"What a fool," said Paula. "What a fool," and went on laughing.

"Presently," said Harley. "Presently you and I will pay some calls together. A number of calls. A scandal like last night's spreads quickly. You had better decide what you will say, for whatever you say must be very complete."

"What I shall say," she echoed. "I—I. What has your being found out to do with me?"

He rang the bell and waited in silence until the maid came. Bewildered, Paula looked at the girl and at Harley. Inspiration came to her rescue.

"Show Capt. Trevelyan out."

"No, no," said Harley, "it wasn't for that you rang—you've forgotten." Then to the maid, "Your mistress wanted you to take away the electric iron."

He pointed to where it lay. The maid collected the iron and went out.

The confidence Paula had recovered was slipping away.

"That proves nothing. Nothing at all."

"It proves how far jealousy drives a woman."

"Jealousy," she repeated. "So you think that."

He shrugged his shoulders.

"I must, now. I didn't accept that motive willingly. I had believed that tag of jealousy turning love to hate was the wisdom of the novelette. I was wrong."

"Believe what you like," she said.

"So I will," he nodded, "and you must help others to believe it." He looked at his watch. "In five minutes we start our round. With Joan."

"Willingly," she answered. "I shall be glad to be present when she learns the facts about you."

"We must make sure they are the facts," said he. "Nothing less will do. You may do the talking, Paula. You can start with the visit you paid to my flat yesterday morning and the few words you exchanged with the lift boy in the hall."

She had not expected he had traced her movements so closely. Surprise scared most of her wits away.

"It's a lie. After what's happened who'll believe you? Or the word of a boy bribed to—"

He took her by the shoulders, forced her into a chair, and stood over her menacingly.

"Stay there and listen to me. What harm have I done to you that you should do this foul thing? Was it my fault I couldn't love you? One doesn't love to be obliging. At least, I've given what friendship could give."

"Friendship you——"

"What happened in France with David counts for nothing then?"

"You dare," she gasped, "you dare speak of David—when but for you he might be alive today."

"What are you saying?"

"The truth. I know it. The truth about a coward and a cheat."

"Go on."

"You tried to cheat him of his leave and, failing that, you sent him to his death."

Harley had released his hold and stood back amazed.

"It was Fawlk who told you this?"

"Yes."

Harley held up a hand in a gesture of despair.

"And you believed that story?"

"It was true."

"O, my God," he muttered pityingly. Suddenly his muscles stiffened.

"Where is he?"

"Gone. He left England this morning."

He made an impulsive movement as though to follow, but checked himself at the uselessness of it.

"And between you you worked out this"—he left the sentence unfinished.

Paula nodded.

"I must find him—bring him back," he said slowly.

Then to her, "You let him go?"

"I saw him off. I told him what had happened and saw him off."

There was triumph in her eyes—the triumph of one who has succeeded absolutely.

"You let him go?" he repeated. "You and he in partnership together to avenge David's death."

Still triumphant, she nodded.

"Paula," he said, savagely, "five minutes before David was killed he struck that man in the mouth."

"You can't save yourself with lies," she said.

But Harley went on.

"We were there alone in a bit of a stable. Fawlk accused David of cowardice and David struck him and ran out into the night. It would have meant a court martial—a sentence of death—and Fawlk called on me to give evidence. I refused, for if ever a man deserved a blow he did—I refused. A few minutes afterwards came the news that David was dead. So you see there was no court martial, but Fawlk has been waiting for me ever since."

Paula's breathing seemed to have stopped.

"No—no—I don't believe—"

"And I can't make you believe," he said, "but it's the simple truth."

She got up and stared at him, her eyes drilling into the secret recesses of his soul—if he possessed a soul. The very fact that he made no further attempt to convince her lent to the story a credibility impossible to deny.

"But why, why," came from her in a strangled voice.

"I have known that man to lie in wait for weeks and weeks to trip and break an N. C. O. for a trifling offense. He would not readily forgive what happened that night."

"Ah, don't," she pleaded. "Don't—it's awful—horrible."

"Not worse than what has happened since," he answered bitterly. "Well, Paula, are you coming with me to Joan."

But the room about her was beginning to spin—the floor quaked—the walls tottered. The ceiling was rising—falling—falling.

Harley caught her in his arms.

Through the Parapet.

Joan's two seater was parked against the railings of the square when the taxi drew up before the house.

Paula had scarcely spoken since she had fainted an hour earlier. A few disconnected utterances and that was all. She sat forward in the taxi staring at nothing, unless it were into the past or the future.

"I struck him, too," she muttered. "Beast. Beast. I've touched him—his face—with this hand." She smeared her fingers against each other. "To Africa—Africa. Steamship La Pierretta Bound for Tajura."

"Better wait in the taxi," Harley said, but even the simplest things no longer reached her understanding.

She followed him up the steps like some one in a trance.

Harley rang and in a distant part of the house the bell tolled dismally. They waited and he rang again.

Old Rogers, who opened the door, drew back on seeing Harley, then stepped forward to bar the way. Although his face was white, his eyes were curiously red.

"Miss Joan——" Harley began.

"The family can see no one."

"But I must——"

"No, sir."

Harley hesitated.

"Those were your orders?"

"Yes, sir."

The "sir" was utttered with difficulty.

"Do they refer particularly to me?"

Old Rogers nodded—grimly—mouth tight shut.

"Can you tell me then where I can find Mr. Freddie?"

The old servant's face flushed to a dark crimson.

"How can you ask that as if you didn't know?"

"Know—Know what?"

"Mister—Master Freddie drove his car into and through the parapet of of Staines bridge. The body——"

Harley's hand shot out and clutched him.

"Body—what do you mean, man?"

"Don't lay an 'and on me—he's dead," wailed Rogers.

Groping like a blind man, Paula made her way back to the taxi. Harley followed.

As they reached the lowest step Rogers remembered something.

"A message from Miss Joan for you."

Harley turned.

"Yes?"

"Neither to write or call—ever."

The door closed.

As Harley tried to enter the taxi Paula thrust out a hand to keep him away.

"I must go alone—I'm a murderess—don't you understand—a murderess. I can never tell her now—." Then in a voice of terror to the driver, "Anywhere—anywhere."

She left Harley standing on the pavement.

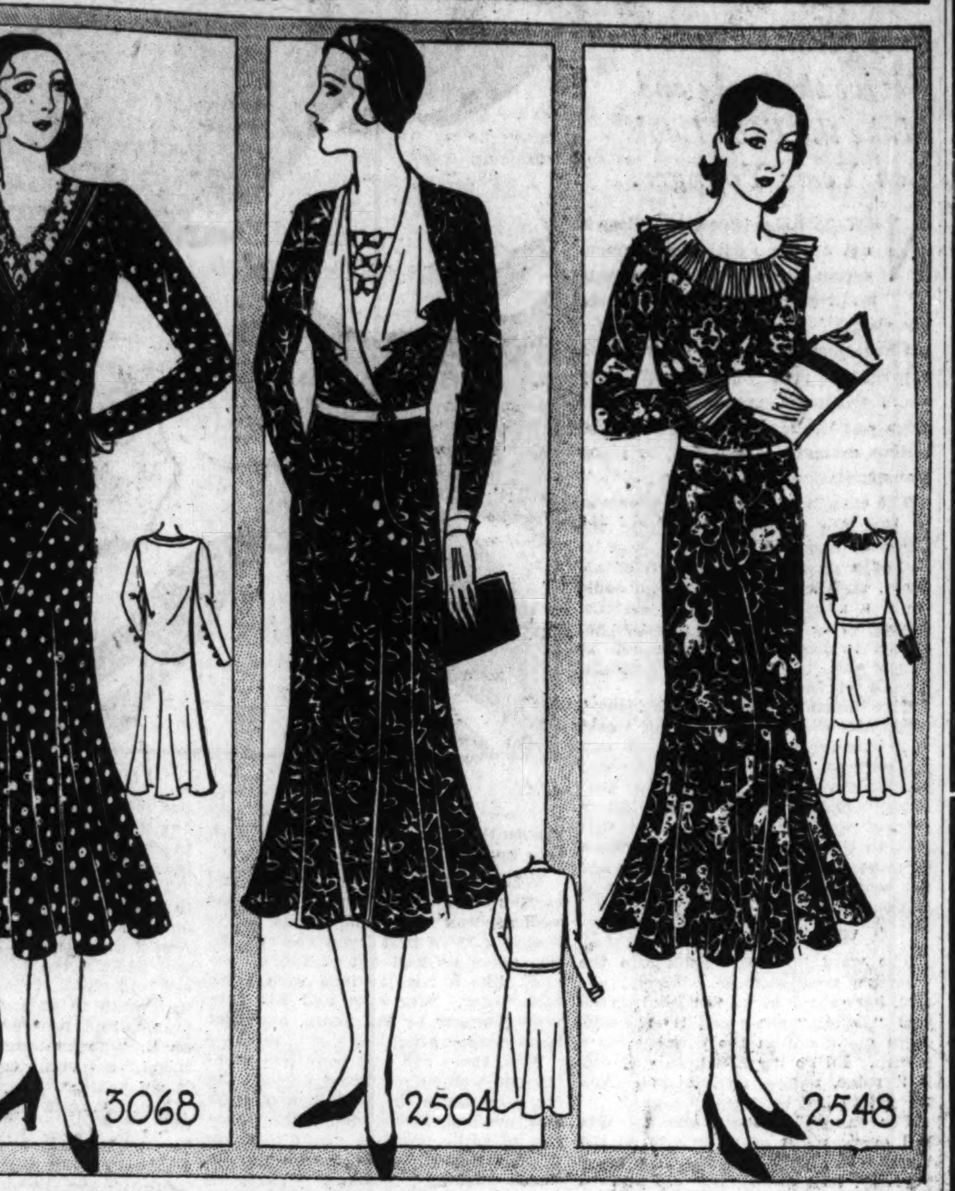
Patterns and How to Use Them

—By Clotilde—

These Frocks Are Smartly Appropriate for Street, School and Business Wear.



3068—Woman's and miss' dress. Size 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3 yards of 39 inch material with ½ yard of 18 inch contrasting and 1⅛ yards of 1¾ inch wide lace.

2504—Woman's dress. Sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material with ⅞ yard of 39 inch contrasting and 2 yards of 1 inch wide ribbon.

2548—Junior girl's dress. Size 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20 years. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material with 1¼ yards of 3 inch wide plaiting.

THE slender type frock, suggestive of the princess, is shown in the pattern No. 3068. The pointed outline at the front emphasizes the slender line of the hips, and the design is one that should be generally becoming.

The bodice is long waisted and a dart at each under arm throws a becoming fullness across the bust. The neck line is in a deep V, finished with two outside applied bands that are most decorative. The close fitting sleeves, trimmed with small buttons up the outside, are left open for two or three inches at the wrist end of the seam. Turn the seam edge on the upper side of the sleeve back and finish as a hem. The under side of the seam should have the edge bound, and is used as an extension hem.

If the material is light, it is a good plan to lay a single strip of the dress or other material inside of the hemmed edge, and also use a strip on the under side of the extension hem. This gives something firm to sew the snaps to. After this opening has been finished it should be well pressed, then backstitched together across the lower end, being careful that the stitches do not show on the right side of the sleeve.

The bottom of the bodice must be turned in a seam's width, and after the skirt seams are finished lay this turned in edge over the upper edge of the skirt. Pin together at the center front, back, side seams, then in between. Baste carefully, then overcast the two edges together on the wrong side and stitch twice on the machine—once exactly on the edge, and then one-quarter or three-eighths of an inch above.

Many materials today seek to shrink badly when dry cleaned or washed; and it is always a good plan to thoroughly shrink your material before cutting into it. If you are doubtful about putting it in water, try a small piece and see how it acts. Most crêpes today are washable. Hang straight on the line, and then press while slightly damp.

All circular skirts should be allowed to stretch well before finishing. This dress at the bottom, for size 36, measures about 2¾ yards.

Lanvin green silk crêpe, black crêpe satin, dark blue flat crêpe and navy blue wool crêpe are smart suggestions.

A charming wearable one piece slip on frock is shown in pattern No. 2548. It isn't at all difficult to make, and should be most attractive looking when worn. The straight, one piece upper part is lengthened with a circular flounce. The belt is adjustable and may be worn as best suits the wearer. If the wearer is slight the higher waistline will be chic.

White plaited organdy is suggested as a finish for the neck and long sleeves, and this, of course, may be bought by the yard, ready to put on.

Tub silk, shantung, cotton broadcloth, challis, washable crêpe de chine and wool jersey are smart suggestions.

A picture chart that comes with this pattern shows clearly how the parts are put together.

The slender appearance that comes from vertical lines is evident in the dress made by pattern No. 2504. It is a smart design for street or for afternoon wear, and printed crêpe silk in black and white, relieved by plain white, would be a smart and conservative choice.

The curved seaming of the skirt and its wrapped arrangement help to minimize width. The jabot revers also help to break the breadth through the bodice. The narrow belt is worn at the natural waistline, this being generally becoming to the average full figure. The sleeves are full length and close fitting, and are finished with attractive cuffs.

For size 36, the dress measures at the bottom, about 2⅛ yards. Flat silk crêpe, crêpe de chine, crêpe satin and wool crêpe are chic materials.

A Word to the Parents

—By Gladys Huntington Bevans—

Mrs. Bevans Gives Reading List for Fathers of Two Year Old Children.

A THOUGHTFUL father sits down and writes me the following brief letter.

"Dear Mrs. Bevans: May I have your opinion as to the best toys which should be provided for a healthy 2½ year old boy; also a short list of the best books or articles concerning this boy's food, health, and education? We have spent some time in studying child psychology, and we are interested in learning where the latest and best opinions on this study may be found.

"We have derived much benefit from your articles and we assure you that your attention to this letter will be much appreciated."

A Large Request.

Being a large request couched in few words it took me longer to answer it than it took the writer to write it. Because so much of my mail is about 2½ year old children, it seemed that the answer might be of interest to many other parents, so here it is:

To the Father of a Small Son:

It gives me real pleasure to answer your letter. There is a great deal of literature that I might suggest to cover the whole training of your little boy, but I will try to make a selection that will cover the subject, but not in a way requiring too intensive study.

Instead of giving here a list of toys and playthings, I will enclose my toy and play booklet. The former is a list according to ages. The latter, the play booklet, is planned to give a few reading suggestions which will open people's minds to the real purpose of what we call play, and to the kinds of play materials which can't be called toys—big playthings, apparatus, etc.

On the food question there are two things to cover—first, what your child shall eat, and second, how you shall "run" his meal times so that he'll eat his food without all the difficulties that are upsetting so many households, nerves, and dispositions. It's all really easy to do, if you start right. Some parents never need even a hint—but if you do need one, go over carefully "Cultivating the Child's Appetite," by Dr. Charles Aldrich. For the inexperienced cook, "The Mother's Cook Book" is a tremendous help in the actual preparation of the food. It gives normal and special diets, besides the recipes. It is by Bourjaiily and German.

For a book which is rather short, simple, and sound I know of nothing more satisfactory on the whole than "Child Care and Training," by Faegre and Anderson, published by the University of Minnesota Press. This book happily does not use the method so much employed these days by workers in the field of child guidance—I mean the case record method, which I consider the least helpful method of writing for parents.

"Child Care and Training" treats one subject at a time in a thoroughly modern way. It is especially valuable for mothers and fathers of children at the end of and past nursery school age. It deals with what is normal and how to achieve it. It also is helpful in its suggestions as to how to deal with behavior difficulties once they have developed.

Getting a Perspective.

I've often thought that a great deal of parents' friction and impatience with their small children would be avoided if they realized the great importance of each little thing a child learns—that each new act, each new experience, so trivial to us, is really stupendous to them. What we ought to have is a parent's telescope. "Children Are Like That," by Madeleine C. Dixon, helps us a little to scale ourselves down to the children's size—in thought and feeling.

Harriet Johnson's book, "Children in the Nursery School," does the same thing. But it is fuller—a record of little children by a sympathetic observer who draws interesting and often surprising conclusions regarding the training of small children.

The education of little children is not really a school or academic matter. Their education comes through the right kind of play and playthings, companions, adults, and general surroundings. In the latter, books figure largely, but they must be of the right kind, too. As the fruit of first hand experience, I made a list of books for young children. This is the booklet called "The Children's Bookshelf," which I am enclosing. Although new books for young children flood the market and many are excellent and may be added, this list holds its own.

Music Is a Factor.

Music is another element in his environment which figures in your little boy's education—but that is difficult to prescribe. Satis N. Coleman has written a book on "Creative Music for Children." And also there have been two books of songs mentioned in this column for very young children. One is "Singing Time," by Thorn and Coleman. "Sing It Yourself," by Dorothy Gordon, has songs in it for various ages, some very young.

On health, "The Health of the Runabout Child," by Lucas, is excellent. "Child Care and Training" has health suggestions in it, too.

I could keep on, but a list that is too long is apt to confuse even the ardent reader, so I will add reading on just one more subject—and that is on the sex education of your little boy. Although you will only answer his beginning question very simply you will want to feel yourself prepared and several laps ahead. To that end I might give you a list of booklets to read from, because I think parents do not get as much from the long books. But since all those references are embodied in my "Sex Education" booklet, I enclose that.

face went blank. In a voice of profound astonishment he asked:

"You weren't goin' to be—the first—to call up?"

Connie's heart hung fire. She could not know that when he had taken that call at the garage and heard only the deep, vibrant voice of the bells across from her office, it had been her grave, wistful, little face that he had pictured as listening at the telephone. . . . She had said she would not speak to him first. Well, she wasn't speaking, was she? But the bells were—she had called him up to let the bells speak for her!

"No," declared Connie proudly. "Maybelle called up the garage this noon. She wanted me to talk to you. But I wouldn't take the telephone. You had to be the first to call up, or else come to meet me here."

Snap's lips opened and he caught his breath as if he were about to speak. But when he finally did, it was only to say doubtfully:

"You wanna go somewhere—and eat?"

"Aw right."

He kept looking at her across the table, uncertainty and longing struggling for expression in his face. He did not tax her with their quarrel nor tell her that, when she had telephoned to him that she could not get back from Brooklyn in time to keep their engagement, it had been the sound of chimes coming over the wire that had told him she was lying from her boss's office. He did not tell her that it was the chimes that had brought him back to her again. But when they had left the restaurant and walked as far back as Grace church, he asked.

"Shall—shall we go in here?"

"Aw right," said Connie. "I'd just as soon."

Once more the glare and hurly-burly of Broadway were shut out and a solemn peace enfolded them. Connie fixed her eyes on the light that filtered softly through the great rose window. Her gentle presence seemed to be healing Snap's hurt pride and steadying him back again into tenderness and faith. For, presently, he leaned over, so close that she could feel his breath against her cheek.

"Do you know, Connie," he whispered, "I'll always think of this church and you together—of you and the times I called you up and heard the bells comin' over the wire? I can't hear any church bells now without I'll think of you."

The face she turned toward his was suddenly radiant. Two little lamps were burning in the depths of her blue eyes.

"And I was thinking," he added, "that if you'd marry me—well, it would be sorta nice if we could do it here."

"Aw right," she said with dignity. "I'd just as soon."

Thin slices of varieties of potatoes found in the middle west markets. 1. Idaho Whites. 2. Wisconsin Rurals. 3. Idaho Russets. 4. King. 5. Early Ohio.

Upper right: (a) Skin. (b) Cortical layer. (c) External medullary layer. (d) Internal medullary area. The close texture of King and Early Ohio are typical of potatoes excellent for French fries and stews. Coarse texture of Russets are characteristic of good baking potatoes. Medium fine texture of Idaho Whites and Wisconsin Rurals are those of good boiling and mashing varieties.

Certain Varieties of Potatoes Lend Themselves Most Successfully to Different Methods of Cooking.

ORIENTAL races live without potatoes, but the rest of us do not. Just think of it! Potatoes comprise about 25 per cent of the food of American and European people. This wholesome and innocent tuber is one of the first vegetables given to the baby, and he continues to eat it as long as he lives, even though he may approach and pass the century mark.

One of the interesting things about potatoes is that people never tire of them, even though they do desire to have them served in a variety of ways. I once knew a man who refused to eat potatoes cooked the same way on two successive days. And he managed to get his wife to comply with his wishes, even though her repertoire of preparation methods was not extensive. Somehow I've always admired that fellow's determination.

Potatoes lend themselves most attractively to variation and their flavor may be changed and subtilized in a score of ways. Every now and then, however, complaints are made by housewives regarding their failure to cook potatoes in different ways successfully. They say that many times their baked potatoes are not plump, white, and mealy, but are soggy and waxy. French fries do not always remain perfect parallelograms, but break or crack in such a way as to spoil their appearance. Mashed potatoes often are not white and fluffy with a velvety texture. Too many times hard lumps cannot be whipped out, and so remain distributed all through the mass. Potatoes used for creaming, escalloping, salads, and stews frequently fail to keep their shape.

Many Distinct Varieties.

Do you ever have such potato difficulties? Nine chances to ten the trouble is not with your method of cooking but with your potatoes. Perhaps you are one of those women who purchase just any kind of potatoes the huckster or grocer offers you.

In every American city and town there are many distinct varieties of potatoes on the market. The many shapes, sizes, colors, and textures are partly responsible for the difference in behavior during cooking.

The chemical composition, which is only slightly variable, is responsible to a greater degree for behavior in cooking.

The average composition of potatoes is 78.3 per cent water, 2.2 per cent protein, 0.1 per cent fat, 18.4 per cent carbohydrates (of which 1.5 per cent is fermentable sugar), and 1 per cent mineral material. The most of the soluble food material is dissolved in the water which permeates the entire potato. The carbohydrate, principally in the form of starch, is encased within the cell walls. Potatoes highest in starch content are the mealiest when cooked. Those highest in protein are the waxiest, while those higher in water, with an uneven distribution of starch, are the soggiest. It is obviously desirable, therefore, to select the kind of potatoes that are especially adapted to the particular methods of cooking used.

Definite Characteristics.

Criteria on which good selection is based do not include such superstitions as planting potatoes on Good Friday or in the dark of the moon, but rather upon definite characteristics which growing conditions and variety given them. A careful study of these characteristics is pertinent in learning how to purchase potatoes intelligently. The housewife of average experience finds it quite difficult to distinguish between tubers of good and poor quality as she finds them mixed in bulk on the market. The quality, it is true, cannot be judged entirely by outside physical appearance.

There are, however, a number of physical aspects for which one should always look. It is always safe to buy tubers of medium size and of good shape with neither too many nor too deep eyes. Deep eyes hold moisture which promotes decay. Furthermore, there is much waste of labor and material in peeling potatoes of poor shape or with deep eyes. Such potatoes cannot be perfectly cooked. Small potatoes are either immature or stunted in growth, both of which make for poor quality. Potatoes that are too large or that have had second growth [indicated by knobs on the potato or the hollow core in center] are coarse and uneven in texture, two undesirable characteristics.

The experienced buyer easily recognizes potatoes on the market that have grown under proper soil, moisture and temperature conditions. He can likewise quickly identify those that are well developed and of high quality as well as those that are immature or have withstood droughts and disease. He knows varieties by sight.

Most housewives are unable to do expert judging, but there are a few simple tests that they can apply which will be extremely useful when purchasing. Also, they can learn the earmarks of the common varieties sold and then ask for them by variety.

Test of Cooking Quality.

From the middle of the potato cut a thin crosswise slice. Hold it up to the light. [The appearance should be like those in illustrations]. The outer dense ring just inside the skin is known as the cortical layer. This layer contains most of the proteins and the minerals which give flavor. This is the portion that is mostly removed when the peeling is thick. This explains why potatoes cooked without the peeling are inferior in flavor to those cooked in the skins. The layer just inside the cortical layer, known as the external or outer medullary area, is composed mostly of starch. The central part, which is shaped something like a star with points branching out almost to the cortical layer, is known as the inner medullary area, or core. This portion is composed chiefly of water with some starch.

Value of Knowing Varieties.

The best hotels and restaurants have for several years been successfully using Idaho and western Colorado potatoes for baking. Recently these baking varieties have been introduced to the housewife. Dealers and a few consumers now are associating high quality in baking potatoes with the varieties that grow in the great potato fields of the west and northwest. The soil and climatic conditions of this region greatly influence the characteristic of the baking potato, and it is only certain varieties that will respond to these conditions. Other varieties would not thrive well there bcause they would require different soil, moisture, and temperature to develop the characteristics peculiar to their type.

That different characteristics should produce different results in cooking seems logical. For this reason it is important to know the different varieties as well as their behavior in cooking. It is an easy matter to become familiar with the different varieties. The accompanying photographs of several varieties of national and local importance, with brief descriptions, will be of help in this connection. They give an idea of both the internal and external appearance.

Classified by Shape.

Potatoes are often classified according to shape; as, round, round to oblong, and long. The following brief account will help the housewife to select her potatoes successfully.

Round.

The round class includes:

1. Irish Cobbler. Round, deep eyes, creamy white skin. Produced all along the Atlantic coast. Marketed early. Not high in table quality. Best steamed. See illustration.

2. Bliss Triumph. Round, blunt ends, deep eyes, red skin. Grown in Texas and along Gulf of Mexico. On market early. Best steamed. See illustration.

3. Pearl. Round, somewhat flattened; heavy shoulders at ends; broadest at stem end, giving a heart shape. Skin dull white, purple at eyes when dug. Grown in middle west, Colorado, Idaho, Minnesota, and Wisconsin. Fine table quality. Runs from medium to large in size. Good for boiling, mashing, and ricing.

Round to Oblong.

The round to oblong class includes:

1. Rurals. Round or oblong and flattened. Creamy white skin. End often netted. The potato of New York, Michigan, and Wisconsin. Good shape, popular with trade. Slow to resume growth in spring. Stores well. Good for boiling, mashing, and ricing. See illustration.

2. Green Mountain. Roundish, long; flattened blunt ends; skin dull creamy color. Shows netting, especially when grown in the west. The potato of the east, raised in New York, Wisconsin, Michigan, and middle west. Good for boiling, mashing, and ricing. On market late.

3. Idaho Rurals. Round, white, and shows netting. Good for baking.

4. Rural New Yorker. Round, slightly flat, white, and often netted. An important potato in New York. Excellent for boiling. See figure.

5. Sir Walter Raleigh. White skin, fine grain, white flesh. On market in middle of the season in middle west. Good table quality.

Long.

The long shaped potatoes include:

1. Early Ohio. Round to oblong ends full and round, light pink skin with numerous corky spots. Few eyes with prominent "eyebrows." Grown in the middle west. A long season potato. Excellent for French fries, stews, salads, etc. See illustration.

2. King. Similar to Early Ohio, flesh not quite so yellow as Early Ohio. A potato of the Red river valley of Minnesota. Good for French fries, stews, salads and creamed potatoes. See illustration.

3. Rose group. Early Rose, elongated, ends flat and blunt and heavier than center, pink skin which feathers easily. Creamy flesh. Generally flecked with pink. Fine table quality, especially for French fries, stews, salads and escalloped.

Spaulding No. IV. Heavy ends, thin in the middle. Pink skin. Grown in the east and Florida. Good for French fries.

Hebron. Resembles Early Rose. Long potato. Creamy white flesh, flecked with a little pink. Heavily grown in the east. Matures early. Fine grained flesh. Not cuite so waxy as Early Rose. Good for French fries and all other methods calling for waxy potatoes.

Burbank. Long, cylindrical, thick in the middle and smallest on the ends. Firm flesh, coarse texture, usually heavily corked skin. Two strains known as Whites and Russets. Grown heavily in the mountain districts and in the west. On the market late. Excellent storage qualities. Whites are good for boiling. Russets are good for baking. See illustration.

Why Potatoes Are Mealy.

The external medullary area is made up principally of a net work of cells that hold starch granules. Potato starch swells or expands more than any other kind of starch. If there is sufficient starch in the cells, the cell wall will be ruptured when the potato is cooked. The starch grains absorb the water which is originally in the potato, taking it up like a sponge.

As a rule, a potato with a thin cortical layer, a skin netted or corky [indicating maturity], an external medullary area uniform in density with a certain crisp texture, and a small internal medullary area, becomes quite mealy when baked. See figures illustrating appearance of slices of good baking potatoes. Note the mealy appearance when this same variety is baked [figure 14]. Such a potato when boiled falls off in chunks before it is cooked through, see figure 16. The best boiling potatoes have a cortical layer that is a little thicker than the baking potato. Such potatoes do not break apart when cooked but are mealy in the center. See figure 17. The external medullary area is also just a little less dense than in the baking potato.

Why Potatoes Are Soggy.

If there is not enough starch present within the cell, the walls are not broken down in cooking. The additional space in the cell fills with water and the potato becomes wet or soggy. When the external medullary area is not uniform in its starch distribution, that is, some cells are well filled with starch grains and others are not, the result is that there are portions of mealiness and sogginess. A potato of this kind will not mash uniformly or readily. The best potatoes for mashing or ricing are likewise the best for boiling.

Cause of Waxiness.

Potatoes with yellow flesh and particularly those with a smooth pink skin and yellow flesh tinted with pink are invariably waxy when cooked. These varieties contain more protein and less starch and have a denser structure in both the cortical and medullary areas than the good baking or boiling varieties. Moist heat coagulates or gelatinizes the protein and forms a framework which prevents the flaky masses of starch falling apart. As a result there is a heavy texture and a waxy consistency.

The Lightning Bug

By Eleanor Jewett.

I saw a lightning bug one night
Down by our garden gate;
He crawled upon a blade of grass
And then sat down to wait.

His light was only pretty fair,
His battery was low—
It would not have surprised me much
If he had lost his glow.

I think he planned to set a trap
Before the next storm came
So he could catch more lightning
And make a bigger flame.

The lightning bugs and all that sort
Of funny little things
Can't hurt, I've found, because of lamps
Where other bugs have stings.

Bright Sayings

Please address all bright sayings of children to Aunty Bee, The Tribune.

We had moved to a new town. The principal of the grade school our children attended invited different business men to address the pupils in the school auditorium relative to their different lines of work, with the idea of giving the pupils an incentive to choose their life work early and study towards a certain end.

My husband gave one talk. At its conclusion he remarked that if any of the pupils had any questions he would be glad to answer them.

One little girl arose and asked, "Are you Mary's papa?" A. E. C.

Sleep Is Beauty Potion

By Antoinette Donnelly

Free Health Tonic Will Revive the Body and Make the Face Look Ten Years Younger.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—Sleep is not a very exciting recommendation for what ails your beauty. Nevertheless, if it is ailing, try sleep.

I have just witnessed a rejuvenation experiment that out-Voronoffs any gland treatment yet observed. And sleep was the magic potion—not mysterious extracts, face lifting, or gland transplantation.

The case in point involves a woman in her late thirties who, under the stress of business depression, was let out of a good job. In search of another, and being a person who could sense a situation without a diagram having to be drawn, the message got across to her that she was not as young as is apparently desirable among job hunters.

The woman had some money saved, fortunately. After a couple of weeks of tramping the streets with no new job success, one day she interviewed the mirror closely, found no gray hairs, a good enough figure, but a pair of woefully tired eyes and that look to the face that inspires friends to remark. "A couple of years ago she was so good looking, but she is beginning to fade now."

Walking and Resting.

The word "fading" sank into the woman's consciousness. Wisely, she took her mirror at its word and agreed that "fading" she was. So she said: "I'm going out in the country for a month. I'll do my five miles per day if it rains, shines, or kills me. And I'll get to bed by 9 every night."

For one solid month she got into bed every night at 9, or 9:30 at the latest. She didn't do her five miles per day, as planned, but she walked some. The sleep, however, she got.

Looking back over the last five years, the woman recalled how night after night, when she could just as well have retired earlier, she prowled around, doing nothing particular, after the other house inhabitants had retired. O, perhaps reading a bit or doing a bit of washing and mending of clothes, or playing solitaire, if she couldn't get a bridge group together. Anyway, 12, 12:30, and often 1 o'clock saw her still prowling about on any excuse that would keep her out of bed.

Looked Ten Years Younger.

What that month of regular and early to bed sleep orgy did for the woman was truly marvelous. I'm speaking from first hand observation. She came up and out of the experiment like a rose revived with fresh cold water. Her eyes and her face were younger by ten years, and that is no exaggeration.

Now, there are just countless numbers of women employed during the day who abuse the privileges of their free evening hours, doing the same sort of futile prowling about that my friend allowed to become a habit. Small washings, perhaps, have to be done, but ironings certainly can be dispensed with if one takes advantage of the sort of light silk or near silk underthings that do not have to be smoothed out with a flatiron. Reading, too, has to be done to keep one abreast of the times and to store up resources for later years. And amusement has to be indulged in also, to keep Jane from becoming a dull girl and worker. But it is most senseless, in an era in which a clever simulation of youth, if not the real thing, has to be presented in business circles, to dissipate it in a succession of late hours night after night.

That word "fading" is a good one to hold before one's consciousness after one has slipped over the 30 border line. And if there is one thing on earth that will sustain the pristine freshness of eye and cheek, it is sleep. If it were legitimate to manufacture a sleeping potion, and instructions were labeled on it, "To be taken before early retiring," a fortune could be cleaned up in six months.

Nothing rests the eye like the good old refresher. And the eye is the barometer of age in the sense in which we speak of it now. But you know yourself the ravaging effect of a couple of sleepless nights or three or four nights in succession of staying up late.

Catch Up Next Night.

Of course, you'll stay out late some evenings in the week. You can't live and entertain or be entertained and not. We all do it, and if we're not as young as we used to be we'll feel like the dickens and look worse if several nights' sleep robbery is perpetrated, one after the other. If we work we can't catch up the next day. But we do have the next evening to straighten out our sleep program.

If the beauty fading occurs through inability to sleep, one must try to determine the why of her insomnia. There is a reason for every case of sleeplessness. Because the condition has the most pernicious effect on the nervous system, it should be considered a cause for medical supervision. Three or four nights without a wink of sleep, or intermittent snatches of it, will undermine the nerves of a normal person. It is well known, however, that people who stoutly proclaim they "do not sleep at all" do sleep some, in spite of their convictions. They get some sleep, but not enough, the latter being the reason for their jumpy nerves and the faded look.

Causes for sleeplessness are legion. Some of them are so definitely associated with system disturbances that call for medical treatment that only a physician is qualified to diagnose and prescribe for. Anemia, dyspepsia, gastritis, heart disease, arterial hardening, toxemia, pain, and so on are among the strictly medical versions. Constipation and eye strain, often accounting for sleeplessness, are conditions that call for other treatment, to which the individual client may bring enough coöperation to effect a cure of her own. And the psychic reasons most certainly call for self cure—worry, emotional stress, melancholia, and the habit of taking one's work troubles to bed with her.

Exercise Will Help.

The ventilation of the sleeping room is important, and adequate exercise also. Hearty eating in the evening is bad for one disposed to insomnia. Finally, anxiety in regard to sleeping is a common reason for not getting a full quota. Because you slept badly last night or the night before you may go to bed worried that you are not going to get enough tonight. This anxiety simply makes you more muscularly tense, which further prevents sleep. One does not need to make a tragedy out of sleeplessness. If one is lying perfectly relaxed she will get rest, anyway. The chances are that she will go to sleep, too, as a result of the completely relaxed state of nerves and mind.

Don't talk about your inability to sleep. That encourages the habit. One doesn't get much sympathy unless one's audience is an insomniac, and then she will agree that your case can't possibly be as bad as hers, so there's no use in talking, anyway.

PET RECIPES

Do you have a favorite recipe that you'd like to pass on for others to enjoy? Address it to "Pet Recipes," Chicago Tribune, and it will be published.

For Sunday Night Supper.

1 cup grated cheese
½ cup fine stale bread crumbs
½ tablespoon butter
2 cups milk
1 egg well beaten.

Melt butter, add milk and crumbs. When hot, add cheese. When cheese is melted, add seasonings and stir in egg. Season with a little salt, mustard, and red pepper. Serve on toast. I. T.

Cherry Pudding.

1 cup sugar.
Butter size of an egg.
1 cup milk.
2 rounded teaspoons of baking powder.
Flour to make a stiff batter.

Mix and then put the batter in a greased baking pan.

1 pint of cherries.
1¼ cups sugar.
2 cups boiling water.

Pour over the batter and bake 45 minutes. The batter will be on top when the pudding is done. This is good hot or cold. L. M. B.

Date Puff.

6 eggs, beaten separately.
1 cup powdered sugar, added to beaten yolks.
½ cup English walnut meats cut up.
½ package of dates cut up.
4 heaping tablespoons bread crumbs to which 1 teaspoon baking powder is added.

Mix the above ingredients, keeping out the stiffly beaten egg whites which are added last. Bake in a slow oven ½ hour or until a nice brown. Serve with whipped cream. This is a most highly praised dessert with all who taste it. M. L. M.

Quick Peach Ice Cream.

2 cups whole milk
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
Pinch salt
Teaspoon flavoring
1 cup sweet cream
6 fresh ripe peaches
1 cup powdered sugar

Scald milk slightly. Beat eggs in top of double boiler; ad sugar and salt and beat till well blended; add scalded milk slowly, stirring vigorously till mixture begins to thicken and coating forms on spoon. Remove, cool, add flavoring; chill thoroughly. Pour into half gallon freezer and add sufficient sweet cream to fill freezer. Pack with crushed ice and coarse salt (about ¾ ice to ¼ salt) and freeze. Have peaches peeled and sliced, cover with the sugar and chill. Serve the ice cream with the sliced peaches around the edges of each portion. Other fruits may be substituted in season—strawberries, pineapples, etc.—M. C.

Lemon Pudding.

1 cup sugar
2 teaspoons flour
2 egg yolks
1 lemon, juice and grated rind
1 teasp. melted butter
1 cup milk

Fold in the beaten egg whites after the other ingredients are mixed. Bake in a shallow pudding dish in a pan of hot water, about 30 minutes. Serve hot or cold.—E. R. E.

Pork Patties.

1½ pound ground pork shoulder.
½ cup uncooked rice.
½ cup top milk or canned milk.
¼ onion, chopped.
1 tablespoon green pepper, chopped.
1 tablespoon pimento, chopped.
1 teaspoon salt.
½ teaspoon ground sage.
¼ teaspoon pepper.
1 can tomato soup.

Mix all together except the soup. Form into balls and roll in flour, place in casserole and cover with tomato soup diluted with same amount of water. Bake slowly for two hours, covered.

If necessary add more water as uncooked rice absorbs liquid. Sometimes I place raised dumpling dough on top about fifteen minutes before serving. G. L. W.

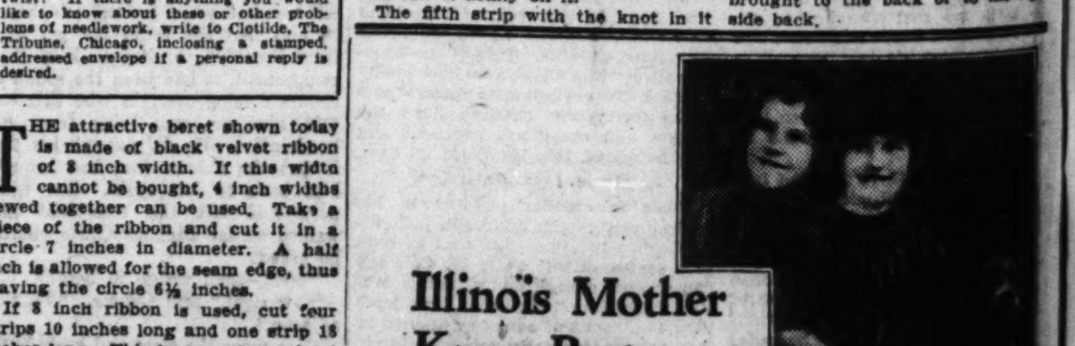
Needlework

By Clotilde



This Attractive Black Velvet Ribbon Beret Can Be Made by the Amateur Milliner.

What is your sewing problem? Do you have trouble in following a pattern? Do you find difficulty in making a skirt hang evenly or making a sleeve that doesn't twist? If there is anything you would like to know about these or other problems of needlework, write to Clotilde, The Tribune, Chicago, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope if a personal reply is desired.

THE attractive beret shown today is made of black velvet ribbon of 8 inch width. If this width cannot be bought, 4 inch widths sewed together can be used. Take a piece of the ribbon and cut it in a circle 7 inches in diameter. A half inch is allowed for the seam edge, thus leaving the circle 6½ inches.

If 8 inch ribbon is used, cut four strips 10 inches long and one strip 18 inches long. This last one has a knot tied in it 11 inches from the top. The end of this strip is cut on a slant and is used for a trimming to finish off on the right side of the beret.

Take cord about one-half the size of the little finger. Fit a piece of this cord around the top of the circle on the 6½ inch measurements. Join it. The five strips of velvet ribbon are shirred onto this circle of cord. Each strip of ribbon is left separate and is not sewed together.

Belting ribbon 1 or 1½ inches wide is used for the head size band. This is fitted to the wearer's head and then joined, allowing one inch where it is lapped. Take another piece of the same cord and fit it over this head size band, joining as before.

Now, take the bottom of the four ribbon strips and shir them on this cord. Then put this finished cord edge to the end of the ribbon band and sew it firmly on it.

The fifth strip with the knot in it is not to be shirred on this bottom cord, but it is tacked on the head size band where the knot is. This knot and end should be arranged to fit over and behind the right ear.

No lining is used in this beret. Do not think that the open spaces will show the hair, as the shirrings are so full that they bring the edges of the ribbon close together, even lapping them in places. The beret is adjusted after it is on the head, either brought to the back or to the right side back.

Dandruff Destroys Hair —Get Rid of It

On every scalp there is constantly forming a scurf; this is commonly called dandruff. This fills up the pores of the scalp so the hair cannot breathe—result: the hair loses its life, becomes dead and falls out. Get rid of the dandruff and you will soon overcome this. Soaps and shampoos only partially help—the safe, surest and quickest way to get rid of dandruff is to wash the head every day for a few days with liquid Calonite. This will dissolve away every particle of dandruff and leave the pores of the scalp free and your hair will soon stop falling, regain its life and lustre. Then once a week will keep it in wonderful condition. Get some liquid Calonite from your druggist and try it today.

Illinois Mother Knew Best . . .

WISE mothers find the things that keep children contented, happy, well. Most of them have learned they can depend on one thing to restore a youngster's good nature when he's cross, fretful, upset.

The best proof that this method really works comes from the fact that mothers who try it once continue to use it for years, when its help is needed.

The experience of Mrs. P. H. Reser, 5642 Division St., Chicago, is typical. She says: "I have used California Fig Syrup with Betty Lou and Mardeau for more than four years. Whenever they're the least bit constipated or restless I give them a little. It has them comfortable, happy in a jiffy. Their splendid condition proves I knew best when I decided to use this wonderful preparation with them."

For three generations, California Fig Syrup has been the choice of knowing mothers. Physicians endorse the use of this pure vegetable product whenever a child's bowels need help. It contains no harmful drugs; cannot form any habit. Weak stomach and bowels are strengthened by it; appetite is increased; the digestion and assimilation are assisted. So weak, undernourished children usually gain in strength, weight and energy; become happy, buoyant, rosy by its use.

Seven million bottles used a year speak volumes for its effectiveness and merit.

Fiume, Once Busy Port, Now Only Ghost City

Pre-War Glory Vanishes Under Changing Rule.

(This is the third of a series of ar- icles on Italy's conquered provinces and the Adriatic problem by a Tribune correspondent who has just completed a [illegible] mile trip along the Dalmatian and through Italian Tyrol.)

By David Darrah.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

(Pictures in Rotogravure Section.)

FIUME.—[Special Correspondence.] —The situation of Fiume since the armistice has been checkered. First it and the other territory along the Dalmatian coast was occupied by Italian troops. Then it was seized by D'Annunzio, who was ousted by the guns of his own government. Finally the Jugo-Slavs and Italians, by the treaty of Rapallo, made it a free city, belonging to neither. This practically choked the city and four years later, in 1924, the Slavs agreed that Fiume should be annexed to Italy and the Italians in return should relinquish their claims to Dalmatia, with the exception of Zara.

During all this time the city's economic life gradually died out. The business went to Sussak, just across the river, which was Jugo-Slav. The lumber business of Jugo-Slavia naturally went to its own port. The other business of the Danube hinterland, which existed before the war, when the whole territory was at least an economic unity under the Austrian empire, slowly dwindled. These new countries formed after the peace were not prosperous, and besides there were the difficulties of barriers and frontiers to cross. Much of the Hungarian trade goes down the Danube, and Czecho-Slovak and Austrian trade is directed toward Hamburg.

Cut in Two.

Beginning under D'Annunzio's occupation, this abnormal condition in Fiume has now lasted ten years, despite various measures to improve it. Under Hungary the town had been wealthy. It was the second largest seaport on the Adriatic. Hungary had treated the port so as not to be obliged to send goods to Triest, which was Austrian, but at that time Sussak, though Croat, was under Hungarian rule, and the two sides of the port had unity of administration. Now the port is not only politically cut in two, but a high wall runs across one of the moles separating Italy from Jugo-Slavia. The railway system is truncated, and two economic and political entities, which are antagonistic, exist on each side of the tiny Fiume river.

The Italians claim the Jugo-Slavs put political and bureaucratic difficulties in the way of their penetration into the hinterland. They proposed, as the solution of their difficulties, that a joint Italian-Jugo-Slav harbor board be set up to handle traffic. Thus some ships could be allocated to the Fiume side, where there are big warehouses for transit goods requiring cellar, while there are none on the Jugo-Slav side. Such a project would, however, obviously have been more advantageous to the Italians than to the Slavs, and they rejected it. The Slavs say they are not interested in the Fiume side and that nothing can be done to improve it until a better and more friendly feeling exists between Rome and Belgrade and frontier friction ceases.

Meanwhile, with industry gone and capital lacking, trade figures tell a gloomy story. In 1913 Fiume and Sussak had a trade of 4,000,000 tons, which has now dwindled to 600,000.

The Italians tried organizing special fairs in Fiume, with little success. There always were the frontier obstacles and the narrow little corridor connecting Fiume with the rest of Italy. Then, three years ago, Mussolini signed a special port agreement with Hungary. Hungarian exports and imports were granted reduced tariffs; warehouse rents were cut, and in some cases made free. Hungarian customs officers were to be established in Fiume and Hungarian ships were to be permitted to fly their own flag in the port. It was expected that this would restore some of the transit trade. It did not work, however, because Hungary has little to export, and because she uses the Danube or Hamburg or the Jugo-Slav ports, which are reached without crossing a [illegible] barrier.

The last measure, suggested by Deputy Baccich and Prefect Vivorio of Fiume, and put into effect by Mussolini last March on the anniversary of the annexation of Fiume, was the creation of a free zone from Fiume down to Laurana, on the Carnaro Riviera of Istria.

This measure, it was expected, would have repercussions in Jugo-Slavia. The Slavs, it was expected, would come across the bridge to buy. So far this has not proved the case, for the only things the Slavs can buy cheaper in Fiume than at home are sugar and coffee. The free zone was expected to get some of the Slav [illegible] and tourist business for Abbazia and Laurana.

Living Is High.

Furthermore, the measure was expected to lower living costs and thus lower production costs by making labor cheaper and thus attracting industry to Fiume, promote transit trade with Danube countries, give more work to warehouses and docks, and create better markets for merchant products.

So far none of these effects are barely observable. Living seems as high in Fiume with the exception of a few things as elsewhere, and the [illegible] business alone has been encouraged. What appears to be needed is not cheaper products but means whereby the Fiumans can earn money to buy even cheap products. The free zone may or may not help solve

Germany Last Stop on Tour of Mantle Party

Drama Fans See "Phaea" in Berlin.

[This the concluding letter in Mr. Mantle's touring series takes the Drama league pilgrims through Berlin and a Max Reinhardt drama to Rotterdam and the boat home. The adventure is finished.]

By Burns Mantle.

BERLIN, Germany.—[Special Correspondence.]—Our touring adventure has drawn swiftly to its close. Tomorrow we take train for the ten hour run to Rotterdam, ship the remnants of the group for home, and it is over. It seems an incredibly short eight weeks since we sailed from New York. Once it seemed to stretch endlessly before us. We have been in eight countries and sixteen hotels. We have eaten millions of table d'hote dinners and if we never see another cathedral so long as we live we still will be four up on the world.

We came down from Dresden on a train crowded again to the aisles . . . to get from where you were to the restaurant car was an adventure in itself . . . second and third class both spread out with bags and dogs and explosive conversationalists barring the way. . . . Once in the restaurant we lingered over our coffee till they put us out.

Germany Prosperous.

Again the impression is strengthened that Germany is recovering more swiftly and with more solid results from the blight of war than any of her hard hit enemies . . . she may be poverty stricken and sullen, but she is taking the blow with no outward show of pain or distress . . . Berlin's streets are lively with well fed and substantial people . . . there are no whining beggars about, no white faced, undernourished children underfoot . . . to the visitor, at least, it is all orderly, clean, substantial . . . quietly, economically, soundly progressive.

Whatever I might wish to think about it, what I do think is that within another decade Germany will again be the dominant country of Europe . . . dominant and again contemptuous . . . Austria will probably be fighting for her existence . . . Hungary and Czecho-Slovakia will be at each other's throats; France and Italy either at grips or threatening . . . but Germany will be plodding on stolidly and gathering in the gains. . . .

She may rattle and slip her war chains again and produce new legions, if she sees a good chance to take advantage of her neighbor's weakness and loses her respect for an Anglo-Saxon alliance . . . but there still seems a reluctant but none the less positive hatred of war and the results of war in the German lay mind.

Human Values in "Phaea."

We saw the reigning dramatic success of Berlin at the Deutsches theater . . . Fritz von Unruh's "Phaea" has been running since May, after having been staged by Max Reinhardt with all the old tricks of his revolving stage and one or two they tell me are new. It is peculiarly a German drama, but with such definite human values I am sure it will stand translation.

The story as I got it is one of those subtle and slightly obscure symbolical recitals in which the author of a talking picture, following the progress of his drama through a great studio, sees his story of a political murder [a reflection of the mysteriously organized taking off of those army officers who turned traitor to their fellows in the German revolution] spoiled and made mock of by the artificialities of the picture makers . . . the president of the studio, symbolically representing a sort of god, goes about demanding life and actually in the scenes tricks his players into revealing intimacies, and records their reactions with microphone and camera when they are least expecting it.

The heroine is a barmaid who drifts in from the streets and who, it turns out, is the only one in all the lot of them who is real, and the only one the president, listening in, can understand and work with to the advantage of the story he is determined shall re-

FRANK CRAVEN DEPICTS MR. AMERICA

By John Chapman.

NEW YORK. — [Special Correspondence.] — Frank Craven, who might be able to show Sinclair Lewis a pointer on being the biographer of Mr. America, has written himself a nicely rounded and knowing comedy in "That's Gratitude!" The new theatrical season, up to now favored with a drama or two, but poor in music shows and laugh plays, has something which will give it many a chuckle and a good hard laugh or two.

Craven, who always portrays the inoffensive, unimportant and thoroughly commonplace citizen, has not written the play for himself alone. He is wise showman enough to give good parts for the subordinate members of his troupe. Thus we have the veteran George Barbier in a typical Barbier rôle, which runs all the way from genial souse to stern parent, and numerous others who have their moment of importance, even if their rôles call for but a minute or two on the stage.

Tank Town Show Producer.

This time Craven is a tank town road show producer, given to staging an offering under the title of "Rio Nita" just to be as close as possible to the name of a real hit. Bookings find him in a small time hotel, where the moans and groans of the guest next door keep him awake. The guest next door, it appears, has partaken of food from the hotel dining room and has got himself an acute stomach ailment.

The road showman goes to the rescue with the last of his liquor. A doctor is called in and writes a prescription for more liquor. So in the middle of the night, the convalescent guest and his benefactor split the medicine. It is a delicious, calm scene in which the pair become, as it were, lifelong friends. The convalescent—Barbier—insists that his male Florence Nightingale repair to Hutchinson, Kas., there to meet the family.

And how he meets them! Barbier complains of having heard of flagpole sitters and tree sitters, but his visitor is the first house sitter within his knowledge. The stranger stays for weeks, making free use of the host's cigars, neckties, and food and depleting the gentleman's supply of good will. "Three weeks," Barbier complains to his wife, "is long enough for any man to stay in a home."

"Unless," replies the clear visioned woman, "it is a soldiers' home."

A $7,000 Deal.

Naturally, family secrets are laid bare to the visitor. He finds a young man engaged to marry an elder, unlovely daughter, but in love with a younger, attractive one. The elder daughter admittedly can sing — she does, right on the stage—and would much prefer a career to her young fiancé. So Craven makes a deal with the youth to take the girl off his hands for $7,000, which is enough to get Craven out of Hutchinson and give him the funds to produce a hand me down road show.

From this point Craven is unexpectedly canny. Almost any theater, it would appear, could finish the plot from there. This ugly duckling of a daughter does become a success. She does become a beauty with the addition of a blonde wig and the removal from her cheek of a mole. But she does not marry her benefactor.

Her return to Hutchinson as the prima donna of the new show is triumphant. One sees the home a flutter before the performance with a handsome leading man strutting about singing "Mi-Mi-Mi, Aye-Ee-Eye-Owe-You" and condescending to speak a monosyllable to papa. After the performance Craven speaks his piece. He would like, he tells papa to marry his star. The comedy is going according to Hoyle until Craven receives a note informing him that the transformed ugly duckling has left the show flat and eloped with the beautiful, but vacuous leading man. That's gratitude!

The author's dialogue is in his best vain, commonplace, sharply understanding and shrewdly funny. It may not rise to the peak of laughter built by "The First Year," but it bulks respectably. And the cast is well chosen. Even the maid, with no more than a hundred seconds on the stage and about four lines to speak, impresses herself as delightfully funny.

Unpleasant People.

What may result in an interesting experiment in the theater opened three nights before John Golden's Craven piece. It probably was never designed as an experiment, at that. The title is "The Up and Up," and the authors are the Misses Eva Kay Flint and Martha Madison, who, after years of trying to get a play over, succeeded last year with "Subway Express."

In their new piece the Misses Flint and Madison have gathered together a thoroughly unpleasant lot of characters. It is a comedy drama of life among New York's bookmakers, speakeasy proprietors, and low ladies. And of all the large lot of them only one kindles any kind of sympathy. There have been many plays about bad people—Edward G. Robinson was as tough as they come in "The Racket," for example—but even the worst of them have gained either the admiration or the friendship of the audience.

In "The Up and Up" the heroine is the mistress of a cheap speakeasy proprietor. True, she wants to marry him as soon as his tubercular wife dies and "be legitimate." But with a turn in fortunes he becomes shallow and coarse, and even when she returns to her friend in his moment of need one doesn't like her too well. Nor can one say much for him. From start to finish he is a lying, weak, cheap little showoff.

Excellent Portrayal.

The exception is Pat O'Brien's portrayal of the third point of the triangle—the silent, dominating, cold hearted proprietor of a bookmaking establishment. In an overwritten and loosely directed play, it is an excellent performance. The excitement lies in whether or not the customers will like such unpleasant people.

Most interesting is the second act of "The Up and Up," wherein is disclosed the working of a phone room. A phone room, one finds, is an apartment bearing outward signs of respectability, in which bookmakers make and take odds on the races. The armchairs, the sofa, the tables, and the desks are equipped with easily hidden telephone instruments, and the machinery is there for exciting drama.

Another War Play.

Between "That's Gratitude" and "The Up and Up" came another war play, graced with a good performance by Otto Kruger and punctuated by a fairly horrible scene in a dressing station at the front, to which the

Here's Splendid Picture of Life in the Jungle

Dark Continent Holds Lots of Thrills.

"AFRICA SPEAKS."

[One star means fairly good; two stars, good; three stars, excellent; four stars, extraordinary; no stars—just another movie.]

Produced by Colorado-African Expedition, Inc. Distributed by Columbia. Filmed by Paul Hoefler. Presented at the Woods theater.

By Roberta Nangle.

BEHOLD another star-winning jungle picture! [Yes, I remember "Ingagi," but this one looks authentic to my untutored eye.] For the skeptical, let me say that the explorers seem like men who wouldn't try to fool the public, and that the film bears the endorsement of the Smithsonian institute. And now let me rave!

After you've bought a ticket and found a seat at the Woods, the picture takes you over to Africa, up the Niger river, through the Belgian Congo, and into Tanganyika. The natives and the animals you meet along the way are so superbly filmed that you won't have to see any more similar pictures until somebody finds some new animals and some new tribes.

For instance, you encounter a tribe of pygmies, the tallest of whom reaches just to your elbow. When you get acquainted with the little people, you feel that savages, after all, have a pretty nice time of it, far away from the complexities of civilized life. For years they have practiced companionate marriage [so the explorers say], amicably trading husbands and wives without benefit of alimony. The only thing they lack in their jungle life is salt, and white men who come their way can win their friendship with a couple of sacks of it.

Thrilling Shots of Lions.

The most thrilling part of the picture is wisely reserved for the last. The climax is a series of the most magnificent lion shots I have ever seen. The explorers move to a village where the natives' homes are protected by fences of thorny branches from the lions' nocturnal visits. They appoint a native to take the camera men out to a plain where Mr. and Mrs. Lion loiter during the day.

While one man grinds the camera another stands by with his gun. There's a second camera some place nearby; I can't figure out just where. As they are grinding off the film a lion makes for their native guide and kills him. Some suspicious people may say that this shot was faked, but I don't think so. Anyhow, it's gruesomely thrilling. The natives set out to avenge his death in the only way they know by killing a lion. They don weird head dresses and helmets and spears to accomplish the tough business and later bury their kill with great ceremony.

Yes, I think this is a three-star film for persons who want to step off Randolph street to see a slice of life as it's lived on the Dark continent. You may wonder how the camera men manage to stay safe and snug in the midst of ferociousness, but that's neither here nor there.

Trade Cattle for Wives.

Another tribe that dwells on the edge of the Congo devotes its time to raising cattle, though the clansmen will eat no meat. These people are polygamous, and do a good business trading cattle for wives.

As for the animals found along the way, there are zebras, gazelles, gnus [ever seen one?] antelope, deer, wart hogs [they're horrible], cheetahs, and a lot more that I can't remember. A shallow lake at the bottom of a deep canyon is the home of hundreds of thousands of flamingoes. The birds fly about, but never leave the canyon.

One of the most amazing things in the picture is the onslaught of millions of locusts. The nasty little insects that look like harmless grasshoppers descend on a village one night and ravage all the crops and trees, and there are elephants, of course, dozens of them, and a rhinoceros or two.

Bits aBOUT 'Em.

ACCORDING TO THE HOLLYwood correspondent of the New York Daily News, there were 130 song writers there a few months ago and only

Prospectus of Shows Headed Toward Chicago

Thirty Plays Promised by Erlanger Group.

By Charles Collins.

OPTIMISM prevails in the camp of Erlanger, which arranges the playbills for three Chicago theaters that are prolonging their summer vacancy—the Blackstone, the Illinois and the Erlanger. Harry J. Powers, dean of managers and proconsul of the Erlanger empire, goes stepping down Michigan avenue in high spirits, defying the blue devils of psycho-economic depression. The Erlanger Amusement Enterprises, headed by Judge Mitchell Erlanger, brother of the late Abraham L., are charging their batteries, he reports, and when the season gets well started there will be more than enough shows to go around the circuit.

The Blackstone, of course, is well taken care of by the Theater Guild's schedule. The Illinois will start off Oct. 27 with "Sweet Adeline," and Fred Stone's "Ripples" will follow. The Erlanger will step into line Oct. 13 with one of the best box office bets of the year—"It's a Wise Child," trade-marked by Belasco.

And afterward? Well, the Erlanger Amusement Enterprises are willing to show their hand, and it is impressive. From Mr. Powers' headquarters comes an announcement of shows to be seen in Chicago which is spangled with attractive titles. There is, of course, in any theatrical season, many a slip between the press sheet and the program; and the vicissitudes of theatrical affairs may cancel some of the plays on this list before they get headed toward Chicago. But as a prospectus, issued in good faith and warm hope of fulfillment, it is an encouraging document for first nighters.

Read 'Em and Cheer.

Between now and next June, therefore, we will probably see many of these productions:

Maude Adams, returned to the stage after years of retirement, in a play specially written for her by John Colton, author of "Rain" and "The Shanghai Gesture."

George M. Cohan [himself] in a revival of the melodramatic travesty, "The Tavern."

Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske in selections from a repertory of seven plays, including "Becky Sharp."

"Luana," an operetta based on the once popular drama of Hawaiian customs and folk-lore called "The Bird of Paradise," staged by Arthur Hammerstein.

Frederick Lonsdale's latest comedy, "Canaries Sometimes Sing," presented by Charles Dillingham.

"That's Gratitude," by and with Frank Craven, staged by John Golden.

"The Green Pastures," the play dealing with the religious folk-lore of the American Negro, by Marc Connelly; the most notable dramatic success of the past year in New York

Earl Carroll's "Vanities," a revue now prospering on Broadway.

"Mr. Cinders," a new musical show to be staged by Charles Dillingham.

"The Merchant of Paris," to be staged by George C. Tyler with E. C. Robinson featured.

"Subway Express," a melodrama that excited New Yorkers for many months.

"Personalities," a musical pastime projected by Earl Carroll.

"Smiles," to be staged by Mr. Ziegfeld with Marilyn Miller and the Astaires as its stars.

"Three's A Crowd," a new revue which contains the three stars of the first "Little Show"—Fred Allen, Clifton Webb, and Libby Holman.

"Fine and Dandy," a song and dance frolic with the quaint and versatile Joe Cook as its star.

"Brown Buddies," an all Negro amusement with Bill Robinson and Adelaide Hall as its leaders.

"London Calling," a play that John Golden intends to stage.

"A Well Known Woman," George M. Cohan's latest manifestation of his unique gift as a playwright.

Here Comes the Dean.

Otis Skinner, now dean of American actors, in a new vehicle.

Arch Selwyn's roundup of cinema stars who yearn for achievement in the legitimate drama, including Colleen Moore in "On the Loose," and Vilma Banky and Rod La Roque in "Cherries Are Ripe." The announcement does not mention Mary Pickford.

"Blind Mice," a play without a man in the cast, to be staged by Crosby Gaige with Claiborne Foster as its central personality.

"The Love Boat," a musical comedy to be staged by George Lederer, the veteran who invented this form of entertainment.

"Paris Divorce," a play with Basil Rathbone and an actress of cinema reputation as its co-stars.

"The Vanderbilt Revue," to be staged by Lew Fields, who used to team with Joe Weber in the good old days.

"Sweet Stranger," a new comedy which will have Linda Watkins and Ralph Morgan as leaders of the cast.

"The Garrick Gaieties," a revue staged and sponsored by the Theater Guild.

Even when read with the usual "when, as and if" reservations, this is an extremely promising schedule. The Erlanger allies, rallying together after the death of their leader, seem to have adopted the motto that every Old Guard should follow: "We never surrender."

In Memoriam.

This is an unposted letter to an unforgettable friend:

Dear Milton Sills: I have been letting the milestones of Time slip past me at an accelerating pace, absorbed in the tasks and diversions of the present, as you have been in yours, but never forgetting our years of student life and comradeship when we were very young. Always in the back of my mind there has been an idea that we would get together again, some place near the end of the road, and talk it all over—the old days at Hyde Park High and the university, when a French prof called us "les frères juments," and the more than two decades that followed, in which we have gone our separate ways. It would be a long litany of "Do you remember?"

We would talk of Mrs. Brainard's post-graduate English class, in which we fledged our first sonnets and got gaudy ideas about becoming important subjects in future histories of literature.

Of sessions after classes, in your room in the old home on Berkeley avenue near 44th street, debating hotly all the contemporary isms of the arts of fiction, drama, music, and painting; changing the subject, when our minds became exhausted, to the always refreshing problem of girls.

Of the way you went Deke and I Chi Psi, and Kennicott [our third musketeer] Delta Tau Delta, causing our lodge brothers to frown upon us, now and then, for picking pals outside of the fraternity.

Of the afternoon [you will have forgotten this] when I challenged you to a 220 yard dash, serene in my theory that a lean lightweight could always run faster than a 6 foot heavyweight. I lost, of course; that's why I remember.

Of your discovery of Donald Robertson, and ensuing loss of interest in graduate work in philosophy; of your first steps in the art of acting, which seemed to be learning how to fall down, when stricken by a villain's dagger or bullet, without breaking an arm; of Herman Lieb and Alice Johns and all the other faithful Robertsonians who strove to uplift the drama at Ravinia park, in Fullerton hall, and other places where high hopes and low rents went hand in hand.

Of opening nights when I was pinch hitting for Jimmy Bennett on the Record-Herald, and would take you along—of the night, especially, when we went backstage between acts at "The Man on the Box" to see Jack Westley, and met Carlotta Nielson; and how, a year or two later, you became her leading man in a New York production — Giacosa's "Falling Leaves" it was—adaptation by yourself.

Of how you strayed away from the amateurism of Robertson's flock and turned pro—leading man in "Dora Thorne," a low brow play on one night stands; and how the high brows thought you had turned against the Cause and were lost forever.

Of the play we tried to write together, which proved to be a preposterous mixture of Ibsen, Tolstoy, Henry James, and Pinero, and was abandoned without regret.

These and many other little incidents of the fantasy of youth we would remember in that reunion to which I have always looked forward. We would have recalled them with the laughter that belongs to the end of the game. . . . I had never dreamed that they were to be, for me, a reverie of mourning over a distant grave. . . . Hollywood, lamenting the loss of its First Scholar, will heap that grave with flowers. I will sit alone and in your memory reread Shelley's "Adonais."

Al Jolson in "Flesh."

Al Jolson will return to the New York stage after an absence of five years on Sept. 26, when he will make personal appearances at the Capitol theater for a week. Ruby Keeler, in private life Mrs. Jolson, will also return to the stage to appear in the Lew Fields-Lyle D. Andrews production, "The Vanderbilt Revue," which went into rehearsal last week.

March-King Coming.

Lieutenant Commander John Philip Sousa will bring his band to the Civic Opera house Sunday, Oct. 12, for two performances. This is the thirty-eighth tour of Mr. Sousa at the head of his own organization, some of the members of which are sons of the men who comprised the personnel of the band on its initial tour.

BALLET DANCER

ROSEMARY DEERING.

"ARTISTS AND MODELS," the revue now at the Grand Opera House, contains some pretty dancing numbers which are led by Miss Deering, a blithe and sprightly practitioner of the art of the ballet. When it comes to the "ronde du jambe," and also the "fouette," this little lady is, in a manner of speaking, "there." Note that the picture gives her a marked resemblance to Helen Hayes.

'Firebrand' Goes Into Rehearsal; Theater Gossip

THE repertory company of the Goodman theater will begin rehearsals of "The Firebrand" tomorrow. . . . Hubert Osborne, director of the Goodman, has made tentative arrangements with Charles Letherbee of the University Theater Guild, West Falmouth, Mass., to come to the Goodman later in the season as an assistant stage director and member of the acting company. . . . Miss Bernard Ostertag and Art Smith of last year's company, are now members of the cast of "Broken Dishes," in New York.

Madge Kennedy, last seen in Chicago in Philip Barry's "Paris Bound," is to tour the country in A. A. Milne's "Michael and Mary," which had an all-season run in New York. The play may be given as an item in the Dramatic league subscription in some of the cities. The league is in possession of another play by Milne, "Success," which is a possibility for its program at the Princess.

A dramatization of Somerset Maugham's novel, "The Painted Veil," published in 1925, is planned for production in December by Messmore Kendall and Robert Milton, who were associated several seasons ago in the presentation of several plays. The dramatization, which is the work of Bartlett Cormack, author of "The Racket," will be directed by Mr. Milton.

Following "The Painted Veil," Mr. Milton will produce under his own auspices a play called "See-Saw," written by himself and Richard Sharpe. The plot of "See-Saw" deals with the futility of bringing up children by conventional methods.

Norman S. Carroll, brother of Earl Carroll, will go to Europe early in October for the purpose of negotiating with Beatrice Lillie and Maurice Chevalier. He hopes to engage them for the next Carroll revue, "Personalities," which is expected to go in rehearsal about Nov. 1.

Judas as Hero.

"The Passion of Judas," a play by Ivan Sokoloff, is scheduled for presentation at the Cherry Lane theater, New York, in October, by a company called Dramawrights, which Mr. Sokoloff is directing.

The play is described "a portrayal of the tribulations of Christ's favorite disciple, and a revelation of the emotional crisis of the man who, seeking assuagement of a mortified conscience, hungers for the spiritual ultimate."

Mr. Sokoloff, a little theater worker, plans to make five other productions at the Cherry Lane after "The Passion of Judas."

News of Dennis King.

Dennis King, who returned to this country recently after a London engagement in "The Three Musketeers," hopes to return to England next year as an actor-manager. According to an interview in the London Daily Telegraph, Mr. King remarked before sailing:

"I shall put on romantic straight plays in the spirit of the days of Tree and Waller, and I have already made preliminary arrangements for leasing a London theater." The star withdrew from the musical play at the Drury Lane, it was announced, to return to America because of motion picture and radio contracts.

Vox Playgoer

To the Dramatic Editor:

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—As one privileged to sit five rows from the front one day the past summer at the Passion Play of Oberammergau, as well as being a guest for two days in the home of Alois Lang, the Christus, I would register a protest at the criticisms of Burns Mantle in last Sunday's TRIBUNE. There may be such a thing as a columnist becoming too "fed up" on spirited and thrilling happenings to enjoy spiritually or even artistically such a fine thing for this dull old world as they are giving there in that Bavarian village this year of so many European centennials, nineteen-thirty. Besides, Mr. Mantle, I hear, was in charge of a considerable group of persons of differing tastes and inclinations, and to bridge such a diversity must have all but swamped more than one such zealous pilot, as we had opportunity to see in Europe the past summer.

Specifically Mr. Mantle's observations as to Alois Lang are hurried and of long range at the best. He forgets that Christ was "a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief," and I have never seen a portraiture of Him laughing or even smiling, unless it were when He invitel "little children to come" unto Him, assuring the onlookers that "of such are the kingdom of heaven."

We who saw so much of Alois Lang, the humble woodcarver, as he walked with his children among his bees and his flowers, were struck with the forceful dignity, mingled with shyness as though not of this world. One could scarcely escape the penetrating gaze of his eyes, talking with you and looking into the depths of your very own personality he seemed almost to inquire, "What manner of man art thou?"

He rose to the heights when he denounced the money changers; he bore the buffetings of the angry mob in their torments as a martyr who would find his reward for such sacrifice in another world; the parting from his mother, "Mutter, mutter, liebes mutter," rang with an appeal that is unforgettable, the pathos and tragedy of which must have reached the hardest of hearts. His prayer in Gethsemane would induce reverence where hitherto among the listeners came some who might mock the foundations of ancient faith.

Had Mr. Mantle risen early enough to stand with the crowded worshipers in the little church as they reverently prayed or sung their devotions at the six o'clock morning mass, he could have the better understood the temper of these Christian folk. The great story, born in the throes of deliverance from pestilence three hundred years ago, has lost little, if any, of the earnestness that persuaded honest souls to institute this great memorial.

CHARLES A. KENT,
Principal Hamilton, School.

Wheaton, Ill., Sept. 16.—Why is the legitimate stage deteriorating? Why is capable, clever talent wasted on degraded themes? Who is to blame for the situation? Are we to infer that the mentality of our stage writers is depraved?

Is there no fineness or beauty in the nature of these people? Is there nothing that would send you away from the theater feeling better for having gone?

Surely literature and contemporary drama have sunk to levels that are insulting to present to intelligent people. I am not a reformer, understand; just one who thirsts for good drama, and is, at present, a disgusted theatergoer. Sweep out this era of rubbish! Let us hope that we will have a stage revolution.

Six Revues on Autumn Lists for Manhattan

Big Increase in Number of Musical Shows.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Last fall brought only three revues to Broadway. The current season, between now and December, promises to exceed that record by at least three. This does not include the current "Vanities" and "Garrick Gaieties," which were staged during the interseasonal period. Earl Carroll's "Personalities" will be one of the most splendiferous items on the list. He hopes to secure the services of six or eight outstanding celebrities for this show.

They say that Ina Claire is returning to the stage and that Jed Harris is to be her manager, when she finds a play. And yet these two parted in anger when "The Jailer's Daughter," afterward "Children of Darkness," was tried out for Miss Claire's uses. After that episode, Miss Claire went to Hollywood, met John Gilbert—and you know the rest.

The Shuberts are importing another English company to act "The Last Enemy," a play by Frank Harvey which was produced in London last December. Hartford and New Haven will see it, beginning Oct. 20, before it comes to Broadway to decide its ultimate destiny. The play is described as dealing with "the next world."

"On the Spot," the melodrama of Chicago's gangsters by Edgar Wallace, is another British piece which is occupying the Shubert attention. In this case, however, the cast will be partly American. Helen Menken will probably be the leading woman. Lee Ephraim, an American who has been in English theatrical management for a score of years, has just come over to direct this bit of blood-and-thunder. When he returns to London he will carry a commission to stage "Nina Rosa" there.

Arthur Hopkins, the intellectual manager, and Philip Barry, the literary playwright, have a scheme for persuading Katharine Cornell to abandon her plans to appear in Rudolph Besier's "The Barrett's of Wimpole Street." Mr. Barry has completed the first act of a new play that Mr. Hopkins likes, and they are agreed that Miss Cornell should be its heroine. The plot of the play is still one of those secrets.

Playgoers who can remember back to the first year of "The Merry Widow," frequently ask: "What's become of Lina Abarbanell?" Her name hasn't appeared in the casts for ever so long. It has been discovered, however, among the players who will have leading rôles in Preston Sturges' musical comedy, "The Well of Romance," coming to the Craig theater. Others mentioned are Norma Terris and Howard Marsh.

Peter Arno, the artist whose drawings for the New Yorker weekly are popular among the young and old moderns, will design the scenery and costumes for "The New Yorkers," which Ray Goetz intends to stage. The piece was first planned as a musical comedy, but the intention now is to make it an intimate revue. Hope Williams, the Durante trio, and Frances Williams have been mentioned for the cast.

"Passion Preferred" is the warm title of a play by Crane Wilbur, about which George Choos and Jack Donahue are thinking hard in their capacity as partner producers. It's to be all about Hollywood and the talkies, and its scene will represent the dressing room of a screen matinee idol. This is the second play on the subject to be announced. "Once in a Lifetime" is the other.

Here is the plot of George M. Cohan's new play, "A Well Known Woman," as reported from Providence, R. I., where the piece will have its first acting next Thursday: "A young woman who has been too liberal with her affections is greatly embarrassed when all of her ex-sweethearts appear at an inopportune moment."

New in Chicago

"THREE LITTLE GIRLS," an operetta which was one of the most notable musical productions of the last season in New York, will begin an engagement at the Great Northern theater tonight, under the auspices of the Messrs. Shubert. Its appearance marks the beginning of a new year of lyric entertainment at the Great Northern.

This show was imported from Vienna, and its score was composed by Walter Kollo, who has high ranking among European writers of light music for the theater. The libretto was adopted from the original German of Herman Feiner and Bruno Hardt Warden by Marie Armstrong Hecht and Gertrude Purcell. Harry B. Smith, veteran librettist, is author of the lyrics.

The story of "Three Little Girls" covers a period of forty years in the life of the Viennese aristocracy. The numerous scenes are presented on a revolving stage, as in "A Wonderful Night," seen here last spring.

The company contains voices of operatic quality. Natalie Hall and Bettina Hall, gifted sisters who were principals of the American Opera company, have the leading soprano rôles, and Charles Hedley, also from the American Opera company, is the tenor. Evangeline Raleigh plays the third of the "Three Little Girls," and other members of the cast are: Lorraine Weimer, Gregory Ratoff, Harry Puck, George Dobbs, John Goldsworthy, Roland Grimes and Stephen Mills.

Play Runs a Year.

Brock Pemberton's production of "Strictly Dishonorable" the comedy by Preston Sturges celebrated a year's run on Broadway last Thursday night. Since its opening on Sept. 18, 1929, the play has been seen 432 times at the Avon theater while two other companies have given 143 performances in Chicago and 117 performances on tour.

LOOKING MODEST

MAE WEST.

THIS picture comes under the reading of "rare items." What's wrong with it, do you ask? It represents the w. k. Miss West in a coy and bashmul mood. A violet 'neath a mossy stone seems to be her favorite flower—and yet she is the lady who hangs red lanterns on the drama in such plays as "Sex," current at the Garrick. Well! Well! Well! So this is Mae West!

BROADWAY OPENINGS

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Seven premières will keep Manhattan's first nighters busy this week. They include five new plays, one musical show, and one revival. There are some promising entries in the list, which follows:

"A Farewell to Arms"—Opens tomorrow night at the National theater. This is the dramatization of Ernest Hemingway's novel by Laurence Stallings. It is rated as A. H. Woods' best managerial bet for the season. Elissa Landi, an actress of Italian parentage imported from London, will have the heroine's rôle.

"Uncle Vanya"—Opens tomorrow night at the Booth theater. The second start of Jed Harris' production of Tchekhov's play, with Zita Johann new in a cast which will include Lillian Gish, Walter Connolly, Osgood Perkins, Eugene Powers, and others who appeared in last spring's presentation.

"Fine and Dandy"—Opens next Tuesday night at Erlanger's theater. The new Joe Cook musical show. It has a book by Donald Ogden Stewart and tunes and lyrics by Kay Swift and Paul James.

"Once in a Lifetime"—Opens next Wednesday night at the Music Box theater. The comedy which Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman have written about the talking films. In it Mr. Kaufman will make his first appearance as an actor with Equity standing.

"The Greeks Had a Word for It"—Opens next Thursday night at the Sam H. Harris theater. This is a new Zoe Akins play. William Harris Jr. is the producer, and in the cast will be Muriel Kirkland, Verree Teasdale Dorothy Hall, Ernest Glendinning, Frederick Worlock, and Hardie Albright.

"Frankie and Johnnie"—Opens next Thursday night at the Republic theater. This is John M. Kirkland's bawdy drama, purporting to give the origin of a famous folksong.

"Roadside" — Opens next Friday night at the Longacre theater. This play is the second production of Arthur Hopkins' season. It is a comedy of Oklahoma characters by Lynn Riggs.

Opera Company Plans Programs for New Season

Repertoire Includes Four Novelties, Revivals.

THIRTY-EIGHT works comprise the list from which the Chicago Civic Opera company will choose its standard répertoire for the 1930-'31 season. In addition, there are four novelties and four revivals, bringing the total to forty-six.

Novelties and revivals include "Camille," "Lorenzaccio," "The Bartered Bride," and "Die Meistersinger" under the first classification and "Manon," "Mignon" and "Mefistofele" under the second. A fourth revival announced at this time is Jules Massenet's "La Navarraise," last heard in Chicago during the 1915-'16 season, with Julia Claussen as the Anita, Charles Dalmores as Araquil, Vittorio Arimondi as Garrido, Constantin Nicolay as Remigo, Octave Dua as Ramon, and Desire Defrere as Bustamente, under the baton of Marcel Charlier.

"La Navarraise" is being revived for Mary Garden, who will appear in it and in the same composer's "Le Jongleur de Notre Dame" in one evening, again proving her extraordinary versatility. The impersonation of two characters of so widely opposing types is seldom attempted in a single evening by any singing actress.

"Resurrection" Scheduled.

The return of Alfano's "Resurrection" to the répertoire classifies as more good news. Mary Garden created the rôle of Katiusha in this work at the New Year's eve gala performance in 1925, and the opera was heard by Chicagoans throughout the two following seasons. It was included in the operas carried by the Chicago Civic Opera company on tour and heard from coast to coast.

In addition to "The Jewels of the Madonna," "Andrea Chenier," and "Tiefland," a number of other old favorites are found among the works listed. "Madame Butterfly" and "La Bohême," two of Puccini's loveliest compositions, silent throughout the first season in the new Civic Opera house, are among these. Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro," which was given a complete and lavish new scenic dress during the season of 1928-'29, is found upon the list. There are also Von Flotow's "Martha," last heard during 1927-'28; Donizetti's "L'Elisir d'Amore," not heard last season, and the operatic twins—"Cavalleria Rusticana," by Mascagni, and "I Pagliacci," by Leoncavallo. The latter has been on the repertoire every season since the inception of a permanent opera organization in Chicago until 1929-'30, while "Cavalleria Rusticana" has been omitted but three seasons up to that time.

Varied List of Composers.

A wide choice is provided for music lovers in each wing of the repertoire. In the French, German, and Italian works the gamut is run from comedy to tragedy. An equally wide and varied list of composers is represented in each section. In the French, we find a total of eight. They are Alfano, Charpentier, Debussy, Forrest, Gounod, Massenet, Moret, and Saint Saëns. There are five composers represented in the German wing, viz: Beethoven, d'Albert, Smetana, Strauss, and Wagner. The Italian works are products of the genius of thirteen men—Bellini, Donizetti, Von Flotow, Giordano, Halevy, Leoncavallo, Mascagni, Montemezzi, Mozart, Puccini, Rossini, Verdi, and Wolf-Ferrari.

Many persons unfamiliar with the German répertoire labor under the impression that the works are all "heavy." This is a great mistake. Let us take, for example, the nine German works included in the Chicago Civic Opera company's proposed repertoire. Of these, three are frankly comic—"The Bartered Bride," "Die Meistersinger," and "Der Rosenkavalier." Three others follow the Italian style, viz: "Fidelio," "Lohengrin," and "Tannhäuser." "Tiefland" classifies as a powerful drama. "Tristan and Isolde" is the greatest love story of all time unfolded to strains of immortal music. "Die Walkuere," rich in emotions, has been happily compared to the slow movement of a symphony.

Below is a complete list showing the proposed repertoire divided into various classifications, together with the composers of each individual work:

Claudia Muzio and Charles Hackett made up the advance guard of returning songbirds this season, both arriving during the last week. Miss Muzio has already departed on a concert tour which will occupy her time until shortly before the opening of the Chicago season. Mr. Hackett will be in Chicago about the 15th of October to begin rehearsals for the season.

A VERSATILE OPERA SINGER

MARY GARDEN.

IN one evening Mary Garden will sing both "La Navarraise" and "Le Jongleur de Notre Dame." She will also be heard this winter as Katiusha in Alfano's "Resurrection," an opera given here as the New Year's eve gala performance in 1925.

Sound Wagon Gets There First at Most Exciting World Events

By Tom Pettey.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—It is not the wealth nor the lavishness nor the amazing stupidity of the talking pictures that is getting the industry talked about these days. It is not the beauty of some of the films—and there is beauty—nor is it the stark realism of its epics that makes Mr. Talkie a conversational topic in the speakeasies as well as the drawing rooms. It is the manner in which the young fellow goes about doing his job. It is the master showmanship of a good showman that makes Mr. Talkie the interesting fellow he is, and it is in the making of new reels that his consummate nerve is best exhibited.

Police lines, prestige, political pull, and the most opulent check books all bow to the sound wagon. The portable cameras and the galloping microphone know no civic, military, nor social bounds. Funerals have been halted, great sport spectacles have been delayed, weddings have been done over and the clanging fire trucks have slowed down for the news reel men. Why, nobody seems to know. It is one of America's crowd mysteries—the right of the movie men over guests, mere spectators, and the press. There are those who attribute it to preparedness, greased palms, curiosity, the love of picture publicity, or sheer luck. Whatever may be the reason, the facts are that the sound wagon rates everything else at the scene of action on every big occasion.

Polo Match Held Up.

The recent international polo match (the first game) was held up ten minutes while 50,000 spectators squirmed in their seats in order that microphones and cameras might be rearranged to better record the event. Movie cameramen and sound wagons were the only persons outside the players and officials allowed along the side boards.

When Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, the French flyers, came floating down to Long Island from Paris the talking picture men were the nearest to them. A great gray sound truck was backed across the runway and it was toward the sound truck that the scarlet Question Mark taxied. Talking pictures of the historic event were recorded and showing on the screen in the city 25 miles away before midnight—the hour the press was granted its first interview.

Given Right of Way.

Out in the ocean from Newport, where the international yacht races were run, the talking picture boat had right of way even over Sir Thomas Lipton's private yacht. It was the same when Maj. Charles Kingsford-Smith dropped out of the skies, and the chatterbox cameras had the vantage spots at the New York Battery wall a month ago when the German aviators paid their call.

There is something about the snake-like rubber tubing that worms it way from the sound truck through the crowd to the celebrity that demands attention. No one ever resents the camera grinding away high on top of the nearby truck. Reporters may be clubbed, ordinary cameramen punched and their camera boxes wrecked and the crowd hustled back behind the lines, but the movie men keep right on working.

Explain it and you have hit the secret of Mr. Talkie's almost supernatural power over the public.

Celebrates Labor Day.

There is a story going the rounds on Broadway of a lovely lady from Hollywood who arrived in New York just before the Labor day lay-off. The lovely lady, the story goes, loved gin and horses. She arose late on Labor day morning and, still considerably befuddled from the party the night before, set out in a taxi for an uptown appointment.

Along about Columbus circle she halted the taxi, stepped daintily to the sidewalk and removed the harness from a surprised dobbin coupled to a garbage cart. A few blocks further up Broadway she spotted another horse and immediately set him at liberty. Between Times square and 96th street the lovely lady from Hollywood removed the chains or traces or whatever it is of bondage from no less than six hard working horses.

Along about this point a cop hitched his belt and inquired as to her purpose.

"Horses are laborers, aren't they?" queried the lovely lady.

"They are," agreed the bluecoat.

"Well, it's Labor day and I'm giving them a holiday," smiled the lovely emancipator as she rode away in her taxi.

Crashing the Gates.

And then there is the story of the sweet young thing who came hurrying on from the orange groves of California to lend her art to the legitimate stage of Broadway. She got just too lonesome, the telephone did not ring for hours, there were no mountains to gaze at on moonlight nights, and she missed the easy comradship of her west coast friends.

What did the sweet young thing do? Die of grief? Not a chance. She called up her press agent and ordered a party—a large party, where one could meet folks. Nine press agents, a couple of movie critics, fourteen men and women out of work and the police came to her party. California's gift to the stage paid the damages and she is a regular homebody now.

What is the easiest way to talkie stardom—if there is such a thing? Buddy Rogers, excuse it, please—Charles Rogers, got his chance in "Wings." Ben Lyons' career reached its present peak in "Hell's Angels." A lot of others have climbed to the top in airplanes, and now Douglas Fairbanks Jr. has been elevated to the very pinnacle by First National. Douglas Jr. is to have the lead in a flying picture as yet unnamed. The piece was written by Monk Saunders, author of "The Dawn Patrol" and "Wings," the first of which gave young Fairbanks an important rôle to play, not so long ago.

Just Like That.

Eight year old Tommy was sent to the drug store for a box of powder for his sister.

"What kind of powder do you want?" asked the chemist. "Is it the kind that goes on with a bang?"

"No, sir," answered Tommy. "It's the kind that goes on with a puff." S. V.

THE VOICE OF THE MOVIE FAN

If you would like your letters printed in this column, please write on ONE side of the paper ONLY. If you want a personal answer send stamped, self-addressed envelope—PLEASE!

No Double for Rudy.

Dear Miss Nangle: So Roland West is considering starring Chester Morris in some of the immortal Valentino's rôles! All I can say is, let any one try it and then they can sit back in their chair and watch their money go up in smoke. Talkies or no talkies, it can't be done. It is to laugh.

Now, in his particular rôles Mr. Morris is a good actor, but he cannot fill Valentino's place. There will never be another like Valentino. H. M. H.

His Idea of Mae Tinee.

Gentlemen. Why can't THE TRIBUNE get a cinema critic that the ordinary person can depend upon, one not contrary to the version of the majority of theater goers. One can almost believe the opposite of Mae Tinee's writings and have a good knowledge of the quality of a movie. I sometimes think that she merely looks at the expressions on the various people leaving the theater and then goes home and writes accordingly.

Any picture which is combined with comedy rarely gets three stars. "Way Out West" and "Animal Crackers" are examples of underrated comedies. Moreover, she is prejudiced against certain actors. She never rates a picture as good if she doesn't care for the star, no matter how good the story, acting, or scenery may be.

My idea of Mae Tinee is that of an extremely scrupulous Puritan, who attends a movie only because her bread and butter depends on it. In her spare time she probably knits away and meditates on the rottenness of the world, especially of the pleasure-loving kind. A movie critic is supposed to visualize a picture as an ordinarily intelligent theatergoer sees it and regard the movie as the rest of us, not agreeing with us one third of the time. If other newspapers can pay a good critic, why can't THE TRIBUNE get a good one?

PAUL J. LANUS.

Editor's Note: ?.

Bit of Indian Philosophy.

Dear Miss Tinee: Add me to your host of admirers. Your judgment and good sense are a safe guide for the general public. Mr. J. L's criticism in SUNDAY'S TRIBUNE is unfair.

One time, Rain-in-the-Face, one of Sitting Bull's sub-chiefs, remarked—"When you are able to get the last word with an echo, then may you hope to get it with a squaw." So I remark when the millenium is issued in, then may we hope to have our sincere efforts please the last man.

I agree with A. E. H. that there hasn't as yet been a picture to equal "In Old Arizona."

Sincerely,

FREDERICK C. JACOBS.

Editor's Note: Thank you, sir!

A Brickbat and a Bouquet.

Dear Miss Tinée: Although having read your column for years, this is my first letter to you. And I have no fault to find with you, no indeed, but there are two things I'd like to get off my mind. One very nice, and one very bad! So, I will start low and work up.

Regarding a Mr. James Samuels, who wrote a letter some time ago. I certainly was surprised that any one could write such a letter. That he thinks as he does, is his privilege, and as such I would certainly respect his opinion, but, O, Mr. Samuels, where were you brought up? I have never seen anything so impolite and utterly tactless as your epistle was. I am most ashamed of you on general principles. Lift up your head, open your eyes and look around, and see that there are othere here, too, and other thoughts and opinions, besides yours. LIVE, by all means, Mr. Samuels, AND LET LIVE!!!

Something nice, at least I think so. Regarding "Raffles!" With Ronald Colman, it is bound to be good. And in addition, with Kay Francis, it is about 150%. I am an ardent Ronald Colman fan from "The White Sister" and on, and I certainly think that Kay Francis is the nicest leading lady he has ever had. I find her positively enchanting, beautiful and with a poise seen in no other. And that they both have much in common, I think heightens the attraction. They are both dark, they both flash the most brilliant of smiles, are equally charming and admirably suited, to play together. Putting it all in a "nutshell," I think she is the perfect lady for the perfect gentleman, Ronald Colman—and incidently, visa versa. So, HOW I hope, to see them play together again, soon.

Now I can breathe easier that I have had my little rapture. Thank you for bearing with me. You know, though I do not always agree with you, please do not go into "dishwashing." Stay where you are, and keep going. Sincerely.

FRANCES MONTGOMERY.

Editor's note: It's easy to keep going when one has friends like you.

FROM A PRESS SHEET:

"A survey of all the Hollywood film studios discloses that three traditions as old as the industry itself no longer are observed.

"Megaphones have been discarded.

"Cameramen never wear caps with the bills turned backward.

"Directors do not affect knickers and sports shirts open at the throat while at work or at any other time than when on the golf links.

"The modern electrical loud speaker system has replaced the megaphone as an aid in directing big outdoor scenes. When the action takes place on the soundproof stages at the studios, the director need not raise his voice to instruct his players before they go before the cameras and microphones.

"The cameraman's cap, often pictured in cartoon and story, disappeared long ago. Camera experts in the old days did wear caps and turned the bills to the rear because most of their work was done out of doors close to the focus finder. Today a different camera design makes it easy for the camera man to peer through his finder without placing an eye close to the instrument. This makes for easier and better photography.

"As for the third vanished tradition, few directors ever did wear knickers in the best manner while at work. Today the leaders of the profession invariably appear in neatly tailored business suits, white collars and natty haberdashery."

THERE WILL BE, MR. CHAPLAIN definitely states, no dialogue in his new picture, "City Lights." The long awaited film is nearing completion and will be released soon.

Those lovely, clear colored shorts that are being used to fill programs around town are known as Multicolor films. The rights to the really new marvelous process are owned, so they say, by Howard Hughes, the wealthy young producer who wasn't satisfied with "Hell's Angels" until he had spilled $4,000,000 into its production. Local Multicolor pictures are to be made exclusively by the Acme Sound Products corporation, which has studios at Argyle street and Sheridan road, not far from where Beverly Bayne, Francis X. Bushman, Gloria Swanson, etc., used to do their stuff for Essanay in the old days.

Exposes Bootblack Stunt.

ROME.—(AP)—"Pro Bono Publico" has been writing to the newspapers charging that by use of inferior polish bootblacks of the city are acquiring real estate and forcing additional "shines" because the substantial polish lasts less than an hour in Rome's dusty streets.

THE NEW GENERAL MOTORS RADIO with Tone Selector provides unusual selectivity

GM
GENERAL MOTORS
RADIO

There is so much of interest and value being broadcast from every point of the compass nowadays that—in order to get the utmost enjoyment from radio—your set must have the hairline selectivity that the fine workmanship employed in building the new General Motors Radio provides.

High standards of precision, adhered to in every step in the manufacture of the new General Motors Radio, result in performance that is particularly gratifying. With these fine instruments you can reach out and get exactly the entertainment you want, clearly and distinctly.

And with the Visual Tone Selector you can find the best shading of tone for every type of program! The Visual Tone Selector is a distinctive General Motors Radio feature which enables you to emphasize bass or treble at will—simply by turning a knob.

Come in for a complete demonstration of these splendid new instruments. Let us show you performance and appearance which have established a new standard of quality in radio. Five distinguished period models, all equipped with the Visual Tone Selector. Prices without tubes—radios, $136 to $172; radio-phonographs, $198 and $270. All are available on the liberal GMAC plan of convenient payment.

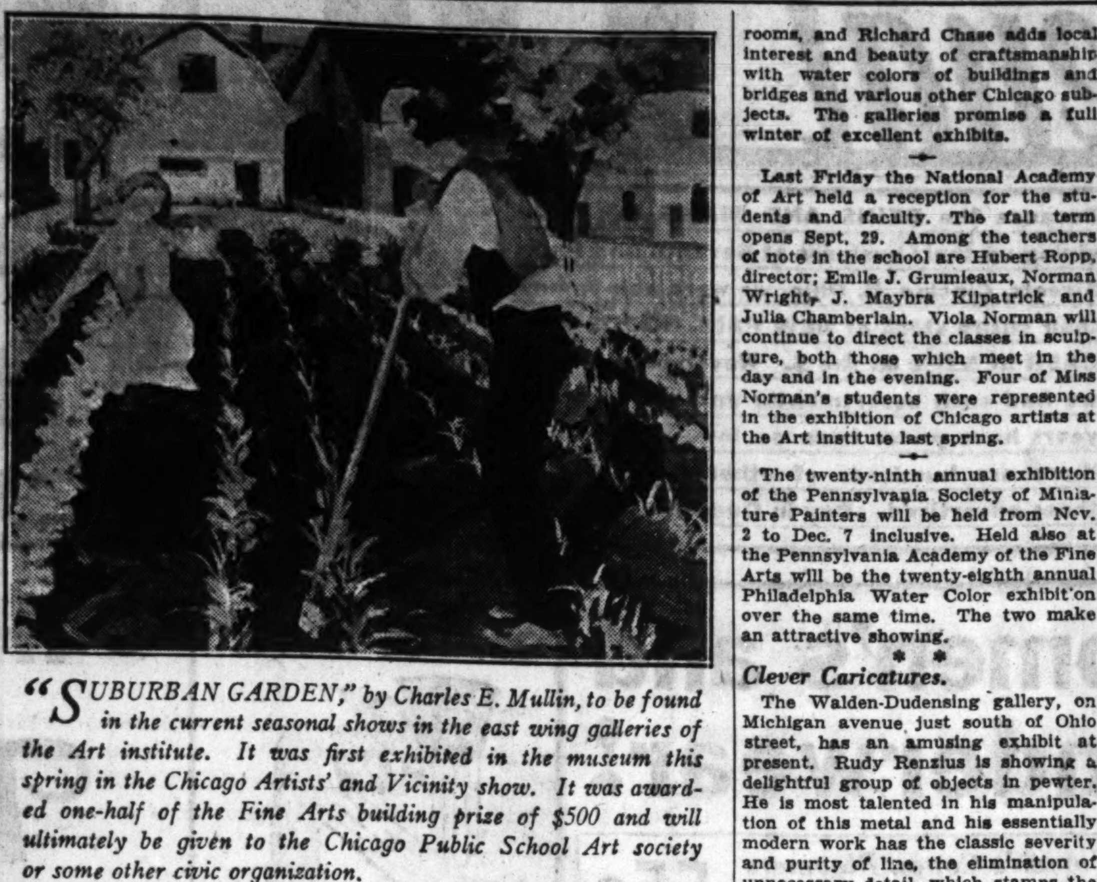
Chicago Art School Goes Modern

Academy of Fine Arts Starts Out Fall Season Under the Banner of Expressionism.

By Eleanor Jewett.



"SUBURBAN GARDEN," by Charles E. Mullin, to be found in the current seasonal shows in the east wing galleries of the Art institute. It was first exhibited in the museum this spring in the Chicago Artists' and Vicinity show. It was awarded one-half of the Fine Arts building prize of $500 and will ultimately be given to the Chicago Public School Art society or some other civic organization.

THE Chicago Academy of Fine Arts has always stood high among the Chicago schools of art. It started its fall season Sept. 8 and this year has taken to itself the banner of expressionism. Academic drawing has never been tolerated in the school and, going fully modern now, the drawing and painting classes are entirely nonacademic.

Whether this complete acceptance of modernism is good remains to be seen. At its worst it is an experiment; at its best it may mean the birth of superior methods of instruction, a type of painless self-evolution which will create an artist from a student almost without his realizing his development.

The Chicago Academy of Fine Arts has an interesting faculty. It includes such well known painters as Frederic M. Grant, Ruth Ford, Rudolph Weisenborn, and Hans von Schroetter. In the branch of interior decoration are Glen Darling, E. P. Tilley, Kenneth Foster, and Edward Mathews. The classes in costume design are under Ralph Moni, Aileen Snelling, Marie Schmidt, Ann Babb, and Henrietta Golden. Instruction in cartooning is given by Carey Orr, Vaughan Shoemaker, and Nick Nichols. In illustration the students look to R. A. Ketcham, Carl Warren, and John Merryweather. Arthur Johnson teaches poster art. John Doell, David Lockwood, H. Vaughan Millbourn, and Roger Wilterding are the commercial art directors.

At the Art Institute.

The Art institute is already planning for autumn. The Tuesday lectures given in Fullerton hall each week at 2:30 o'clock, open with two by Dr. Oskar F. Hagen, chairman, department of history and criticism of art of the University of Wisconsin. His first will be on Oct. 7 and his subject is "The Development of Style in Painting." The following Tuesday Dr. Hagen continues the discussion with "Was Expressionism a Legitimate Art?"

On Oct. 21 Howard K. Morse of the school of the Art institute will speak on "The Consumer as Artist." The last Tuesday in October will be given up to oriental dances by Mme. Vera Mirova and should prove a delightful afternoon.

The autumn lecture program of Dudley Crafts Watson, free to members of the Art institute, starts Sept. 21. Mr. Dudley deals in practical subjects: "Line in Furniture, Fabric, and Arrangement"; "Tone in Walls, Floors, Ceilings, and Furnishings"; "Chairs, Great and Small"; "Tables—How to Use Them"; "The Playroom Workshop"; "Presents for the Home," and "The House Arranged for Christmas." There, in brief, is the gist of his autumn talks and he will carry you with him body and soul in each and every lecture. He is one of the most entertaining and persuasive speakers we have and the wit of his discourse serves to show the sound sense and intimate knowledge of his subjects which Mr. Watson possesses.

Frank Lloyd Wright Lectures.

Two lectures by Frank Lloyd Wright, the well known architect, will be given on the first and second of October. He will speak on the new architecture. And from Sept. 25 to Oct. 12 an architectural exhibition by him will be shown.

A valuable and important addition to the Ryerson library resources is announced in the Art institute bulletin for September. A complete set of over 2,500 photographs of Mohammedan architecture in Constantinople, Egypt, Syria and Palestine is the recent gift of Mrs. Forsythe Sherfesee and Walter B. Wolf. The photographs, taken by Capt. K. A. C. Creswell, well known archaeologist, who for a number of years has been specializing in this subject, constitute a complete pictorial representation of nearly every Mohammedan monument in Egypt from the rise of Islam down to 1650. Foreign institutions owning duplicate collections are the Victoria and Albert museum, London; the Hebrew university at Jerusalem; the Comite de Conservation, Cairo, and the Archaeological survey of India.

The cafeteria of the Art institute will open the last week in September, serving every day except Sunday from 11 to 4:45 o'clock. On Sunday the hours are 12:15 to 8 o'clock.

Three-in-One Show.

The Chicago Galleries association will open the new season the first of October with a three-in-one show which should prove of great interest to the Palette and Chisel clubs, as the three artists exhibiting are members of that artist organization. Oil paintings and possibly a few etchings will be representative of L. O. Griffith of Brown county, Indiana. Oils by Tunis Ponsen will bring vivid color to the rooms, and Richard Chase adds local interest and beauty of craftsmanship with water colors of buildings and bridges and various other Chicago subjects. The galleries promise a full winter of excellent exhibits.

Last Friday the National Academy of Art held a reception for the students and faculty. The fall term opens Sept. 29. Among the teachers of note in the school are Hubert Ropp, director; Emile J. Grumieaux, Norman Wright, J. Maybra Kilpatrick and Julia Chamberlain. Viola Norman will continue to direct the classes in sculpture, both those which meet in the day and in the evening. Four of Miss Norman's students were represented in the exhibition of Chicago artists at the Art institute last spring.

The twenty-ninth annual exhibition of the Pennsylvania Society of Miniature Painters will be held from Nov. 2 to Dec. 7 inclusive. Held also at the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts will be the twenty-eighth annual Philadelphia Water Color exhibit on over the same time. The two make an attractive showing.

Clever Caricatures.

The Walden-Dudensing gallery, on Michigan avenue just south of Ohio street, has an amusing exhibit at present. Rudy Renzius is showing a delightful group of objects in pewter. He is most talented in his manipulation of this metal and his essentially modern work has the classic severity and purity of line, the elimination of unnecessary detail, which stamps the best of Greek art.

Besides the pewter by Mr. Renzius there are satirical drawings by Peter Arno and clever caricatures by a Chicago girl, Irma Selz. There are over fifty caricatures, many of them of prominent Chicagoans. Among these might be mentioned James Weber Linn, June Provines, Ashton Stevens, Richard Henry Little and Meyer Levin. The art critics have not escaped her wit and those who care to may see us who relay the exhibits through the press there in all our glory.

Jerome Uhl, portrait painter of note, has recently finished a full length portrait of Mrs. Edward F. Badgers of Oak Park.

A. Raymond Katz, so word comes, is holding a one man show of brush line drawings and water colors in tempora in the foyer of the "Cinema" on Chicago avenue, just east of Michigan

Gandhi Employs Squatting Habit to Foil Britain's Police

BOMBAY.—(AP)—Mahatma Gandhi chose squatting for the masses as one of the key stratagems of the civil disobedience campaign, designed to force the British to loose their hold on India, because to squat is one of the easiest things that the working millions of India do.

Gandhi himself prefers to squat, and when he traveled by railroad prior to his arrest and detention he would sit with his bare feet drawn up on the seat of the coach because he had been accustomed to that posture from babyhood.

Squat for Hours.

When parading adherents of the national congress, following the calls of their leaders for a demonstration, are halted by the police their first inclination is to squat. And there they stay, sometimes for long hours, until police measures or a recall from their leaders ends the demonstration.

In Calcutta recently nearly a hundred women squatted in the street for [illegible] hours while foot weary policemen stood by to see that the procession did not move into a proscribed area.

Interrupted by Police.

About 200 Gandhi followers, mostly women, squatted all night in front of the Bombay city hall because police would not allow their procession to enter the business section. There was considerable rain, but friends brought them umbrellas and hot drinks, while bananas and other tidbits were passed about until daylight.

Then the police decided that the squatting had lasted long enough and waded into the sitters with canes and rubber whips, the latter resembling the blacksnakes used by American army mule drivers. About a hundred of the demonstrators sought treatment at the Nationalists' hospital for bruises and cuts, although the police claimed that only about half of them really needed medical attention.

Starts in Childhood.

Among the working millions of India the practice of squatting starts in early childhood because of the number of occupants in the cramped quarters of the mud huts. Educational authorities contend that this habit has reacted on the mentality of the working classes, causing them to think and talk in "pies," a pie being worth about a tenth of an American cent, and never in golden or silvery terms—a mentality which does not know how to stretch its legs and loll in comfort.

Nearly all kinds of tradesmen contend that they cannot think clearly or calculate accurately unless they sit with legs curled under them. Thousands of native shops have no chairs, the customers, proprietors and clerks squatting on cushions.

Cure for Illness.

An Indian can sit thus in tailor fashion in perfect comfort all day long and the "Sadhus," or religious mendicants, squat placidly for hours with their limbs contorted into most extraordinary positions. In fact, this latter class has an elaborate system in which the effect of each posture on the body and mind is fully described, each having a different meaning or effect.

It is claimed that to sit in one certain position is a sure cure for all liver complaints, while another has a healing effect upon lung troubles. Each phase of contemplation also has its particular posture and adepts can tell what is going on in their colleagues' minds by noting their position.

Spanish Society Honors Victim of Inquisition

VALENCIA, Spain.—(AP)—Forbidden by the Primo de Rivera dictatorship to recall the days of the Spanish Inquisition by a centennial observance in 1926 of the last execution under that body, a society composed of a "liberal thinking" group is scheming to put the plan through this year, unless the new administration interferes.

The exercises would revere the memory of Antonio Ripoll, who was hanged in the public square of this city after having been convicted of heresy. The execution took place July 31, 1826.

The sponsors of the centennial observance had full plans laid for 1926, but the Primo de Rivera government interfered. The dictatorship feared the repercussions which might have resulted from such a celebration.

But when Primo's government collapsed, the society immediately began plans for a new "centennial," albeit something more than four years late. Its sponsors, who opposed Primo because they said he had usurped public power, say the ceremony will be held under the same program which was scheduled in 1926. They say because of their enmity toward Primo that it will be more satisfactory to them than if held when the dictatorship ruled.

Ripoll, called in a few histories also by the name of Cayetano, believed in God, but would not accept other points of the Catholic creed. He is reputed to have been a man who shared his worldly possessions with others and counseled those who sought his advice and philosophy.

His admirers called him the "teacher of Ruzafa" and "the Jesus of la Huerta," Ruzafa and la Huerta being towns where he lived. Summoned before the inquisition tribunal, he declined to accept Catholicism. Ecclesiastical authorities passed the case to a civil court, where he was condemned to death. He told the judge:

"I am willing to give my life to the barbarism of this epoch so that this fanaticism may take no more victims."

His friends made an unsuccessful effort to rescue Ripoll. He was gagged to prevent any last minute statement and hanged before a huge crowd. His body was placed in a barrel and thrown into a river.

Tank Town Showman Is Hero of Piece.

stretcher cases are brought either to die or be given an opiate to ease the agony.

This piece by Hugh S. Stange elicited the adjective "sincere" from the first nighters. By sincere they meant that, though it means well, the play has not got quite the kick.

Kruger plays the rôle that has of late been fastened upon him—that of a lovable, thoroughly deserving and pottery man who is given a dirty deal. A physician, he leaves his dear wife in the Brooklyn home and goes off to war. Behind for a while is a captain whose youth and love of music spell romance to the wife.

At the front the doctor hears that he has become a father, and it should have called for rejoicing. The doctor knows, however, that the child is not his. Bland use of the theater is made in the dressing station scene, in which the captain, dying, dictates a message to the woman he loves. For the first time the doctor realizes that this is the man who invaded his home.

After the war the doctor carries the love message to his wife. His own life is ruined and he finds that hers is too. The baby is dead and the wife knows that her lasting affection is for her husband. So, from the ruins they start to build anew.

Old Favorites Still Going.

Up to now the newer shows have made little dent in the older ones. "Lysistrata," "Flying High," "The Green Pastures," "The Last Mile," "Vanities," and others cling, despite the introduction of "Torch Song," "Up Pops the Devil," and "The Second Little Show."

The last mentioned attraction, suffering heavily from comparisons with last year's sparkling revue, is making a brave showing. New sketches have been rushed in and rushed out and the evening's routine altered. One of the results of its reception, apparently, is the dissolution of the Dwight Deere Wiman-William A. Brady Jr. partnership, with Wiman taking over "The Little Show" and several recently announced plays. The official bulletin announcing the end of the partnership said the parting was amicable, but that the partners were known to have widely varying ideas.

It is possible that the show reporters, in their disappointment that the second "Little Show" does not equal the first, were too severe. As revues go this one is entertaining, with catchy music, handsome sets and costumes, a good low comedian in Al Trahan, and certainly the smartest dancing chorus in town.

THE ARMCHAIR PLAYGOER

By Fanny Butcher.

A NEW edition, the fifth, of "Representative American Plays," edited by Arthur Hobson Quinn, is the most complete collection of American plays that exists under one roof, I think. It contains over a thousand pages printed in double columns and shelters the complete acting texts of twenty-eight plays, from Thomas Godfrey's "The Prince of Parthia," produced in 1767, to "Paris Bound," Philip Barry's offering of 1927.

ARTHUR HOBSON QUINN.

Such classics as "Fashion," by Anna Cora Mowatt Ritchie, which was first produced in 1845 and recently revived in New York; "The Octoroon," by Dion Boucicault, which was a sensation of 1859; "Rip Van Winkle," in which Joseph Jefferson began making his fame in 1865; "Secret Service," tion, and Sidney Howard's "The Silver Cord" and Clyde Fitch's "The Girl with the Green Eyes," which replaces the same author's "Her Great Match," which was included in earlier editions of the volume, but which is not such a significant and characteristic example of Clyde Fitch as "The Girl with the Green Eyes," which was produced in 1902 and became an immediate success.

Preceding the text of each play there is a short biography, critical as which brought William Gillette the huzzahs of the 1890's; "Madame Butterfly," which was a great dramatic success before Puccini made it one of the most popular operas of any repertory; "The New York Idea," by Langdon Mitchell; "The Witching Hour," by Augustus Thomas; William Vaughn Moody's "The Faith Healer"; "The Scarecrow," by Percy MacKaye, are all there, and others which make a fascinating panorama of American dramatic history.

In this edition there is included James A. Herne's "Margaret Fleming," the first time it appears in print. "Paris Bound" is new in this ediwell as statistical, of the author, a list of his published plays, and a bibliography. Dr. Quinn is professor of English literature at the University of Pennsylvania and the author of exhaustive histories of the American stage and the American drama.

"Hollywood Plays" is a collection of twelve one act plays from the repertory of the Writers' Club of Hollywood, Cal., edited by Kenyon Nicholson. The members of the club are all amateur in the sense that they write, produce, or act in their plays for the love of the fun, but they are all professional in the sense that when they are doing club skits they are blazoning in the literary or theatrical or movie picture worlds. All of the twelve plays have proved successfully actable. Among them there is one by Rupert Hughes called "On the Razor Edge."

"Yale One Act Plays," edited by George Pierce Baker, contains six plays which are the cream of the product of the last four years of the playwriting courses of the department of drama, Yale university, of which Mr. Baker is the head. They have all been produced on the experimental stage at Yale.

"Plays and Pageants from the Life of the Negro," by Willis Richardson [Associated Publishers], is an anthology representing the work of the Negro, his hopes and his ideals. The editor contributes three of the sketches. The others are derived from various sources. Interesting woodcuts signed J. L. W., but otherwise unidentified, illustrate the volume.

Test Convicts for Seasickness

CASCAIS, Portugal.—(AP)—Convicts slated for the penal settlement of Loanda, in Portuguese Africa, are now tested for seaworthiness.

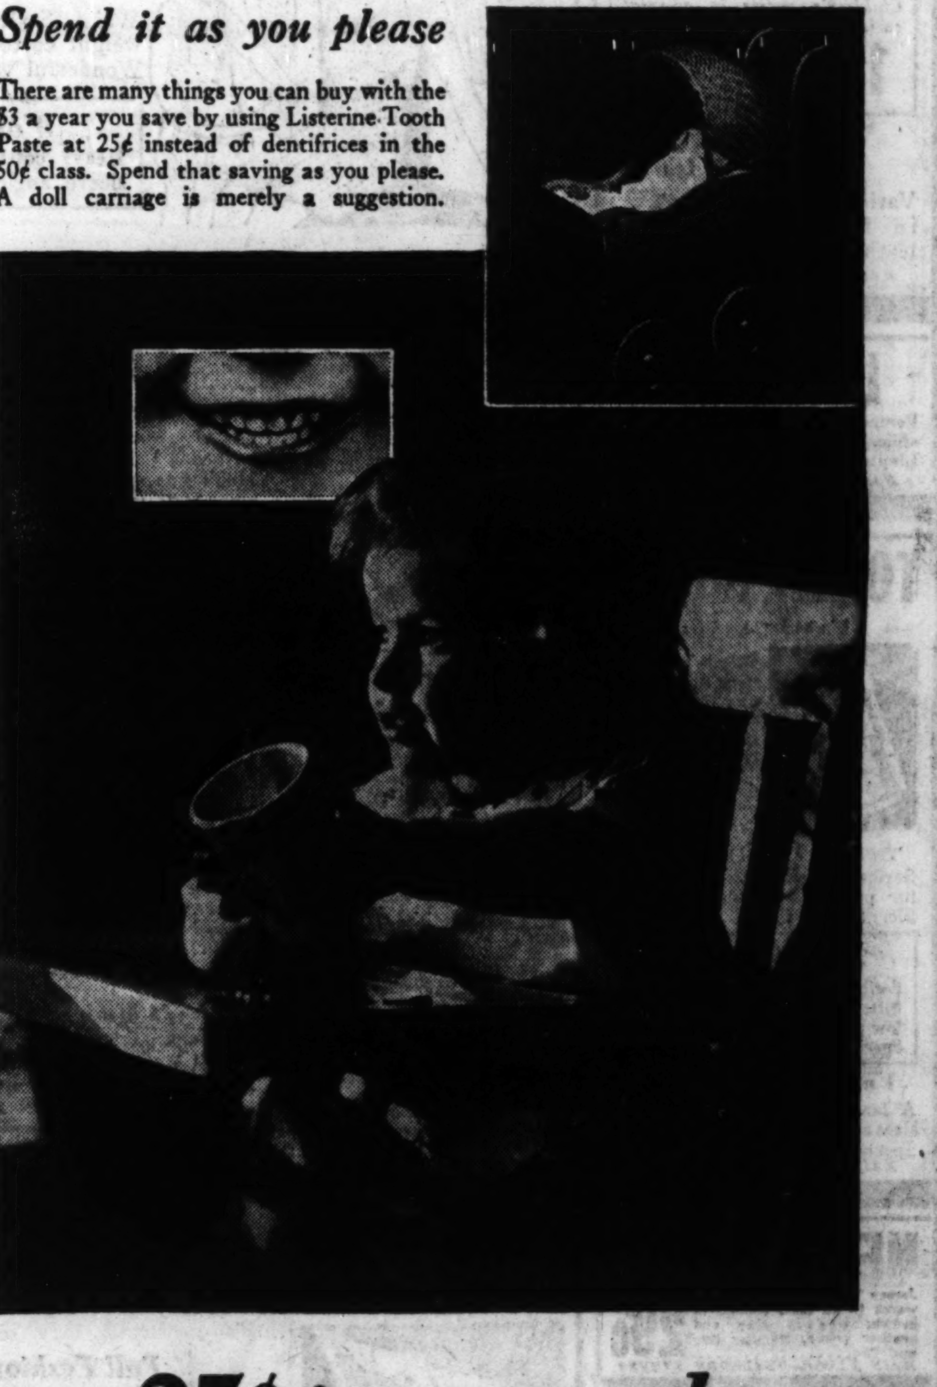
In the past, convicts were hustled into steel cages on prison ship without farther ado. Many of them endured agony on the long voyage and it was felt that they were subjected to sufferings altogether unconnected with the sentence.

Previous to their embarkation now convicts are put into an old "windjammer" which on rough days is towed to the harbor entrance, where it dances about like a cork at the end of its mooring chain.

Yes, it saves you $3

Spend it as you please

There are many things you can buy with the $3 a year you save by using Listerine Tooth Paste at 25¢ instead of dentifrices in the 50¢ class. Spend that saving as you please. A doll carriage is merely a suggestion.



25¢ is enough to pay for tooth paste

You may think that for the good of your teeth it is necessary to pay in the neighborhood of 50¢ for a tooth paste. If this is your opinion, there are any number to choose from—all good.

Approximately 5,000,000 people, however, say that 25¢ is enough to pay. They have reached this conclusion after long and critical use of Listerine Tooth Paste, the quality dentifrice at 25¢. They have put it to every test. Subjected it to every comparison with other dentifrices. Their enthusiasm for its swift, thorough, and safe cleansing and its delightful after effect is boundless.

You be the judge

We ask you to try Listerine Tooth Paste for a month. Test it any way you please. Compare it with any dentifrice you wish regardless of the price. If others disclose greater quality or better results for the money—by all means stick to them.

We believe, however, that you will find, as others have found, that Listerine Tooth Paste at 25¢ is the outstanding value in the tooth paste field.

We have given it the quality that characterizes all Lambert products. And we offer it at a price that is made possible only by large scale (and therefore economic) buying and ultra-modern methods of manufacture that eliminate costly operations. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

Germany Last Stop on Tour of Mantle Party

Drama Fans See "Phaea" in Berlin.

By Burns Mantle.

fect life as it is and not as his showmen would pretend it is.

Still the Master Showman.

Reinhardt is still the master showman of his people. Here he is working with palpable tricks—a winding staircase that appears as people ascend it and disappears when they descend, like a giant silver corkscrew; turntable scenes that now reveal a bit of a silver birch forest; now a palace scene, now an office in the "heaven" of the picture studio president, now a cabaret scene with practical stage, and, finally, a tank of real water in which the hero is supposed to drown.

The story hops back and forth between reality and picture and you are never quite sure in which division it is playing, especially when your German is nothing to depend on. The tricks are an improvement on the old Hanlon "Superba" tricks, though their effect is not greatly different; the progress is in the drama, as it should be. "Phaea" (the name of the picture company) is perfectly cast and beautifully played.

Glimpses of Palaces.

We had one of those glorious days, the sky like an inverted blue china cup, which we spent on a trip to Potsdam and the recent war lord's palaces and exhibits. . . . Part way by bus, through the beautiful Tiergarten and out through Charlottenburg. . . . Part way by boat up and down the beautiful Havel, lined with perfectly kept summer homes, forests, bathing beaches, and sun baked bathers . . . topped with ancient towers recalling an old Germany, alive with quiet but determinedly happy celebrants representing a new Germany.

The restful Sans Souci, where that wise old Frederick found a kind of peace by turning his back on Berlin and trouble. . . . To the impressive new castle, also Frederick's, where Wilhelm boldly and extravagantly did himself the honor he considered an emperor's due. . . . Past the tomb of the quiet empress whose spirit has long since flown a long, long way from these piles of fresh and withered wreaths brought to do her memory honor.

Night Life in Berlin.

That night, for the first time, I deserted my children and went to dinner in the home of my gracious Tribune lady . . . a restful, quiet studio home deep in a building of many courts and mysterious lightings operated by the concierge.

Afterward a friendly envoyé extraordinaire et ministre plénipotentiaire, D'Irak, believing my education demanded some knowledge of Berlin night life, took me here and there among the clubs—to Johnny's night club, which is like our Greenwich village speakeasies—just as crowded, just as stuffy, almost as expensive and no more fun; to the handsome Casanova, where there were a dozen couples of belated tourists and native hosts still indulging the American push arounds which nowadays serve for dances the world over; to the new and sensational Femina, where only wine is served in the main room and where each table is equipped with a dial phone that may be connected with any other table for the transmission of invitations to dance; also, tiny tubes in which love letters may be placed and shot by tube to admirers at other tables; and finally, to the elaborate Vaterland, with drinking rooms for twelve nations, six of them seating from 200 to 300 people each, and the Rhineland room, 600.

Costly Entertainment.

Here was the most deliberate of all the organized attempts I saw to sell Berlin as a gay city . . . it would not surprise me to learn that Vaterland is subsidized by the government . . . certainly it will cost its promoters a huge sum before it is a paying success . . . each unit has a great corps of musicians, and other help to maintain its service. . . . There is a vast amount of visiting from room to room, and drinks in many of them. A six story building devoted exclusively to the selling of liquor under the pleasantest of surroundings . . . and nobody drinking much of it except the surprised Americans. . . . Nobody comes through a European experience without realizing again the ghastly mistakes of our prohibition experiment.

And so to Rotterdam and the boat . . . l'aventure est fini, though I shall go back to Paris to collect the rest of the Mantles . . . I have seen, I feel, most of the habitable parts of Europe and profited from the seeing; I have seen as much of the theater life as off season months permit; I have seen several of the hotel porters who must have started the war and, so far as I am concerned, could easily start another; I have come to respect the larger tourist agencies and to suspect the lesser; to sympathize with all tourists, especially American; to have my love of my own country intensified a hundredfold and to hate veal.

Sam Goldwyn Changes Cast of New Film; Bad Guess on Stage Star Costs Him Plenty

By Rosalind Shaffer.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special Correspondence.]—Sam Goldwyn, famous picker of great bets, the magician who turns the film unknowns into luminaries, who has pulled more rabbits out of hats than any other producer in Hollywood, has at last guessed wrong, for once.

Constance Cummings, Broadway actress imported by Goldwyn to play leading lady for Ronald Colman in his new Frederick Lonsdale story, after ten days' work on the picture has been taken out of the cast. It was Miss Cummings' first picture work and it is entirely possible that things were a little too hectic for her.

It is proverbial that every one plays "low bridge" around Sam Goldwyn when a production is under way, for he is the world's most excitable and intense producer.

Takes Loss of $120,000.

Entirely game, Goldwyn wrote off a total loss of $120,000 on the ten days the picture has been in work. Once he decided that the production was on the wrong track and that things were not going as he wished, Goldwyn not only decided to dispense with the leading lady, but Irving Cummings, the director, was also allowed to leave and returned to work at the Fox lot, where he is under contract. Cummings does not seem to be a lucky name for Sam.

Supplanting Cummings [no relation to the leading lady], George Fitzmaurice will direct the film. He has made many successes for Goldwyn; one, "The Dark Angel," was with Colman, and at this time he is just completing "Lilli," with Evelyn Laye, for Goldwyn. Meanwhile, Goldwyn and Colman are wondering about a new leading lady, and one more little stage star from New York got a tough break in the movies.

Film Changed Often.

A tough time is reported by all on "New Moon," Lawrence Tibbett's and Grace More's new film for M-G-M. Changes in story come so thick and fast that nobody can prophesy what will come next. To begin with, the story was changed from some other locale to a Russian one because Tibbett looked so good in Russian clothes in "The Rogue Song." Karl Dane has been hired for it and probably Rex, the horse, will be called in towards the end to provide the love interest. This is not as silly as it sounds, for Madame Glynn herself said Rex had "it."

Another story getting a lot of professional rewriting is "Reaching for the Moon," in which Bebe Daniels and Douglas Fairbanks are scheduled to appear. Elsie Janis and Edmund Goulding are doing the blue penciling and inserting. There are many who feel Fairbanks is sacrificing his standing as the star that he is in pictures to consent to play with Bebe Daniels in a co-starring rôle. It is an interesting situation.

Mary Pickford, too, is getting restless with the way things were laid out in "Kiki," and has changed the story from Paris to New York. She may yet make a Salvation Army lassie out of the French gamin, if one can guess from "Coquette."

Old Stories, New Clothes.

Then Victor and Eddie Halperin over at Liberty productions are making "East Lynne" into "Ex-Flame," with Norman Kerry and Marian Nixon. There must be something unexpectedly wrong in the old thriller, for it, too, is announced as being "adapted."

Then, too, that old comedy, "Charley's Aunt," is being remade by Christie brothers with Doris Lloyd in modern society clothes. What a pity to lose all the old bustles and curls and other antiquities that were so funny when Sid Chaplin made it as a silent a few years ago.

A New Racket.

A new sort of racket at the stars' expense is being sprung at openings in Hollywood. An independent one reel concern makes shots of the stars entering the foyer. They are cleverly decoyed into the little sound booth and gotten to talk a bit into a mike that records their remarks on clothes for the recording apparatus. Before they know just what's what Gloria Swanson, Ann Harding, or whom-have-you has made a free screen appearance for the clever racketeer.

The makeup box of Lon Chaney, originally a tool kit converted to its more interesting use, is being offered to the Smithsonian institue by the officials of M-G-M, who wish to see that the memento of the great master of makeup gets fitting attention.

After Chaney died it developed that the actor, wishing to be certain that his wife would always be comfortably provided for, had been buying her a bond in her own name every month.

Shaw's Secret of Success.

CAMBRIDGE, England. — (AP) — The secret of George Bernard Shaw's success was stated by D. H. Hardman, a Cambridge university lecturer, to lie in the fact that he really is a Puritan. "London gladly pays high prices to watch Shaw thumb his nose at them from the stage of the finest theaters," said Hardman.

Fiume, Once a Great Port of Hungary, Now Only Ghost City

By David Darrah.

the problem eventually, when it has had a longer period of experiment. Local measures do not, however, appear to be the key to the solution. Whether Fiume sinks to a mere seaport town in the future appears rather to depend on whether Italy can by wise general political measures restore that economic unity between the Adriatic ports and the Danube valley which existed before the war. That seems to depend on whether cordial relations can be restored between Italy and Jugo-Slavia. At present Fiume is a political pawn. Its possession is necessary to Italy to keep some one else from developing it, to the ruination of Trieste. And meanwhile the coastwise shipping war between the developing Jugo-Slav mercantile marine and the Italian shipping companies goes merrily on.

A City of the Dead.

Fiume is now identified mostly by the fact that it was dramatically seized and held for a time by Italy's fulsome poet, Gabriel d'Annunzio. The city has languished to the ghost of its former self.

Coming from Zara the steamer plies through the coastal fringe of rocky islands and docks just after dawn. Although a free port by recent decree, there is a customs examination to see that you do not smuggle in cheap liquor and tobacco from Zara. Exemption does not apply to these. The port is pretty, with the mountains of the Julian Alps looming behind it and the Carnaro Riviera stretching down the Istrian littoral to the left.

I got a porter and told him to go to the Hotel Europe.

"Doesn't exist any more," he said.

He suggested the Albergo Italia in the Via Benito Mussolini. I went there and found nearly all the rooms available. As we walked across the docks and past the big warehouses I could see grass growing between the stones. There were no dock workers around and the warehouses all appeared closed and gloomy. I walked down the Piazza Queen Helena and got breakfast on a cafe terrace. The waiter insisted on talking German. I asked him about the Hotel Europe, for I had had mail directed to me there.

"Kaput," he said, hitting the inside of his elbow with his left hand and forcing the palm up towards his shoulder. "Niemand kommt," he added.

By Way of Contrast.

Fiume did look dead.

There were no ships, or practically none, in the harbor. On the Jugo-Slav side at Sussak there were many ships and bustling activity. The warehouses along the docks were as silent and mournful as tombs. I walked downtown and through the markets. They appeared plentifully stocked with fruit, vegetables, eggs, meats, etc., but there were few buyers. The prices to me appeared the same as anywhere else in Italy, despite the free zone. The shops along the streets seemed poorly stocked and wore the air of infrequent visitation, and their keepers seemed to give no effort to make them attractive.

At the bridge over the little river which separates Italian Fiume from Jugo-Slav Sussak there were sentinels, policemen, and customs officers. The town of Sussak runs down the coast to the east. It was once a mere suburb of Fiume. Between the two towns there is now a delta formed by the Fiume river and a canal. This delta was heaped high with Jugo-Slav lumber. Many people seemed to be crossing the bridge to the Jugo-Slav side in the early morning. They had frontier cards entitling them to go and come, instead of regular passports. Many of the Jugo-Slavs, I was told, work in Sussak, where there is more employment, and live in Fiume, where there are more houses.

Difficulties and friction, I was told, arise from these frontier passes and the mode of living under two governments. Sometimes the passes are revoked and then a man either can't get home or can't get to work, as the case may be.

I gave my passport to the Italian frontier official in the little shanty at the end of the bridge. He looked through a huge card index system covering the top of a table. There must have been about three thousand cards. He found nothing against me, and stamped my passport. The Jugo-Slav guard at the outer end of the bridge looked a long time at my passport and wrote a lot about it in a big book, but he had no index system. He asked me what I was going to Sussak for.

Jammed with People.

The Hotel Continental stands just beyond the bridgehead. It looked bright and new and seemed to have a busy clientèle. It looked less gloomy than the hotels in Fiume. I walked along the river bank where the market was situated. It was jammed with people and, as far as I could see, the prices varied little from those on the other side, in the Fiume free zone. Going on to the harbor I saw many ships loading and unloading and everywhere big piles of lumber. In the harbor they were dredging the river mouth and were constructing concrete walls, evidently for new docks so that ships can come further up the river into Sussak.

Business was certainly moving eastward. Sussak was throbbing with life by comparison with Fiume. And the only thing between them was a national frontier line. One, however, had a hinterland of production behind it. The other was isolated.

I went back across the bridge and later got a big autobus which took me across the neck of Istria to Trieste in a couple of hours. About fifteen minutes from Fiume customs men got into the bus and looked to see if any of Fiume's free tariff stuff was being taken back into the country, for the free zone applies only to the coast. Across Istria the land is arid, slightly cultivated, covered with black Austrian pine, and here and there are big sink holes caused by the underground caves. The floors of these holes are cultivated. On the right lay the Julian Alps and Monte Nevoso and the Carso, where fierce and bloody fighting took place during the war between the Italians and the Austrians.

This corner of Italy seemed to be full of soldiers.

500,000 Slavs.

Italy obtained Triest and the region known as Venezia Julia by the treaty of Rapallo with the Jugo-Slavs. While a good element of Italians lived in it, it was predominantly Slav and at the peace conference Jugo-Slavia's claims to it were supported by Wilson. For years, however, Italian patriots have maintained that the only safe and strategic eastern frontier for Italy to protect her from invasion was the line of Julian Alps.

The whole area before the war was Austrian. It is comprised within the arc of the Julian Alps, the pre-war frontier of the Isonzo river, and the Adriatic. Now the region makes the five Italian provinces of Triest, Gorizia, Istria, Fiume and Zara. Triest, the largest city, was the flourishing Austrian Adriatic seaport before the war. It now, like Fiume, suffers from being cut off from its hinterland.

Reconstruction of the district as Italian has therefore been complicated by the economic necessity of maintaining the trade link with the severed Danube hinterland, as well as by the problem of converting the heavy Slav population into Italians. There are more than half a million Slavs in the region. Just after the war the Italians pursued a lenient policy, allowing the Slavs to keep their language and institutions to some extent. They claim this leniency was abused, and since the advent of Fascism the policy has been to Italianize the district as quickly as possible, so that no trace of the old Austrian empire remains. Such a policy was required, the Fascists say, because leniency leads only to renewed activities on the part of the propaganda and irredentist organizations on the other side of the frontier. In the past there have been many violent incidents and bloodshed due to the vigorous Italianization policy, but with a few exceptions the situation is less tense, although from time to time a schoolhouse in the district back of Triest is mysteriously burned down and nothing is ever written about it in the papers.

Slav Schools Closed.

The Jugo-Slavs' claim is that they have abandoned all pretensions to the district but that they would like to see the process of Italianization carried out more slowly over a period of fifty to sixty years, rather than the abrupt policy practiced at present.

The language of tuition in all the schools, both in the towns and the country districts, is now Italian and all the five hundred or more Slav schools which existed before the armistice have gone. In the country districts the Slav language is exclusively spoken among the people, although all public notices are in Italian, which many cannot read. In towns such as Triest everyone speaks Italian.

The main opponents of Italianism are the clergy and the intellectuals, but the problem of the former is being attenuated since the conciliation with the Vatican. The prince bishop of Gorizia is an elderly man whose sympathies are Slav, but he is respected by the Italians. The bishop of Fiume is sympathetic to Fascism.

Most of the Slavs are agriculturalists. If the province had more industries to absorb them the problem of assimilation would be easier. But under the present circumstances many of them have gone back to Jugo-Slavia. Emigration of many more to America has been facilitated by the Italian authorities, although they refuse to give passports to the purely Italian element.

In the churches all notices are in Italian and all preaching in that language. The Slav newspapers, with the exception of a couple of bi-weekly papers in Gorizia, have disappeared entirely, having been suppressed on grounds of sedition.

Too Much Regulation.

In the country districts there are frequent friction and clashes between the Italian authorities and the Slavs. This is regarded with regret by the Italians themselves. They point out, however, that it is difficult to exercise strict control over the smaller fry of officials, who sometimes abuse their positions, and the problem for them is to keep out the bad element. The higher officials are generally excellent. Sometimes clashes are precipitated by these smaller officials trying to enforce language regulations too much to the letter, such as stopping the singing of Slav songs when a wedding party is going on.

During the election a year ago violent incidents took place near Pola, in Istria, when several persons alleged to be Slavic fired on a group going to the polls to vote. Several Slavs were arrested and a couple were executed. More recently the Trieste paper Piccolo di Trieste was bombed. For this offense a group of Slavs were arrested and given stiff sentences. With the agitation and the spying and counterspying on each side, it is difficult to tell just how much of this is inspired by Communism and how much with unrest with Italian rule. The Italians themselves tell me that the importance of criminal activities of the Orjuna and organizations of a comitadji character beyond the border are exaggerated and that often cases of ordinary crime are attributed to political motives which do not exist. Crime and reprisal do, however, exist on both sides and may constitute danger of international complications.

The Italians admit that the problem of absorbing the Slavs in Venezia Julia is more difficult than that of the Germans in Tyrol, because the economic situation is worse. There is no tourist and hotel trade in Venezia Julia and, except in Trieste, Monfalcone, and Pola, there are no industries to absorb the Slavs. That leaves many unemployed in the poorer agricultural districts of Istria and Gradisca.

No Other Way.

Here and there in the country districts you may see the vestiges of former Slav names. Italian law has prescribed not only that all children must be given Italian names, but also that presently existing Slav names must be Italianized. The purpose is to eradicate the "ich" ending characteristic of Jugo-Slav names.

All this constitutes forcible denationalization, but there appears a certain amount of justice about the Italian claim that there is no other way out of it, and the Italian methods are not visibly worse than those of any other of the succession states that have minorities of foreign populations. Thus the Slav complaints about Italianized schools, banishment of language from church, courts, public administration and nomenclature, and the suppression of Slav athletic and cultural associations appear to be only the necessary and inevitable accompaniments of the application of a new political situation. Here as elsewhere local measures are influenced by the major fact of the fundamental antagonism between Belgrade and Rome.

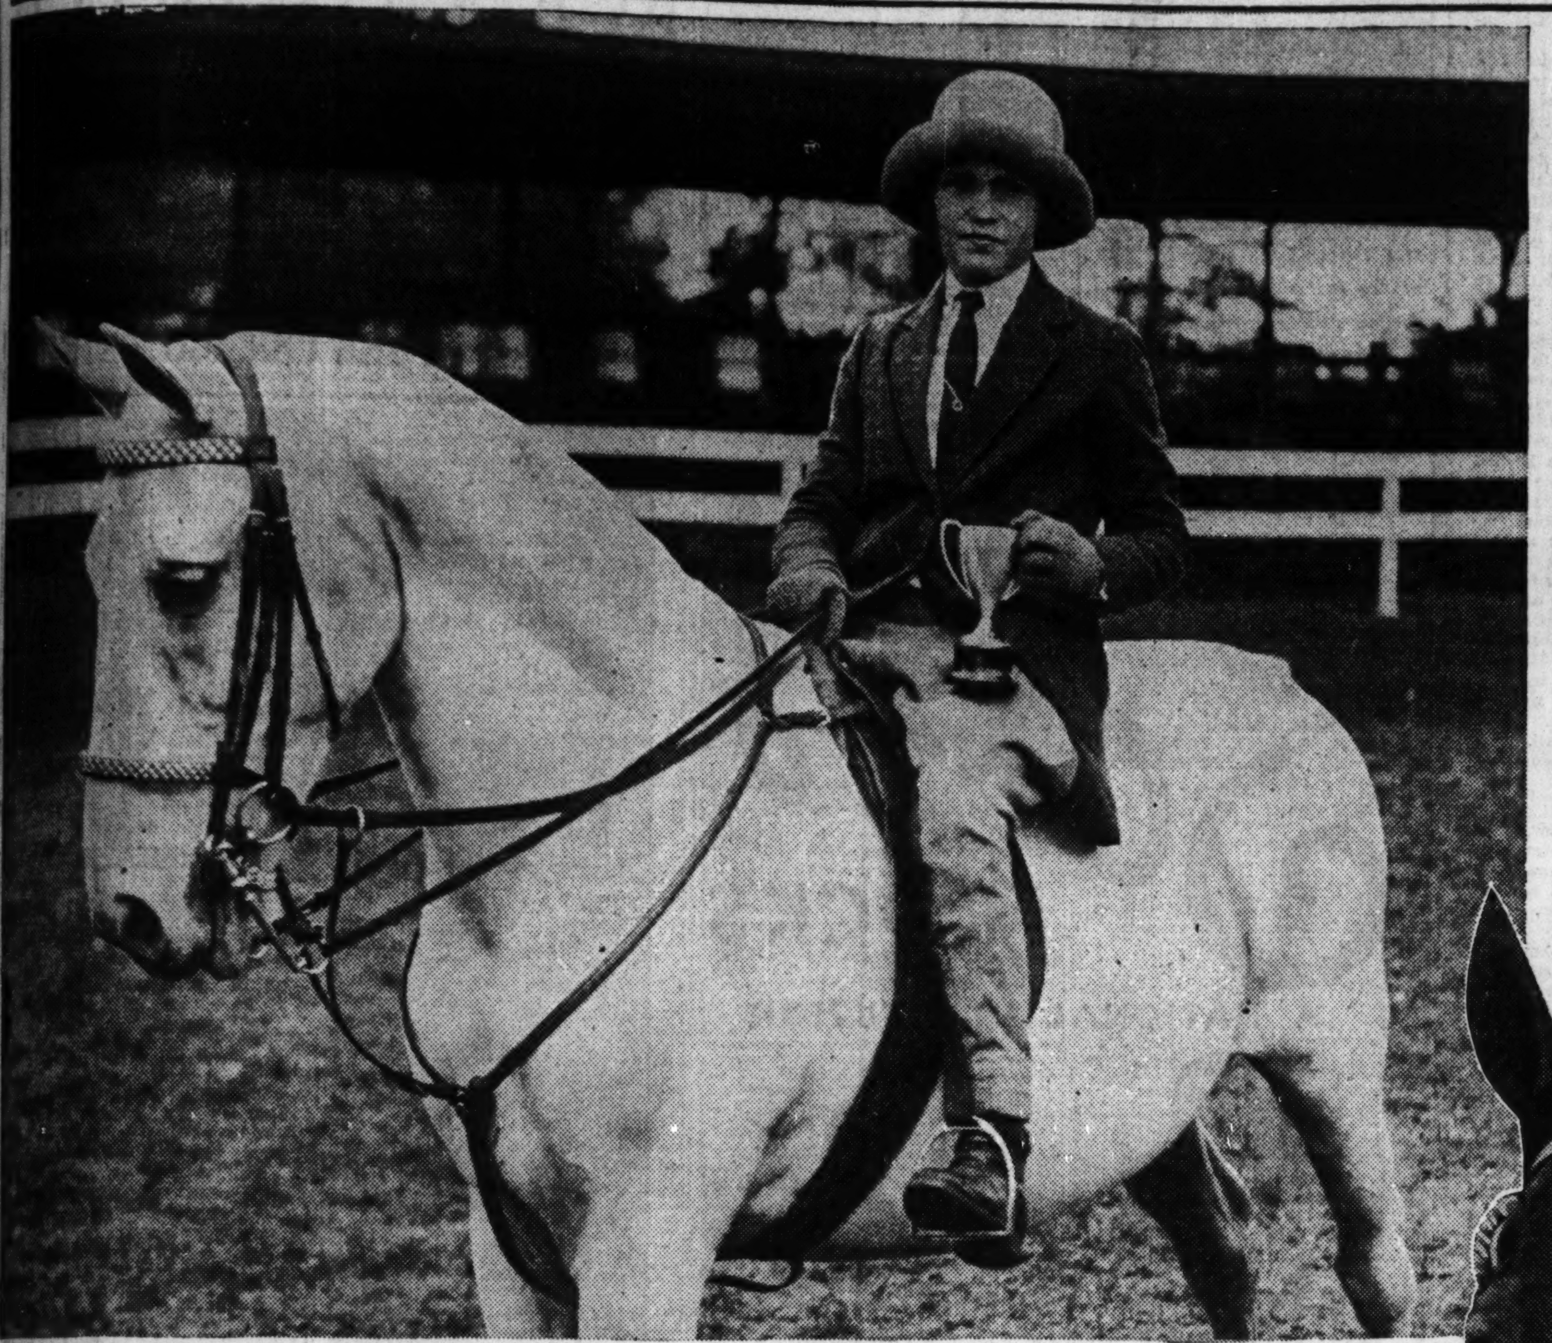
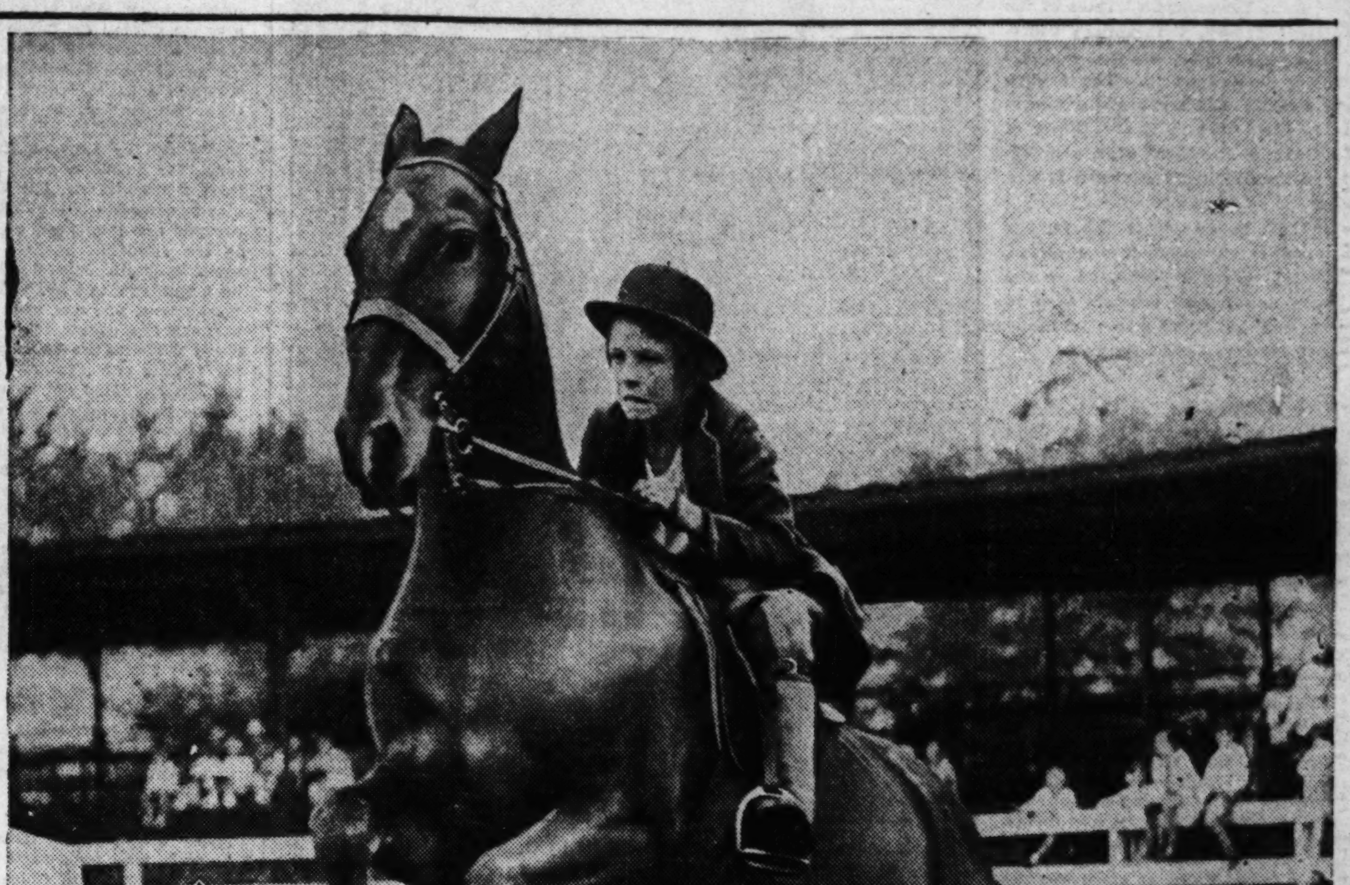
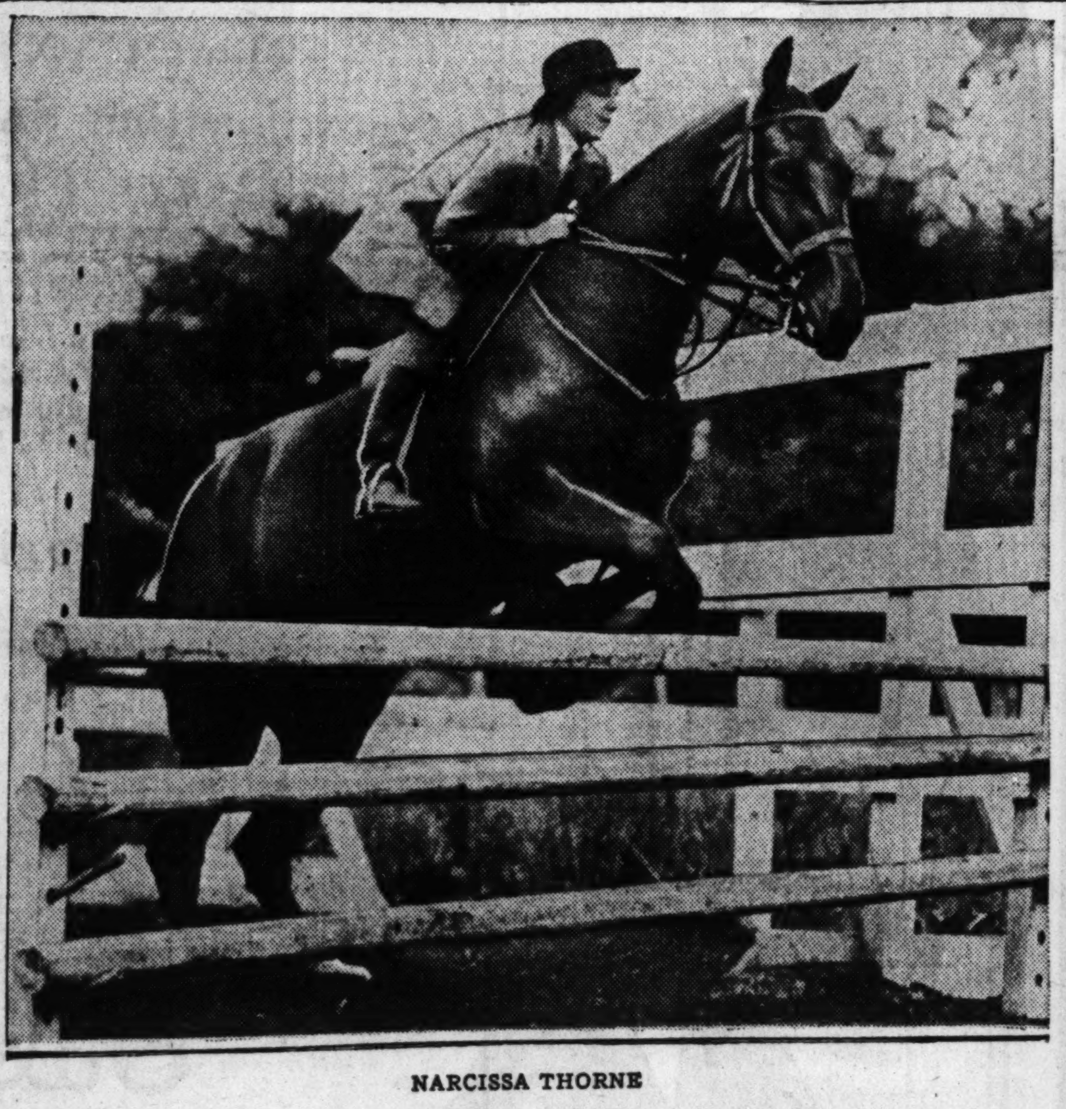
SMALL EQUESTRIENNES CARRY OFF PRIZES



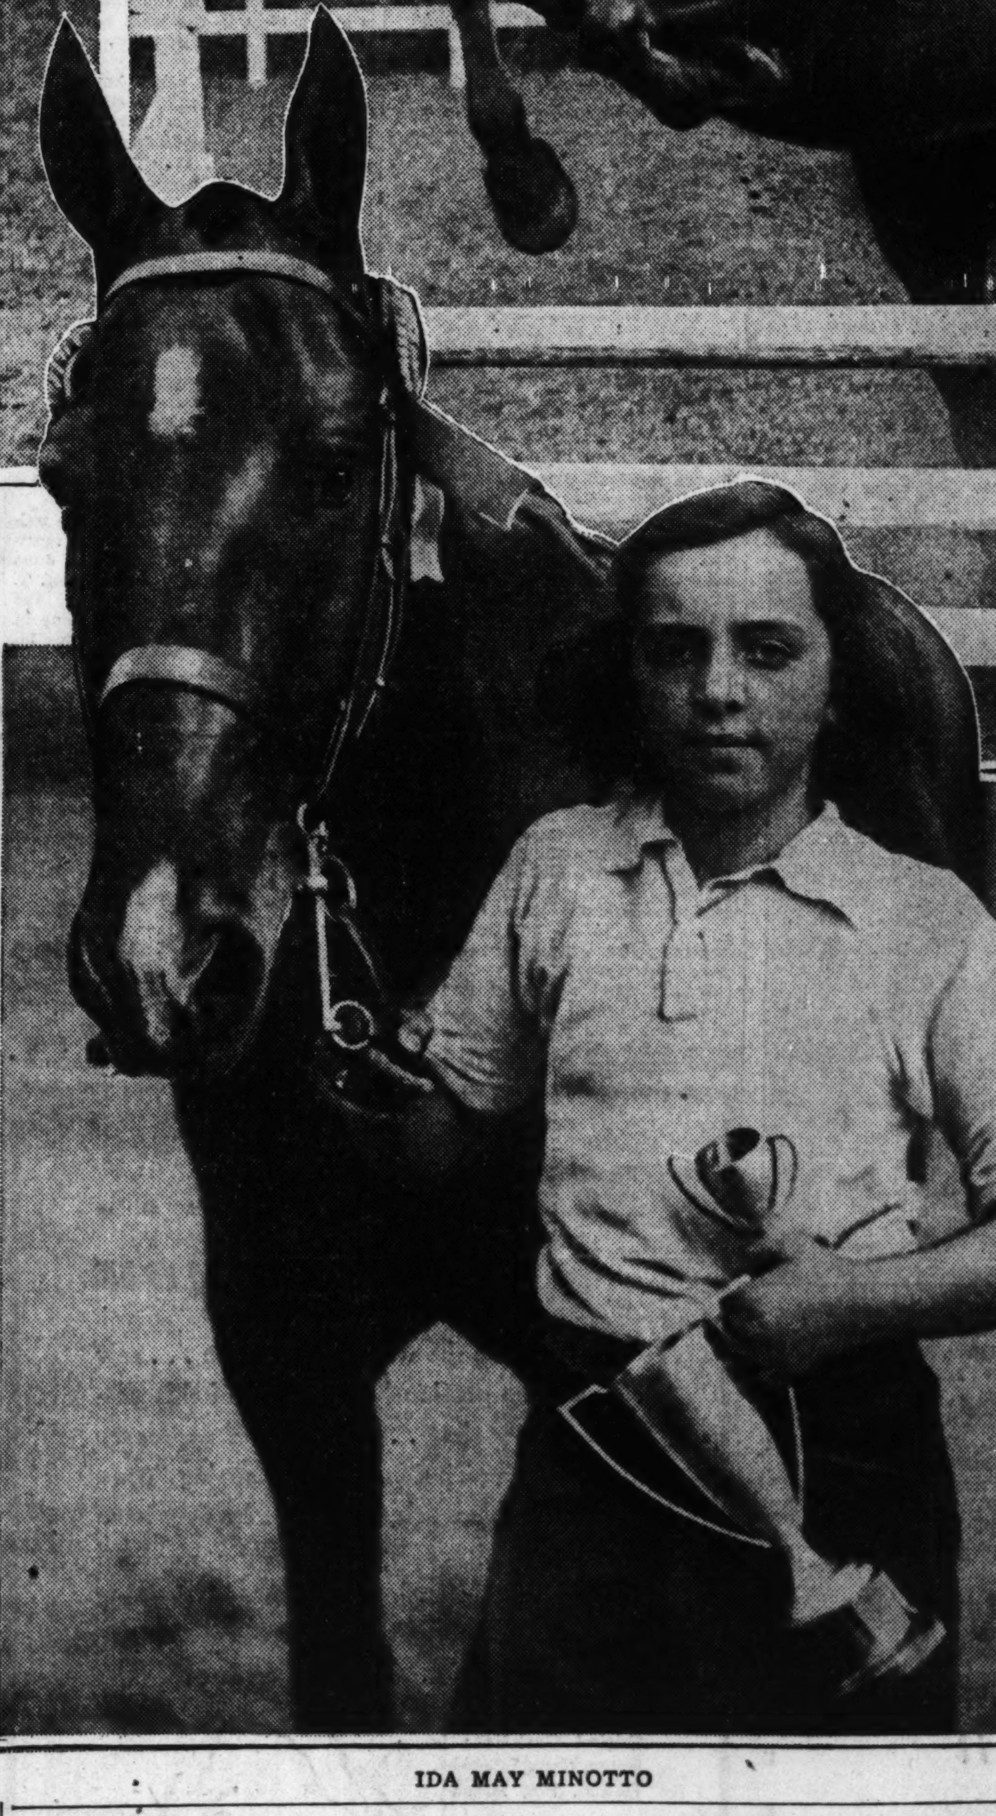
KAY GOODMAN



BETTY LORD



NARCISSA THORNE



IDA MAY MINOTTO

AMONG the prize winners at the children's horse show held at the Onwentsia show ring recently were Kay Goodman, daughter of Mrs. James M. Hopkins; Betty Lord, daughter of Mrs. Russell Lord; Ida May Minotto, the James Minottos' daughter, and Narcissa Thorne, daughter of the Robert J. Thornes.

Hunting Season Opens Today at the Milburn Club

Society Comes Home from Eastern Events.

By Mlle. X.

NOW that the Atlantic seaboard's two major attractions, the international polo matches at Meadowbrook and the yacht races at Newport, are over, any number of Chicago fashionables are homeward bound from the east.

The steeplechase yesterday at Onwentsia and today's official opening of the hunting season at the Milburn Hunt club are strong lures for a general trek toward this part of the world, but perhaps the greatest is the charm of this in-between-seasons lull out in the country. Gardens are bright with late blooming dahlias, marigolds, asters, and verbena; shady lanes beckon the energetic for walks or rides. There's time for meditation or for the planning of winter wardrobes and festivities, as the spirit wills.

Among the Chicago folk recently returned or on their way here are the Charles B. Pikes, the Wayne Chatfield-Taylors, Mrs. Arthur Aldis, the Charles E. Browns, and the Frederic McLaughlins.

Dog Refuge Rebuilt.

From Paris frocks to garden smocks—and who could look smarter in either?—might well have been the motif of Mrs. McLaughlin's chant as she stepped off the Century Tuesday morning. She and her husband had been having a gay ten day visit on Long Island with Miss Neysa McMein, but instead of loitering in town she hurried right out to her Lake Forest house and thence over to her pet enterprise, the Orphans of the Storm, to admire the trim new building just completed there.

Ever since early June, when the tap-tap of hammers and the busy buzz of saws first sounded out at the west end of Deerfield road, where the dog refuge known as the Orphans of the Storm has its merry and kindly existence, there's been a prevailing air of excitement in the neighborhood.

Last winter a fire destroyed the main building on the property and nearly all the "orphans" gathered within its shelter. The loss of the dogs was a source of grief to the many friends of the refuge, and the loss of the building brought up a real financial problem, as the undertaking is run entirely on donations and the budget of expenditures therefore small. However, during the months immediately following the fire sufficient funds were raised for another building, and now, at the end of the summer, a neat new edifice has risen from the ashes to take the place of the old, a memorial to the dogs who perished in the fire and a monument of hope to other lonely and homeless waifs.

In Memory of Lost Friends.

The walls are of white clapboard and the doors and window frames a bright green. Offices, kitchen, laundry, and caretaker's quarters occupy the central two story section and the [illegible] wings at either end are the last word in canine luxury. A bronze plaque bearing this inscription is set in the wall:

"This building is dedicated to the loving memory of Elephant, Jim, Mary, Pipps, Nellie, Gretchen, Girlie, Tee, Brownie, and the many other faithful friends who perished by fire Feb. 11, 1930."

From the time that she was a small girl, Irene Castle McLaughlin has had a warm place in her heart for dumb animals, especially those unfortunates misunderstood and badly treated by an unkind world. She once bought a sad, old, moth-eaten bear from its unsympathetic owner, and then spent many hours and dollars in the effort to get it a home. She has befriended and adopted countless dogs, and she founded the Orphans of the Storm for that purpose—to help find good homes for the worthy and to put the unfit out of their misery, quickly, scientifically, and painlessly.

One of her pleas just now is to the owners of dogs no longer wanted—not to desert them out in the country as is, alas, too often the case, but to find a shelter for them somehow, somewhere.

* *

A Plea for Kindness.

Here is her own description of such a situation:

"Picture what happens to a dog deserted out in the country . . . The dog races frantically after the car. He thinks it was all a mistake . . . he can't bark or attract their attention—he's too winded and exhausted in a futile effort to keep up. He finds he is losing—other cars pass him—he realizes he has lost sight of his protectors. . . . He turns back—they may have returned to where they left him. It must have been a game; they will be worried if he is not there!

"Poor, trusting brute—he will never believe that they meant to do it. He finds the spot and hunts hopefully about. . . . It begins to get dark—he feels cold—he must find some protection from the wind—but he must not go far. His family may come back at any minute. . . .

"He shivers a little—he's never slept outdoors before—he feels hungry for the first time and he has never learned to forage for his food. . . . A passerby calls to him . . . he mustn't let any stranger pick him up . . . it's hard to be cold, hungry, and so homesick!

"What did they mean when they put him out of the car? Where—where to go to find them?"

Just as soon as the construction work on the building was well under way Mrs. McLaughlin skipped off for her annual European outing, leaving the supervision of activities to her able and industrious lieutenant, Miss Mildred FitzHugh. And now, when everything at the Orphans is in apple pie order—probably early next month—there will be a gala housewarming in the new quarters, a party to which the board of governors and the advisory board will receive an invitation.

Serving in the first group are Mrs. R. R. McCormick, Mrs. Frank Walls, Mrs. Louis L. Hunt, Mrs. William Dennison Morris, John Jay Abbott, and Lewis Myers, while the advisers include Mrs. Earle H. Reynolds, John T. McCutcheon, and Christian P. Paschen.

Noted Britisher Expected.

Because our Windy City is a naturally hospitable spot, each year brings its quota of distinguished visitors within her gates. Their purposes vary, as does the length of time they stay, but while they are here they are fêted and made welcome. The winter season will be hard put to it to rival the summer roster in numbers, thanks to the August guestbook so crowded with famous legal and flying signatures, but already there is word of one prominent guest who is planning a visit here before long.

That brilliant Britisher, Sir Philip Sassoon, is sailing for America Wednesday on the Europa, and after a month or so on our west coast will come to Chicago. Sir Philip is the son of the late Sir Edward Sassoon. He is a man whose interests are legion—he has a splendid war record; he is a connoisseur and collector of modern paintings; he is as air-minded as they make 'em; and he's an ardent golfer. One of his purposes in coming to this country is to have another game of golf with a certain R. T. Jones of Atlanta, Ga.—follow-up of a recent match played in England with the ineffable "Bobby" and the prince of Wales.

A Distinguished Career.

During the war Sir Philip served as secretary to the late Earl Haig, then Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig, commander in chief in charge of British

WHEN CHICAGO WAS YOUNG

By Herma Clark.

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend, Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, July 3, 1874.

Dear Julia:

There is no service in our church today, so I am staying home and will write to you.

Will and I took a Sunday morning walk on the near north side, early this morning, and were surprised to see how many new houses are up or going up. Passing along some of these thoroughfares one can hardly realize that all was desolation and ruin here little more than two years ago.

J. T. Ryerson is finishing a new double residence, situated on Cass street fronting west, a little south of Ontario street. It is a large house of brick and stone, with a spacious front entrance and a porch of cut stone.

On Huron street, fronting south, on the northeast corner of Cass street, Julian Rumsey is finishing a large double brick residence. It is three stories high, stands on spacious grounds, planted with elms, and has a porch in front, which extends on the side. When it is completed and the stable is finished the whole thing will cost about $40,000.

On the northeast corner of Rush and Huron streets stands the handsome double brick house of Henry W. King, finished and occupied. A little to the northwest, at State and Superior streets, the Catholic church of the Holy Name is going up. Will says there is a tremendous force of masons and stonecutters there, every week day, busy on this great building. We stepped inside to see how it is getting along and found that the mason work is all completed and the inside brick work well along. The main entrance is on State street, and the building occupies almost the entire block on Superior street.

On La Salle avenue, near Oak, Charles Henrotin has just completed a fine brick house. It is beautifully finished inside in carved black walnut, with French veneer finish.

Will thinks the "swell fronts," about which every one is crazy here, are in poor taste. When these houses stand alone, it is not so bad, but in a row of such houses, one has so little privacy. The side window of your neighbor's "swell front" house always comes within a few feet of your front door, which isn't pleasant. In the summer time, when the windows are open, you cannot utter the slightest whisper that isn't heard by your neighbor. Then the pleasure of sitting out on front steps, on a balmy evening, is utterly destroyed. Will calls "swell fronts" dowdy, and says most of the best architects object vigorously to them. I really am glad our little Rush street house is a "straight front."

We attended the commencement exercises at Chicago university on Friday. Will was anxious to go, because he is much interested in a bright young fellow by the name of Frank Loesch, who took his degree in law there, this year. Will hopes to have him come into the law office of Freeman and Esmond, for he feels Mr. Loesch has a bright future, but I think the young man has other plans.

We heard the usual ebullitions of eloquence from embryo orators. It was awfully hot, and we left before the exercises were over. It is no longer the custom to have every graduate deliver an address, I am glad to say, but even so, it was long and tedious enough. One youth spoke on "The Perils

New York Agog Over Outcome of Yacht Races

Bring a Vanderbilt Into Prominence Again.

By Nancy Randolph.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—[Special.]—There doesn't seem to be much doubt about our having become international minded. Just mention the fact of any competitions between America and some other country, preferably Britain, and not only society, but all New York becomes quite warm and agitated.

All week long the attention of the town has been lavishly bestowed upon quaint old Sir Thomas Lipton and "Mike" Vanderbilt, who in the last few days has become better known to every one than during all the years when to speak of bridge meant to think of Harold Stirling Vanderbilt and to mention "contract" meant no one else.

Bridge Enthusiast.

Not even society itself has ever had much interest in "Mike" Vanderbilt. For all his forty odd years and his huge bulk, "Mike" is decidedly shy. He never made one of the men-about-town, like Willie Stewart, or Alden Gray or "Crownie" Crowninshield. Summers he cruised on his various yachts or went abroad and winters he fished the waters around Palm Beach, and all the while he played bridge.

Once upon a time we all thought it might be a match between "Mike" and Eleanora Sears, but that fell through and neither of them, though remaining good friends, has shown any desire to marry.

Now, since he has been skippering the amazing Enterprise, "Mike" Vanderbilt's name has been on all lips. He has quite eclipsed Tommy Hitchcock and Winnie Guest as a sensational subject to social conversation. Debutantes who looked upon him as a rather stout and stodgy bachelor are sighing to know him, and "Mike" is due to cut and run for it shortly, since if he remains around town his life will be made somewhat miserable.

Fog Interference.

Newport has never known such a gathering of boats as this week has endowed it with. And never so many days of fog, either. In fact, to my mind the fogs have been quite the most striking feature of the race week. At times we have not only been unable to distinguish the Shamrock and Enterprise, but we have been unable to see the yachts a hundred yards to either side of us.

Seemingly every yacht of the New York Yacht club register turned out for the week's sport. The Morgan armies in France. Later he was parliamentary secretary to Lloyd George, and from 1924 to 1929 he was the under secretary for air. In that capacity he flew to India and established the route for the Imperial Airways.

He is a major [retired] in the Royal East Kent Yeomanry; a trustee of the National gallery, the Wallace collection, and the Tate gallery, and his military honors include: The French and Belgian Military crosses, Chevalier of the Legion of Honor, Officer of the Order of the Black Star, and Officer of the Order of the Crown of Belgium

One of his estates is the famous Lympne [pronounced, if you please, Lim-nee] near Folkestone, where the French and British cabinets used to meet, and his whole name is Philip Albert Gustave David Sassoon.

Off to Alaska.

When, a few years ago, the John Bordens invited a group of their friends to cruise with them to Alaska aboard the Northern Light, Miss Edith Cummings was one of the fortunate souls to receive a bid. It was one of the regrets of her busy young life that she couldn't go along to take a shot at an elusive Kodiak bear, but she felt that three months was pretty long to be away from home.

This summer, however, her ambition to camp and hunt in Alaska has been realized. With three Philadelphians—Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Gowen and Thomas Evans—she set forth last month for that chilly and distant spot, going by boat to Skagway, and thence by rail up into the wilds. The train from Skagway took five hours to go some fifty-odd miles, so steep was the climb, and from there the adventurous little caravan went on by foot.

So far, only brief postal card accounts have come back from the travelers, but when Miss Cummings reaches her parental rooftree on Oct. 12 she will doubtless have many thrilling tales to tell of her experiences.

That same parental rooftree is at the moment filled to capacity, which is just what its owners, Mr. and Mrs. D. Mark Cummings, like best. The Dexter Cummingses and their youngsters are tehere; baby carriages and ping-pong tables are much in evidence, and every one seems more than satisfied with the arrangement.

Drama Group Gathers.

Out along the north shore there is at present a decided stir in things dramatic. That enterprising little group, the Circuit Theater Association of the North Shore, has gathered its cohorts, scattered during the summer months, and is preparing to launch its winter work with its customary pep and energy.

On Friday the officers and committees met for tea at Mrs. Laird Bell's charming Winnetka house to talk over plans for the coming season. Four plays are given each winter, with eight performances divided among six north shore towns—Evanston, Wilmette, Winnetka, Glencoe, Highland Park, and Lake Forest.

Prof. Lawrence Martin of the Northwestern university school of Journalism, Mrs. Bell, and Arthur H. Boettcher, who make up the association's play reading committee, have already selected two of the four for this year—"The Racket," by Bartlett Cormack, and Galsworthy's "A Bit o' Love"—and the first presentation is scheduled for Dec. 4.

Governing Officers.

Samuel Otis of Winnetka is president of the organization, with J. William Macy of Hubbard Woods as vice president, Mrs. Frederick Dickinson of the same suburb as secretary, Gordon Wilson of Wilmette, treasurer, and John Allen Stewart of Evanston in the rôle of business manager.

The town chairmen include Mrs. Charles F. Hemenway, Mrs. Eugene A. Bishop, Miss Mary Walsh, and Mrs. Samuel D. Boggs for Evanston; Mrs. Edmond M. Simonds for Wilmette; Mrs. Merritt Lum, Winnetka; Mrs. Norman H. Camp, Glencoe; Mrs. Constance C. Hopkins, Highland Park, and Mrs. Harold Ambler for Lake Forest. On the latter's committee are Mrs. William E. Casselberry Jr., Mrs. William Burry Jr., Mrs. Clifford McCullough, Mrs. Richard Bentley, Mrs. Howard Peabody, and Mrs. J. N. Lee.

Rummage Sale at Southampton Nets Five Thousand

SOUTHAMPTON, L. I., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—The annual rummage sale in aid of the Fresh Air Home fund netted close to five thousand dollars. The sale was the most successful ever held. Among the members of the executive committee were Mrs. Eliot Betts Hoadley, Mrs. Goodhue Livingston, Mrs. Albert Boardman, Mrs. Edward Purcell Mellon, Mrs. Robert M. Littlejohn, Mrs. Finley Peter Dunne, Mrs. Edward Van Ingen, Mrs. Phillips B. Thompson, Mrs. Charles E. Merrill, Mrs. Charles J. Coulter, Mrs. Robert Waller, Mrs. George C. Clark, Mrs. Joseph H. Clark, Mrs. William Robinson Simonds and Agnes Keyes.

With this season completely at an end, plans are being laid for next season. Many new rentals have been made. Mr. and Mrs. Preston Davie have again leased the Gordon place. Mr. and Mrs. Crawford Hill are to occupy the West cottage.

Justin O'Brien, one of the sons of Judge and Mrs. Morgan J. O'Brien, has purchased the ocean front propery adjacent to the William F. Ladd residence. He will build two houses there next season.

Mrs. Frederick Grosby and Mrs. Henry Beadleston are the guests of Mrs. Eliot Betts Hoadley at her residence, the Mallows.

of Popularity," representing them as quite awful, but as Will says, this will probably not prevent his hearers from struggling to become mayor.

Another young bacehlor of arts took as his theme David Livingstone, speaking favorably of the deceased, as Will puts it. Still another dilated on "The Character of Edmund Burke."

Poor Chicago university has had a rough road to travel for some time. Stephen A. Douglas might have been able to help it out of the slough of despond, if he had lived, for he did a great deal for it, in the beginning, but its struggles have been quite pathetic. The campus has long been an eyesore to the residents in that part of town, and its sole building has been rundown and neglected. The telescope, a fine one, was unused, because the construction of the tower made its use impossible, and the trifling sum required to make the change could not be obtained.

This year, under the temporary presidency of Judge Doolittle (he will not accept the leadership of the institution, save for a limited time), many improvements have been made. The grounds have been replatted, and rubbish removed. A fund has been started for making the telescope usable. So the skies look brighter for the school, Judge Hoyne tells us.

I have just bought a new switch at Burnham's, a nice large one, for only $33. It had been $45, so I felt I was getting a real bargain. With the new hats, one needs a good deal of hair, I think.

Much love to you all.
MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

Foot Notes.

That "bright young fellow," Frank J. Loesch, who took his degree from the old University of Chicago in 1874, is still a light in the legal profession of Chicago, striking terror to the hearts of evildoers.

The Henry W. King house still stands in dignity at the northeast corner of Rush and Huron streets, while back of it, on sophisticated North Michigan avenue, rolls the river of traffic, beside which great office buildings rise.

The John Winterbothams occupy the old Julian Rumsey house, at the corner of Huron and Cass streets.

The first Chicago university, of which Martha speaks so lightly, was an outstanding institution of learning in the middle of the 19th century. The best families of Chicago sent their sons here. It originated in the grant, by Stephen A. Douglas, of ten acres of land, on the west side of Cottage Grove avenue, north of 35th street. Financial panics, the civil war, and the fire of 1871, combined to make its progress difficult.

In 1885, all hope of saving the university was gone, and the heavy mortgage was foreclosed. But it had done a real service. It is called by Prof. T. W. Goodspeed, historian of the present University of Chicago, one of the forces which created the later institution.

Expense of German War Wounded Has Monthly Increase

BERLIN.—(AP)—The number of German war wounded in receipt of public relief has increased within twelve months by 31,800 to 839,396, and still is rising.

The explanation is that in many cases, after effects of old wounds or injuries are telling upon the victims and impairing their earning capacity. Employers look askance at workers who are semi-invalids; thus, fresh application for relief are in excess of the gradual reduction of the lists of deaths.

Supporting these unfortunates is a heavy drain on the German exchequer, but government actuaries think that no permanent savings can be looked for in this direction until 1932.

MRS. HARRY VALLETTE.
[Lewis-Smith Photo.]

MRS. MARY A. WALL of Murphysboro assumed her duties as president of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs last week. She has been chairman of the federation endowment fund for two years.

Mrs. Robert de Golyer was recently appointed chairman of the board of management of the loop Y. W. C. A. She will take charge of the manifold interests of the institution next month.

Mrs. Harry Vallette is the new presiding officer of the Martha Washington Home for Crippled Children, which holds monthly meetings throughout the season at the Blackstone hotel.

Subjects for Study Range from Gardening to International Relations with Special Stress Laid on Development of Regional Conferences.

By Roberta Nangle.

NOW that the children have all been fitted out with new duds for school, mother will have to tap the charge account for a suitable dress to wear to the opening club meeting of the season. For the new club year is dawning in a rosy glow of ambitious promises and expectations.

The parent of all the state clubs, the Illinois Federation, summoned its officers and board of directors last week to a two day series of conferences. These conferences set the keynote of the year's work for women all over the state.

The federation embraces 749 clubs with a total of 72,671 members, who pay a per capita tax. In addition to these there are 43 small federations composed of groups of clubs totaling 847 organizations, each of which is affiliated with the state federation.

Announce Year's Program.

The program mapped out by the parent for the sister clubs includes a variety of subjects for study ranging from gardening to international relations. This year, the new president, Mrs. Mary A. Wall of Murphysboro, Ill., is stressing the development of regional conferences. These meetings of the clubs of two or more districts have been found to be a splendid means of educating women about the work of the federation. Dates and places have been set during the month of October for a conference for every district in the state, thus enabling the federation program to get under way at the beginning of the season. The Chicago districts will hold an all day meeting on Oct. 30 at the Stevens hotel.

Other projects which loom large this season are a systematic public health survey throughout the state and the stimulation of interest in the nationwide celebration of the two hundredth anniversary of George Washington's birthday.

Last but not least, the federation plans to complete its endowment fund of $100,000. Since the women already have raised all but about $8,000 of that sum, it seems safe to predict that the endowment will be nicely tucked away long before the end of the present season. Here's wishing them luck.

New President.

The new president, Mrs. Wall, who wielded the gavel for the first time last week, has a background of club experience that should enable her to guide the destinies of the federation with ease and efficiency. She was formerly president of the Twenty-fifth district, as well as first vice president of the federation, and for the last two years was the able chairman of the endowment fund.

Department chairmen for the new season include Mrs. Ellen M. Yockey of Taylorville, American citizenship; Mrs. J. Marc Fowler, whom Mrs. Wall succeeds as president, in charge of Indian welfare, which has long been one of her chief interests; Mrs. William M. Gourley of Lake Forest, law observance; Mrs. Wilbur E. Fribley, American home; Mrs. Edward J. Marke, art; Mrs. Willis M. Graham, community service; Mrs. W. A. Ball of Carmi, education; Mrs. Charles E. Caldwell, gardens; Mrs. Charles E. Shearman, international relations; Mrs. James G. Davidson, junior membership; Miss M. L. Carpenter, legislation and civil service; Mrs. James Henry Jackson, literature and library extension; Mrs. Richard M. McClure, motion pictures; Mrs. C. B. Scott of Wenona, Ill., music; Mrs. William T. Bruckner of Hinsdale, press and publicity; Dr. Grace S. Wightman of Springfield, public health and child welfare; Mrs. Walter H. Schwedler of La Grange, radio.

Downtown Clubs

The study group on local government of the Cook County League of Women Voters called "The Cook county council," will hold its first fall meeting on Tuesday, from 10:30 to 2 o'clock, at the league headquarters, 203 North Wabash avenue, with Mrs. Walter J. Evans, chairman, in charge. The group, which is composed of the president and four delegates from each of the twenty-six local leagues in the county, divides into six round tables in the morning for the study of the following subjects: Cook county government; Sanitary district affairs; Chicago affairs; city and village affairs; Chicago school affairs, and Cook county school affairs. In addition the presidents meet for the discussion of common problems in league work.

After luncheon, which will be served by the Western Springs league, the group will come together for a general discussion. "The Sanitary District in Pictures" will be presented by an engineer of the district; "The Sanitary District in the November Election" will be discussed by Mrs. R. S. Childs, chairman of the Sanitary district committee. The proposal for filtering Chicago's water will be discussed by Mrs. A. P. Anderson, chairman of the Chicago Affairs committee.

The membership chairmen of the local leagues of women voters in Cook county will meet on Friday at 2 p. m. with the organization and membership chairman for the county, Mrs. Egbert G. Jacobson, to make plans for the coming year.

The summer activities committee of the Chicago Woman's club will give a luncheon on Thursday at 12:30 o'clock. A style show will follow.

The Alliance of Business and Professional Women will hold its first regular meeting of the season tomorrow evening at the Chicago Woman's club. Miss Isabella Dolton, assistant superintendent of Chicago schools, will speak.

The Medical Women's Club of Chicago will hold a reception and tea this afternoon from 3 until 6 o'clock at the Illinois Women's Athletic club. Dr. Eliza Morse, who called the first meeting of medical women that resulted in the founding of the club, twenty years ago, and two other members of the early group, Dr. Anna Braunwarth and Dr. Mary M. S. Johnstone, will be present.

The Cook county branch of the Illinois Woman's Democratic club will hold its first regular meeting of the season on Tuesday afternoon at the Sherman hotel. A debate on women on juries will be a feature of the program.

The Illinois branch of the National Society of Sons and Daughters of the Pilgrims will hold its annual meeting and luncheon on Thursday at the Stevens hotel. The program will include a discussion of the restoration of Jamestown Island, Williamsburg, and Yorktown.

The Cook County Woman's Christian Temperance union will hold its twenty-ninth annual convention tomorrow and Wednesday at the Englewood Baptist church. Morning sessions will open at 10 o'clock and afternoon meetings at 1:45.

The Daughters of Indiana will give their annual card party for the Loan Art School fund on Tuesday at 2 p. m. at the Carleton hotel in Oak Park.

Neighborhood Clubs

Mrs. Thomas J. Magner of 5434 Hyde Park boulevard will be hostess to the Arché club at a luncheon and bridge tomorrow at the South Shore Country club.

The Kenwood Social Service club will hold its first regular fall meeting tomorrow at the residence of Miss Gwendolyn Cummins at 5100 Hyde Park boulevard.

The board of directors of the Mothers' Aid of the Lying-In hospital will hold its opening meeting on Wednesday at 10 a. m. at the Community House of the Temple Isaiah-Israel.

The Woodlawn League of Women Voters will open its fall meeting with a program on Wednesday at 12:15 p. m. in the Woodlawn Baptist church assembly hall. CLUB ETHICS

By Maude Swalm Evans.

THE committee chairman introduced her guest to a group of club friends at the opening reception and they all stood visiting together as they drank their tea.

"The one in blue near the end of the line was our president last year," the committee chairman told her guest. "It was the second time she'd served our club as president. She's a charter member, too."

"I understand her name is to be presented for honorary president at our next meeting," said the librarian.

"That's pretty nice," commented the new member. "She won't have to pay any more dues."

"She will if she wishes to remain a member of our club," declared the parliamentarian. "Honorary office or membership is a title only and carries with it no responsibilities and no privileges except those of attending meetings and taking part in debate."

"Then a woman can be both an active and an honorary member of a club at the same time?" asked the committee chairman.

"Why, of course," answered the parliamentarian. "Otherwise, honoring her would mean depriving her of the right to be active in her club. Honorary members cannot vote, or hold office, or make motions, or raise questions of order."

"That's interesting," reflected the suburban member. "Last year one of our members refused to be made an honorary officer because some of the members told her she couldn't be active if she accepted, and she wished to be active."

"Imagine a woman refusing to let her club pay her the highest compliment within its power," interposed the librarian.

"I heard of a case where a woman, because she was moving to another state, resigned from both active and honorary membership," recalled the suburban member.

"And she probably didn't realize she was being discourteous," said the parliamentarian. "Honorary membership is conferred for life. Resigning from active membership doesn't effect it. But girls, isn't the music beautiful and aren't the gowns gorgeous?"

New York Agog Over Outcome of Yacht Races

Bring a Vanderbilt Into Prominence Again.

Corsair, with Junius Morgan and Thomas W. Lamont aboard, and Lotusland, of Col. Robert Leeds, are often mistaken for one another, though the latter carries a hydroplane on its upper deck.

Nourmahal, of course, has had a large group of guests, with Commodore and Mrs. Vincent Astor having Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop W. Aldrich, Schuyler Parsons, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Budd, Mrs. Charles B. Alexander, and Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Iselin Jr. The George F. Baker Jrs. had with them Mr. and Mrs. W. Goadby Loew and Eleanora Sears who has been the guest of the Hermann Oelrichs, Charles Marshall and Mr. and Mrs. Oelrichs.

Aloha, Loveliest of All.

Undoubtedly the loveliest of all was Aloha, belonging to Commodore and Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James, which is to sail shortly for a run across to Europe. With its huge spread of white sails set before the breeze the Aloha bursts on one like a "Faery ship on perilous seas forlorn."

Harry Payne Whitney's Whileaway has also been among the craft at Newport, as have been Gerald Lambert's Atlantic, E. F Hutton's Hussar, F. R. Strawbridge's Sea Gypsy, William Thaw's Aurora, Alfred Sloane Jr.'s Rene, and Capt. Isaac Emerson's Queen Anne.

Every one has been circulating about the Ida Lewis Yacht club in the nattiest of sea togs. Berets, flannel skirts, and very nautical jackets of red and white have been the garb of most the matrons and misses. Every one speaks glibly of jibs and spinnakers, and it has all been too salty for words.

Hint of Romance.

Incidentally Newport has had its bit of gossip, and this concerns no less a lad than Percy R. Pyne 2d, long a notable catch in the estimation of matrons with marriageable daughters. Percy has been officially summering at "Rivington House," his estate at Roslyn, L. I., but he has made so many trips to Newport this summer that no one could mistake the cause.

She, I may say, is none other than Mrs. Malcolm Meacham, the former Dorothy Hurt and widow of the jolly Mal Meacham, whose tragic passing made such a sensation. Dorothy passed her first season at Newport and was made much of. Together with her sister she was quite a figure in the younger ranks before Mal Meacham, a hide bound bachelor, met her, fell in love, and married her.

The Meacham interests being concerned with Palm Beach, it was there that Dorothy made her fullest contacts with society. Following her widowhood Mrs. Meacham began to be taken to the bosom of the older members of society. Her first summer at Newport followed, and now the quid nuncs insist that Percy Payne 2d is aching to ask her to share his fortunes.

Biddles Desert Palm Beach.

One of the mysteries of town is why the Anthony J. Drexel Biddle Jrs. have given up Palm Beach. For many a winter the "Tony" Biddles were leaders in the Florida resort, and nothing was done without "Tony" being consulted and taking an active part. For the last two seasons, however, the Biddles have not gone near Palm Beach, and early this year they placed their villa, "Del Sarmiento," on the market, thus proving that their abandonment of the Florida spa is complete.

Of course there have been the inevitable rumors that Tony and Mary, who was born Mary Duke, daughter of the late Benjamin Duke and sister of the late Anglier Duke, who married Tony's sister, Cordelia, now Mrs. Thomas Markoe Robertson, were agreeing to disagree, but so far the couple are doing nothing to prove that the rumors are correct.

Tony and Mary are making an addition to their Fifth avenue home and intend to be quite active this winter. I wonder, though, what will happen when all the rest of their crowd depart for Florida. One never knows, but the impulse to join the Huttons, Mundses, and such will be a strong one.

Law Orders Thirst Relief.

BUDAPEST, Hungary.—(AP)—Jan Almassy, a building foreman, sued his employer for $100 a month, saying it would take that much to buy drinks with which to assuage an unquenchable thirst caused by liver injuries received in an accident. He was granted $54 a month.

BRIDE-TO-BE

MISS PHYLLIDA DELG.
[Bachrach Photo.]

Mr. and Mrs. Paul W. Delg of Evanston announce the engagement of their daughter, Phyllida, to Lieut. J. Gordon Fowler of Scott field, Belleville, Ill., son of Mr. and Mrs. I. Fowler of Minneapolis, Minn., and London, England.

Coincidences

Your strange coincidence will be printed if you will submit it to "Strange Coincidences," Chicago Tribune.

After a Spat.

We were married when very young and neither of us was out without the other. To "run around nights" and especially without each other constituted the height of impropriety for married folks and to our youthful minds seemed sufficient grounds for divorce.

One day after a disagreement which in reality was only a mole hill, but which, to me, assumed mountainous proportions, I decided to do the very worst thing I could think of to "show him what was what!"

I purchased a reserved seat for a show in our local playhouse for that evening, secretly.

With a great feeling of having squared things, I settled myself in my seat and prepared to enjoy this very unusual treat.

I was no sooner settled than the usher directed a gentleman to the seat on my right.

Said gentleman was my husband, who also had undertaken to "show me and had ordered the seat, unaware that I also was going out that evening.

There were a few glares, but young love triumphed and we returned home arm in arm. F. A. B.

Started with the Stamps.

My sister was collecting foreign stamps. Her employer, knowing this, always saved the stamped envelopes and gave them to her. One day he handed her an envelope bearing a South African stamp. My sister was delighted and being interested in Africa, decided to write to the English major who had sent the letter. She did so and he replied. They corresponded for several years during which time he sent her many pictorial books on South Africa.

One day sister announced, "I received a phone call from Maj. B —— today. He had just arrived in Chicago and wants me to meet him tomorrow." And now there's one more colonial in South Africa, for he took my sister back with him. M. S.

A Chance Meeting.

Several years ago while in Los Angeles I met a young woman of whom I became quite fond. The feeling seemed to be mutual and in a week I had invited her to come with her husband to dinner at my home, and meet my hubby. She accepted.

On the specified date they arrived and we found our husbands staring as if they knew one another. So while we put the finishing touches to the dinner they went out on the porch for a little "get acquainted" chat.

About ten minutes later they burst in greatly excited like two schoolboys and exclaimed to us, both in the same breath, that they had known each other ten years ago. They had both been in the navy and had served on the same ship.

Speaking of coincidences, this was one, and their renewed friendship is even greater than that of ten years ago. H. D.

Memories.

We were married forty years ago. The ceremony was at 7 p. m. in Burlington, Ia. As we descended the stairs to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, the family clock struck the hour of seven. On the fortieth anniversary of our marriage we were driving through Iowa, and stopped for the night at the Lincoln hotel at Jefferson, Ia. As we came down the stairs to go to the dining room my wife called attention to the hour as indicated by the office clock, exactly 7 o'clock. The almost unbelievable part of my little story is that as we stepped from the last step of the stairs the radio in the office pealed forth the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, which was followed by a complete marriage ceremony, a repetition of our own marriage ceremony just forty years ago and to the exact minute. It proved to a N. B. C. program and was an actual wedding ceremony. With somewhat of a shock we were carried back over forty years of time to the beginning of our married life. J. T. H.

Tribune on Job.

On Sunday evening I was looking over some letters carried last winter on the first official Canadian airmail flight into the Arctic region. No map at hand showed the location of the farthest point reached, a place called Aklavik. It was a rather happy coincidence for me that the following morning the map accompanying THE TRIBUNE's interesting letter from Shingle Point, Arctic ocean, Canada, should show the postoffice point, Aklavik! C. C. L.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

What was the most embarrassing moment of your life? If you care to have it published, address Embarrassing Moments, Chicago Tribune. Please write on one side of the paper. No manuscripts returned.

Administration of Justice.

When I was a child about ten years old, I was taken to my big brother's wedding. Having always lived on a farm, I knew little about such affairs. At the wedding supper the butter was cut in little cubes. Thinking it was cheese I took a piece and proceeded to eat it. The older guests were amused and laughed so heartily that, becoming more embarrassed and practically losing my head for the moment, I picked up a potato and threw it at the lady who was most amused. It happened to be my brother's new sister-in-law.

Talk about embarrassed. I shall never forget the feeling of my ears, neck and entire face becoming crimson. I wonder how my mother and relatives felt? F. P.

Offer Accepted.

I was visiting an old school chum of mine recently, and was left alone in her apartment in the east during an engagement of hers. This is what happened:

While I was sewing in her apartment there was a rap at the door. Thinking it was Ethel, I said "Come in, dear."

And in came a remarkably handsome young man. Thinking it was a friend of Ethel's, I said, "Won't you have a chair, sir?"

Picture my embarrassment when he replied: "You bet, girlie—and I'm taking the davenport and dining room set, too, that you bought from the Easy Payment Plan company three months ago!" D. L.

AN ENDOWED INSTITUTION

FALL SEMESTER OPENS THIS WEEK

Students, in selecting a school remember these facts: For 65 years the Chicago Musical College has expanded steadily and consistently until today it embraces all important phases of musical education. Students are drawn from every state in the Union and from practically every country in the world. Here, 150 artist-teachers are engaged in giving private and class lessons to adults and children. Courses lead to Teaching Certificates and, upon completion, to the Degree of Bachelor of Music. Post Graduate course leads to the Degree of Master of Music. Credit is given for previous study. Private lessons only may be taken without regard to courses. This College is nationally and state accredited. Academic subjects required in Certificate and Degree awards are conducted by and accredited by Loyola University (Chicago). Certainly, such pertinent facts concerning an old and established institution warrant further investigation. Write or call for Year Book, which will be sent without obligation. Act today!

Ford, Farrell Entertained by French Friends

City of Nancy Host to Visitors

By May Birkhead.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—[Special.]—The presence in Paris of several of our distinguished citizens, such as Henry Ford and James A. Farrell, has been the occasion of semi-official affairs as well as informal entertaining the last few days.

A few days ago Paul Claudel, the French ambassador to Washington, and Mr. Farrell were guests of the ancient city of Nancy, capital of Lorraine. The ceremony recalled the rôle of the celebrated Pere Marquette in America. Mr. Farrell referred to Pere Marquette's achievement in exploring the St. Lawrence, the great lakes and the Mississippi.

* *

Awarded Medal of Nancy.

Mr. Farrell received, as did M. Claudel, who was born in Lorraine, the grand medal of the city of Nancy and also a 17th century map of America and a cherub's head of stone from one of the buildings where the great explorer once lived in Nancy.

One of the interesting places visited by the party was the hospital St. Stanislas. It was installed in a school which Marquette attended about the middle of the 17th century. Marquette descended from a noble family in Laon, where he was born. This gifted disciple of the Jesuits, as he was called in the new world, in 1673 established a chain of missions stretching from Quebec to the Great Lakes.

Marquette and Joliet set out with five French servants, 257 years ago, from Quebec to find and explore the Mississippi river. Two years later Marquette died on his way home to St. Ignace at the present site of Ludington, Mich.

In their speeches Ambassador Claudel and Mr. Farrell pointed out that Marquette's name is borne in America by two counties, five towns, one river, a railway system, and a Chicago building.

Chicagoans Abroad.

Chicagoans who have been at St. Moritz for the last few weeks are greatly interested in the fact that Giorgio Polacco, musical director of the Chicago Civic opera, and his former wife, Edith Mason, prima donna of the company, are spending their vacations in hotels side by side at this Swiss resort. One is at the Grand hotel and the other next door at the Palace hotel.

Mrs. Jacob Baur and her daughter, Rosemary, with Mrs. Charles H. Chadwick gave a tea at the Hotel Plaza Athenée to say good-by to friends before sailing home. Other Chicagoans here are Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes and her daughter, Mrs. Frederick Haskell; Mrs. Paul Healy, Mrs. James T. Harahan, and Mrs. Carlton Holdrege, who is sailing with her husband and daughter, Betty, late in the autumn to spend the winter in Chicago.

Charles Whitney and his wife have been in Paris for a short visit and are now going to London before sailing home.

Charles S. Dewey, financial adviser to Poland, with his daughter, Louise, has just sailed to spend a vacation in America. George High and wife were among the dinner hosts at a Sunday dinner dance at the Ritz.

New Spanish Tariff Raises the Price of American Cigarets

MADRID.—(AP)—Cigarets imported from the United States now cost in Spain about three times their price at home. They used to cost only twice as much.

The price was tilted as a result of the new Spanish tariff and the continued depression of the peseta. The new tariff does not list tobacco, but the government tobacco monopoly has a little private tariff of its own, which it has revised upward.

All foreign and many native products, articles, and foodstuffs have gone up. This is attributed to the adverse peseta exchange and to the new tariffs of the United States and Spain, acting directly or indirectly. Americans get more pesetas for their dollars, but pay still more pesetas than before for all they buy.

Find Legendary City of Gold in Colombian Wilds

Buried in Jungle Since Sixteenth Century.

BOGOTA.—(AP)—After three and a half centuries explorers again have found the legendary city of Toro Viejo and its gold.

The discovery was announced by the government of Colombia on the basis of a report by Ramon Franky and Guillermo Herrera, Colombian engineers. Using ancient, yellowed documents they led a party of 30 through five days of Choco jungle to the gold workings of the sixteenth century.

For many generations the story of Toro Viejo has been regarded as fanciful, comparable to those of the buried treasure of Capt. Kidd. But Franky and Herrera obtained Spanish documents which not only gave actual dates for the founding of Toro Viejo but furnished them with a map.

Founded in 1573.

The documents said the city was established June 3, 1573, by Don Francisco de Larraga under charter of Don Andres Venero de Leiva, president of the colony of New Granada—a territory which embraced the present republics of Colombia, Venezuela, Panama, and Ecuador.

Huge quantities of gold were mined in the name of the king of Spain and were transported down the Rio Cauca and the Magdalena river to the Caribbean sea. Thence galleons carried it through pirate infested waters to Spain.

Sacred to Indians.

But, before the Spaniards came, the gold workings were sacred ground to the Catias Indians. For fourteen years the Indians and the jungle heat warred against the white gold miners, and finally, in 1587, gunpowder succumbed to poisoned arrows, and the Indians regained their treasure district.

Then the jungle crept over the city and only legend remained. No white man saw the city until the party of Franky and Herrera found the place. Except for the ravages of time and resentful Indians it was exactly as the Spaniards had left it.

* *

Find Gold Nuggets.

They found guns, lances, breastplates, bullets, nails, and cooking utensils under jungle débris, and even lower in their excavations they found Indian stone mining tools. And at last they found alluvial gold in nuggets.

Members of the expedition reported that not only does the city of Toro Viejo retain its gold, but that they also found evidences of platinum and oil.

The ancient city lies in a tangle of hardwood, rubber, and cocoa trees in the mountainous southeastern portion of the department of Choco, the northernmost of the Pacific provinces of Colombia. It is about 100 miles inland and northeast of Chirambira point.

Luxurious Cars Added to English Train Equipment

LONDON.—(AP)—Two sleeping cars of entirely new design have been attached to the London's Highland Man express. In these cars bedrooms with full sized beds are provided for the first time on any English railway.

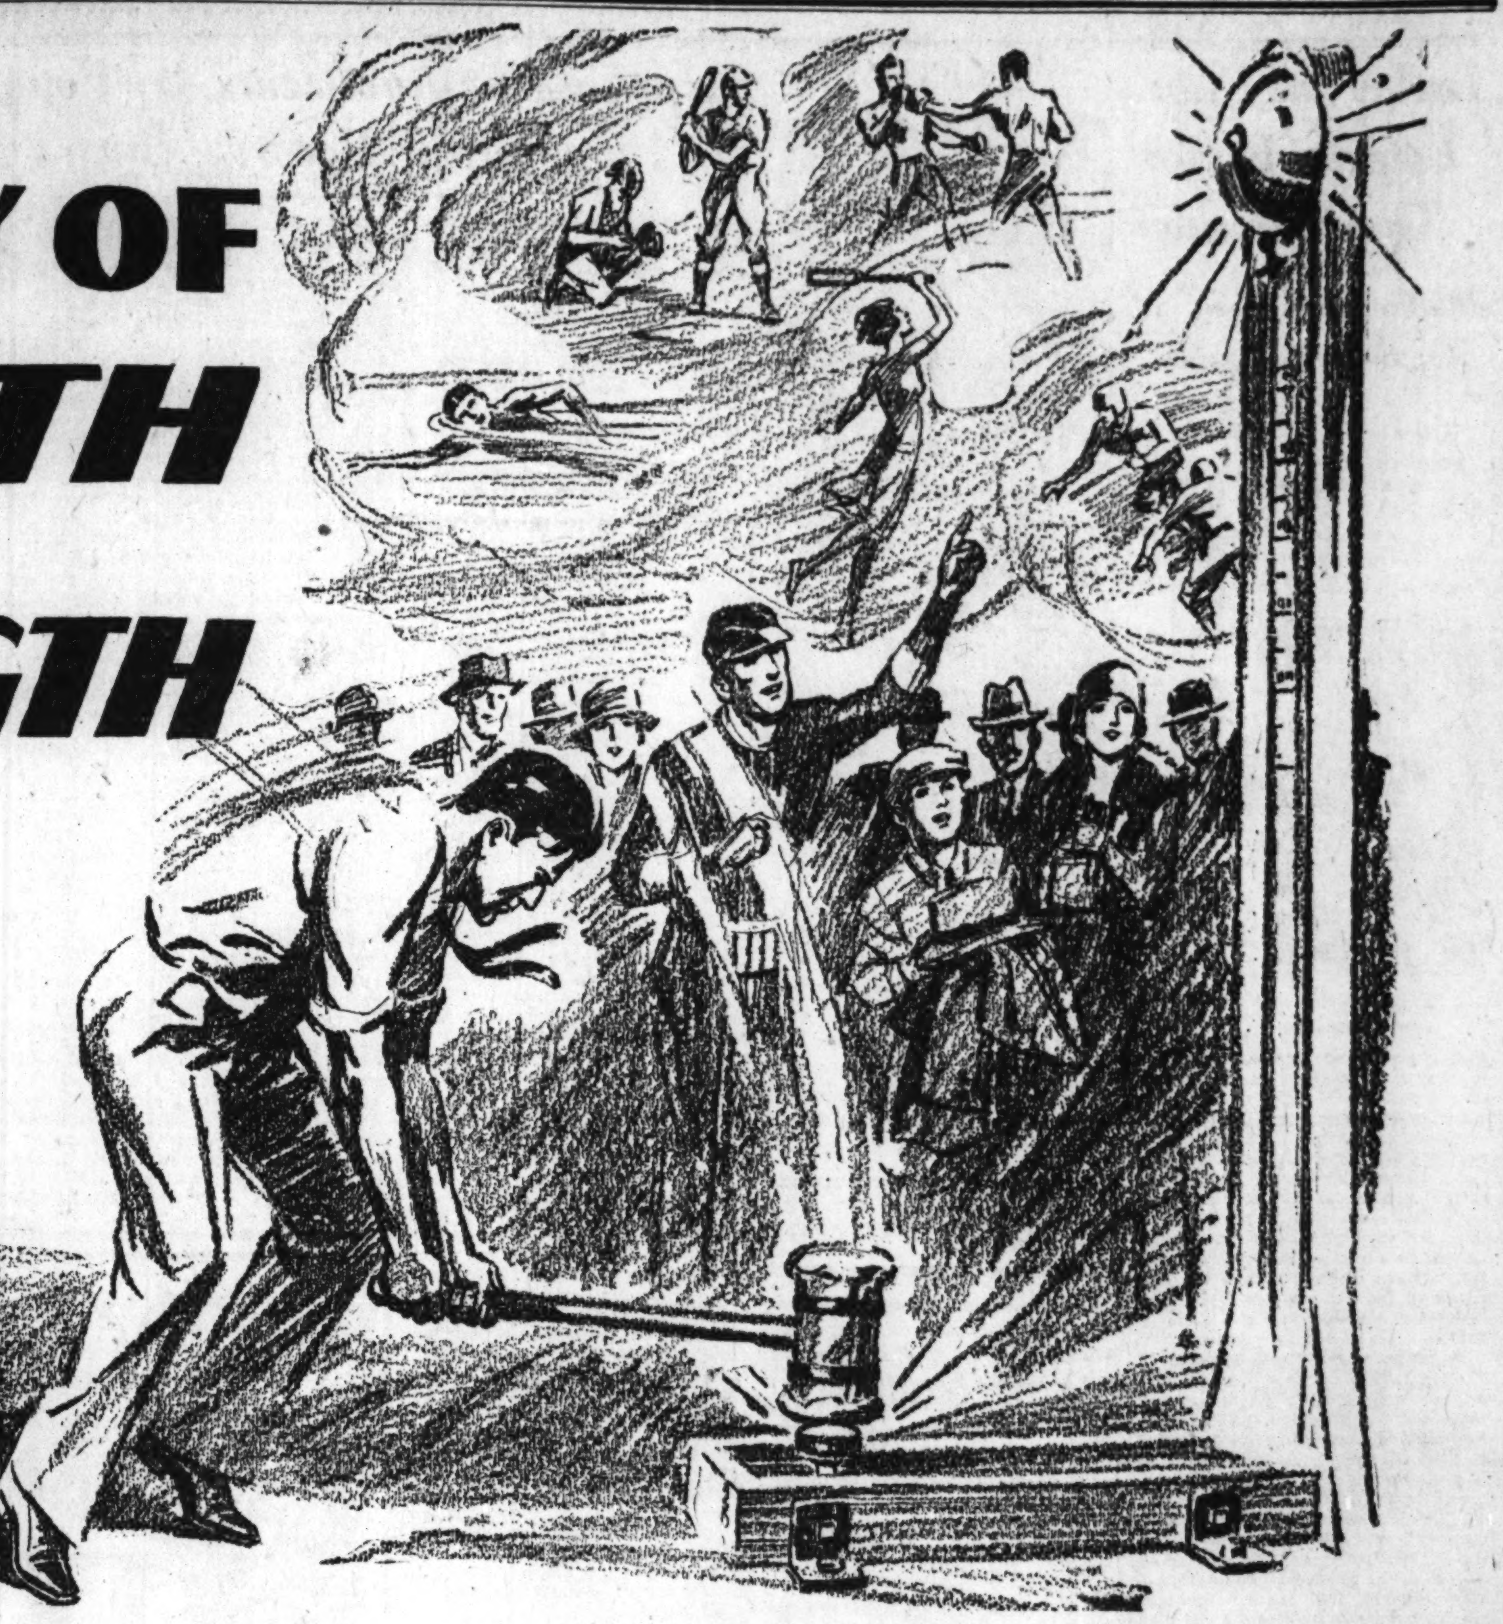
Vibration, it is claimed, has been entirely eliminated by packing the roofs, floors, and sides of the cars with asbestos felt. There is a new system of ventilation the principle of which is to force a current of hot or cold cleansed air into each bedroom, the direction, volume, and temperature of the air being controlled by the passenger.

An electric generator below the floor of the car, driven by a belt from the wheels, supplies current for lighting, ventilating, and heating water. The floors are covered with sponge rubber and are carpeted, and the fittings and furniture embody many new features.

Each bedroom is a study in soothing pale blue, and the rooms are arranged in pairs, so that they can be converted into double rooms by communicating doors if desired.

Escape Benefits Patients.

MILAN, Italy.—(AP)—A local financier, as a thank offering for escape in an automobile accident, gave 10,000 portions of ice cream to hospitals, providing cake and vermuth for those who did not care for the frozen delicacy.



THE JOY OF HEALTH AND STRENGTH

WHAT a grand and glorious feeling good health adds to every occasion. At work or play it is the force that carries us on to greater achievement. Whether we realize it or not, good health is our most priceless possession, and every precaution should be taken for its protection.

In considering protective measures, it is well to remember that actual physical pain does not always come as a warning of beginning disease. For there are diseases which cause so little pain at the start that the afflicted person is likely to disregard it until serious damage has been done. This is particularly true of Syphilis. The first symptom, an ulcer, usually appears three weeks or more after infection and is often so slight or so concealed as to escape notice. That is why health authorities urgently advise any person who has reason to suspect himself infected, or exposed to infection, to seek reliable medical advice immediately. If the disease is discovered early and proper treatment given, there is greater assurance of cure.

The second stage occurs from one to six weeks after the first. Its symptoms are often like those of some other diseases—headaches, pains in the lower extremities and back (especially at night), sometimes slight fever and sore throat—followed, usually, by other signs such as a general skin rash and patches in the mouth and throat.

Syphilis is widely prevalent and highly infectious. Recent health surveys in the United States indicate that annually more than 423,000 new cases of Syphilis seek treatment during the first year of the disease. On this basis, Chicago has more than 10,000 new cases seeking treatment every year. Cases which do not come under treatment early enough to be cured can at least be saved from disastrous later complications by continuing under medical care. But those who attempt self-treatment or go untreated are endangering their own health and that of the public.

Syphilis often exists without apparent symptoms and because of the difficulty of determining its presence physicians use a blood test to aid them in their diagnosis. The best known blood tests are called the Wassermann and Kahn tests—after the scientists who discovered them.

The discovery and treatment of Syphilis in its early stages will prevent such disabling afflictions as locomotor ataxia, paresis, and other complications commonly resulting from delay. Good medical treatment for the care of Syphilis and Gonorrhea can be secured within your means from an experienced family physician or from the Public Health Institute. Treatment is available also through the Institute and many free clinics for those without funds.

The Public Health Institute has been combating "social" diseases (Syphilis and Gonorrhea) in Chicago for more than ten years. Physicians comprising its medical staff are experienced and are registered by the State. All treatments are given by these men and women physicians. The fees are within the reach of all. Treatment is available to those without immediate funds. No one is turned away because of inability to pay.

Announcement . . . This advertisement has been submitted to and been approved by the Medical Advisory Board which has been formed at the invitation of the Trustees. It is published by a health agency established for public service to inform the public of the dangers of "social diseases," of the importance of securing good medical care, and the facilities whereby this can be obtained.

Lutherans Plan Fete to Honor Their Founder

400th Anniversary of Augsburg Confession.

By the Rev John Evans.

AS many as 75,000 Lutherans from the Chicago area of the Missouri synod will take part in a religious festival next Sunday at Camp Reinberg, near Palatine. The occasion will commemorate the 400th anniversary of the Augsburg Confession. The festival has been sponsored by 25 Missouri Synod Lutheran churches of the northwest suburbs, but 108 congregations in Greater Chicago will be represented.

DR. FREDERICK PFOTENHAUER.
[Dodge Photo.]

The Augsburg Confession recalls the tempestuous days in Germanic religious life which climaxed on June 25, 1530, in the publication of Protestantism's first formulated articles of belief. This declaration of faith came to be known as the Augsburg Confession. The efforts of the secular and ecclesiastical powers to stem the tide of the reformation set in motion by Dr. Martin Luther had been only partly successful. At the diet of Worms, the doctrines of Dr. Luther had been condemned and Dr. Luther had been exiled.

However, under the leadership of Elector John of Saxony the Lutheran princes demanded a right to present their doctrinal position. After some hesitation Emperor Charles V. called a national assembly at Augsburg. The Confession was drawn under the leadership of Dr. Luther's co-worker, Dr. Phillip Melanchton, together with a number of Lutheran theologians, though Dr. Luther was the guiding influence in the theological deliberations.

On June 25, 1530, the new declaration of faith was read before the diet. Historical scholars continue to relate the profound impression the articles made on the assembly. For 400 years the Confession has been the principal unifying factor in Lutheran thought.

According to Missouri Synod Lutheran leaders the 4,000,000 members and pastors have been untouched by the modern controversies which recently have tended to unsettle Protestant thought. In 1580 the Augsburg Confession was incorporated into the "Formula of Concord," an official Lutheran book of creeds. Due to the historical importance attached to the Augsburg Confession, as well as its present day significance to Lutherans, the Camp Reinberg demonstration has been called.

Last year Lutherans all over the world celebrated the 400th anniversary of Luther's catechism. A festival in honor of the catechism was held in Soldiers' field under Missouri synod auspices and more than 50,000 persons attended. The services next Sunday at Reinberg will be conducted in both English and German. Musical features of the celebration will be a children's chorus of 800 voices augmented by a mixed chorus of 300 experienced singers. The music will be led by the River Forest Lutheran Normal school band under the direction of Prof. Rohlfing.

The principal speaker will be the Rev. Dr. Frederick Pfotenhauer, president of the Missouri synod. Dr. Photenhauer will speak in German. The Rev. Dr. William Dallmann, Milwaukee, will speak in English. Both addresses will be given at the morning service at 10:30. William Schloman of Arlington Heights is general chairman of the celebration committee.

Dr. John Rathbone Oliver, Johns Hopkins university psychiatrist and priest of the Episcopal church, will conduct the annual retreat for the clergy of the Episcopal diocese at Doddridge farm, near Libertyville, Sept. 24, 25, 26 and 27. The retreat is under the direction of Bishop Sheldon Munson Griswold. Dr. Oliver's recent books on the relation of psychiatry and religion have been widely read.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Emogene Marie Knudsen, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. H. C. Knudsen, to the Rev. Gilbert Theophilus Bremicker on Sept. 13 at the Howell Memorial church. After Oct. 1 the Rev. Mr. Bremicker and Mrs. Bremicker will reside at 1434 North Sedgwick street.

Church Notes

His eminence George Cardinal Mundelein will be present at Holy Name cathedral this morning at 11 o'clock, when a solemn mass will be celebrated in honor of the cardinal's 21st anniversary as a bishop. The Rt. Rev. C. J. Quille, newly appointed pastor of St. Ita's church, for many years head of the Mission of Our Lady of Mercy, the "newsboys' home," will be celebrant. The Rev. Joseph P. Morrison, administrator of the cathedral, will be master of ceremonies.

The sermon will be preached by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. William D. O'Brien, president of the Catholic Church Extension society.

The music will be furnished by the Quigley seminary plain chant choir, which will chant the Proper of the mass, under the direction of the Rev. Edwin V. Hoover, and the Holy Name Cathedral Men's choir, and boy choristers, which will sing the Ordinary of the mass, which will be the Missa Solemnis of Pietro Yon. The men's choir and the choristers will be directed by the Rev. Philip F. Mahoney, musical director of the cathedral. The soloists will be Earl Alexander of the men's choir and Masters Orsam Lombardo and Edgar Strong of the choristers.

The entire musical staff of the cathedral will sing on Sunday for the first time since the beginning of the vacation period, and this will mark the resumption of the solemn mass.

The Rev. Frank W. Bible, D. D., of Chicago, director of field work of the Presbyterian board of foreign missions, is soon to leave for a visit to Presbyterian missions in the near east and the far east. He will be accompanied by Dr. Edward M. Dodd, medical secretary of the board. During Dr. Bible's absence, the Rev. William P. Schell, D. D., executive secretary of the home base department, will take over his duties as director of field work, and the Rev. Herbert E. Blair of the Chosen mission will serve as acting secretary of the central district, with headquarters at 77 West Washington street, Chicago.

The Evangelical Lutheran Young People's league will hold a meeting and tea from 2 to 5 this afternoon at the Hotel La Salle.

Chinese Sell Their Jewels.

SHANGHAI. — (AP) — A rush by many Chinese to sell their jewelry is one of the sidelights of the situation created by the slump in silver prices. Goldsmiths buy the baubles solely for the weight of gold they contain, paying nothing for fineness of workmanship or artistic design.

Surprising Improvements Are Found in New Phonograph Records; Blurry Sounds Cleared

The Tribune is devoting space each Sunday to a consideration of current phonograph records. It is an effort to itemize as intelligently as possible the new recordings, to give the record buying public information of the important things the recorders are doing, and to chronicle the progress being made by this phase of art preservative.

By Edward Moore.
[Music Critic of The Tribune.]

PRESENT day record buyers have a tremendous advantage over the early collectors of this form of music. It is all in the clarity of reproduction, an improvement that has come only within the last few years, and one that would seem to have been the greatest step forward since the first sound reproducing machine was invented.

Fifteen, even ten years ago, the case was different. About the time that the recording companies began to speak glowingly of the educational advantages of possessing a selected set of musical records, a pessimistic reply came from an eminent American musical authority and composer, the late Horatio Parker.

The point of his complaint was that in any piece of music more complex than a simple tune with a simple accompaniment nothing but the top voice and perhaps the bottom one could be heard on a record. Everything in between was reduced to a foggy, blurry, indeterminate mass of sound. It was impossible, said Dr. Parker, for a student to take up a record of a symphony orchestra and hope to make anything out of what the piece should really have sounded like.

Vast Improvements.

It was true then. It is not true now. Improvements in recording, improvements in reproducing have been astonishing. Of the two, it is likely that reproducing devices have shown the greater advance. For proof of the statement, one need only play an old record on a new machine. It naturally will not be as good as a new record, but it is surprising to what an extent the blur clears up, how the fog settles into definite lines of music, how even the inner orchestral voices make their appearance in something like their natural tone. This is true whether the record is played on a new machine or whether the user has adopted the device of connecting the turntable with the tubes of his radio set. As for the new records, there is no comparison.

One feels much safer these days in buying almost any kind of a record, whether of solo singing, chorus, orchestra, or solo instrument. Even the piano, uncommonly insistent upon perpetuating its tone in terms of tinniness not so long ago, has begun to yield to late discoveries and pianists' records are coming to be popular with some degree of justification.

String Quartets.

Those who think of the string quartet as the highest type of concert music are now able to have a pretty fair permanent collection of string quartet discs. It may interest Chicagoans to know that the famous Hungarian organization, the Lener String quartet, will play at the Studebaker on the afternoon of Sunday, Oct. 26, and that Columbia has recorded a considerable share of its rêpertoire.

The Leners have made records of no less than twelve of the Beethoven quartets: Op. 18, No. 2, in G; Op. 18, No. 3, in D; Op. 18, No. 4, in C minor; Op. 18, No. 6, in B flat; Op. 59, No. 1, in F; Op. 59, No. 2, in E minor; Op. 59, No. 3, in C; Op. 74 (the harp quartet), in E flat; Op. 95, in F minor; Op. 130, in B flat; Op. 131, in C sharp minor; Op. 132, in A minor; Op. 135, in F; and the quintet in F minor, Op. 34, for strings and piano.

Other important recordings by this body are the quartets by Brahms in A minor, Op. 51, Debussy in G minor, Op. 10, Haydn in D, Op. 76, Mozart in B flat, Op. 458, and C, Op. 465, and the Schubert octet in F.

Or if you happen to care for another full opera, "Pagliacci" has a long history as a best seller. Remember the Prologue by Tonio, the "Ballatella" by Nedda, "Visti la Guibba" by Canio, Harlequin's serenade sung under the window in the second act by Beppe, and a whole collection of choruses?

* *

No Distractions.

Victor is providing the complete work, and it advertises rather justifiably that here is an operatic performance minus the disturbances of late comers. La Scala Opera company is presented, the soloists are Alessandro Valente, Apollo Granforte, and Adelaide Saraceni, and the conductor is Carlo Sabajno. It comes in nine 12-inch discs Nos. (9655-9663).

Victor has some more pleasant announcements. Ezio Pinza, Metropolitan baritone, sings two arias from Mozart's opera, "Don Giovanni"; Hulda Lashanska has two greatly popular cradle songs with orchestral accompaniment, the Berceuse from Godard's "Jocelyn," and the famous old Lullaby from "Erminie"; Pablo Casals, the most famous cellist in the world, plays the adagio and allegro movements from a work by Boccherini; Beniamino Gigli, with the thrill in his tenor voice, obliges with a pair of Italian songs, "Se" and "Notte Lunare"; Vladimir Horowitz once again gives pause to the pianists with the Liszt-Busoni arrangement of the Paganini Etude in E flat and his own "Danse Exotique," written in jazz idiom; the Philadelphia Chamber String simfonietta plays the Londonderry Air and "Gossips" under the direction of Fabien Sevitzky; Fritz Kreisler returns to his Viennese melodies with "The Old Refrain" and "Midnight Bells"; and Richard Crooks obliges with the serenade from "The Student Prince" and "L'Amour, Toujours L'Amour." This would seem a reasonably wide selection.

Popular Selections.

In the lighter vein:

Victor—Everett Marshall in "Mr. and Mrs. Sippi" and "Good Bye, Old Pals"; Helen Kane in "I've Got 'It'"; and "My Man Is on the Make"; Aileen Stanley in "Swingin' in a Hammock" and "I Love You So Much"; Frank Crumit in "I'm Bettin' the Roll on Roamer" and "The Return of Abdul Abulbul Amir"; Waring's Pennsylvanians in "So Beats My Heart for You" and "Without Love"; Rudy Valée in "Betty Co-Ed," "Violet," and "Friends."

Columbia — "The Raw Recruit," "Mademoiselle from Armentieres," and "The Regular Army, Oh!" by the West Pointers; "Here Comes the Sun" and "Cheer Up" by the Rondoliers; "Little White Lies" and "Nobody Cares if I'm Blue" by Lee Morse and her Blue Grass Boys; "Three o'Clock in the Morning" and "The World Is Waiting for the Sunrise" by Ted Lewis and His Band; "Confessin'" and "Good Evenin'" by Guy Lombardo and His Royal Canadians.

Brunswick—"At the End of a Cobblestone Road" and "The Dawn Brought Me Love and You" by Allen McQuhae, tenor; "Old New England Moon" and "Wonder" by Freddie Rose, tenor; "Cheer Up" and "I'm Needin' You" by Belle Baker, comedienne; "California Sunshine" and "It Happened in Monterey" by Palakiko and Paaluhi, Hawaiian instrumentalists; "I wish I could Shimmy Like My Sister Kate" and "St. Louis Blues" by Lee Sims, piano solos with trumpet.

French Fondness for Stocking Bank Delays Coin Issue

PARIS.—(AP)—The Frenchman still clings as fondly as ever to his famous woolen stocking. That is why the long announced new 10 and 20 franc silver pieces have not made their appearance.

The mint sends the new coins to the Bank of France as fast as they are struck. But the bank will not put them into circulation until it has a stock of several hundred million.

Experience has shown that when issued in small quantities the coins rapidly disappear into the famous stocking, with no benefit to the monetary system.

Chicago's Choicest Spot

For a Party

When you're planning a banquet—a dinner party—a meeting—or a gathering of any kind, remember that the Morrison Hotel offers exclusive facilities for the comfort and convenience of your guests.

HARRY C. MOIR
PRES. & GEN. MGR.

The New Morrison, when completed, will be the world's largest and tallest hotel—46 stories high, with 3,450 rooms.

Private Dining Rooms

In the Morrison Hotel, you can secure a beautiful private dining room of just the right size to accommodate your party. There are small rooms for parties of ten and up, larger rooms for larger gatherings and the exquisite Cameo Room which seats 2,000 persons without a single pillar to obstruct the view. The Rose Room is one of the most popular meeting rooms in the city. An ideal place for a merry get-together is the colorful Terrace Garden, where your enjoyment of the delicious menus will be enhanced by scintillating dance music.

Room With Bath, $2.50 Up

All rooms at the Morrison are outside rooms. Each has private bath, circulating ice water, telephone, bed-head reading lamp and Servidor. Taxi stations and surface lines serve both frontages, and railroad terminals are within easiest reach.

MEDITERRANEAN

Sail away on the famous cruising steamer

ROTTERDAM FROM N. Y. FEB. 5th 1931

under Holland-America Line's own management.

71 DAYS OF DELIGHT

The itinerary which is the most comprehensive in the annals of this famous steamer includes Madeira, Casablanca (the playground of Morocco and North Africa), Cadiz, Seville (Granada), Gibraltar, Algiers, Naples (first call), Tunis, Athens, Constantinople, Haifa, Jerusalem; (the Holy Land), Alexandria, Cairo (and Egypt), Kotor and Dubrovnik (on the Dalmatian Coast), Venice, Naples (second call), Monaco, and the Riviera. A trip to the "Eternal City," Rome, without extra charge. Other fascinating ports of call are Malta, the romantic, Cyprus, the sunny isle, and Messina (Taormina) in Sicily. And now the island of Rhodes and further inland visits will be added. Rate from $955 including complete program of fascinating shore trips.

American Express Co. in charge of shore excursions

The Rotterdam has been entirely modernized. Real beds, instead of berths, hot and cold running water in most rooms, a delightful tile swimming pool and modern gymnasium are among the many new improvements which make this ever popular ship of even greater appeal to the discriminating cruise passenger.

Round the World

On the largest and fastest ship — weeks saved at sea

Sailing January 21, on the fastest and largest ship ever to cruise Round the World—the 32,000 ton North German Lloyd "Columbus". The superior speed of the "Columbus" enables us to offer you a world cruise weeks shorter than all others without cutting the number of places seen or the duration of your visits ashore. This incomparable world cruise visits all the traditional countries—and includes such unusual places as Penang, Malacca, Siam, Macassar and opportunities to visit Angkor Wat and Bali. One third of the accommodations range between $2000 & $3000 in price.

Mediterranean

Visiting Nice at the time of the Carnival

This is the fifteenth Raymond-Whitcomb cruise to the Mediterranean. Sailing January 31 on the newest of the great Cunard liners — the S. S. "Carinthia". Visiting the Riviera, Italy, Malta, Jugo-Slavia, Greece, Turkey, Rhodes, Palestine, Egypt, Corsica, etc.— this cruise covers the Mediterranean with unusual thoroughness. 59 days to Southampton. Radios Half Price

Installed Complete with Tubes

Actually less than today's worth of the cabinet! Product of one of Chicago's oldest and most reliable makers—brand new. But due to this sensational price the manufacturers wish us not to advertise the name.

The beautiful cabinet, highboy style, is of Early English oak. Three of the seven guaranteed tubes in this radio are screen grid. The speaker is the famous Jenson electro-dynamic. The performance of this radio is in every way highly satisfactory.

$69.50 installed complete with tubes! You should act at once. $5 down. Easy payments. Small carrying charge.

BURNHAM
Beauty Culture
TRAINING
Enables You to EARN MORE

You are probably seriously considering beauty culture as your profession. . . . Let us have a heart to heart talk on the subject. You have read and heard so many reasons why this school or that school should be your choice that your mind is probably in a whirl. You realize the magnificent opportunities open to you in this profitable profession, but how can you be sure that you will choose the RIGHT method of training?

In seeking the answer, it is only logical that you come to BURNHAM'S as thousands of others have done, because . . .

BURNHAM'S

is the oldest, largest, and most celebrated of all beauty culture schools. It has been operating for over HALF A CENTURY. It is a complete organization in every phase of beauty culture. For years it has operated the largest retail establishment of beauty culture, as well as the largest school in the world.

BURNHAM'S

prestige, stability, and reputation are built on sound principles . . . of utmost importance and value to the Burnham graduate during her entire business career. To be a Burnham graduate is to be assured of success.

BURNHAM'S

gave the first permanent wave in America, and permanent wave machine manufacturers constantly look to Burnham's for advice in perfecting their processes. The vast research work of the Burnham organization keeps it always ahead in the origination of styles and methods. Burnham's insists that a method of instruction must not merely be NEW—it must be PERFECTED. Only such proven methods are taught under the Burnham system.

NEW CLASSES

for the manufacture of hair goods in ALL NEW STYLES. This course cannot be obtained in any other school. This affords a splendid opportunity to all students enrolling NOW.

BURNHAM'S

Will make you an expert in every phase of Beauty Culture — Facial Massage — Electrolysis — Permanent Waving — Finger and Water Waving — Hair Cutting — Hair Tinting — Manicuring — Making of Wigs, Toupees and Hair Pieces — Adjustment of Hair Pieces — New Modes of Hair Dressing — Body Massage, etc. Classes every day and EVENING CLASSES, TOO.

You'll enjoy your training in the airy, well-equipped Burnham classrooms, conveniently located at Randolph and State-sts. Burnham training enables you to pass any State Board examination.

VISIT BURNHAM'S.

You owe it to yourself to visit all schools of beauty culture. Then see for yourself the superiority of Burnham training . . . Burnham methods . . . Burnham prestige. Won't you visit us soon? Learn how thousands of Burnham graduates are enjoying refined, profitable positions. Many are independent, for they own their own smart shops. Burnham's will help you, too, along this sure road to success. Come any day or, if evenings are more convenient, we are open Monday, Wednesday and Friday until 9 p. m. Does
Success Follow
Ambition
OR Just Plain
Laziness

Seemingly there is no question about this, YET many of our greatest men have attained SUCCESS by avoiding something apparently more difficult (just plain lazy).

BEAUTY CULTURE
BARBERING
Just Fits in Here

It's the very thing that will carry you on to the success you thought was only possible by things beyond your reach.

It's more sensible to try for the thing within your grasp rather than to strain every effort giving the last ounce of vitality trying for somehing beyond you physically, mentally, and financially, and even if attained, finding it not what it seemed.

Beauty Culture
OR Barbering

is easily learned, is within your reach, doesn't call for unreasonable sacrifice, doesn't demand great ambition—you can be just plain lazy and SUCCEED.

Get my little booklets in 6 editions, mailed you monthly, entirely free, showing how many whom might be called just plain lazy have succeeded even unto the founder of the Moler System. A continued story-romance, fiction, a character analysis.

Real Estate Salesmen, Here's Something New.

The Chicago Income Trust [capitalized at $10,000,000] has a permanent connection for experienced real estate salesmen to place beneficial interests in this trust, which is purchasing for cash, at a fraction of their true value, improved income properties in our central business districts. These properties will show substantial resale profits in a quickening market, and in the meantime will yield from 12 to 18% on the invested capital. Contacts are made with our list of investors through letters of invitation from the management, which includes 12 bank directors. No canvassing. No car needed.

All funds are handled in trust through one of the strong loop banks with combined resources in excess of $200,000,000. Five separate trusts under the same management have already been closed and the principal and profits distributed to 507 beneficiaries. These profits ranged from 18% to 40%.

The compensation is liberal, permitting of earnings in excess of $500 per month, with rapid advancement to sales executive positions for those who can direct the efforts of others. Call Monday between 10 a. m. and 3 p. m. at 209 N. La Salle-st., and ask for the General Manager.

Pioneers and Developers of Chicago's Poultry Area,

After rounding out four years of pioneering and experimenting in Chicago's new poultry area now offers the sales fraternity of Chicago an opportunity to get in on the ground floor of what will perhaps be the leading sales program of Chicago for many months to come.

The Anderson Plan

has already blazed the trail of poultry income homes in this locality and its purchasers have a positive knowledge of its profitable operations. Actual dollars paid to its purchasers now.

Our unique nonresident income plan gives our purchasers an opportunity to own a piece of dynamic Chicago acreage in the healthy highlands of beautiful POULTRAREA while the chickens on our $50,000 headquarters plant are laying the dividends that help pay for his land.

IT GIVES our purchaser a business of his own, a heritage for his children and best of all an income starting almost immediately.

IT INVOLVES but a small outlay of cash with maximum profits.

IT PROVIDES him with a substantial business already established; requires no work or effort as far as he is concerned and he pursues his regular occupation and lives where he chooses.

SALESMEN are invited to attend our sales meeting Monday morning at 9 a. m. or our daily meetings thereafter and get the particulars of this fascinating sales program.

Key organization now being formed.

CADILLAC

ANY MAKE OF USED CAR IS A SAFE BUY AT CADILLAC

If you are in the market for a good used car you should realize that not only reconditioned Cadillacs and La Salles, but a host of other cars, are sold by Cadillac on the policy of giving the buyer the facts.

Cadillac realizes that the used car department is as important a part of the business as the sale of new cars—and Cadillac conducts this department on a strict policy of fairness to the buyer.

No matter what make of car you'd like to drive we have it at a price that will interest you. Here is a partial list. Many others $100 up.
